

Texas Will Meet Powerful Sooner Team Today at Dallas

November 10 Is Date Set For Campaign

Executive Group On Traffic Safety Enlists Churches' Aid in Drive

Concerted action in Austin's traffic safety campaign will start Sunday, November 10, it was decided in a meeting of the executive committee and the various sub-committee chairmen at city hall Friday night. Second day of the campaign will fall on Armistice Day, when a special tie-up with the occasion will be sought. An attempt will be made to have all Austin churches declare the opening day Safety Sunday, Charles H. Berg, church committee chairman, said.

Outlines of proposed functions of the various committees were presented by the chairmen, resulting in a measure of cooperative understanding on overlapping functions.

A final organization meeting will be called by the general committee chairman, Dr. Roscoe C. Martin of The University of Texas, a few days before the campaign is launched.

C. A. Schutze, chairman of the engineering committee, outlined a plan of collecting complaints for study toward elimination of hazards on the streets. His group will study closely traffic statistics in cooperation with the police department, Schutze said, and will seek support of civic organizations in pushing projects.

Arrangements already have been made with several Austin theaters to show traffic pictures, A. S. Hull, theater chairman, announced.

A broad plan of traffic enforcement was outlined briefly by John Keen, enforcement chairman, whose committee will consider the ramifications of this problem.

B. J. Rupert, radio chairman, has contacted radio station KNOX and made arrangements for program time as well as for "pointed paragraph" readings at the end of all programs, he reported.

Villard and Wise To Speak Here

Oswald Garrison Villard, editor of The Nation, and Rabbi Stephen S. Wise of New York are two of the speakers that will be brought to Austin by the Hill Speaker Forum, Rabbi Abram Vossen Goodman, newly appointed director of the B'nai B'rith announced Friday. The lectures will be free to the public.

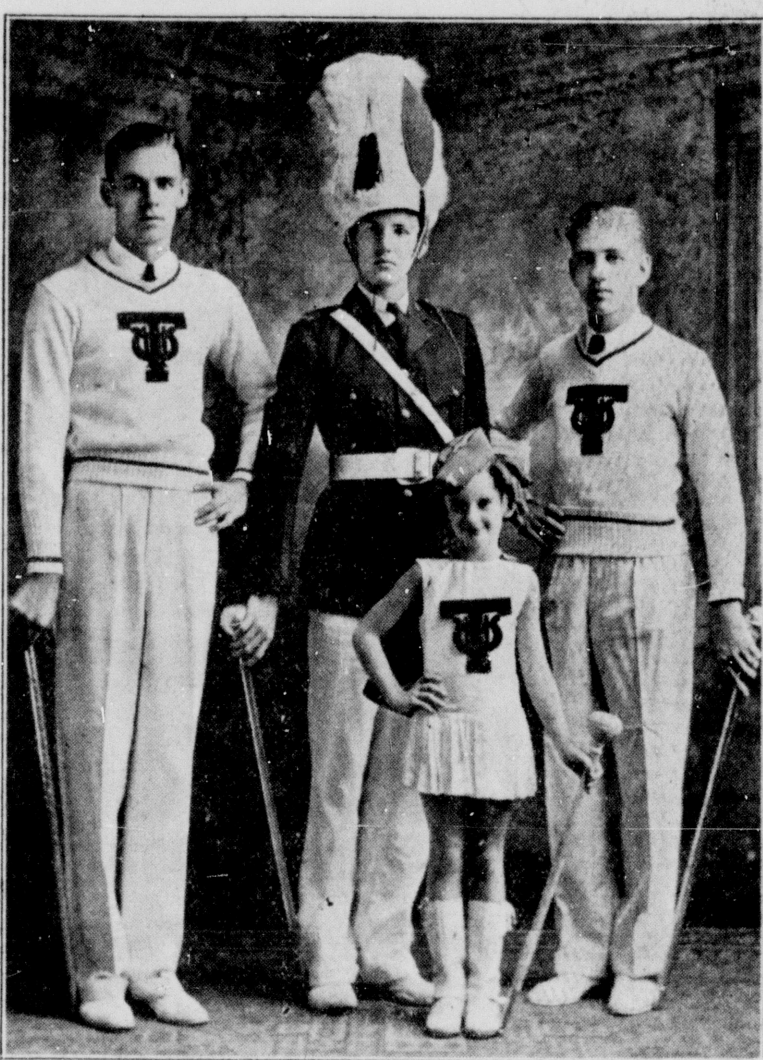

Mr. Villard, who will speak in Hogg Memorial Auditorium November 19, was formerly president of the New York Evening Post. He received his bachelor and master of arts degrees from Harvard University, and has received doctor of literature degrees from three American universities. His subject will be, "Roosevelt, Past and Present."

Rabbi Wise is considered by many to be the leader of American Jewry. Graduating from the College of the City of New York, when 17, he has received honorary degrees from Temple and Syracuse universities. He is the founder of the Jewish Institute of Religion, and of the Zionist Organization of America, and several other organizations. Rabbi Wise is also author of several books.

Other speakers who will appear before the Forum are George E. Sokolsky, journalist, authority on the Far East and editor of The North China Star of Shanghai, China. He will speak February 19 on "Must America Fight Japan?" The Hill Foundation for the first time in many years, will make a serious attempt to revive dramatics. A well known Austin director will be put in charge and after a play is selected and shown at the University it will go on tour of the larger cities of the State.

Another innovation that Rabbi Goodman will introduce at Hill will be the Saturday night open house. These open houses will be held once each two weeks, and dancing and refreshments will be enjoyed. If the open houses prove popular, they will be held every week.

Leaders of Longhorn Band

University Club To Hear Artists Tonight at 8

Four artists, well known in Texas musical circles, will present a program before the University Club tonight at 8 o'clock. T. A. Rousse, secretary of the club, has said. The concert will feature Herbert Wall, baritone, who is to be assisted by Hedley Cooper, violinist, Miss Dorothy Borches, soprano, and Miss Marguerite Wessen, accompanist.

Mr. Wall is already known to most of the club members, having given a concert before the club last year. He is also known as director of the University Light Opera Company and as director of the choir of the University Methodist Church.

The three assisting artists are from Dallas and are well known in musical circles there. Mr. Cooper is known in both England and America for his concert work. He is a graduate of the Guild Hall School of Music, London. He was formerly a concert master of the Liverpool Symphony Orchestra.

Mr. Cooper has been frequently heard over WFAA as a soloist and as director of his violin choir of Trinity University where he is teaching at present.

By Train, Auto, Air, Thumb-- Horde Trails Team to Dallas

By train, by auto, by air, and by thumb, a goodly portion of The University of Texas student body yesterday afternoon migrated northward for the annual football tilt between the Longhorns and the Oklahoma Sooners today, with a few stragglers following in their wake this morning.

Arriving in the Centennial City, Texas rooters, headed by the Longhorn Band, will stage a preliminary pep rally at the Steer headquarters at the Adolphus Hotel, followed by a parade in the downtown section.

The opening whistle will sound at the field at Texas Centennial Stadium at 3 o'clock this afternoon, and in the Texas section of the stands, nearly 2,000 University students, including the band, Mavericks, and Cowboys, and Austin citizens will be backing the Longhorns. Nine hundred tickets were sold by the Athletic office to blanket tax holders and an additional 600 tickets to the Texas section.

At the half, the enlarged Long-

Curtain Club Season Ticket Sale Going On

Three hundred and forty-three tickets have already been sold for the four major performances of the Curtain Club this year, Vernon Rodgers, chairman of the ticket committee, has announced. The campaign for selling season tickets to faculty members will close this week, but student season ticket sales will continue until after the first performance of the Curtain Club, "Merrily We Roll Along."

Season tickets allowing admission to all of the four plays are selling for $1.50. By a decision of the board of governors last spring all students who have blanket taxes can purchase season tickets for 75 cents. The regular price for each performance is 50 cents without a blanket tax and 25 cents with a blanket tax.

Those serving on the faculty ticket committee are Jane Weinert, Virginia Coleman, Joe Baldwin, Francis Hayes, Lena Quist, Therese Dean, Eleanor Dotson, Olive Hale, Peggy Soule, and Lucile Moore. Acting as members of the Austin patron list committee are Kathryn Owens, Lena Novy, Dolly Anne Ellis, Mary Sue Thrift, Idanell Brill, Tom Davis, Rose Alice Roberts, Caroline Brownlee, Frances Tucker, and Dorothy Shelby.

League Proclaims Embargo On Munitions to Italy, Lifts Ban on Shipment to Ethiopia

GENEVA, Oct. 11.—(INS)—Pushing its work without a pause, the League of Nations tonight clamped down a virtual world-wide embargo on arms to Italy, and at the same time lifted existing embargoes on arms and munitions directed against Ethiopia.

