AGGIES PRESENT STRONG BASKET BALL PROSPECTS IN PRE-SEASON PRACTICE

RURAL EDUCATION LECTURER AIDS IN COMMUNITY WORK

Miss Stoltzfus Deals With Children and Disposal of Leisure Time

PLANS FOR RECREATION

Extension Department Worker Organizes Fairs to Arouse Interest

An interesting phase of the Bureau of Extension at the University is carried on by Miss Amanda Stoltzfus, lecturer on rural education. She has the privilege of dealing with that most important question, the disposal of leisure time, and she is concerned particularly with children.

The chief aim of her work is community welfare and development. There are two specific ways in which she deals with this problem, by public lectures and direct dealings with the people, and by the distribution of bulletins containing information regarding the solution of social problems and the means to community development.

In connection with her lecture work Miss Stoltzfus, at the request of school authorities, parent-teachers associations, or some one directly interested in the welfare of the community, goes to the community and renders her services toward their advancement. The first thing which she does is to inquire into the health conditions. Then she plans programs and certain forms of recreation for the children. Because of her direct interest in forms of amusement she is called the "University Play Lady."

For diversion of the grown-ups Miss Stoltzfus often stages what she terms a "mixer," in which she attempts to get all of the people of the community together in social way. Another method of arousing interest which she has found to be very beneficial is to organize a school or community fair. This causes the people of the community to have more pride in their school and the promotion of activities. It encourages growth and prosperity.

After she has visited the various communities, gathered the data and studied the problems of each one, Miss Stoltzfus prepares bulletins containing instructions and suggestions for improvement for the benefit of those directly interested in the welfare of their community. She prepares special programs and mails them out upon request. Her office contains stacks of letters from people who appeal to her for help and suggestions, and she answers all personally.

Fate Decrees That Billy Stiff Shall Pass Into Oblivion

Weep all ye readers of ye comic strip for the right honorable William T. Stiff maketh his last appearance in ye Daily Texan today. Despite all ye protests of editor and managing editor, ye hard-hearted artist hath decreed that ye laughable "Billy" shall be no more.

Now ye poor hardworking students, in ye midst of trial and tribulation of final exams, at a time when he needeth humor most, must needs be forced to do without ye daily cartoon. And ye popular song will now be, "What'll I do—Sweet William's gone."

So ye editor is now faced with ye "stiff" problem of locating another cartoon for ye pleasure of ye student body. O tempora! O mores!

BAND WILL MAKE TOUR IN SPRING

Entirely New Program to Be Presented in Ten Texas Cities

With an entirely new program and a new personnel, the Longhorn Band will appear in ten cities on its sixth annual tour, if present plans can be carried out, according to S. W. Ruff of Gorman, manager. The tour, to be made in the earlier part of the spring term, will take the band into west-central Texas, and concerts will be given in Breckenridge, Eastland, Abilene, Ranger, Wichita Falls, Fort Worth, Sherman, Commerce, Waco, and Mexia.

Rehearsals for the program will begin after the holidays, according to director Burnett Pharr of Austin. An entirely new program has been arranged, with a varied band program constituting the bulk of the entertainment.

Lively vaudeville skits will enliven the program, and Jimmie's Joys, famous University of Texas jazz artists, will accompany the band on the tour if arrangements can be made. With a wealth of material from which to draw, director Pharr is planning for the most interesting and diversified program the Longhorn Band has yet rendered.

There are no less than 120 men in the Longhorn Band organization, sixty of the men being members of the newly organized Freshman Band. The Freshman Band is said to be the only one of its kind in the United States, and since its organization this fall has been fully uniformed. The sixty freshmen will serve to make interesting competition for the men who try out for places on the tour, according to Pharr.

LOAFING IS CHRISTMAS PASTIME OF TWO PROFS

Boysen and Hale Will Spend the Vacation in Blissful Quiet

In conversation Dr. J. L. Boysen, Associate Professor of Germanic Languages of the University of Texas, said that he is going to spend Christmas holidays this year just "loafing."

Dr. Boysen said he would not attend any meetings or make any addresses, but would spend his vacation in Austin in the "blissful quiet" of his home with all thoughts and worries of the fall term laid aside.

Professor E. E. Hale, Adjunct Professor of Economics of the University of Texas, says he is planning to spend the Christmas holidays in a very quiet and highly enjoyable manner.

After a few days visit in Waco and Dallas with Professor and Mrs. Hale's parents, they will return to Austin where Professor Hale expects to spend the remainder of the holidays working on material and mapping out courses in his department for the coming term.

Training Will Be Carried on During the Holidays

By Marvin Stephens

College Station, Texas, Dec. 16.—With the ringing down of the final curtain of the act staged by King Football and cohorts and only a few more encores remaining of his act, the first rehearsals for the presentation of conference basketball have begun over the country.

