Very Late from England.

CHARLESTON, May 7.

The fast-sailing ship Oceania, Captain Wilson, arrived late last evening, after the short passage of 35 days from Liverpool. She brings London dates to the 22d of March, and Liverpool to the 24th. Such extracts of interest as we had time to make are subjoined. The Austrians have not yet commenced the war, but the Piedmontese have revolted, and the whole of Italy in all probability will be on the side of Naples.

The Emperor of China is dead. The British Parliament is occupied chiefly, it would appear, in discussing the Catholic question.

The Spanish General Montolio, has arrived in London, on his way to Spain. An order had been issued prohibiting all British Officers from engaging on either side of the Italian war, on pain of losing their commissions.

We have seen no commercial news later than the 21st March. A letter of that date, states that Upland Cotton was from 8d to 10d and the sales were brisker for that week, than for some time previous.

LIVERPOOL, March 24.

The public mind has been kept in a state of considerable perturbation during the whole of the present week by the continual tide of reports, opinions and speculations, which flowed upon us from France and Italy, and which were scarcely exceeded in number and variety, during any period of the late war. First in immediate interest, though not in ultimate importance, is the account of a battle, said to have been fought on the Neapolitan frontier, the beginning of the present month. All the statements hitherto received, the greater part of which have reached us through the French journals, concur in declaring that the result of this battle was in favor of the Neapolitans, and some accounts add that the loss of the Austrians amounted to not less than 4 or 5000 men. The latter, it is said, were attacked by surprise, and before they were at all aware that the enemy was prepared to receive them. But the whole details of this affair are, as yet, in a state of absolute uncertainty.

[From the London papers of Thursday last.]

Paris papers of the 18th and 19th inst. have been received this morning. Intelligence from Italy, received in Paris on the latter day, has also reached town this morning, thus anticipating the Paris papers of Tuesday. They confirm the account of the revolt of several garrisons in Piedmont, and the abdication of the King of Sardinia, but not the defeat of the Austrians and death of General Pepe, so confidently asserted in the bulletin from Paris.—These and the other favorable accounts, including the insubordination of the Austrian troops, which is expressly contradicted, had probably their origin in speculations on change. What was said of the march of the Prince of Carignan towards Milan has not been confirmed. These papers mention a variety of rumours, upon which we apprehend no reliance can be placed. Among them are the following: That a courier had arrived at Paris from Mayence, bringing information of some revolutionary troubles having broken out in that city; that the Austrian magistrates at Venice had been killed by the people; and that at Turin, the colonel of a regiment, wishing to oppose the constitutional movement, a lieutenant stepped out of the ranks and shot the colonel through the head with a pistol. The news from Piedmont is important. The King of Sardinia, it is said, has abdicated, not in favor of the Prince de Carignan, but of his brother, the Duke de Genevois. The Prince de Carignan is merely appointed Regent till the arrival of the King's brother, who was on his way towards Modena, to meet his father-in-law, the King of Naples.

It was last night very confidently rumoured that insurrectionary movements had taken place in Hanover and Prussia. The report was circulated in quarters so respectable that we cannot let it pass unnoticed.

The funds are a shade better this day. The fall in the French funds is supposed to have contributed to their late depression.

In the House of Commons, last night, Mr. Western obtained leave to bring in a bill to repeal the additional duty on malt. Ministers were left in a minority of 24.

Yesterday the Queen addressed a letter to the Earl of Liverpool, containing a petition to his Majesty to allow her to be publicly prayed for by the clergy of the established church—a privilege which has been enjoyed by all her predecessors since the reformation. Her Majesty, it is said, adds, that this is the only request she has to make.

The Queen has lately presented Mr. Brougham with a splendid edition of "Dante," as a mark of her Majesty's unabated favor towards her able and intrepid defender.

Russia.—It is said, that there are not less than 120,000 Russian troops assembled in Georgia, ready for the field. The ambitious designs of Russia become daily more apparent, and we must not be surprised to see shortly that court openly avow its views on Turkey and Persia. The Emperor Alexander, it is said, has been recalled to St. Petersburg by the senate, from motives of the greatest urgency. Perhaps the Poles begin to think that, in the present crisis, they may require something more than the nominal independence granted to them by the congress of Vienna.