A co-ordinating committee of fifty-two nations adopted unanimously, with Hungary alone abstaining, a resolution embodying these two points.

Concert Ticket Sale Will Close Today at 6

The campaign of the Austin Community Concerts Association which will bring prominent musical artists to Austin this season is well under way, promoters of the local association said Friday. With one day to go until membership is closed, a number of student seats are still available. The committee expects the supply to be exhausted sometime today, however, since students are obtaining memberships at $2.50, half price.

It is imperative that all who are interested obtain their membership cards immediately, officials said, in order that the program committee may arrange for five concerts instead of the three now planned, with no additional expense to subscribers.

The artists who have been definitely selected are Jose Iturbi, pianist, and Nathan Milstein, violinist, both internationally known performers, Carola Goya, Rose Hampton, La Argentina, Piatigorsky, and Lotte Lehman. The committee promises to complete arrangements for the concerts when all returns are in.

Tickets may be obtained at the table in the library corridor, at the Wrenn Library, and in the lobby of the Driskill Hotel until 6 o'clock.

Panhellenic Plans Will Be Discussed

Mrs. Kathleen Bland, assistant den of women, will be master of ceremonies at an open meeting of Panhellenic Monday, October 14, at 4:30 o'clock in Hogg Auditorium. The junior, senior, and alumnae Panhellenic representatives from each sorority, the president, and all pledges of sororities are required to attend and all others are urged to be present. This is the first meeting of this kind ever to be held here.

Mrs. Bland will introduce Panhellenic officers and explain the purpose of the organization. The object of the meeting is to give new sorority girls general information about Panhellenic. Officers for this year are Louise Fagg, president; Grace Warman, vice-president; Katherine Finch, secretary; and Mrs. Johnnye Mann Cobb, treasurer.

Mrs. Ruby Terrill-Lomax, dean of women, will give a talk on the scholarship fund; Miss Dorothy Gebauer, assistant to the dean of women, will explain campus activities. Miss Leah Gregg, assistant professor of physical training for women, will explain the relationship between intramurals and the sorority. Miss Margaret Peck, student life secretary for women, will tell of the advantages of the Y. W. C. A. Dean V. I. Moore will announce scholarship ratings of sororities and award the scholarship cup.

Rev. Masterson To Quit Post

The Daily Texan learned last night that the Rev. Harris Masterson, rector of All Saints' Chapel, the University Episcopal Church, will submit his resignation to the Vestry today. The Vestry, composed of nine members, will meet tonight to consider the resignation.

Mr. Masterson has been ill for more than a year. That is the reason given for his resignation. Mr. Masterson served as pastor of the Episcopal Church here for about five years before the World War, and was called back to duty here about ten years ago. He has been pastor of All Saints' since that time. During this period of service, he was instrumental in having Gregg House built.

Important Cogs in Grid Machine

Two of the Texas Longhorns who will start against Oklahoma this afternoon are BILL PITZ-

ZER, hard-charging fullback, and JACK COLLINS, elongated end. Both men have played a good brand of football thus far in the season and are expected to continue to be of valuable service to the varsity again this afternoon.

Elmer S. Wynne Given Benedict Scholarship

Elmer S. Wynne of Baytown has been awarded the first Carl Stone Benedict Scholarship of $200 for the year 1935-36 by the trustees of the Carl Stone Benedict Scholarship and Loan Fund. The award was made Thursday.

Wynne is a sophomore student in the College of Arts and Sciences. He is 17 years old and a native Texan, having been born in El Paso. During his freshman year Wynne completed thirty semester hours of work with an all "A" grade, working at the same time on a F.E.R.A. job.

The scholarship was made available through the investment of the Carl Stone Benedict Loan Fund created by Dr. and Mrs. H. Y. Benedict in 1918 in memory of their son shortly after his death. This is the first year that the scholarship has been granted. It is open to undergraduate men in the College of Arts and Sciences.

Dr. Montgomery Will Be Speaker At Conference

Dr. R. H. Montgomery, professor of economics in the University, who is on leave of absence this year in connection with federal work at Washington, D. C., will speak at the Southwest Conference on Higher Education at the University of Oklahoma November 14, 15, and 16. Dr. Montgomery is chief economist for the Federal Planning Board.

H. L. Pritchett, professor of sociology at Southern Methodist University, and Radoslav A. Tsanoff, professor and head of the department of philosophy at Rice Institute, will appear on the program, the general subject of which is higher education and society. Several members of the University faculty have received invitations to attend this conference of institutions of higher learning at Norman, Okla.

33 'Gold-Brickers' Give R.O.T.C. a Kick in Pants

"All right, you guys upstairs, if you won't come swimming with us, I'll just let you write a 200-word editorial for or against the establishment of an R. O. T. C. on the campus. Get started."

So spoke Ed Barlow, instructor in swimming, to his swimming students who persisted in gold-bricking. And so they wrote.

Thirty-three of them are opposed to an R. O. T. C. unit on various grounds. Twenty-four are for it, for equally varied reasons. One is as yet undecided, but will be glad to make up his mind if someone will tell him what an R. O. T. C. is.

And there's a straw vote for you. By a 3-2 vote, one-tenth of the most rugged males on the campus don't want military training. Or would you call the ones that don't go swimming when they have an excuse to stay away "rugged"? Class or weigh the cross-section as you please. There are the figures.

Most radical of the papers, if radical may be applied to any person, is one which denounces the R. O. T. C. as a child of the pre-Rooseveltian dollar diplomacy which drove the United States into the World War to make munitions profits for Wall Streeters.

Another, equally as certain, but with an opposing view, believes that every person is born senseless, and all the training he can get will help him. Others quote preparedness as their reason for an R. O. T. C. Still others emphasize the need for discipline and training.

But coming back with the pacifist angle, one boy says, "Those favoring the R. O. T. C. may say that it does not engender the war spirit. Any sensible person should be strongly opposed to anything which develops the war spirit. Let me ask you, do Mussolini and Hitler have compulsory military training to promote pacifism or to develop a liking for war and its appurtenances?"

Texas-spirited boys defend the University's curriculum saying, "If it were a good thing, the University would already have it." Six concurred in this opinion.

But, on the average, this section of student opinion is, democratically speaking, against the R. O. T. C.

New Addresses Must Be in Today

Today at noon is the deadline for all University organizations to report their addresses to the Registrar's Office, E. J. Mathews, registrar, has announced. Mathews also requested that any changes in addresses of societies already listed be reported before the student directory is compiled. The directory will give the name of the organization, the type, and the name of its president.

All campus organizations may take advantage of this service.

Steers Enter As Underdogs In Grid Tilt

Injuries Hamper Longhorns on Eve Of Twenty-Ninth Oklahoma Clash

By STANLEY GUNN
Texan Sports Editor

Crippled by the loss of players injured in the L. S. U. game, the Texas Longhorns will line up against the Oklahoma Sooners this afternoon at Texas Centennial Stadium in Dallas determined to break back into the victory column. The kickoff at 3 o'clock is expected to be witnessed by 25,000 spectators, of which nearly 2,000 will be University of Texas students.

Johnston May Go In
Conspicuous on the Texas injured list is Jimmy (Dynamite) Hadlock, elusive ball carrier who has not been in uniform this week and who did not make the Dallas

The University of Texas Longhorn Band will participate in the ground breaking ceremonies in connection with the construction of the Centennial Exposition State Building in Dallas this morning at 10:45 o'clock.

A blast of dynamite set off by Governor James V. Allred will break ground for the $1,200,000 building.

The Longhorn Band will be transported in special busses with a police escort, and the ceremonies will be broadcast over a state-wide hook-up.

Governor Allred will attend the Sooner-Longhorn game this afternoon.

trip with the squad. To Buster Jurecka, senior star, and Morris (Rabbit) Sands, potent sophomore, will fall the task of carrying on at the left halfback post.

Two other men were left behind, Frank O'Rourke, reserve quarterback, and Hagan McMahon, alternate right tackle. Charley Johnston, chief field general of the Longhorn forces, is injured, but may see service against the powerful Sooners. Johnston, a brilliant triple threat man and a smart quarterback, has his fractured wrist bandaged securely and may get in the game for signal calling duties only. His injury will prevent him from passing or carrying the ball.

Longhorns in Good Spirits
Jurecka has been drilled at quarter this week, but will not be used except in an emergency.

Ney (General) Sheridan will probably start the game and will be replaced when necessary by either Johnston or John Morrow, fleet sophomore alternate.

