Dear Dr. Bennett,

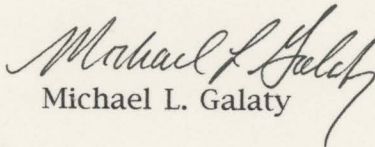

Attached please find a draft copy of the manuscript entitled Rethinking Mycenaean Palaces: New Interpretations of an Old Idea, which will be published by UCLA's Institute of Archaeology. Although some of the papers are currently undergoing minor revisions by their respective authors, we have been assured that the final content will not change significantly. In addition, two closing chapters are currently being written by John Killen, and John Cherry and Jack Davis together. These chapters are to provide discussion and commentary on the volume's papers. As soon as we have them I will get them to you. Please excuse the various formatting problems in this draft. Even though we are still working out some glitches (as in the bibliography), we decided to send it off to you so you could get started on your foreword.

Please be aware that Bill and I are still revising the introductory chapter to the volume (Chapter One). The final version is likely to differ somewhat. We plan to add more comparative material, especially from Mesoamerica, and to tone down some of the rhetoric.

Upon receipt of your foreword, we will finish formatting the volume and will send it off to UCLA for the press review. Upon receipt of the reviewer's comments, we will make any necessary revisions and will resubmit. If all goes well we hope to have the final manuscript ready for press by June. As a result, if we could perhaps get a foreword from you sometime before the end of March, it could go out with the manuscript for review. If that's too soon, then prior to summer would be fine.

If you have any questions, please do not hesitate to contact me by email (mlgalaty@students.wisc.edu) or by phone (251-4431). Thank you once again for agreeing to participate in this publication. It is, we think, an exciting collection of papers.

Sincerely,

Michael L. Galaty