LONDON, March 20.

The communications with Calais being interrupted by the weather, we have no intelligence from the seat of war of more recent date than that which we presented yesterday. A private letter from Naples of the 2d inst. gives it as the result of the latest information then obtained from the armies, that the Austrians had halted at Monterosi, 20 miles to the northward of Rome. Our readers will recollect, however, that from the detail of operations given yesterday, this could have been no more than a temporary stoppage, inasmuch as the division of Sauterheim had on the 1st inst. advanced to Val-Montone, a day's march E. S. E. of the "eternal city." We have at the same time good reason to believe, that the forward movement of the Austrians was really suspended at or near the late mentioned position; whether from causes connected with the open resistance preparing on the Neapolitan frontier, or with that of by no means a less formidable character, which began to threaten the invading army from behind, a few hours may probably determine. The extent of the insurrection throughout the states of Piedmont is placed beyond all doubt. We have already stated that the students and populace of Turin were in full revolt on the 10th inst.; and we have further to state, that at a great distance from the capital, the courier who brought our last express was stopped and examined by some of the insurgent authorities, which paid no respect to the royal passport.

The town duty of Naples was, at the date of the last letters, performed exclusively by the Carbonari, all the regular troops having already marched. It is, indeed, most likely, that if the Austrians should continue to advance, and disregard the storm which comes from the north to overwhelm them, any contest which takes place, will be confined to the hills and broken ground of the Abruzzi. The great road of direct communication with Rome has, by the Neapolitans, been destroyed so completely, that the English who were desirous of quitting Naples, had no means of access to Leghorn or to Genoa, but by water. It is difficult to ascertain the views of the British Government, from their conduct in regard to the squadron under Sir Graham Moore. While the councils of our ministers were enveloped in mystery, or rather, while they allowed the world to conclude that a perfect union existed between themselves and the Holy Alliance, on the question of Neapolitan freedom; and so long as, by a necessary consequence, Naples could be deterred from resisting her oppressors by a belief that Great Britain was a party to their schemes, down to that period a strong squadron of men of war was stationed in the Bay. Now that the artifice, if it was one, has been frustrated—now that the parliament of Naples has defied its enemies, and the English Ministers on the eve of encountering another Parliament, have been compelled to specify the policy by which they must abide, there is no further end to serve by the maintenance of a fleet at Naples. As a squadron of observation, it had nothing to observe; as a squadron of discouragement, it failed of its object. The foreign Secretary admits that the plan for the settlement of Europe, by the subjugation of her people, is no longer tenable in sober sadness he acknowledges that the injured Neapolitans have, on this occasion, been neither deceived nor intimidated; the men of war he therefore commands to set sail—

"Sic fatur SACRYMANS—classique immittit habenas."

The pretence for a squadron, as a means of saving British lives and property in case of danger, is pretty palpable, which, as soon as the war approaches Naples, and the danger actually begins, the Consul in whom our countrymen might have found a protector, and the ships in which they might have taken refuge are ordered off together.

Our previous columns contain a copy of the Manifesto published by the Neapolitan Government, in answer to the Declaration of the Austrians and the Allied Powers. It is a moderate and candid statement of the principles that governed the revolution, and confines itself to defending and justifying the conduct of the Neapolitans, without unnecessarily charging the Allied Powers with the injustice and cruelty of their proceedings.

A letter from Naples, dated the 3d inst. states that application by the Neapolitan Government had been made to the English merchants resident there, for a loan of three millions of ducats, which after a long conference, they had been obliged to decline. The consequences of this refusal were not then known; and it is represented that the Bank of Naples had very little cash, nor had they the means of obtaining any.

Upon this subject we think it right to inform the British public, that we have received various letters recommending a subscription for the Neapolitans in this country. One letter even contained a sum of money for a beginning. We merely notice the fact: our countrymen will act upon the occasion as they think proper; a subscription, if commenced, shall not want our warmest support; but we confess that, in the present state of national finances, it is somewhat painful to propose the measure.

On Sunday morning a messenger arrived in town, with despatches from Naples: the Earl of Liverpool had a consultation with several of the Cabinet Ministers, at his house, in Whitehall, in consequence. The noble Earl afterwards gave directions for summoning a general Cabinet Council, which assembled yesterday at two o'clock. The members continued in deliberation till about half past four o'clock.