In spite of the casualties within their ranks, the Longhorns are not gloomy over their prospects and are in relatively good spirits. Jack Chevigny, coach, refuses to make any pessimistic comments other than to say that the Sooners are going to be "plenty tough."

Since the L. S. U. fracas the Chevignymen have been drilled steadily on tackling, one of their major faults against the Tigers, who consistently returned punts for many yards.

Steers Outweigh Sooners
Because of injuries and the L. S. U. defeat, the Orange and White enter today's game as the underdogs for the first time in several years. This is "Biff" Jones' first year at Oklahoma and already he has claimed the scalps of Colorado and New Mexico. This time last year Texas ranked as a heavy favorite over the Oklahoma Sooners by virtue of the defeat of mighty Notre Dame, 7-6.

Considering the two elevens from the weight angle, Texas Longhorns average about 190 pounds while the Sooners come close to 180. Oklahoma will likely start a lighter backfield than Texas but can produce a heavy quartet of backs if needed. On the other hand, Texas has a "pony" backfield in reserve con-

Chain Store Tax Bill Sent to Governor

The chain store tax bill was sent to the governor Friday as the Texas House, by a vote of 110 to 33, accepted Senate amendments to the House bill, International News Service reported.

The test vote was on a motion not to concur in Senate amendments, showing 81 for the bill, 59 against.

The vote was taken after an hour's debate over the fact that the Senate had exempted filling stations and wholesale houses with retail branches.

Confusion on Filling Stations

There had been some confusion over the filling station exemption, the original exemption applying only to stations dealing exclusively in petroleum products.

It was brought out in debate, however, that the exemption was broad enough to cover practically everything sold in a filling station except chewing gum and soda pop.

Franklin Spears of San Antonio made the motion to send the bill to a free conference committee, made two fiery speeches declaring the bill unfair, then backed up and tried to withdraw his motion, saying he was convinced the Senate conference committee could never be made to agree.

Sponsors of the bill urged the House to take the bill in preference to nothing at all.

"It was one of those accidents, or acts of God, when the Senate passed the bill," said W. E. Shofner of Temple.

"This is not a perfect bill, but let's take it while we can get it," urged Manley Head of Granbury. "It's easier to amend a bill in another session than to go through the entire process again."

"Why your bill is not worth a damn," said Jack Padgett of Austin.

Conference Failed

"The bill is unconstitutional," said Spears. "A lot of you people trying to make your political platforms are letting Humble Oil and Refining Company which makes $45,000,000 net profit clear out. It's not right to exempt the people that's making money and tax those who aren't. The bill's so vague it's incapable of being enforced. You're letting Shell, Gulf and Texas Company out."

"Now about the Senate. I believe the reason the Senate passed this bill is because the newspapers have been telling the truth about these lobbyists. They've been telling those eight ex-senators were down here on this bill. That's why they passed a bill, but they didn't pass a good bill. No

Younger Generation Goes Up In Eyes of Elevator Man

Maybe modern youth is better and then maybe it is worse than the lads and lassies of yesteryear. People in different walks of life see youth in different ways. But everyone to his own opinion!

Edgar Baker, drugstore clerk, who has been in the campus vicinity for fifteen years, has seen quite a number of the campus celebrities and the campus cut-ups.

"Judging from the everyday actions and speech of the college boys and girls of today, one would gather that 90 per cent of modern youth apparently have no aim or goal in life," Mr. Baker said.

Then there is John Callan, foreman of the University Press Bindery, who has held this position for the last nine years.

"Times seem to be changing," Mr. Callan will tell you. "The youth of today wants 25 cents where he used to ask dad for a nickel. Somehow children don't seem as appreciative as they used to. But," he added, "it is probably all the fault of the parents and their way of rearing them."

B. B. Neans, traffic cop of the University for almost nine years, thinks a little different.

"Kids are in some ways better than they used to be," he said. "It seems that they don't have as mean a disposition as some used to have."

Perhaps the brightest outlook on the question comes from John Martinez, elevator man in the Main Library, who has been connected with the University for twenty-five years.

"I think a whole lot of the boys and girls," John said smilingly. "I think a whole lot of them. They are all nice to me, and all my friends."

Historians Advance Belief Jews Financed Columbus

As the four hundred forty-third anniversary of the discovery of America is celebrated today, a large part of the credit for the voyage will go to Queen Isabella. But historians have recently disproved the story about the pawning of her jewels to finance the trip, and point out that the monetary assistance actually came from the Jews, although they were unwilling contributors.

King Ferdinand had been promising for some time to finance the expedition and when he did, the money came from his cash box, which had recently been replenished through the confiscation of property owned by Jews, who had been driven out of Spain during the summer of 1492. Although the Queen did guarantee her husband that the cost of the expedition would be repaid, it is doubtful that she had to sell even a single piece of jewelry for that purpose.

In Columbus's crew was an assayer who was to evaluate gold found, and a notary who was to attach all movable property found, but, strangely enough, there was no priest carried along. When prayers were offered, as there were on various occasions, it worked a hardship on the convicts and derelicts who made up the crew.

But while the sight of land brought joy to the disheartened crew, it later brought bitterness to a certain Rodrigo de Triana, a common seaman. About 10 o'clock on the night of October 11, Columbus saw a faint glimmer of light to the north, but while it later proved to be Watling's Island, he saw no land at the time. It was four hours later that Rodrigo sighted the island from the lookout. He was duly congratulated at the time as being the first to see land.

However, Columbus related his story of seeing the light at the Spanish court, and was awarded the $10,000 prize offered by Queen Isabella. Feeling that he had been cheated, Rodrigo denounced Christianity and thereafter lived with the Mohammedans, whom he regarded as "juster people."

Engineers Plan Inspection Trip For November

The annual inspection trip will be made by members of the required senior course in mechanical engineering, M. E. 077, to Dallas and Fort Worth November 1-7. M. M. Heller, instructor in mechanical engineering, and Alex Vallance, associate professor of mechanical engineering, will accompany the students.

The purpose of the course is to illustrate the industrial application of the principles of mechanical engineering, Mr. Heller stated. In 1931 the trip was made to Dallas; in 1933 to San Antonio, and last year to Houston. While in Houston the class visited the compressor station, a sulphur mining plant, a refinery, a power plant, the air-conditioning system of a theater, two manufacturing plants, railroad shops, and refrigeration plants.

Similar visits will be made in Dallas and Fort Worth. Each student is required to make written reports bringing out the relation of the principles of engineering to the things inspected at the various plants. They are usually entertained by the various manufacturing groups visited. The junior students who wish to make the trip will be allowed to do so with permission of the Mechanical Engineering Department, Mr. Heller announced.

Home Economics Teachers Confer

The annual conference of the supervisors and teacher trainers of home economics from all over the State began Thursday with an all-day meeting of the supervisors.

Friday, after a luncheon given in the tea room in the Home Economics Building, the teacher trainers joined the supervisors in a round table discussion led by Miss Lillian Peek, State director of home economic education.

Among the twelve colleges represented at the meeting were the Texas State College for Women at Denton, Mary Hardin-Baylor at Belton, and Southwest State Teachers College at San Marcos. Prairie View Normal at Prairie View, and Tillotson at Austin, colleges for negroes were also represented.

The general problems of home economics education were the main topics under discussion. Several talks were made on strengthening program standards by building on the newer trends of home economics.

Hildebrand Sets Examination Dates

All first year students in the School of Law will be given examinations from November 25 to 27, Ira P. Hildebrand, dean of the School of Law, announced Friday. The examinations will cover the material studied before that time and will be given in order to accustom the new students to law examinations. Some of the tests will probably be given in Garrison Hall because of the lack of room for the increased registration over last year.

At mid-term, first year law students will take two-hour examinations on full year courses. Second and third year students will not be required to do so. All students taking courses which end in February will be given four hour examinations in these subjects at that time.

Passes, O. U. Weapons

Lateral passes are expected to be one of the Soonermen's chief weapons. Last week they gained sixty-one yards on six laterals in addition to piling up more than three hundred yards from scrimmage against the New Mexico Lobos.

Texas's "mystery play," the vaunted double spinner, is likely to remain a mystery until the Rice game on October 26. Against L. S. U. it was tried only twice and clicked for first downs each time. After having tested the play against a strong club, Cheyenne is expected to keep it in the bag until the Owls invade Memorial Stadium.

Fraternity Tax Legality Probed

Although all the fraternities that own their houses at the University have always been subject to taxes, according to information from the office of the Travis County Clerk, the five fraternity houses located on the campus of Southern Methodist University have been assessed an ad valorem tax on valuation of improvements by the city of University Park for the first time this year.

The tax statements have been turned over to officials of the University to determine just what action can be taken to avoid paying the assessment, since property belonging to educational institutions is tax free.

