

McGinnis Gives Depression Facts In Public Lecture

Blanket Reduction of All Debts Advocated By Lecturer

Gives Solution

Bases Belief on Faith;
Sees Richer Life
Period

By ANGELINE THOMPSON

"The most encouraging fact about the depression is that nearly everyone is now willing to face our situation realistically and to admit the facts," Dr. E. K. McGinnis pointed out in his lecture on the present economic situation in Garrison Hall auditorium Wednesday afternoon.

While statistically, conditions are at about the worst point that they have been at any time during the depression and while there may still be much bad news to come, the problems presented can be solved, he said.

McGinnis

"But before we can return to normal business the government short term debt must be such that banks and insurance company statements can be made on current market quotations, and those institutions that cannot be saved after the desperate given by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation must be liquidated."

Dr. McGinnis stated that the damage caused by the war and the depression has fallen unequally on different groups, and that these strains must be adjusted. He pointed out that the inequality in suffering are between first, the employed and the unemployed; second, the farm and the city; third, the price of things and debts; fourth, the inequality of the standard of living of the United States and the rest of the world.

"The key log in the jam is the reduction of debts. The burden of debt may be reduced an average of about one third, but this will not result by a blanket reduction of one third in all debts regardless of their nature."

Belief Based on Faith

The lecturer believes that many sound debts will be paid in full and permanently retired, and the poorer ones will be a total loss; saying that after debts are reduced, the return of hoarded money and the expansion of credit to normal, coupled with the return of normal speculative commodity, buying will produce a refutation of prices of about one third. It would then be possible, he says, to gradually restore normal business without the use of inflation. "When it is again possible to pay debts, people, remembering their losses from over-extended credit, homes, farms, industry, and even governments will operate somewhat less on credit and more on the basis of ownership."

He said that he based his belief on faith, and even though the situation is black now we are coming to a period of a richer life.

Inflation Would Aid Country's Ills, Says Montgomery

Technocracy Not Practical
In Nation With Our Customs

Dr. R. H. Montgomery, professor of economics in the University, scored the capitalistic regime under which we are living and criticized the "half-baked" system recently proposed by a group known as the Technocrats, Tuesday night before the State detachment at Camp Mabry.

"There must be something wrong," Dr. Montgomery said, "with an economic order in which people are starving to death because they have produced too much stuff to eat. Imagine, if you can, civilized and intelligent people grouped about a stack of excellent food, themselves hungry unto death almost, and yet dare not touch the food. They have produced, and still it is not theirs to eat. . . . This is the situation in which we find ourselves today."

"Well, what can we do about it? Technocracy, a group of engineers who look at everything with the cold, glassy eye of the mathematician, says that it has the solution. Having read little about their proposal, I feel myself qualified to speak on the subject. They say that we must abolish our price system, and put in its stead an exchange system based on units for work. Poverty will be unheard of under their regime and everyone will have plenty of food."

Western Colleges Offer Fellowships

Stipends Open to Senior,
Graduate Students

Four fellowships valued at $700 each, and four tuition scholarships of the value of $300 each are offered by Claremont Colleges for the year 1933-1934, according to a letter received by President H. Y. Benedict, from George S. Burgess, secretary of the faculty of Claremont Colleges.

These fellowships and scholarships are open to graduate students and permit full-time work toward the master of arts degree without requiring any work as assistants or readers, Mr. Burgess explains in his letter.

Application blanks for one of the fellowships or scholarships must be filed by March 1, 1933. Information about Claremont and an application blank may be obtained by writing to Harper Hall, Claremont, California.

In the letter, the request was made that the announcement be posted for the attention of senior students interested in applying.

Work on Practice School to Begin Early Next Month

Newest Building Located On Southeast Part
Of Campus

Plans Outlined

Pittenger to Supervise
Work in Practice
Teaching

Work on the Education Practice School will begin the last of this month or early in February, Dr. B. F. Pittenger, dean of the School of Education, announced Wednesday. The contract, which was awarded to J. J. Wattinger of Austin at a meeting of the Board of Regents Tuesday, calls for completion of the school on August 15.

The building is to be located between Nineteenth and Red River streets on the extreme southeast section of the campus. When completed the school will be one of the most modern junior high school structures in the State. It will be used as a unit of the Austin Public School System and will be maintained by the Austin School Board. This school will be available for use of students in the University's School of Education who are registered for the practice teaching course required for teachers' certificates.

The school will contain 14 general classrooms, three science rooms, a science projection room which includes a demonstration teacher's room with a raised amphitheater, four home economic rooms, two business administration rooms, one art room, five shops, girls' gymnasium and a boys' gymnasium, each having shower and locker room space, a cafeteria, an auditorium, administration rooms, and an experimental room.

Cares for 900

The school comprises the sixth, seventh, and eighth grades, and 900 pupils can be cared for in the work. At the present time there are around 2100 students registered in the junior high school, A. N. McCallum, superintendent of Austin public schools, said.

Mr. McCallum stated the principal and the teachers would not

Mr. Hornsby was a member of the first class to enroll in The University of Texas in 1883-84. Born at Hornsby's Bend April 10, 1862, Mr. Hornsby has lived in or near Austin all his life.

He is survived by his widow and three children. They are Mrs. Jesse Hornsby, Mrs. Ed Stafford of Kennedy, Mrs. J. R. Sims of Fort Worth, and Mrs. Emerson Schofield of Tulsa, Okla.

Penalty Still Holds For B. A. Students

Penalty for freshman courses taken during the senior year will not be removed from work toward a bachelor of business administration degree, Dr. J. A. Fitzgerald, dean of the School of Business Administration, warned today. The rule for deducting one third of the credits in such courses will still be in force.

With the abandonment by the other schools of reduction of credit for freshman work done in the senior year, considerable misunderstanding has resulted, Dean Fitzgerald said.

Schoch Presents New Water Plant Plans to School

Latest Type Sand Filter
Will Reduce Cost
One-third

Plans and designs for a new, efficient, and economical water purification plant were presented by Dr. E. P. Schoch, professor of physical chemistry, to the fifteenth annual waterworks school of the Southwest Waterworks Association held in Temple Monday.

"We have finished designing and testing a new type of sand filter which will be as efficient as the most modern purification plant and will easily reduce cost a third," Dr. Schoch explained.