The Active frigate has arrived in 16 days from the Bay of Naples, bringing papers and letters to the 2d inst. Sir H. Lubbock, the English Consul General at Naples came home in her.

Letters from Naples, dated 26th February, state that an official document had been published, sequestering all Austrian property in the Neapolitan territory; and also, that letters of marque had been issued against all vessels under the imperial flag.

PARIS, March 15.

The news of the revolution in Piedmont was communicated to the Chamber of Commerce late last night. It is becoming general, and extending over all Lombardy, so that even the Austrian officers, who were marching with reluctance, have declared that they will not proceed any further against Naples, and declare for the constitutional system.

The Emperor of Russia is recalled to his dominions by reasons of the greatest importance.

A commercial courier, who left Naples on the 7th, and passed through the position of both armies, says that no hostilities had taken place as late as the 6th, but it was supposed the advanced posts would meet the following day.

VENICE, March 3.

Proclamation.—News has been received from Naples that the Neapolitan Government has placed under sequestration all the Austrian ships in the different ports of that kingdom.

Although the Austrian Government does not consider itself in any manner in a state of war with the Neapolitan Government, nevertheless, to guarantee as much as may be in our power the property of Austrian navigators, we are compelled to have recourse to reprisals, and therefore ordain that the Neapolitan vessels in our ports be put under sequestration.

NAPLES, Feb. 27.

NATIONAL PARLIAMENT.

Sitting of the 25th.

The Minister for Foreign Affairs transmitted to the Parliament 150 copies of the manifesto issued by the government against the invasion of the kingdom.

S. Massone read a motion for requesting the Prince Regent to remain near the parliament, for the purpose of giving his sanction to the decrees; and that he should not expose himself on the frontiers, or repair thither, except to animate the troops, and to return immediately. The motion was supported by several Deputies, but vehemently opposed by S. Borelli, who observed that it was not one of the prerogatives of Parliament to limit the will of him to whom the constitution had confided the supreme command of the army. The motion was referred to a committee.

Many offers of voluntary aid were read at this sitting. Among them was one from an actor named Calyrola, of the Theatre San Carlos, who tendered to the State the amount of the receipts at his benefit, to take place on the 5th March, and which was expected to produce not less than 1,800 or 2,000 ducats. The offer was accepted with honorable mention.

Among the letters addressed to the Parliament, several were noticed signed by Austrians and Prussians.

LIVERPOOL, March 24.

The most important article, however, of the great mass of foreign intelligence which has lately arrived is sufficiently ascertained;—the revolutions of Spain and Naples have extended to the government of Sardinia. No sooner had the Austrian armies quitted the centre of Italy, on their march to the south, than the garrisons of Piedmont, acting no doubt, on plans previously concerted, declared themselves in favor of the Neapolitans, and demanded, like them, a constitution of the Spanish model. The aged king, finding no compromise would be listened to, wisely quitted the scene of contest, and resigned the government into the hands of the presumptive heir. No doubt is entertained that the whole of Italy is organized on the same system, and that the whole is under the direction of the councils of the Carbonari. Austria must now perceive the mischiefs of the rash step she has undertaken, and that foreign interference, as is uniformly the case, serves only to accelerate and exasperate the commotions which it cannot controul.