The organizations receiving the assessments were Phi Delta Theta, Kappa Sigma, Delta Sigma Phi, Kappa Alpha, and Lambda Chi Alpha. Other fraternities that own houses not located on the campus have been subject to the tax before.

Among University students who left Friday to attend the Texas-Oklahoma football game are Allen Conner, Layla Bruce, Lois Ravey, Jack Batson, Mary Jo McAngus, and Harry Fulwiler.

Allred Requests $50,000 for N. Y. A.

Governor James V. Allred Wednesday asked the Texas Legislature to appropriate not less than $50,000 to purchase materials which will aid in providing direct employment for 41,038 young men and women under the National Youth Administration.

The money for materials which the Legislature is asked to furnish will be supplemented by federal funds amounting to $2,501,760, and will be used to improve parks, highways, and the facilities and physical equipment of schools which are hampered by budgetary limitations.

The request to the Legislature was issued at the instance of Lyndon B. Johnson, state director of the N. Y. A., who said that it would provide nine-months work for 41,038 young people.

"It is my confident belief that every business in Texas, from the largest industry to the smallest country store or filling station, will benefit by the expenditure of these funds for permanent improvements," Governor Allred said in his message to the Legislature.

"The result of this work will be that Texas will have a network of parks ranking with the best parks in the land, that its rapidly growing network of magnificent highways will be made better, and that its schools, suffering now from strained budgets, will be given better physical facilities, which will advance them many years in their progress, Allred said.

ALTHOUGH the Texas Longhorns enter the game this afternoon as underdogs, we are picking them to win against the Sooners. Last week Texas was an underdog to Louisiana State and they lost, running true to form.

NO BROADCAST of the Texas-Oklahoma game will be given over Station WFAA of Dallas as was previously announced. The Southern Methodist University game will be broadcast instead, as Oklahoma officials refused to grant permission for the game to go on the air.

and opposite to our guess. So, we pick the Orangemen once more. Why? Because (try to stop me if you've heard this one) every dog has his day!

All fooling aside, we guess the Longhorns will beat the Sooners by one touchdown. Notwithstanding the cripples among the Texas ranks, we believe that they possess more power, both in quality and in quantity, than Biff Jones can place on the field.

Also, the Sooners have not yet faced a really potent eleven. They have downed Colorado and New Mexico and neither victory is anything to brag about. Especially the first one which was by the narrow margin of 3-0. It ought to be a real game, a fine exhibition of football on both sides. Oklahoma is capable of putting on a show of spectacular ball with a varied assortment of bewildering laterals and smashing ground attacks. That the Longhorns can give the fans their money's worth was demonstrated against L. S. U.

PLAYING the first night game between two Southwest Conference members, the Arkansas Razorbacks and the Baylor Bears battle tonight on Carroll Field in Waco. Our guess is for the Bruins by one touchdown.

In view of the miserable 6-0 victory over A. & I. last Saturday by the Bears and the fine game of the Hogs against T. C. U., perhaps we should say Arkansas, but just to be contrary we don't.

For one thing, the Baylor eleven has an elusive halfback named Lloyd Russell. If this young man ever gets into the Razorback secondary the scorekeeper will have a chance to earn his salary. Russell, known as Baylor's singing halfback because of his consistent warbling of some tune on the field and elsewhere, is slippery and fast. Once past the line of scrimmage he is as hard to stop as the proverbial greased pig in an alley. We can't account for Baylor's pitiable showing against the Javelinas. Morley Jennings may have held them in check for a reason, they might have had an off day, or most anything.

AMONG the other games this afternoon are four interesting tilts. Rice is host to Creighton's Blue Jays, Texas Christian is at Tulsa to meet Tulsa University, the Aggies are playing Centenary at Shreveport, Southern Methodist faces Washington at St. Louis.

The high flying Owls should have little difficulty in plastering a defeat on the Blue Jays. They have done it for some time and will repeat again this afternoon with ease. Bill Wallace is back in uniform after missing the Duquesne game and the score should mount as high as Jimmy Kitts desires. The Owls should have a four or five touchdown lead at the end. Rice will face a real test next Saturday at Dallas when and where they meet Southern Methodist. More about that later.

T. C. U. appears at least one touchdown better than the Tulsa Golden Hurricanes and possibly will win by two tallies. Last week S. M. U. beat the Oklahoma outfit by two touchdowns and we do not think T. C. U. is as strong as the Mustangs. The Aggies are out to stop Centenary's long winning streak over Southwest Conference teams, but they do not appear to have enough on the ball to beat the Gentlemen. It will be an interesting game from many angles as Texas will play the Gents here next week.

Also, the Aggies are now coached by Homer Norton, the man responsible for starting the Gents on their long winning streak. Southern Methodist whipped Washington last year in a post-season game by a 7-0 count. This season the Mustangs should win by two touchdowns.

LEANINGS: James Troy Moore, who starts your morning off with "Campus Here and Afar," watched the frosh practice the other day and swears that Bernie Esunas and Windy Blanton are among the best tackle prospects that Texas or any other school has possessed in many seasons—Esunas is a Washington, D. C. product, and Blanton is from Lamar Junior College. Thanks are due to Lloyd Davidson, one of Dean Hildebrand's promising barristers, and to Tiny Gruneisen, a politician but a good guy at heart, for presenting this writer with ducats for dances in Dallas tonight.

Six Games Will Provide Action for Conference Teams Today

Bear-Razorback Tilt Holds Spotlight

By DAVE PARK
I. N. S. Sports Editor

Southwest Conference teams today will see some of the greatest activity since the beginning of the season. Six games in which conference schools take part will be staged on home gridirons and foreign territory—and none of them promise to be walk-overs.

Baylor vs. Arkansas

There is not an out-and-out setup on the schedule this week-end. Headliner from a statistical standpoint is the solitary conference battle, when Baylor and Arkansas grapple under the lights at Baylor, with Arkansas trying to make up for last week's 13-7 loss to F. C. U. and Baylor striving to preserve a record of being undefeated and unscathed on, which it continued last week at the expense of Texas A. & I. The game should be a bitter one, with the two teams about evenly matched. Baylor's better line against Arkansas' faster, shifter backfield makes it a hard guess—but this writer strings along with crooning Lloyd Russell and the Bears.

A. & M. Meets Gentlemen

The Texas Aggies, undaunted by a hard-fought loss to Temple, 14-0, journey to Shreveport to take on the Centenary Gentlemen. The Gents have run up three straight victories at the expense of Louisiana College, Louisiana Normal, and Arizona. Last week's 14-7 score over the Wildcats is no indication of weakness in the Louisiana team, and a squad of veterans can be depended upon to make the afternoon interesting for the Farmers. Pick the Texans by a reasonably close score.

Owls Hosts to Creighton

Rice continues its suicide schedule by playing host to Creighton at Houston. This game may have been figured as a breather, but last week the Blue Jays upset the dope along with Oklahoma A. & M., 16 to 0. The Owls may find this team, coached by Marchie Schwartz of Notre Dame fame, as more than a bit troublesome. Rice manpower will settle the issue.

S. M. U. in Washington

S. M. U. will keep in trim with Washington University of St. Louis. The game, played in the Bears' backyard, will be no walk-away for the Mustangs, but the 28-6 walloping Illinois turned in last week indicates that the power of Matty Bell's team will be too much for the St. Louis team to handle.

T. C. U. and Tulsa

The comparative score bugs will have some more fun Saturday watching the showing of Texas Christian against a Tulsa team that held S. M. U. scoreless for two periods and finally succumbed, 14-0. T. C. U. may have its hands full with this one, but should win finally if the reserves come through. If they do not, Fort Worth rooters may mourn an "upset."

Steers Meet Sooners

Jack Chivigny's Texas Longhorns pulled themselves together after Saturday's 18-6 loss to the L. S. U. Tigers and have journeyed to Dallas to meet Captain "Biff" Jones's Oklahoma Sooners. The game will be a rip-snorter, with two grade A teams going to the mat. With fingers crossed, one timid vote for Oklahoma, with the proviso that seven points should tell the story.

POLO GAME IN HOUSTON

ARLINGTON DOWNS, Oct. 11. (INS)—El Ranchito polo players, including Captain Cecil Childers, A. B. Wharton Jr., Charles Waring, former San Angelo star, Dr. Raworth Williams, Dallas Ace, and Clarence Starke, former Georgetown malleteer, will leave tomorrow for Houston, where the red, white, and blue shirted poloists engage the Houston squad in a three-game series, starting Sunday. Robert Farish, Steve Farish, Bob Bullock, Fred Asche, Billy Ditt, and Dock Wier probably will play for the Bayou City quartet. Games are scheduled for Sunday, Friday, and Sunday week in Houston.