The present design was reached after ten years of continued research, which started in 1922 with the construction of the emergency purification plant for Austin. In May of that year, Dr. Schoch was asked by the officials of Austin to construct a purification plant in 60 days. A shortage of water was anticipated in Austin if the plant was not completed by July.

Bold Experiment

"I had no time to lose," Dr. Schoch said, "and the thing to do was to try a bold experiment." By July the plant was operating at a much lower cost than other plants of the day. During the next ten years, new features were added to the system. During the last few years Dr. Schoch, assisted by Frank W. Jensen, instructor in chemistry, and J. W. Hinyard, drew up plans and built a model of a plant embodying the latest developments in efficiency and economy. Dr. Schoch presented these plans and designs to the association at Temple.

"This work is done entirely at the expense of the University for the benefit of the public and is one of the phases of research being carried on by the Bureau of Industrial Chemistry," Dr. Schoch explained.

Dr. Schoch was accompanied to Temple by Dr. E. H. Sellards, professor of geology, and Dr. O. B. Williams, associate professor of bacteriology. The next annual meeting of the association will probably be held in Kerrville in January, 1934.

New Courses Added To Spring Schedule

Three new courses are being added to the business administration schedule in February. Dr. J. A. Fitzgerald, dean of the School of Business Administration, announced Wednesday.

"Newer Methods of Distribution," Business Administration 372, will be taught by W. L. White, professor of marketing. Mr. White has recently spent two years with the Federal Trade Commission.

"The Foreign Trade of the United States," Business Administration 372, will be given by Dr. A. P. Winston, professor of business administration. "Utilization of Commercial Resources," Business Administration 338, will be offered under E. H. Johnson, industrial geographer in the Bureau of Business Research.

Definite Clues In Robberies Lacking

Captain Tom Neal of the Austin police force Wednesday said that he had as yet no definite clues concerning the robberies of six University fraternity houses Saturday night and Sunday.

Ad Valorem Taxes May Be Abolished Under Scheme

Recommending budget bills, pointing out the greatness of the State's deficit, recommending the passage of a sales tax upon commercial purchases, and asking for harmony and cooperation, Governor Miriam A. Ferguson addressed the Forty-third Legislature Wednesday afternoon.

A great part of her speech was taken up in asking for a sales tax, and in showing how she thinks it would help the State. In her proposal for this new tax, Governor Ferguson recommended that a tax of three per cent be placed on all commercial purchases.

"The department of commerce of the federal government estimates that the net commercial sales in Texas for the year 1929 were $2,074,164,554," Governor Ferguson told the Legislature. "For certainty of calculation, though, I am assuming that this stupendous sum of over two billions dollars will be decreased to $1,500,000,000, or approximately 25 per cent."

She then showed that a tax of 3 per cent on these purchases would bring a collection of $45,000,000 for the fiscal year ending August 31, 1934.

Previous to recommending the sales tax, Governor Ferguson had told the Legislature that the amount of $39,029,871.47 would be needed for the general revenue ad valorem fund, the available school ad valorem fund, and the Confederate pension deficit, plus 4 per cent for collection fees.

In line with this she went on, "If we deduct from this $45,000,000 of gross receipts the amount above mentioned, $39,029,871.47, we would have a surplus of $5,970,129, which would represent a surplus in the treasury."

It is her hope, she said, that this new tax will alleviate the present overburdensome property taxes, with the possibility of abolishing the ad valorem taxes.

Students Seek Warren Award

Twelve Designs Submitted
From University

Twelve students of architecture have entered their problems of elementary design in the Paris Prize contest. Entries will be judged Tuesday, January 24, at the Beaux-Arts Institute of Design in New York. Dr. Goldwin Goldsmith, professor of architecture, stated Wednesday.

The students who entered the contest are Howard R. Barr, R. Max Brooks, William C. Caldwell, Annie Laurie Clett, Thomas P. Evans, Clifford H. James, Chris R. Maiwald, Robert E. Maxey, Chester Nagel, Frank H. Tolbert, and Marshall H. Walker. The contestant who passes the first and second preliminaries and succeeds in the final contest, will have his transportation paid to Paris and will receive $330 every three months for a period of two and one-half years. He will study eighteen months in a Parisian school of fine arts, and the remaining twelve months traveling and studying in Europe.

Any citizen of the United States under the age of 27 is eligible to compete in this contest. The competition closes July 1, 1933. This contest is a memorial to Lloyd Warren for his work and interest in the development of the Beaux-Arts Institute.

Exum Will Address Engineers Thursday

J. P. Exum, member of the State Highway Department, will speak to the student chapter of the American Society of Civil Engineers on "The Erection of Large Steel Bridges," Thursday night at 7 o'clock in Engineering Building 102, Carl Click, president, said Wednesday.

Officers for the spring term were elected at the last meeting of the society and are as follows: Carl Click, president; D. W. Lanier, vice president; Monroe Wolters, secretary; Wilbur Raby, treasurer; David Smallhorst, sergeant at arms; and Frederick Thompson, reporter.

Steers Take Loop Lead; Defeat Mustangs, 39-33

By WILBUR EVANS

Coach Ed Olle and his Steer cagers went over another hurdle in their path toward the championship last night when they defeated the highly touted Mustangs from Southern Methodist, 39-33. Texas gained undisputed possession of first place by downing the Mustangs, and ran their victories to fourteen for the season. The game was evenly fought during the first half, the score being 16-16 all at the half way mark. The first half was a rather drab affair with neither team displaying championship basketball. The famed fast breaking offense that Coach St. Clair has put on the floor to subdue T. C. U. and A. & M. never clicked against Texas. The Steers were a long way below par until late in the last half when Jack Gray, Bill Kubricht, and Jean Francis began to hit the bucket with constant regularity.

Parke to Direct Presentation Of School History

Bi-Centennial Celebration
To Be Given At Round-Up

Plans for the presentation of a dramatic review of the history of the University from 1883 to 1933, commemorating the fiftieth anniversary of the institution, will go forward rapidly now since the appointment of James H. Parke, instructor in English and director of the Austin Little Theater, as director of the production, William L. McGill, chairman of the advisory committee and named to assist the director, stated Wednesday.