This momentous subject was brought distinctly under the notice of the House of Commons on Tuesday night, by a motion of Sir Robert Wilson's for the production of the letter written by the British envoy at Naples to the ministry of that government. It was very consultative to observe, that, with very few exceptions, the views of most of the leading members, on both sides, were moderate and rational. All wish of actual interference in the fearful struggle which is impending, was so openly disclaimed by all parties, that even the violent enthusiasts, such as Sir Robert Wilson, did not go to the length of recommending a direct participation in the war. Mr. J. S. Ward, who always appeared to us to discover a sounder judgment and a more accurate acquaintance with the great principles of political science, than almost any other man in the house, contended that such of the great powers as are not parties to the dangerous and fatal aggression of Austria, ought to have used their utmost influence to prevent it. The friendly but earnest remonstrances of England and France might, he observed, have had an important effect, if they had been offered at a proper time. Mr. Canning, in a speech of much brilliancy, and very acute observation, maintained that the dignity of this country would not admit of any interference by remonstrances, unless we were prepared to follow up the rejection of our advice by direct hostility. The real question at issue, therefore, he maintained, was PEACE or WAR, and the arguments of the opposition, he said, went to nothing less than this dreadful alternative. We have frequently heard this argument urged before, and it always seemed to us to rest on an assumption not warranted by reason or experience. Is any thing more usual, either in private or political affairs, than to offer advice, and even to press remonstrances, in the hour of preventing mischief, and with the view of benefiting the party advised? Is not history full of such instances, and even in many cases, such counsel has been firmly but respectfully offered by a smaller power to a greater. When was it ever before heard of, that the neglect or rejection of such advice must necessarily be followed by a declaration of war? It might, with just as much propriety, be argued, that you ought never to offer your counsel to a friend, unless you have previously made up your mind to knock him down in case he refuses to accept of it!

Battle between the Austrians and Neapolitans.

Our anticipation that an engagement had taken place at Rieti, is fully confirmed by the following intelligence, which we hasten to lay before our readers, and which we have from a source in which the most implicit reliance may be placed. A letter has been received from Paris this morning by express, written on Wednesday morning, communicating the important event of a battle between the Austrians and the Neapolitans; the former have been completely successful, and have taken a great number of prisoners. The Austrians were on their march to Naples, where they expected to arrive without further fighting. The Neapolitans commenced the attack; the engagement took place at Rieti, on the 7th. The French funds, which had been 73c. immediately advanced to 77c. 60c, on the intelligence reaching Paris.

The following appears in the second edition of a morning paper:—"The following is a copy of a notice posted on the Exchange at Paris, in the afternoon of Wednesday last, by order of M. Roy, the minister of France:—

"There has been on the 7th inst. an engagement between the Austrians and Neapolitans. The latter had advanced on Rieti, which was occupied by the Austrians.—They were repulsed with considerable loss. The Austrian army has entered the Abruzzi; many prisoners have fallen into their hands; and the greatest disorder appears to reign in the Neapolitan army."

The news from Italy since our last is of considerable interest, especially that portion of it which relates to Piedmont. The first act of the revolution in that country is completed, and we must wait to see how the drama will proceed. The act of abdication of the late King of Sardinia is now before the world, and who will not smile at its introductory declarations? "We have frequently contemplated the abdication of the throne."—This idea, which we have always entertained etc." We do not mean to say that it is impossible VICTOR EMANUEL may have contemplated a retirement from the cares of monarchy, but certainly the intention has been disclosed under circumstances which entitle it to very little confidence on the score of sincerity. It is remarkable that even in the solemn act of abdication, there is no mention of the person in whose favor it has been made.

We learn indeed from the declarations and proclamations of the Prince de Carignan, that he holds the reins of government until the late King's brother Charles Felix, duke de Genevois, can arrive to assume them. This Prince is in his 56th year, and has been married 14 years to a daughter of the King of Naples; but he has no children by her. The Royal Family of Sardinia is divided into two branches; the reigning one which is that of Savoy, and that of Savoy Carignan. The next in succession to the Duke de Genevois is the Prince de Carignan who is in his 23d year. He is married to a daughter of the Grand Duke of Tuscany, but is also without children.

The Spanish constitution has been formally promulgated by the regent, and a provisional junta of government appointed, consisting of 15 members.

The intelligence from Naples is to the 6th, but it does not add much to our previous information, except in what relates to the termination of the sittings of the extraordinary parliament, and the opening of the ordinary session on the 1st March.

Piedmontese Revolution.

(From the Moniteur of Tuesday last, received by Express.)

A letter from Turin, dated the 15th, contains the following details:—"On the 13th of March the Regent, Prince de Carignan, after having taken the counsel of the municipality of Turin, proclaimed the Constitution of the Cortes of Cadiz as the law of the state.

Next day (the 14th) the Prince organized a junta of government. We have no other information respecting the affairs of Piedmont than that which may be collected from the following official documents, printed and published at Turin on the 13th and 14th:—

CHARLES ALBERT OF SAVOY, PRINCE OF CARIGNAN, REGENT.