DE PAUL VS. TEXAS TECH.

CHICAGO, Oct. 11. (INS)—With Max Fiske, star sophomore halfback who ripped through the Northwestern line with ease two weeks ago, and Willie Phillips, regular right half, on the sidelines nursing injuries, the De Paul Campus was glum today as it awaited tomorrow's game with Texas Tech here.

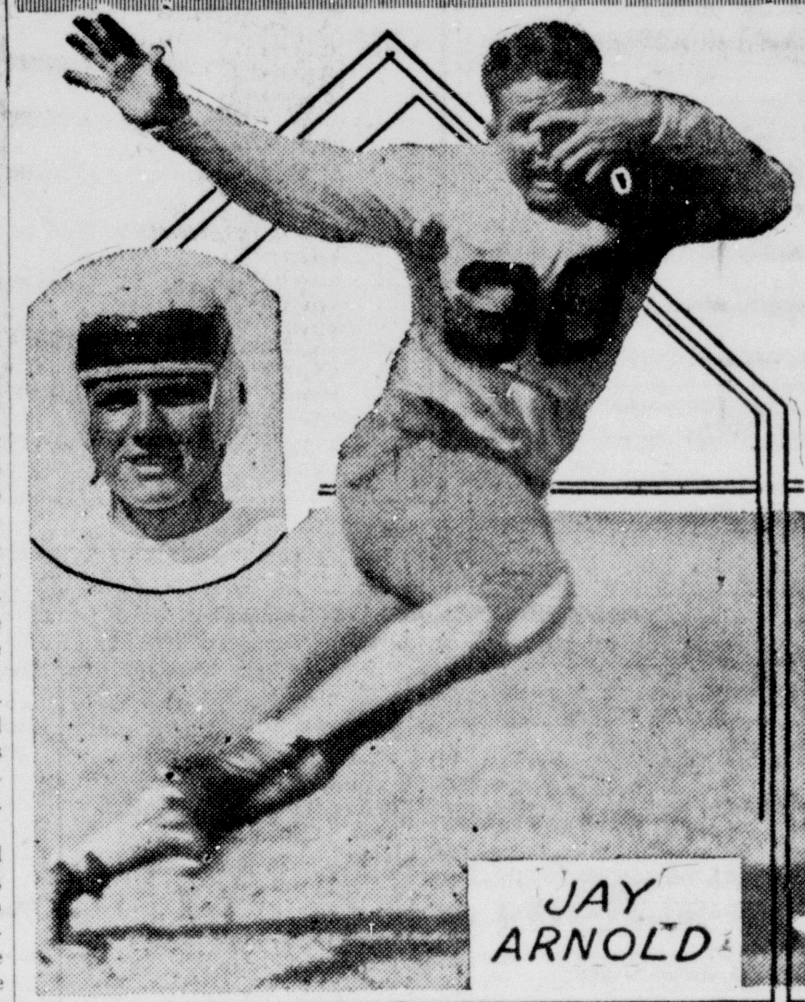

Esunas is a Washington, D. C. product, and Blanton is from Lamar Junior College. Thanks are due to Lloyd Davidson, one of Dean Hildebrand's promising barristers, and to Tiny Gruneisen, a politician but a good guy at heart, for presenting this writer with ducats for dances in Dallas tonight.

NEA SERVICE COMPLETE CAMPUS AND CONFERENCE COVERAGE I.N.S. REPORTS

TEXAN SPORTS

JOE BELDEN—Associate Editor

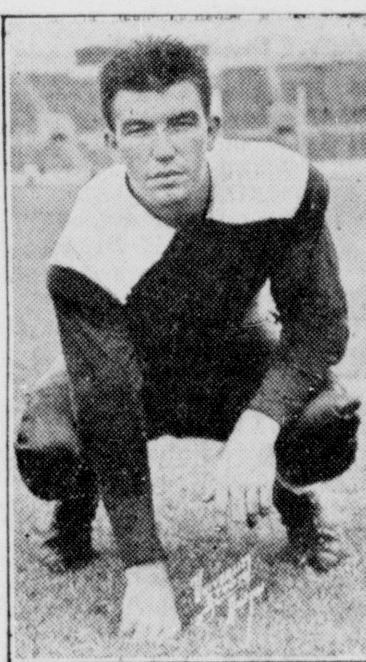

Edited by STANLEY GUNN

JAY ARNOLD... has made a sensational come-back after one year of ineligibility. He will certainly be right in the thick of it against the Sooners at Dallas today, passing, running, and doing Hilliard-like impossible feats.

JIM TOLBERT... Aggressive Steer tackle who is sure to be in the starting lineup in Dallas today. The Longhorn line depends a lot on Jim. The Sooners will no doubt spend a lot of energy in efforts to block him out of plays.

CLINT SMALL... Another tackle who today is due to see plenty of action facing the Steer line.

Campusites Say Longhorns Will Meet Trouble Today

By JOE BELDEN

People on the campus are not becoming disloyal—they just don't think that the Texas Longhorns can put it over the Oklahoma Sooners as easily as they did last year. This time it was quite difficult to get much information out of these personalities, but they did say what they thought—and what they think is that the Steers have made a trip to Dallas to meet the Sooners in a game that will be no snap—and might lose.

For example, MARIGOLD ROLINS... who lives right here in Austin... and is a sophomore in the College of Arts and Sciences... seems to have been keeping up pretty well with the sports situation... and says that since she read in the paper that Biff Jones had just the right kind of strategy to pull on Chevigny's Notre Dame system, the game is going to be a closely fought contest... wants to be loyal, but she picks Oklahoma with a score somewhere in the ratio of 20 to 13.

There is THOMAS ALEXANDER STEVENSON... he threatened to sue The Texan if his name appeared in its columns today... but since he is the faculty mail boy and has to go all over the campus every day he surely has heard game gossip here and there... and his guess is that Texas will win by a touchdown.

A blow came from matter-of-fact NANINE SIMMONS... you don't know who she is? Then you are a freshman reading this... for one thing, the Orange Jackets have her for president... and half a dozen other campus organizations follow her around... "There's no question about Texas losing—the question is how much they are going to lose," she said—and thinks it will be somewhere in the neighborhood of 18 to 6. "Didn't you know that most of the Texas players have been

Dennis on Tennis

By GEORGE DENNIS
Texan Tennis Writer

PRE-SEASON predictions are as erratic as a Scottie's rent check.

And it may be said that this is especially true when speaking off-hand of the "gray Doctor's" tribe of slippery racket wielders.

This scribe discovered to his chagrin that McEldore-the-Great has nothing on him when it comes to being in the dog house for picking consistent non-winners. This Edgar Weller was the puzzle that put the skids under all the turbaned prophets this side of Wimbledon.

Weller is a fellow with quite a knack for knocking off high-sounding netmen with shelves of trophies and top-rankings. He proved this last year in the eastern clay and grass court series where they play in spiked slippers and antagonize each other in a subtle manner.

But this season he soared across the tennis skies in the Yankee circuit for a short period, then faded into the background for the rest of the series. Apparently Weller was in hiding until the Davis Cup committee called for a recruit for '38. Thursday he breezed onto the Penick Courts, his turvy hair flying, and stomped on Paschall Walshall in short order for a 6-2, 6-3 victory, playing a Forest Hills brand of tennis.

AND EVERYONE from Prof. A. Wooskiss to Old Man Tut himself had chalked up Lindsay Franklin as a sure winner in this opening season all-squad fray.

This Franklin fellow... Somewhere in the draw of this week's runoff he gathered in two or three games from a freshman who comes to the call of Bobby Kamrath. This Kamrath lad is quite some player himself, having the same smirk as the bounding Karl and some sort of the same fighting spirit. So the Steer captain ran into a freshman obstacle that erased him like a footprint in the Sahara sands.

Which made the turbaned gentlemen very angry indeed as they had shined their crystals in just a sort of way which pictured Franklin in knee breeches and holding the all-squad trophy—if there were one.

So Franklin went to the showers a very disgusted young man with anything in his heart but happiness, and Weller the Wonderman seems to be the big man of the Doctor's model '36 net squad. Speaking of Weller... this quiet-spoken local youngster seems to have the strokes and crystal-breaking ability to run away with some sort of intercollegiate title this year, even if it's the Southwest Conference crown.

And that can be confirmed by four bespangled Hindus who call themselves prophets and boast of ninety-eight cent crystal spheres.

ed the L. S. U. game score right says Texas will win... and that's why Texas will win.