The presentation is scheduled to climax the annual Round-Up to be held in the spring of this year and will possibly be offered again as an entertainment feature at the annual convention of the Texas State Teachers' Association in Austin in November.

Directed Previous Pageant

At the First Annual Round-Up in 1930, the main event of the last night was the presentation of "Through the Years at Texas," an elaborate production depicting the highlights of the University's history to that time. More than 1,000 were included in the cast. Preliminary plans for the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary call for an even more stupendous affair, in keeping with the importance of the occasion.

Mr. Parke was the director of the 1930 production and was asked by President H. Y. Benedict, general chairman, and Read Granberry, executive chairman, of the Fourth Annual Round-Up and Fiftieth Anniversary Celebration, to assume the same duties for the 1933 presentation. Parke has had long experience in the direction of dramatic productions and is himself a successful playwright.

Governor Recalls 3 Nominations

New Board of Education
Nominees Problematical

The controversy between Governor Miriam A. Ferguson and former Governor R. S. Sterling continued in the Senate Wednesday when the Governor sent to that body for confirmation the appointment of three members of the Board of Regents of the University and requested that the Senate return to the executive office the names of three persons that Governor Sterling had appointed to the State Board of Education.

The request of Mrs. Ferguson that the names of the three members of the Board of Education up for confirmation on reappointment be returned to the executive office was referred to the committee on Governor's nominations. There was dispute whether Mrs. Ferguson had authority to request return of appointments made by Sterling.

Those Sterling sought to reappoint were Ben F. Tinsinger of Garland, C. H. Chernosky of Houston and Tom Garrard of Lubbock.

The committee on Governor's nominations will conduct a hearing on the matter, and probably will not act upon the request before Monday.

Removal to New Buildings Delayed

"As far as I can see, none of the new buildings will be ready for occupancy during the coming semester. The Geology Building may be ready by March, but I do not think that the department will be moved in the middle of a semester," J. W. Calhoun, comptroller, said Wednesday.

Both the Physics and Architecture buildings are nearly completed on the exterior, but much work has to be done on the interior before they may be occupied.

Governor Plans Sharp Reduction In Expenditures

Advocates 25 percent Cut
For Governmental
Salaries

Save $7,000,000

No Provisions Made For University Summer School

Still further reductions in funds for the operation of the State's higher educational institutions, and all other agencies of the State, were proposed Wednesday to the Legislature. Proposing salary reductions of 25 per cent throughout the entire government, with the exception of those salaries fixed by the Constitution, Mrs. Ferguson accompanied with her plea for retrenchment in governmental expenses bills to make the cuts effective.

The woman governor recommended a budget for the State of $15,374,654 annually, which was a reduction of over $7,000,000 under the recommendations of the State Board of Control and of $15,106,724 under the appropriations for the present two-year period.

Budget Totals

Totals of the Governor's budget are as follows: eleemosynary institutions, $3,437,967 for each year; State departments, $5,377,809 yearly; educational institutions, $4,534,897 yearly; judiciary, $2,023,981 yearly; rural school aid $2,500,000 yearly; deficiency and emergency appropriations, $714,702.

The bills were turned over to Senator T. J. Holbrook, chairman of the finance committee, who said he did not know who would sign the bills for introduction. He said he contemplated introducing bills incorporating the recommendations of the Board of Control for use as a basis of the finance committee's considerations. No action was taken in the House toward introduction of the bills.

Proposed reductions in funds for the higher educational institutions were in proportion to her proposed retrenchment program for all other State activities. Funds recommended for the institutions for each year were: Agricultural and Mechanical College, $566,795; A. & M. Experiment station system, $245,229; A. & M. Extension Service, $193,158; A. & M. Rodent Control, $10,264; A. & M. Forestry Service, $48,146; John Tarleton Junior Agricultural College, Stephenville, $153,489; North Texas (Continued on Page Four)

Little Theater To Present Play

'The First of Mrs. Fraser'
Directed by Parke

"The First of Mrs. Fraser," third play by Little Theater this year, will be given February 2, 3, and 4, James H. Parke, director, said Wednesday. Other plays already given by this group in carrying out a five-play program are "Beggars on Horseback" and "Beyond the Horizon." "The First of Mrs. Fraser" was written by St. John Irvine.

Mr. Parke stated that the full cast for the play would include Professor Everett G. Smith (James Fraser), Mrs. Dave Reed (Janet Fraser), Carol Austin (Elsie Fraser), Dr. Thad Riker (Philip), Harry Garner (Ninan Fraser), Buckner Fitzgerald (Murdock Fraser), Mrs. Ralph Ogden (Mabel), and Ruth Reed (Alice Fraser).

"Members of the cast are not starred by the Little Theater," Mr. Parke explained, "because we try to carry on our work in a way that will benefit all who take part in Little Theater productions. We follow a semi-rotation plan of selecting actors, and have in 'The First Mrs. Fraser' obtained a capable cast."

Hi-Y Clubs to Hold Convention in Austin

The University Baptist Church congregation has agreed to supply rooms for 100 visitors.

Get to Work Now

Now is the time to begin checking up. Now is the time to begin taking inventory and to see how many lectures you have missed and how many assignments you have failed to prepare. It is much easier to check up now and then be prepared for real study for the finals over the week-end.

If a student has missed a lecture due to some cause or other, he certainly should not wait until the night before the examination to attempt to borrow some one's notes. He will either assume the nonchalant attitude, or he will become a raving maniac at this last moment when "all seems lost" due to the lack of sufficient notes. The student who really cares about his studies will now do his best to catch up on lectures which he was unable to attend.

Then too, perhaps a student has failed to make note of all the assignments. Perhaps he failed to hear a certain page number or the name of a certain book for outside reading purposes. If such a student is a real student, he will ask his neighbor in class today or tomorrow for the information which he lacks.

And most probably there are some students who have failed to prepare certain assignments. There are some students who did not have time to read the works of this author or to translate some French play. Some students were honestly too busy—too rushed to prepare all their assignments; other students were just too lazy. In either case the present time is the one and only time to make up for things which have not been done.

Begin to do a little extra studying each night. Begin to check up on your lack of needed information; then in February you can send a card full of fat A's home to Mother.