"The urgency of the circumstances in which his Majesty the King, Victor Emanuel, has appointed us Regent of the Kingdom, though the right of succession does not belong to us—the desire, so strongly manifested by the people for a constitution conformable to that which governs Spain, induces us to satisfy, as far as may depend on us, what the chief safety of the Kingdom now evidently requires, and to adhere to the general wish which has been expressed with unspeakable ardor. In a crisis so difficult it does not appear to us possible to consider precisely the ordinary limits of the authority of a Regent. Our respect and our submission to his Majesty Charles Felix, to whom the crown has devolved, would have induced us to make no change in the fundamental laws of the Kingdom, or at least to wait until the intentions of the new sovereign should be known. But as the exigency of the circumstances is manifest; as it is, above all, important to present to the new King a nation, safe and secure, happy and undisturbed by factions and civil warfare; having maturely weighed all these reasons, and acting with the advice of our Council—being besides persuaded that his Majesty the King, moved by the same considerations, will invest this decision with his sovereign approbation, we have resolved on what follows:—

"The Spanish Constitution shall be promulgated and observed as the law of the State, with the modification, which may be made by the national representation in concert with the King.

"CHARLES ALBERT, "MANGARDE. Given at Turin, March 13.

Copy of the declaration of the Magistracy of the city of Turin, and of the generals and commandants of the corps composing the garrison.

We the undersigned in our stations as added below, being summoned by his Royal Highness the Prince Regent, declare—That, the present circumstances are of so serious a nature, the dangers of a civil war so imminent, the will of the people so strongly expressed, that we are of opinion that, for the public safety, and from the necessity of the case, it is indispensable to promulgate the Spanish constitution, with such modifications as his majesty the king and the national representation may concur in judging proper.

Charles Albert of Savoy, Prince of Carignan, Regent.

We have thought proper to nominate until the meeting of the National Parliament a provisional Junta, of fifteen, as well for receiving the oath which we shall make to the Constitution, as for participating with us in the deliberations, which, according to the terms of the Constitution will require the intervention of the Parliament. This Junta may, in case of the absence of any of its members, deliberate to the number of seven. It is composed of the following individuals:—Agoste, Chevalier, D'Barolle, Marquis Tancredi; De Brenne, Marquis; Bruno Augusteri, Advocate; Della Cierna, Prince; Costos, President of the court of appeal; Chisini, Marquis; Sano, Councillor of State; Magente Pio; Marensene, Canon; D'Oncieux, Marquis; Piacenzo Colateral Pareto (Augustine); Marquis; Serra di Albuguano, Count; Serra Giolarmo, Marquis.

Our first Secretary of State for the affairs of the interior, is charged with the execution of the present decree.

CHARLES ALBERT.
DALPOZZO.

Given at Turin, March 15th.

Proclamation.

Charles Albert of Savoy, Prince of Carignan, Regent.

Under the weighty circumstances in which the country is placed by the abdication of his Majesty Victor Emanuel, it is the duty of all good citizens, and more particularly of the armed force, to rally round the authority to which the government is entrusted. Without this union, neither happiness nor tranquility can be hoped for. We may be exposed to anarchy, and probably to foreign invasion. All persons who circulate insidious reports, as well on the nature of the King's abdication as on other imaginary events, or who endeavor to seduce the soldiers and the citizens from the path of obedience to our legitimate authority, must be regarded as enemies of the country, of good order, and of public tranquility. With the advice of our council we have therefore ordered, and do order as follows:—

Art. 1. Full and entire amnesty is given for every political act which has hitherto taken place, on condition that, from the date of the present proclamation, all persons return to order, and yield obedience to the directions which they may receive from us.

2. As it is of importance to remove all marks which may excite discord among the citizens and the troops, it is hereby strictly prohibited to hoist colours and wear cockades of a different form or colour from those which have hitherto distinguished the Piedmontese nation under the government of the August House of Savoy.

Those who contravene this article shall be punished as disturbers of public tranquility.

3. The act of abdication of his majesty Victor Emanuel, shall be published with the present decree.

4. As soon as the Provincial Junta, which is to supply the place of the National Parliament, until it be convoked, is nominated, a day shall be fixed for the troops to take a solemn oath to us and the constitution.