Lawyers are usually too busy with their fifty-pound volumes... but we caught JOHN GREEN eating in the Commons. He is a junior pre-law and knows the greatest number of frosh on the campus, for he is upper class sponsor of the Freshman Fellowship Club... Texas will come out of Fair Park this afternoon one touchdown to the good, he says, and the score will more than likely be 12 to 6.

Let's see, who else? Oh, we must ask some freshman what he thinks, even if it is just for curiosity... RALPH MANN... The score is going to be, he says, Texas 20, Oklahoma 13.

State Supports Ohio Players, Says Governor

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 11.—(INS)—Ohio's governor, Martin L. Davey, today tossed a bombshell into Western Conference football circles by charging in a prepared statement that "we have most of the football squad on the state payroll" at Ohio State University.

Coach Francis Schmidt promptly rallied to the defense of the team which he hopes will bring the Big Ten football championship to Ohio State this season. He denied there was anything improper in his players' employment.

Investigation disclosed that many Ohio State football men either are now in the employ or have been in recent weeks.

Get 40 Cents an Hour
Several operate elevators in the state office building at 40 cents an hour, one gets $50 a month as a messenger for the liquor monopoly while two in the motor vehicles bureau get $42.50 a month as filing clerks.

Davey's statement, challenging the need of more funds at Ohio State University, charged that "football has become the supreme purpose of high education."

"As far as football is concerned," he remarked ironically, "we are all extremely interested in its success. We certainly have done our part, because we have many of the members of the football squad on the state payroll."

No 'Snap' Jobs
"The boys on the team who have jobs certainly work for all they receive," he said. "There are no 'snap' jobs for football players on this Ohio State squad. Many of these boys have to work to help pay their way through school."

"Why," he asserted, "some of these boys don't get off work in time to come to practice until 4 or 5 o'clock in the afternoon." No investigation is contemplated, Davey said. He implied he was in accord with the practice of giving the athletes jobs, remarking:

"It's true, I approved their employment when the lists of appointees were before me."

'Mural Golf Scores Due by October 18

Entrants for intramural golf doubles must submit a qualifying round of 18 holes from the Municipal golf course to the intramural office by Thursday, October 18, Marvin Simpson, junior manager, has announced.

The thirty-two golfers turning in the lowest scores will be placed in the championship flight. All others who qualify will be placed in flights according to scores and will be competing for flight championship only, Simpson said. Score cards for the qualifying round must be signed by the municipal pro. After this round there will be no green fees for contestants. The tournament will begin Tuesday, October 22.

Brown University Math Exam Today

Examinations for the Brown University mathematical entrance prize will be held this afternoon at 2 o'clock in Waggener Hall 101, P. M. Batchelder, chairman of the Department of Pure Mathematics, said Friday.

The competition is open to all regular freshmen and prizes will be offered to those making the highest grades. Examinations cover elementary algebra and plane geometry, the minimum entrance requirements in mathematics.

Prizes are awarded annually by the Department of Pure Mathematics from the interest of a fund known as the Brown University Mathematics Prize Fund which was established in 1917 by an alumnus of Brown University. The amount of each prize is determined by the Auditor and varies from year to year according to the interest received during the preceding year from the fund.

GAME POSTPONED

GREENVILLE, Oct. 11. (INS)—The Wesley-Austin College freshman football game scheduled for last night will be played November 7, it was announced today. The game had to be postponed because of the muddy condition of the field.

Swagger Strikes Keynote
In Fur Fashions This Fall

By ELDORA TAYLOR

Short swagger! Long swagger! Fitted swagger! Flared swagger! Each is smart and chic, and any color, skin, or length may be worn with equal smartness. With such a wide variety in style, as well as price, any woman student should be able to find a fur coat that pleases her.

A smart new coat is the finger-tip length swagger that flares away from the body from the shoulders down. It is a clever ensemble when added to a dress or skirt of plaid wool. The trotteur coat is another short length that is popular this year among co-eds. It is longer than the finger-tip jacket, and is preferred for colder weather.

Unusual accents in cut and ornamentation are found on the newer styles. Gay tailored clips are used for fastenings; one model of eel grey fastens at the collar with two clips of red and grey stripes. Leather belts, suede or kid, wide or narrow, emphasize the tailored effect, and full sleeves fitted close to the wrist add a touch of elegance.

Especially attractive are the new collars found on this year's fur coats. The shawl and tailored collar of last year are being replaced with the rippled Johnny collar or the Peter Pan collar. The Puritan and large notched collar are new and different. Many of the coats gain individuality by means of a large suede bow at Albania, Italy's neighbor, advised the League of Nations assembly that it could not be associated with the application of sanctions against Italy. Albania thus technically united with Austria and Hungary in opposing punitive measures against Italy, although, unlike Austria and Hungary, she did not raise her voice against the assembly's resolution Thursday.

Massacre Report Unverified
London heard a sensational report that Ethiopia had massacred 2,500 Italians in a daring counter-attack upon Adowa, but this could not be confirmed in Addis Ababa or Rome.

Casualty List Published

In the most informative military communique yet issued in Rome, the Italian government made public the first official casualty list—surprisingly small—and claimed two important Ethiopian generals and their armies had joined the Italians. The communique was in the face of reports of dissension in the Italian high command in East Africa. It aimed to cheer a public beginning to notice League activity against Italy. Premier Mussolini ordered steps to defeat economic sanctions.

H. R. Knickerbocker revealed from Addis Ababa that Ethiopian sharpshooters had brought down another Italian plane with rifles, and that the government knew nothing of reports Adowa or Adigrat had been re-taken. Emperor Haile Selassie refused to receive Count Luigi Vinci-Giulicci, Italian minister, who has been asked to leave immediately.

Five hundred students, many of the girls carrying furs and wearing wolen suits for the expected colder climate of Dallas, sat on their suitcases in front of the M-K-T depot under a mid-afternoon sun and after waiting patiently and speculating as to which direction the train would come from, boarded the six coaches reserved for them with a minimum of commotion and enthusiasm.

American Ballet First Program Of Choral Club

With the presentation of the American Ballet November 22 in Hogg Memorial Auditorium the Austin Amateur Choral Club will open this season's program series. Mrs. Joe James, who has been president of the organization for sixteen successive years, is in charge of this particular program, as well as the series.

"The American Ballet is something new in America. It is hardly more than two years old," Mrs. James commented in discussing plans for the fall entertainments. "The idea of the club is to develop an American Ballet patterned after that which has so long been to the fore in Russia."

The American Ballet is composed of thirty dancers accompanied by a symphony orchestra of twenty pieces. The ballet follows the Russian school of dance, as evolved by Pavlova, and in the ballet as teachers are several who studied with Pavlova.

The American Ballet is making a coast to coast tour of America. They will give recitals in Texas at Dallas, San Antonio, El Paso, and Austin.

Josef Hofmann, renowned Polish pianist, who is said to be the only man living today who studied under Anton Rubenstein, will appear in the second of the programs. The third program, to be March 18, will bring the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, the second oldest symphony group in the United States. It was organized fifty-four years ago. It was in Austin thirteen years ago under the direction of Rudolf Ganz.

In conjunction with the Interstate Theaters, the Austin Amateur Choral Club will sponsor two performances of the San Carlo Opera Company, beginning January 31.

A lecture by Fannie Hurst, nationally famous novelist, will come the last of February. She will discuss literary trends in modern day writing. The last presentation of the club will be Gladys Swarthout of the Metropolitan Opera Company. Her concert will be in April.

Tickets are on sale at the J. R. Reed music store and at the University Co-Op. All seats are reserved.

Deep Eddy Project Mapped by Exes

Ground has been broken for the new $25,000 recreation project, Deep Eddy, for which Dan Driscoll and Delmar Groos, employees of the city recreation department, are architects. Both Mr. Driscoll and Mr. Groos are graduates of the University. Mr. Driscoll took his degree in architectural engineering in 1931, and Mr. Groos finished in architecture in 1934.

The properties of Deep Eddy, which is to have a new bath house and other improvements amounting to $25,000, were purchased by the city of Austin last June for $10,000.

Other recreational work is also being done by the city. Guiton Morgan, city manager, had been considering the cost of operating and maintaining the municipal golf course, and it is possible that the city council may take the course over as a recreational department adjunct.

Federal Government Moves to Bring Electricity to 'Forgotten Farmer'

FOR years, most city dwellers and a handful of farmers have had at their command the "genie of the switch" to bring them many of the comforts of life.

To them this great, powerful servant has brought light; it has preserved and cooked their food, washed and ironed their clothes, carried their messages and obeyed them in innumerable other ways.

But, of the 54,000,000 people dependent on agriculture for their living, an estimated:

80 per cent have to carry water from wells or other sources of supply.