Proposal Causes Talk

Yesterday's editorial favoring the concentration of graduate work at The University of Texas and A. & M. College caused quite a bit of comment from the College of Engineering of the University. Yesterday's editorial attempted to explain how the proposed plan of the Moore Bill would greatly benefit the State of Texas and its colleges.

"The Agricultural and Mechanical College is better equipped than any institution in the State to offer graduate work in the agricultural and engineering field. The University is better equipped in all other fields." This statement was bitterly opposed by the faculty of the College of Engineering of the University, as they sincerely believe that their college is the best equipped for graduate work of any college in the South. They back their belief by stating that the three main essentials in having a strong graduate school in engineering are a strong department in mathematics, physics, and chemistry, and that these three departments rank among the strongest in the University.

There is no doubt that The University of Texas is the logical place to have a graduate school in engineering. Most likely the explanation for the proposal of placing this division of the graduate school at A. & M. comes from the fact that the Aggie school is noted principally for its agricultural and engineering work, while the University is known for its many fields of work. As a result the legislators felt that if the graduate work were divided between the two schools the best manner of division would be in the manner suggested—A. & M. should receive the agricultural and engineering work while the University would gain the remainder.

If the legislators should investigate the essentials necessary to produce the best graduate work, it is our opinion that the school would be located here, or at least taught at both colleges. When the engineering department of the University present their facts to the legislators, it is believed that any measure to remove graduate work from the University in engineering will be defeated.

Preparing the Mind

How many first year men of the University know at the present time whether they would or would not like to pledge a fraternity? There are students who enter school with their mind made up ahead of time that they intend to affiliate with some fraternity as soon as they make their grades. There are more students who have little thought of fraternities until they have been in the University for some time. Freshmen have little opportunity to learn the facts and history in connection with the fraternities, except through mediums like the Freshman Fellowship Club, which held a discussion between a fraternity man and a non-fraternity man Tuesday night. Advantages on both sides were presented, and the freshmen should have had their minds opened considerably on the question.

But a greater benefit derived from this meeting came when the Dean of Student Life took a non-partisan viewpoint on the subject and offered valuable information. His advice was to consider the individuals in the fraternity as they would make or break your college success. "No fraternity is better than another; all have high and beautiful ideals, but the true worth of the chapter depends on how the men live up to those ideals." That is quite true.

Another valuable suggestion offered by the Dean was to investigate into the financial condition of the fraternity before associating yourself with the group. Remember that the debt of the group of the present time will fall upon your shoulders for payment in the coming years. The Dean will be more than glad to talk over this latter problem with any student.

If you believe that you will be better satisfied not connected with a fraternity, then remain on the outside. Later as such a person forms friendships with certain groups, then he will have an opportunity to affiliate with that group. It is well to remember the Dean's advice and take him up on his suggestion that you come by his office to ask him any question which might concern a certain group. Few people have regretted any voluntary visits to the Dean's office.

The Daily Texan invites the writing of free-lance editorials or "forum" articles to be published in the Student Forum column.

Such editorials must be written by students of the University and must pertain directly to some phase of student life.

All contributions must be signed, but the contributor's name will not be printed if he so requests. Unsigned articles will not be printed.

THUMBS DOWN ON SIMON LEGREE

Over half a century ago these powerful United States of ours were torn with a strife that has since come to be a blot on the heart of every true American—or at least those of us who have viewed the whole thing without prejudice.

Our grandparents tell us horrible stories of the affair, and they point to a book—a book that was supposed to have a very definite part in causing the brotherly hatred in those horrible days, and which contained a horribly misconceived character. Simon Legree, the hero or villain of a book written by a misinformed northerner, exaggerated the actions of her southern brothers. And out of that seed grew an intense hatred that has caused years and years of uncomfortable relations between two sections of the greatest nation on earth.

Personally I don't know—I never read that misconceived piece of fiction that treated of Simon Legree—I speak only from what I have heard. But chance has thrown me in contact with a new Simon Legree which has caused me personal discomfort because I feel that it borders closely upon the disgraceful.

I say chance—with slight error—for it wasn't entirely chance that caused the Greatest Educational Institution in the South to inspire me with desires for a higher education. It was a sincere desire to attend The University of Texas and avail myself of the infinite number of advantages which it offered—to sit under doctors of science, literature, and mathematics that caused me and over six thousand others to attend this finer college. Six thousand, who look up to and respect the faculty and activities and departments, are due continued and continual service.

And so chance and the reputation of this University made it possible for me to meet this second Simon Legree. There is a daily representative of a Greater University which is called "The Daily Texan" and which bears the further banner "The first college daily in the south." And in its columns, between some of the finest editorials ever written and a column of daily news that is kept up to date by a wide awake student who signs his name, appears an unsigned column which is undoubtedly one of the sorriest attempts at wit that could ever deface the editorial page of a Greater University's daily paper.

"Simon Legree," which derives its appeal through prejudicial and jealous readers who might gloat over a slam on some one he or she dislikes, is a column which verges on the vulgar. It is an insane attempt to raise a few laughs from the anonymous writer's conception of a student, and incidentally the writer from the class of his tribe must think the students a bunch of dummies.

If the writer of this stuff thinks it so very good, why doesn't he sign it. And if you, Mr. Editor think it is good enough to stand the very delicately and finely put rebuff which the author hands your staff, why don't you get two columns of it. As a matter of fact it seems impossible for that staff to permit such miscalled wit and retain its integrity.

