Dear Dr. Stenzel,

I am a Graduate Student in Zoology at Tulane University, working for my Doctor of Philosophy degree which I shall receive in June of this coming year. I am working with the crawfish of Cambarus diogenes subspecies.

In my literature hunting I have run across a reference to one of your articles which the library does not have and the University of Texas Library purports not to have. It is an article entitled "Decapod crustaceans from the Cretaceous of Texas," appearing in Texas University Bulletin 4401, pp. 401-454, 1945. I am most interested in a reference to the Astacodes davisii, sp. nov. appearing on page 412.

Could you tell me where I might obtain a copy of this article, perhaps a reprint? It is one of the points I need for reference in my dissertation, discussing origin of the Cambarus species.

I would greatly appreciate any help you might be able to give me on this article.

Thank you for your kind consideration. I remain,

Sincerely yours,

Guy Marlow