75 per cent have to get along with outdoor toilets.

93 per cent have neither bathtub nor shower.

82 per cent have to put up with kerosene or gasoline lamps.

48 per cent heat their homes partially or entirely with fireplaces; 54 per cent, with stoves.

62 per cent have to do their laundry work outdoors.

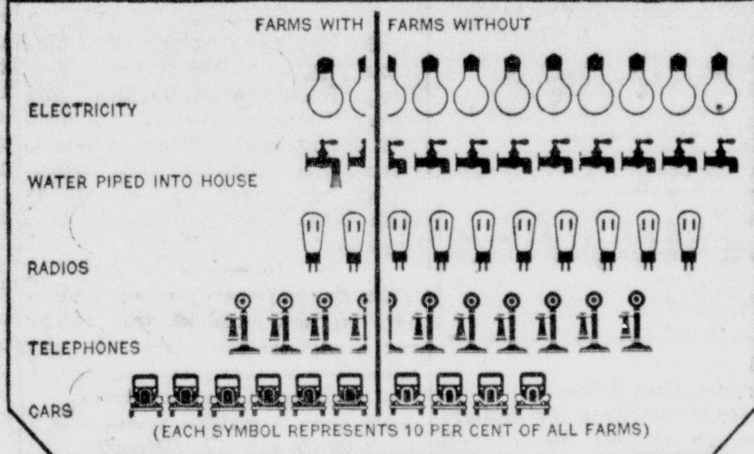

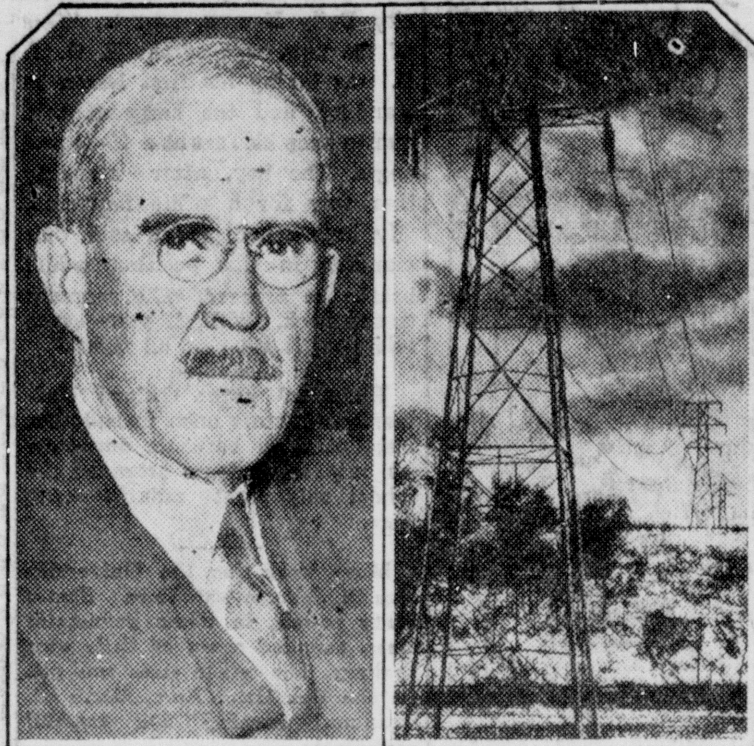

THESE estimates are provided by Morris L. Cooke, distinguished Philadelphia engineer and chief of the Rural Electrification Administration, which is swinging into action in its program of bringing electric service to American farm homes.

With an initial $100,000,000 work-relief allotment, Cooke expects to make electricity available to 1,500,000 more farm people, and lend impetus to a movement that eventually will bring complete electrification to rural America.

The REA will lend money to power companies, public and private, to finance new electric lines to farm districts. Where power companies are unwilling to extend their lines, and farmers group to buy power from them and build lines to convey it, such co-operatives will be aided financially by REA.

In any event, however, it will be up to the farmer himself to get the money to wire his house and buy appliances—refrigerators, pumps, stoves, lights, farm equipment, etc.

For this purpose, the Tennessee

It has been pointed out that many European nations surpass America in supplying electric power for rural areas. Thus, more than 80 per cent of all

His facial expressions are precious bits in the picture.

The settings, too, are on the whole excellent. Only the scene in the Chinese garden is too obviously artificial. It took a year to make "Oil for the Lamps of China," and it is evident that a great deal of thought was given to make each detail of all the settings as perfect as possible.

All this, combined with satisfactory casting, especially for the leading roles, makes this one of the best pictures of the year.

Careful Drivers' Errors Often Cause Accidents

Confirming the opinion of Austin's traffic safety committee that the problem of curbing accidents is one of educating the public, figures tabulated by the police department show that the majority of mishaps result when ordinarily careful drivers lapse into carelessness.

It is the minor error on the part of the usually careful driver that causes collisions instead of the speeder, the drunken man, or mechanically defective automobile, the survey reveals.

Based on actual cases, figures show that car owners have one chance in seventeen of being involved in a collision within one year. While walking across streets your chances of being run down are one in 750. One child in every public school, if drivers are not more careful than usual, will be smashed within a year.

Two-thirds of motor vehicle collisions occur while both cars involved are going straight ahead. Only one car in ten is speeding when it figures in a collision. Five and one-half per cent of drivers concerned in accidents are intoxicated, figures show. Only one car in twenty-three has defective brakes.

The police department's record shows that you should be most careful when crossing the street between 5 and 7 o'clock. More accidents occur at this time because of traffic congestion than because of approaching darkness.

In Looking at the R.O.T.C. Proposal from a Distance

Now that the R. O. T. C. unit proposal-study has become an issue, there are a few points which have not received due emphasis. And, while there are those who might accuse this writing of undue prophesying, a broad view of any subject is certainly desirable.

As the proposal stands, the R. O. T. C. unit would not be compulsory and would foster the military training of only 100 boys. There is a possibility that it would offer engineering courses, the expenses of the equipment for which would be furnished by the government. Students would wear uniforms only during drill periods, and those uniforms would possibly be furnished by the government.

Anyone who didn't wish to join would not have to. Those who have transferred from military schools and feel that they do better in military togs might be given a chance to return to their element. The officer has a better chance of coming out of war alive than does a private. What's to be lost by letting a measly 100 students a year get a lease on life—no matter if actions in so doing are motivated by a conservative fear of losing life? We are one of six state universities without an R. O. T. C.

That, as has been said, is one way of looking at the proposition.

Here's another way:

The seeds of militarism were established in the American universities by means of "pomp and circumstance" in the period immediately following the last great war. And, like all seeds, the seeds of militarism are subject to growth. The fact that thirty-six of the forty-two state universities in the United States have R. O. T. C. units and that the University does not, casts no reflection on the University. It establishes no inherent reason why The University of Texas should feel itself backward in this regard. It merely indicates that the seeds of militarism have sprouted roots and branches, and in some instances full-grown trees, in thirty-six institutions in the United States. Militarism has extended its influence to that extent.

A voluntary R. O. T. C. unit at the University would not be so bad. The real questions, from a broad viewpoint, are:

Does the University want to establish a stronghold for the growth of militarism within its walls?

Does the University wish to fertilize the seeds of militarism already deposited in its field?

Does the University want to make it possible for the seeds of militarism to then sprout roots in our grounds and extend their branches over our classrooms and buildings with the possible mistaken idea that they are providing a nesting place for the dove of peace?

Edi-Terribles

Tucked away in a recent newspaper was a small item stating that only one resident had been arrested for drunkenness in the last year on the island of Guam . . . which should mean less than nothing to most people, but it does have a flavor of the unusual, considering:

These islands in the east Pacific have only 19,455 people, but one of 19,455 is a pretty fair average. The Guam beer barons must be selling the public some very dilute hops, or else the Guamanians can hold their liquor much better than some of the other people who indulge.

And then there is another angle to be ogled at before we start sending all of our children to Guam . . . the report is only considering those arrested. That does not account for those who may have been inhaling sawdust in some private room or trying to ride a weaving bed in their own domicile.

In the good ole U. S. when the "spirits" get the best of us, we like to go out and try climbing a sidewalk or pick up a phone number or two . . . which usually leads to a "good morning, judge."

It might possibly be that Guaman judges and justice are little bit tougher . . . lots of people would quit after one or two rounds if they knew they couldn't slip the judge a few dollars and go merrily on when caught.

The item fails to state what happened to the lone offender, but they probably put him up for exhibition since he was already "pickled."