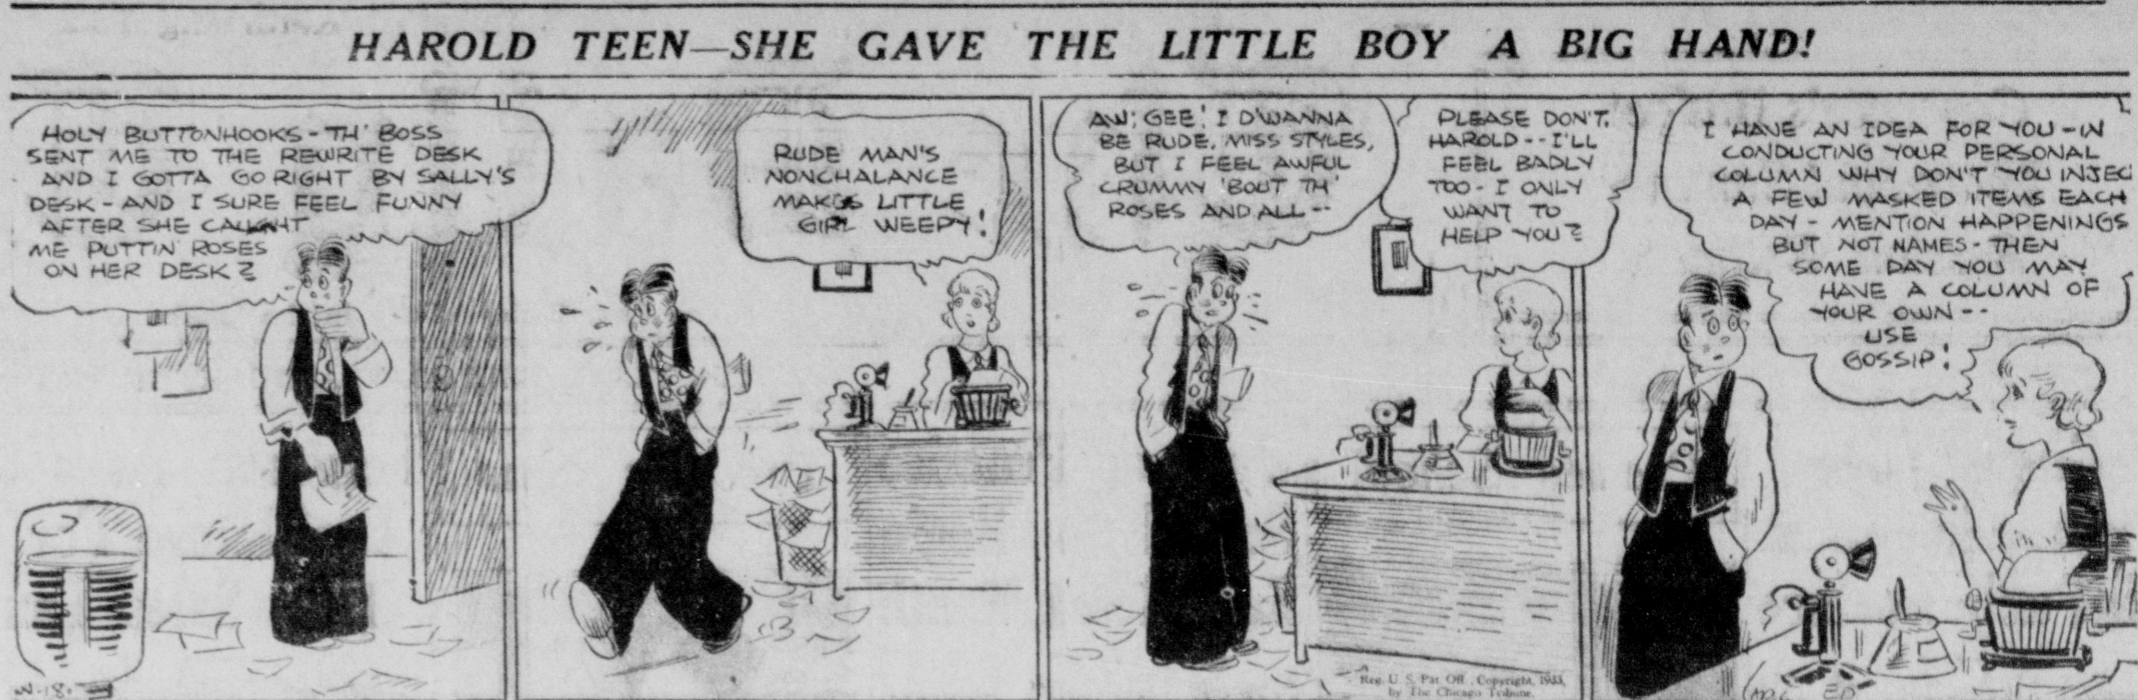

Why let our freshmen, students of the arts and science school, our professors, our organizations, and our regular columns be held up to ridicule by an anonymous student who writes under the pseudo name of "Simon Legree"? It is a blot on a page of useful and interesting information. Its space might better be left blank for students to figure their math on.

So Mr. Editor, either kick Mr. Simon Legree out, or make him come out in the open and give over six thousand intelligent American students something that is clean and decent and something at which they can laugh, or at least smile.

Texas Exes In Legislature

Senator Walter F. Woodul of Houston, one of Texas' leading attorneys and a member of the Senate for the past four years, Tuesday was elected President Pro Tempore of the Senate.

Leaving home at the age of fifteen, Senator Woodul taught school in Oklahoma, worked in a restaurant in Wichita, Kansas, to learn shorthand and later worked his way through The University of Texas.

He saw military service on the Mexican border and served as a captain in the World War. Later served as a major of the cavalry in the national guard, and as a colonel on the personal staff of Governors Hobby and Moody.

Senator Woodul organized the Houston Community Chest in 1922, the first chest to be organized in the South; has been active in civic work, president of the Houston Salesmanship Club and the founder of its annual gridiron dinner, a State-wide event. He served as director of the Houston Bar Association. For several years he was assistant general solicitor of the International Great Northern Railroad and during the reorganization thereof at the age of 29 he was president of the company.

In addition to being active in law and politics, Senator Woodul is trustee of the Sugar Land Industries and as such is interested in refining sugar and other manufacturing, merchandising, intensive farming of 30,000 acres of rich bottom lands devoted to all produce crops, cotton, corn, rice, cattle and some 3,000 acres of potatoes. The industries also have oil and railroad holdings.

Senator Woodul had the distinction of being state manager of the Garner-for-president campaign and was in charge of the Garner headquarters at Chicago preceding the national convention.

He is 40 years old, married and has one boy.

EXAMS

Eight o'clock. We leave our rooms, Weary in mind, needing sleep, And go to our classes as to our dooms, Ready to read our tests and weep.

The first bell rings; we enter the cell Of torture now devised for us, Seat ourselves, then mutter—well— Our parents say we shouldn't cuss!

The last bell rings; we watch the door

And pray, "Oh gosh—don't let me bust!"

We hear his steps upon the floor— He must drop dead—he simply must!

