Dr. A. R. Loeblich
Department of Geology
The Tulane University of Louisiana
New Orleans, Louisiana

Dear Dr. Loeblich:

Many thanks for your letter of January 22.

I fully realize what troubles you will have starting a new line of work at Tulane. The library problem is always very bad in such cases. It reminds me of the conditions I found at A & M when I started out there. I understand that L. S. U. is spending a large amount of money on geological books. Maybe you could get some of the material you need by inter-library exchange. Here at the University, we use the inter-library exchange very extensively.

I would appreciate it greatly if you were to have the kindness to send me the Tertiary Brachiopods which you have found.

You have a wonderful opportunity to work in your line, because Tulane is well located in the center of the Gulf Coastal Plain.

I am looking forward to seeing your next papers appear.

With best regards to you and Mrs. Loeblich,

Sincerely yours,

H. B. Stenzel, Geologist