5. Meanwhile all the civil, judicial, and military authorities, are required to remain at their posts, and to perform their functions with that increased attention to fidelity and punctuality, which the circumstances and existing wants of the country require.

CHARLES ALBERT.
DALPAZZO.

Given at Turin, March 14.

VICTOR EMANUEL, by the grace of God, King of Sardinia, of Cyprus and Jerusalem, Duke of Savoy, &c.

Amidst the vicissitudes which have agitated a great part of our past life, and which have insensibly exhausted our strength, and our health, we have frequently contemplated the abdication of the throne. To this idea which we have always entertained, was joined the considerations presented to us by the constantly increasing difficulties in public affairs at the present time, our constant desire having always been to do every thing which might contribute to the happiness of our beloved people.

Having now determined to accomplish this design, we have resolved, after hearing our council of state, to choose and nominate regent of our dominions, our well beloved cousin Prince Charles Amadeus Albert of Savoy, Prince of Carignan, consequently conferring on him all our authority. And by this our act of our Royal and free will, our council being heard we declare:—

That, reckoning from the 13th March current, we irrevocably renounce the crown, and in the same manner the exercise of our rights of sovereignty as well over the territories which we actually possess, as those which by treaties or otherwise may fall to us, by right of succession.

We mean it however to be understood that the following resolutions should be the essential condition of our abdication, viz.

1. That we shall preserve the title and dignity of the King, and the honors we have heretofore enjoyed.

2. That there shall be paid to us quarterly, and in advance, an annual pension of 1,000,000 Piedmontese livres, reserving to ourselves besides the property and disposition of our property, moveable and immovable, allodial, and patrimonial.

3. That we shall be free, we and our family, to choose whatever place we shall please for our residence.

4. And also the persons with whom we may desire to live, and whom it may please us to admit into our service, and that of our family.

5. That all the acts passed in favor of the Queen, Maria Theresa of Austria, our well beloved consort, and the Princesses Maria Beatrice Victoria Duchess of Modena, Maria Theresa Ferdinande Felicitati, Princess of Lucca, Maria Anna Raicarda Carolina, our well beloved daughters, shall preserve their full force and vigor.

Done at Turin, in our Palace, March 13.

AUGUSTA HERALD.

TUESDAY, MAY 15, 1821.

OUR readers will find in our columns to-day the latest intelligence from Europe, by the arrival of the Ship Georgia, Capt. VARNUM, at Savannah, in 39 days from Liverpool. The contradictory account of the battle which was said to have been fought between the Austrian and Neapolitan armies, leaves the latter in a very unfavourable situation. This information appears to have been obtained by the way of Paris, and however disposed we may be to believe it erroneous, or how much soever we may be willing to doubt its authenticity, we present it to our readers as we received it. If correct it is not at all decisive against the struggle for an equal government; if false, and should the former intelligence be confirmed, it will only induce us to avoid implicit reliance in the columns of ministerial prints and a precipitancy of opinion from the anticipations of their editors.

Our mercantile friends will notice that the demand for Cotton in Liverpool has somewhat increased since our last intelligence. This information may revive the drooping spirits of those who have entered largely into the purchase of this article.

We are favored (says the Savannah Georgian) by a commercial house in this city with the following extract of a letter, received by the ship Georgia, capt. Varnum, under date of Liverpool, 27th March.

"The demand for Cotton continues very brisk, and the sales are still on an extensive scale, at very full prices, Uplands 8½ a 10½; New-Orleans, 9 a 12½; Sea-Island, 14d a 2s per lb. Rice is in little request at 14 a 17s per cwt.

CITIZENS BEWARE!

Incendiaries are Abroad.—An attempt was made last night between the hours of ten and eleven, to set fire to a stable, belonging to Mr. HARR; but owing to the spirited exertions of a few active persons, it was fortunately extinguished without doing much damage. [Ibid.]

Flour has risen in this market (Richmond) about 50 cents per barrel in the last four weeks. It is said, that several thousand barrels have been recently shipped from New-York to Portugal and Spain (perhaps some may be sent to Naples)—and the demand is on the rise.—Enq.