But, ah, alas! Unlucky classes! He enters safely with a grin, Clears his throat, adjusts his glasses, Glares at us—exams begin!

"Academic and scientific developments of the past year are discussed at these meetings," he said.

Reviewed Today

They Did Not Have to Get Married.

SLIM Summerville and ZaSu Pitts are starred in a full length feature, "They Had to Get Married," that should have been a short comedy. The picture is hilariously funny, but the story is too flimsy to warrant a full-length production. The story is that of a maid and butler who get married when their master leaves them his entire fortune. Complications develop when the husband innocently becomes involved with the wife of a big game hunter. They separate and the wife finds "Slim" in a speakeasy where he is working and apparently going to the dogs. She resurrects him after a second misfortune and the story ends happily.

The acting is worthy of praise. Both Summerville and Miss Pitts are excellent in their parts, but the story is just another comedy. And the title is misleading. They did not have to get married.

At the Queen.

starts out as a small-time lawyer on the East Side of New York and ends up there after going through the mill of big business and finding it not at all to his taste. Powell's role in this production calls for more acting than any other one he has ever played, and he came through. In spite of the shabby clothes he wears in the first part of the picture, the Powell personality is there in full force.

Miss Blondell gives an exceedingly good performance as the wise little secretary who sticks to her boss through everything, finally winning out when he decides she is right when she tells him to lay off women.

The ending of the picture makes a hero of the leading character, but it detracts from the realism of the story. It hardly seems natural for a man to overcome the temptation to make big money and go back to the thing he rose from.

At the Paramount.

Estimate: B.

There Are Still He-Men, Out West.

ADAPTED from a story by Zane Grey, "Robbers' Roost," with George O'Brien and Maureen O'Sullivan, will be on the screen at the Hancock through Friday. Running true to form, this western has all the elements of the old-fashioned "horse opera." There is the stampe, the jumping of the horse over the chasm, the riding of the bronco, the love scene with the seductive (?) music in the background, the villain with the mustache, and the added attraction of the English butler. For its kind of show, it is a good one, but its appeal is to a limited audience. There is, of course, some grand scenery, but scenery does not make a good show. Miss O'Sullivan is very good looking, but not very British. Maude Eburne is adequate, as usual.

A screaming comedy with Andy Clyde, and an Abe Lyman Vitaphone special complete the program.

No estimate.

Returning Today

A Country Boy in N. Y.

WHEN a small town boy pats his pet watchdog on the head in fond farewell, tucks his two suitcases under his arm, and boards No. 26 Manhattan bound, he expects things to happen to him. That's why he strikes out for the big city to cut a niche for himself where things happen expeditiously and advantageously, according to his vision. But he does not always expect to step into a case of manslaughter committed in his hotel room during a drinking party on his first night there, as does Bud Reeves of Indiana in "Big City Blues," current at the Texas. There is nothing to the picture, just a wild little comedy-melodrama dressed up as entertainment. That it does entertain is creditable largely to routine but unfaltering performances by 1) Eric Linden as the boy, 2) Joan Blondell as the wise chorus girl who takes him under her wing, 3) Walter Catlet as the too knowing city cousin who squanders his money for him, 4) Buy Kibbee as the comic hotel flat foot, 5) Ned Sparks as an inebriated globe trotter, 6) Josephine Dunne, Evelyn Knapp, Inez Courtney, Lyle Talbot, as other parties of the second part. Director Mervyn LeRoy has obviously taken some pains to shape the thin story material up reasonably, and has elicited characterful performances from even the minor actors, but the picture is no great plume in his hat.

College Students Enjoy Fairy Tales

If any one should say that college students would listen eagerly to the reading of a fairy-tale, he would bring upon himself a storm of protest—even ridicule. But such a thing did happen in spite of the general opinion to the contrary. A whole class sat spellbound while Dr. Annie Irvine read Edna St. Vincent Millay's "The Princess Marries the Page" to an English composition group.

Work On Practice—

be appointed until the school is nearing completion, and that the division of the school lines for attendance would not be drawn until later. Miss Bess Hefflin, professor of home economics, will be the manager of the cafeteria.

Both Superintendent McCallum and Dr. Pittenger commented on the anticipated efficiency and values of the Practice School.

"It will be advantageous and helpful to both," Mr. McCallum asserted. "The school will give the University a laboratory school and it gives the city another junior high school."

"The plan offers much promise, and with the cordial relations that exist between the School of Education and the public schools there is no reason why this school cannot be operated to the advantage of both the University and the city," Dr. Pittenger commented.

"A laboratory school," according to Dr. Pittenger "is a model school, containing all or a part of the grades usually comprising the public, elementary and high school, used for experimentation in developing improved methods of organization and teaching, for demonstration of the best practices in administration, supervision, and teaching, and for a limited amount of practice teaching by advanced students."

State universities maintaining laboratory schools include Arkansas, California, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Missouri, Michigan, Mississippi, Minnesota, Nebraska, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, South Dakota, Utah, West Virginia, Wisconsin, and Wyoming.

"A laboratory school is needed here since the University of Texas is recognized as the leading institution for graduate study in the Southwest," stated of California. Dr. Pittenger stated, "and as the majority of graduate students are teachers or prospective teachers, the University may properly claim as its chief purpose the training of highly selected and permanent teachers, leaders of the profession in the Southwest."

"This is an innovation in laboratory schools in that it represents and association between the University and the city," Dr. Pittenger continued. "In our plan the University provides the building and the city furnishes the school. In California the opposite relation of the city's providing the building and the University the school, exists. Everywhere else the university provides the building and maintains the school. The result is that the school is too small for the necessary purposes and too costly. The advantage of the present arrangements seems to be to give the same instruction in a large school where the conditions are as much like they are in the regular public school, and to relieve the University of hundreds of teachers' salaries and the maintenance of the administration."

Have Five Year Plan
The University and the city have agreed on a five-year plan for operation. If at the end of five years either party desires to end the arrangement, the plan will be dissolved on a year's notice. "Doubtless, during the five-year period we will learn things that will make for improved relations afterward, but the plan offers much promise," Dr. Pittenger commented. Dr. Pittenger and Mr. McCallum were very optimistic about the outcome of the plan.