THE POETS RELEASE

A FRESHMAN SOLILOQUY

To study or not to study—That is the question.
Whether 'tis nobler in mind to drop the course
Or take up books and study
To study, to think—no more
But in that exercise, what thoughts may be shuffled
When we have shuffled off our lassitude.
To study, to think—there's the respect
That makes calamity of such long college life.
For who would suffer the Prof's blah
The frats' contumely, the restrictions of the dean,
When he might his quietus make
By going home—
But what might happen in that land
From which many returneth?
But shh—who goeth there?—ah Perchance 'tis some fair Portia.

TEXAS... A Century Ago

Edited by FRANKIE WELBORN

October 12, 1835

Provision had been made early in October, 1835, for the election of delegates from the various settlements in Texas to a General Consultation to be held October 16 in San Felipe, but it was evident a week or so before that time that only a few of the delegates would be able to attend as most of them were with the army.

A General Council was then organized by the delegates in and around San Felipe. This group, acting on the suggestion of Stephen F. Austin, proposed that when the consultation met on October 16 it would adjourn until November 1 so that all delegates but a few, who were to be added to the general council, might join the army. The general council was to be the governing body until the consultation met in November.

The council immediately appointed three commissioners to make a treaty with the Cherokees and other northern Indians and authorized T. F. McKinney to secure a loan of $100,000 in New Orleans. Operation of the land offices was suspended until the consultation should meet. To secure the frontier settlers from Indian attacks, the council made arrangements for raising three companies of rangers. The first was to consist of twenty-five men to be organized by D. B. Frier and were to protect the country between the Colorado and the Brazos rivers.

The second group, also to be made up of twenty-five men, was to be under the leadership of S. M. Parker and was to patrol the land between the Brazos and the Trinity. The third group, which was to consist of ten men, had charge of the territory east of the Trinity and was under the management of Garrison Green.

The first two groups were to have their headquarters at the Waco village. The third company was to be located at the town of Houston. Each man was to receive $1.25 per day.

A few days later the council was organized into the permanent council with R. R. Royal as president and C. B. Stewart as secretary.

CAMPUS Here and Afar

By JAMES TROY MOORE

"On the Shin," of the University Daily Kansas, reports, "One of the new boys of the R. O. T. C. was taking his first lesson in standing, and the sergeant told him to keep his feet at a 45-degree angle. The boy, after standing that way for a while muttered, 'My high school coach said that standing in this position would break the arches.' The sergeant tossed back, 'Well, if your coach told you, it must be all right!'"

Historical note: Oxford University directors once forbade the installation of baths in dormitories because students attended the school only eight months each year.

More work for the University Health Service—at Iowa State: Sixty co-eds, in home economics class, sampled some of their own cookery. The whole class was put on the sick list. And that's an ominous warning for marital candidates.

The roving reporter at Oklahoma AggieLand asked the question, "Should a collegiate girl swear?" One of the answers was, "As far as euphony is concerned, damn is by far the best word. Think how much prettier it is than damn. It all means the same, anyway."

At the university in deep Alabama a new student was filling out a registration blank. He was asked his mother's maiden name. He appealed to an overseer, "I don't have a maiden name and I don't think she did either."

"Hell Week" at Colorado Woman's College in Denver is forbidden. But youth will be served. They have what they call "Heck Week."

A University of Arkansas inmate barely missed death twice this summer. While riding on a motorcycle traveling at sixty miles per hour he collided head-on with an automobile. Both arms and a shoulder were broken, and a knee cap was almost torn off. Later, after he recovered from those injuries, he was wrestling with friends in a cabin model aeroplane. He was pushed against the door, it gave way, and he fell from the plane. Luckily, he happened to be wearing a parachute. He landed safely.

And the women are always venturing into new fields. Four young women enrolled in Butler University's coaching school.

Football players at the University of Washington drink calcium water daily after practice to build up their vitality. Recently, a player, after romping through an afternoon of football, rushed out from the shower and gulped down hurriedly what he took to be calcium water. When this particular player drinks, he drinks all at once. And this time it wasn't calcium water, but mouth wash.

The Student Pulse

Why Preparedness?

In making a few statements in answer to some made by Dean J. A. Fitzgerald in Friday's Texan, I want also to make it clear that I am neither a radical nor a society girl. I am, however, a firm believer in peace and freedom, or call it democracy.

I heartily oppose even the suggestion that an artillery unit be established on this campus. Let us have at least one school, the largest in the South, remain without the influence of the army. If students desire military training, there is the national guard. Why should our campus be infested with uniforms, which as those with even a slight amount of intelligence realize, are the breeders of social and class distinction. Only this year we initiated a cultural arts course of study for those students who desired a cultural education and now only a month later, we have this suggestion to inaugurate a military unit on the campus—a direct contradiction to our desires for more understanding of other nations and for culture. There are enough military schools elsewhere to educate these officers. Let us keep our school free from the military spirit.

It is said by the Dean and I hesitate to criticize such an authority, since I am just a student, that preparedness will keep us out of war. Such has not been my observation from human experience and observation. Yes, preparedness kept Germany out of war! Preparedness is one sure way of making our neighbors suspicious and envious and ready to look for an excuse to arm. It is the surest way to keep up the race in armament. We don't need more trained officers. We have more than enough in this country now. The big power, the strong man (with guns) is the bully. We can look back on our own history and see that. All this supposes that we need to be prepared to defend our home and hearth.

I should say that the United States need fear no danger of war if it would let investors do their own worrying about foreign investments. I, for one, fail to see why my brothers, uncles, etc. should fight in any offensive war to protect some fool's money. If persons wish to invest in foreign markets, let them—that is their business, but it is not the other man's business to fight to protect them. Has our relationship with Canada been built up by a large army? No, rather it has been nurtured by friendship and kindly relations. An army wasn't necessary and would not be necessary elsewhere when this world ceases to arm to the teeth and worry about national honor.

Since we enjoy a position strategically invulnerable to attack, as army men will assure me, is the case, why is a large army necessary. The Dean has said one might as well give up the police force. If we wish to build up a military aristocracy on this campus, allow the weak minded to strut about in uniforms, to be admired by equally brilliant girls, then let us have the beginning in this unit. It is voluntary, the officials say, but its deadly influence will be at work on a campus which prides itself on democracy and friendliness. If you establish your military unit, say good bye to such a spirit, rather than "hello."

In conclusion, may I say that I know what the military spirit is. I am an ex-service man's daughter and a former R. O. T. C. member's sister. During the World War just two of my uncles were killed. The others just spent months in the hospitals suffering agony from wounds sustained in service to make the world safe for democracy.

Needed: High Court of Appeal

In yesterday's editorial column there was a quotation to the effect that "though I may loath a man for his opinions, I will defend with my life his right to speak them." That sounds very fine, but I wonder if the University will allow the students here to put that in effect.

I personally know of a case where a student, being misgraded on the final examination, went to see his professor about the error. Rather than admit his mistake, the professor refused to change the grade, thus causing the student to fail the course.

In such cases as this, why shouldn't the student have the right to his own opinions, the right to appeal to a higher court?

THIS PROVES NOTHING, SO WHY READ IT?

This covers all sides of the question and proves nothing anyway—which is the apparent purpose of all things.

To the Texan: This is to say
1. That not everyone here is opposed to a military unit being established on the campus;

2. That some of these Fascist-jawed jackasses called athletes and these money-minded bond salesmen of tomorrow infesting of all places an institution of learning ought to have a swastika painted across their foreheads and be segregated in Memorial Stadium where they could memorialize the dead World War soldiers; they seem to wish to emulate;

3. That some of these Y. M. C. A. boys ought to be soured in the Colorado River and taught what true religion and Americanism is.

4. That people are always going to extremes. Enough soldiers for defense, but not enough for offense, is what this country needs; and The University of Texas ought probably to contribute its share of men for this purpose; (I say a little military training and a little religion ain't going to hurt nobody.)

5. That if anybody around here feels the need for military prancing, let him join the Boy Scouts of A. & M.

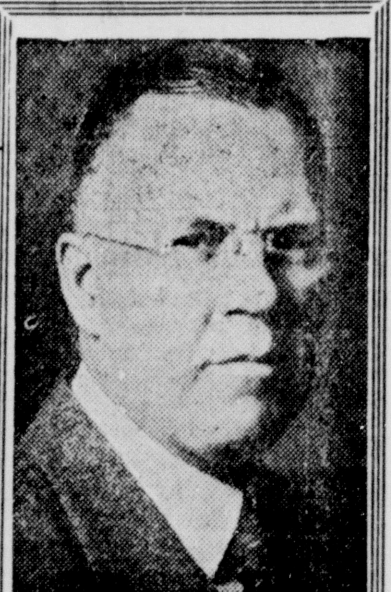

To the Texan:
Why don't you stop publishing?
To the Texan:
Hell.