A deplorable instance of the depravity of a boy of 15 or 16 years of age is stated by the last Western mail. He was a postboy engaged in carrying the mail from Charlottesville to New-Glasgow. He was suspected of robbing the mail, has been committed to jail, and will have his trial before the next Federal Court in Richmond. It is said that a large quantity of torn letters has been found on the road—and that he is supposed to have been for a long time engaged in similar depredations upon the mail.

Major BIDDLE and Major BRADFORD arrived at St. St. Louis from Arkansas on the 30th of March, the former bringing information that the efforts of the government to preserve peace between the Osages and Cherokees have been unavailing, and that both parties were preparing for hostilities.

NEWBURYPORT, April 27.
Capt. Day, arrived here yesterday, 18 days from Port-au-Paix, a small place on the N. W. side of St. Domingo, mentions that President Boyer was at St. Marks, but expected at that place on his march to Cape Haytien, with an army of 60 or 70,000 men. An officer formerly in Christophe's service, was taken as a conspirator at Port-Paix, and was to have been shot about the time captain D. sailed. All was reported tranquil at the Cape.

BALTIMORE, May 1.
Precaution.—The following very gratifying intelligence proves the necessity of taking a minute account of bank notes when they are remitted. Should they be lost, a list of them can be furnished to all the banks, brokers, &c. and they will be ultimately discovered. To this precaution alone, Mr. Kimball is indebted for the recovery of his money.

We are happy to learn that the sum of money, amounting to Thirty two Hundred Dollars in Bank Notes, which was advertised in December last, by Mr. Leonard Kimball, of this city, as having been lost by a passenger in the steam boat line, who were not aware of its contents between this and Philadelphia, has been all recovered, with the exception of a mere trifle.

It appears that the letter, containing the bank notes, was accidentally dropped by the bearer on board of the steam boat, in the Delaware, and was picked up by a mulatto boy, who, in connexion with a colored woman in Philadelphia, secreted it, until an attempt to put one of the notes in circulation led to the discovery.

[Telegraph.]

WE have the pleasure of announcing the arrival in our city of Mr. FOSTER, the national lecturer, who intends offering an exhibit of his talents to our citizens.—From the very high encomiums bestowed upon him, by those who have attended his lectures, we feel authorized to state, that his subjects will be interesting and useful.

AUGUSTA FEMALE ASYLUM REPORT.

The Directresses of the Augusta Female Asylum, report to the patrons of this institution a statement of their receipts and disbursements for the last year, ending the 30th of April; and of the disposable funds now in their Treasury.—While they express sentiments of lively gratitude to all those friends and benefactors, who have for eleven years enabled them, by their liberal contributions, to extend the hand of protection to many helpless Orphans, they desire here to offer testimonials of truly grateful hearts to Mr. Thomas Cunningham, for his liberal donation of a most eligible building Lot, to this and a sister institution.—We know that christian benevolence shrinks from human applause, and in the present instance, we are sure it would give more pain than pleasure:—we therefore will only observe, that ourselves and Orphans feel bound to pray that Jacob's God may return four fold.

The expenditures for the past year have been unavoidably great, in consequence of various internal regulations to promote domestic convenience—and we were under the necessity of sending to Philadelphia for a Matron, (qualified to take proper care of our Children—this expedient, though expensive in the first instance, (as we had all travelling charges to pay) has resulted to our entire satisfaction; and we feel fully remunerated in the superior management of an industrious, pious and intelligent Matron. We see the children improving under her instructions, and several of them are now qualified to do plain sewing and marking; and we hope they may meet with employment to encourage habits of early industry, and thereby diminish the expense of their support.

In a former report, we expressed an ardent desire to build an Orphan house, which would not only relieve us of a heavy rent, but establish the institution more permanently and afford it better accommodations. This object we now hope will soon be carried into effect, as contracts have been made for a brick building, and preparations for the commencement of the work already begun. But we must still look to our benevolent patrons for further aid to enable us to meet the full completion of our purpose. Our funds must necessarily be increased before we can discharge the debt incurred by building; and we feel a confident hope that an appeal made in behalf of Female Orphans to the benevolent inhabitants of Augusta will never be made in vain.