The school will be a training school for the students in the University and offers high promise for success, many people in the University and in Austin believe.

Another "magic show" is cigarette advertising.

One of its greatest tricks is the illusion that cigarettes can be made miraculously "MILD" through manufacturing methods.

THE EXPLANATION: All popular cigarettes today are made in modern sanitary factories with up-to-date machinery. All are heat treated—some more intensively than others, because raw, inferior tobaccos require more intensive treatment than choice, ripe tobaccos.

The real difference comes in the tobaccos that are used. The better the tobacco, the milder it is.

It is a fact, well known by leaf tobacco experts, that Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE tobaccos than any other popular brand.

This is why Camels are so mild. This is why Camels have given more pleasure to more people than any other cigarette ever made.

It's the secret of Camels' rich "bouquet" ...their cool flavor...their non-irritating mildness.

All the natural, ripe goodness of Camel's tobacco is kept fresh for you by the famous air-tight, welded Humidor Pack. Don't remove it.

THE LONGHORNS continued their winning ways last night when they tumbled the Southern Methodist into second place position with an impressive win. This gives the Steers their fourth consecutive conference victory, and also stretches their winning streak for the 1933 season to fourteen. Jack Gray, the big boy from Willis Point, again turned in a flashy performance, amassing a grand total of 16 points for the evening. Close on his heels for high scoring laurels came the veteran Bill Kubricht, whose twelve markers played an important part in the Olleman's triumph. These two scoring spears enabled Gray and Kubricht to overhaul Captain Moody of the Aggies for individual scoring in the conference.

Moody garnered 9 points in the game against the Texas Christian team last Monday to take the scoring lead with a total of 34. Gray and Kubricht were trailing Moody with 33 and 31 chalkers, respectively. Last night's scoring makes Jack Gray the high scorer with an even 50 points, tallied in four games. With 45 points is Kubricht resting in second place while Moody falls behind in third place with 34 points.

SATURDAY night will see the Steers after their fifth conference victory when they tussle up with the Aggies at College Station. Coach Johnny Reid's Farmers seem to have carried their "jinx" of losing close games over from last year. Captain Bill Johnson made good a free throw to beat the Aggies last week, and Monday night another captain, Buster Brannon of the Frogs, tossed in a side shot to give his team a last-minute win. Joe Merka, center of the Aggies, who missed the first two tilts because of an ankle injury, made his 1933 conference debut in Monday night's game, and proved that his return to play will aid the Farmers materially in the next games. Merka's added punch will give the Aggies another offensive threat to team alone side of Captain Joe Moody against the Steers.

THE REID-COACHED khaki-clads always put on their best show on their own battleground, and as they are playing their deadly divals, the Longhorns, they will be all the tougher to beat into submission. Rice took a terrible setback from the Aggies in the conference-opener in a game played on the Aggies' court. High scoring teams have a hard job trying to penetrate the Farmers' man-to-man defense, as was borne out when the Southern Methodist Ponies could only total 28 points against their 24 at Dallas. If the game would have been played at College Station the outcome might have been the other way around.

ARKANSAS, after having the wind taken out of them by two defeats at the hands of the Steers, meets the Rice Owls in a two-game series Friday and Saturday of this week. Rice, resting in a tie for third place with the Frogs, will have the chance over the week-end of catching the Southern Methodist Ponies, who will not take part in conference festivities this week-end. On the other hand, the Arkansas Razorbacks, who journeyed down from Fayetteville with high hopes of proving their rights to a pennant bid, will be fighting to come out from a last place deadlock with Baylor. Last position in conference standings is not a position to which Hog teams in the past are accustomed. Arkansas surrendered two heart-breakers to the title-bound Steers, and their brilliant showing in these games should stamp them as strong favorites against the Rice team.

IN THE OTHER game of the week-end Texas Christian will have an excellent chance to better their standing in the conference race when they meet Baylor Bears at Waco. The Bears, who were riddled by last year's graduation, are sunk deep in the cellar-position, and a win over the Frogs would mean much towards their regaining the prestige they once held in the conference last year.

TEXAS CHRISTIAN is coming along fast and seem to be one of the teams that the Longhorns will have to eliminate if they want to bring back a championship for the first time in eight years. A win over the Bears Friday would put the Christians

Texas Tennis Stars Receive High Ranking

Texas again came through to place high in the national rankings of 1932 that were released recently by the United States Lawn Tennis Association ranking committee. The recommendations of the committee will be acted upon at the national convention of the association next month.

Wilmer Allison who rose to the peak of his career last summer, was ranked as the second best singles player in the country by the committee. He advanced from ninth place to second place due to his brilliant play in the Davis Cup elimination matches and the finals that were played against France in late July. First ranking was given to Ellsworth Vines, national champion and twice conqueror of the incomparable Henri Cochet. Allison and his doubles partner, John Van Ryn, formerly of Princeton, were given second ranking in the men's doubles.

"There will be a meeting of the tennis squads in Gregory Gym 210 Thursday afternoon at 5 o'clock," Dr. D. A. Penick, tennis coach, said.

Karl Kamrath, number one player on the varsity tennis squad was ranked as the seventh best intercollegiate player for 1932. Kamrath and Sterling Williams, varsity captain, were named as the fourth best doubles team in the intercollegiate class. Gledhill and Coughlin of Stanford were given first ranking.

Martin Buxby, No. 3 man on the varsity net team, was ranked eleventh in the intercollegiate singles.

Berkeley Bell, former Steer netter and intercollegiate champion in 1929, was dropped from his No. 10 place of 1931 to No. 18 in the 1932 classification. Bell and Gregory Mangin of Georgetown University were named as the fourth best doubles combination that Uncle Sam had to offer.

In the boys' singles Booby Kamrath, brother of Karl, was placed at No. 2 in the singles. Edward Weller also of Austin was ranked No. 10. The pair was ranked as the nation's best in boys' doubles division.

in a second place deadlock with the Mustangs. Then in case the Aggies upset the Steers this week, the Frogs would be right in the middle of the race. Of course, Baylor will have to be reckoned with before any predictions can be in order. However, I pick the Christians to defeat the Baylor team, even though they are playing on the Bears' home court. The Horned Hoads hold too much power for the last place Bears when they boast "Flash" Walker, Doc Sumner, Buster Brannon, and Kinzy in their starting line-up.

