Dr. H. B. Stenzel,
Austin, Tex.

Dear Dr. Stenzel:

Today while in Mr. Ruedemann's office you took occasion to emphasize that the Bureau recognizes me as a draftsman, and it is very strange that a draftsman could successfully map structure in the field, and especially, ^{is it} astounding that he would know where to go to find such structures.

The last two remarks could possibly be interpreted as a reflection on my ability and character, and I am surprised that you saw fit to make such remarks.

I should appreciate your frankness in explaining why you made the above remarks.

Please accept my apologies, Dr. Stenzel, for writing you in case my thoughts are misguided.

Sincerely yours,
H. B.
