

LEON BROMBERG, M. D.
THE DOCTORS CLINIC
1501 BROADWAY
GALVESTON, TEXAS

April 10th, 1957.

Dr. H. B. Stenzel,
3726 Colquitt Ave.
Houston, Texas.

Dear Dr. Stenzel:

I was certainly sorry to learn in your letter received yesterday that you had suffered a heart attack, but I was relieved and pleased to know that you have made such a full and gratifying recovery.

We can all take the splendid example of our President as very real and justifiable encouragement for he is holding down one of the toughest and most demanding positions in the world years after a severe coronary thrombosis.

You have obviously had excellent medical care and you should be, as you have predicted, "as good as new" when your doctor tells you that you may go back to your duties at the University.

You have contributed a great deal to the scientific world in the past, and hundreds of students still need you and will welcome you back.

So, keep your chin up, and keep on getting well!

With best personal wishes,

Cordially,

Leon Bromberg

LB/b