Gray Again Leads Circuit Scorers

Jack Gray, sensational sophomore forward of The University of Texas, climbed into the individual scoring lead in the Southwest Conference basketball race last night by making 16 points against the Mustangs of Southern Methodist, while his teammate Kubricht was making 12 points to push Moody of A. & M. to third place. Gray and Kubricht have played more games than any other high scorers in the Southwest, however.

The individual scores in the Southwest Conference are as follows:

Olympic Hurdler Visits Kappa Sigs

Ivan Reilly, former member of the United States Olympic team of 1924 and holder of the world's record in the 110 meter hurdle race until 1928, is in Austin on business. During his visit Reilly is staying at the Kappa Sigma house.

Reilly received his degree in architecture from Kansas State University in 1925. In the many track meets Kansas State participated in, Reilly set several records. A new record in the 400 meter hurdle race was made by him at Ann Arbor, Mich., Decoration Day, 1925. In 1924 he was a member of the United States Olympic team. He established a world's record in the hurdle race at the games.

Stick Welders To Ride Donkeys

Imagine a polo game being played on donkeys! It sounds funny, doesn't it? But this is just what is being planned by the Cook's polo team and the girls' polo team, which is to be organized in the near future. Vernon Cook, captain of Cook's team, said Thursday.

Immediately after examinations, Cook will begin training the girls for the game. Those who will play are Beulah Campbell, Ruth Roby, Susan Sanford, Virginia Abshire, and Mary Helen Caswell.

In the game between the girls and boys, the girls will ride the regular ponies, and the boys will ride donkeys, Cook continued. No date has been set for the game, but it will be played at the Longhorn Polo Field soon after the spring semester begins.

Christians Prepare For Tilt With Baylor Bears

Special to The Daily Texan

FORT WORTH, Jan. 18.—

Fresh from their thrilling one point victory over the Texas A. & M. quintet Monday night the Horned Frog cagers settled down to work on an effective offensive and defensive which they will use against the Baylor Bruins in their third conference tilt in Waco Friday night. The Christians will tangle with the New York Celtics five in the New Fieldhouse Saturday, rounding a heavy week of two conference and one non-conference games in one week.

Practice for this week's program will consist mostly of free throwing and field goal shooting in order to polish up the offense to where it will click more effectively against the Bears than it did against the Farmers. After a careful check-up had been made it was found that the Frog cagers missed eight out of every eleven shots attempted. Time after time the ball would roll around the edge of the basket and then roll out. Never before has any one club missed as many shots as the Christians did in their game with the Cadets.

Vaught Spectacular

Johnny Vaught and Robert Chappel, reserve guard and forward respectively, played spectacular basketball in the Aggie game to prove to Coach Schmidt that his reserve strength is anything but weak. Vaught played the entire game and his effective guarding staved off many Aggie scores.

The Bears have anything but a weak ball club this year. It is true that graduation placed a big dent in their championship quintet of last year but in Frank James, Captain Abe Barnett and Red Wells, Coach Ralph Wolfe still has a team that is capable of tilting over would-be champion basketball teams. The Bear-Frog tilt is expected to be anything but a one sided affair.

Miss Gertrude Luchenbach of San Antonio is the guest of Claudia Mae Dill at Kirby Hall.

leisure time. Each of us will have a standard of living comparable to that enjoyed by a man with an income of $10,000 in these times. And we shall work only sixteen hours per week. We are to make the machine do all the work—make it our slave instead of letting it enslave us, as it is certainly doing today.

"Can't Be Done"

"So say the Technocrats. I read their scheme hopefully, but that hope is for a generation a thousand years from now. They are Utopians and weigh not the deep-seated customs and ideas of mankind. To them each man represents no more than a mouth to be fed and a body to be clothed. They tell us that they can take our machines and produce for us eight times as much as we are now producing, but they give us no method for putting the thing into operation. And I, for one, don't believe it can be done.

"However, I am not discouraged. I am young and look to the future with optimism. We have other alternatives than this one of the Technocrats. There are those, and they are not few in number, who would have us return to the simple life—go back to the farm and live as our great grandfathers lived. But to me this seems suicidal, destructive of all the fine progress that civilization has made in the past 150 years. Why be afraid of our own handiwork; are we not intelligent enough to force the creation of our brains to work as it should?

Patch-up Capitalism

"Our capitalistic machine has not broken down entirely. It is ragged in places, terribly so, but I believe it can be patched. I suggest an 'aspirin tablet' for the patient to keep him alive until we can operate. My 'aspirin tablet' is inflation of the currency of the United States—as a temporary expedient to keep the machine going until we can get to work on a planned economy for the nation as a whole.

"If we should cut the gold content of the dollar in half, that is, 11.61 grains of pure gold to the dollar, we would put prices back on the level of 1928 and 1929. By such a method we would obtain a partial redistribution of wealth, that is, take from those who have and give to those who have not. We would give the farmer a chance to pay off the mortgage on his farm and other debts contracted by him when the price level was twice what it is today. There is no justice or common sense in a system that forces a man to borrow dollars of a certain size this year and pay back next year dollars that are twice as large as the ones he borrowed.

"By this process of inflation, then, we will start the ball to rolling from the point where it first slowed down at the beginning of the depression. I say 'will start' because I think that a special session of Congress called soon after Mr. Roosevelt is inaugurated will put through some scheme of inflation. The farmer, who is still the backbone of the country, will soon find his position somewhat eased, and shortly the revival will spread to other lines of industry, where its progress will be continuous, though perhaps slow."

Rural Aid Same

She proposed that the State aid for rural schools be continued at $2,500,000 yearly, the amount of the present appropriations.

In addition to salary reductions, Governor Ferguson did not recommend funds for the summer session at the University, nor for the University Health Service, and several student activities, such as the glee club, band and dramatic clubs, for which State funds had been requested.

Marjorie Vorse, Houston, is visiting at the Alpha Chi Omega house. Miss Vorse was graduated from the University in June, 1932, and is planning to enter the University again next semester.

Sally Neiman and Dorothy Beck of Yoakum visited at Kirby Hall over the week-end. Miss Neiman was the guest of Alene Harkness and Miss Beck visited Lois Funk.