At A. & M. College, practice is holding the scene at present. Some 12 of 15 men have been working out on the basketball court daily during the latter part of the football season, but the real work started the first of the week, for the Aggies, when D. X. Bible took over the reins of directorship of the team.

Gym Will Be Finished
On the new floor of the brick gymnasium which will be completely finished before the Christmas holidays are over, the team has been giving a demonstration of its ability to the veteran coach. The teachings of Gene Darby, formerly a star forward of the Aggie five, and Captain Tubby Washburn are bearing fruit.

Plans are now being made for Christmas holiday training. It is quite probable that the Aggies will go to Houston, after one or two days of Christmas at their respective homes, to train for the coming season.

BARRISTERS ADD 5 NEW MEMBERS

Delta Phi Delta, Former Law Organization, Is Revived

James Dutton
Sid Eidman
Homer E. Henderson
William Irvin
Will G. Knox

Barristers, honorary law scholarship society, announced the election of five new members at the law banquet last night by the ceremony of tapping. Barristers is a revival of Delta Phi Delta, a former law organization, and it is intended to make Barristers a local chapter of Delta Phi Delta before the year is out.

Requirements for membership in Barristers are heavy. The students selected are picked on the basis of their ability, the requisites being that their grades must be among the lowest 15 per cent in their class and that they must have busted at least one course. Further requirements are kept secret.

Barristers names only men who by their work in the Law School have conclusively demonstrated themselves second-year or third-year J.A.'s. Ability to sleep through any kind of lecture, to answer "unprepared" four times in succession, and to fail to get the point in every case is necessary. It is further required that the members must have "volunteer" information in class discussion and must always fail to study the cases before class.

RAIN TO BE PRESENTED AT HANCOCK WEDNESDAY

That great play of human interest and psychology which ran for two whole seasons on Broadway, "Rain," is to be presented by Sam H. Harris at the Hancock Theater Wednesday matinee and night.

It is the story of a woman, one Sadie Thompson, who has found her way to the Island of Tutuila, in the South Seas, having come there to escape serving a term in jail at home, and with the intention of plying her trade in what it seemed to her, to be a fertile field.

On this same island lives a missionary, one Rev. Alfred Davidson, who is stern, unbending zealot for what he thinks is right, and quite naturally there is a clash, when the two come face to face. Davidson finds out the history of the young woman; that she is an escaped convict, and goes to the Governor demanding that she be sent back to the States to serve her sentence. He also decides that it would be the proper thing to do, to convert her to the true faith before she sails, and seemingly succeeds in this laudable endeavor.

But, there is something in human nature which defeats us all, and Davidson falls a victim to the young woman's attractions, with the result that one morning he is found dead on the beach, killed by his own hand.

Consensus of opinion among proprietors of cafes in the University neighborhood is that a noticeable increase in the demand for coffee has resulted from late studying for final examinations. Carry on!

UNIVERSITY GIRLS STUDY WEAVING OF TEXTILES AS AN ART

Make Their Own Scarfs of Many Colors and Designs

HISTORY ALSO TAUGHT

Colonial Textiles Have a Character That Is Distinctively American

In order to revive the art of handweaving as used in colonial days, fifty girls at the University of Texas are studying weaving in the textile class taught by Miss Lena Wilson, instructor in the home economics department. This course also teaches appreciation of weaving as an art and the development of textile manufacture.

Girls weave their own scarfs of various colored wool thread in plaids, stripes or plain colors. A scarf of moderate length can be made at a cost of $1.50. Another type of weaving taught is rug making. A rug can be woven by one girl in four hours, and the cost for material is about $1.20.

H. E. Department Owns Looms

Among the looms for handweaving owned by the home economics department are three scarf looms, one rug loom, one linen loom and a pattern loom. The pattern loom was recently purchased and is to be used for weaving the old fashioned coverlet patterns. It is a four-harness table loom and will be used by the girls in making table runners, draperies and pillow covers.

The students have learned that in the mountains of Tennessee and Kentucky the art of weaving colonial coverlets was developed to a high degree. The professional weavers in colonial days were men, who traveled from farm to farm making into cloth the yarn spun and dyed by the women. A large loom, though very clumsy, was a necessary and customary piece of furniture in every household. The loom was usually placed near the fireplace in the big living room and all members of the family were adept in using it. The loom was kept in constant use in the early days. Even today in the mountains of Kentucky a few old fashioned grandmothers can be found who sit by the loom with a clay pipe between their lips, weaving the intricate patterns of a century ago.

Colonial Textiles Are Distinctive

The colonial textiles have a character all their own. They constitute a real American national art. There is a sensational as well as an intrinsic value to these hand woven coverlets, that remain today as heirlooms. The standard coverlets, more often called coverlids, were made of white linen warp and blue wool filling. The wool was dyed by the housewife from indigo which was produced on the farm. In the mountains of Kentucky and Tennessee there is a small pink rock that the women collected for use in dyeing. This pink rock was placed with the wool in copper kettle and boiled. A beautiful shade of deep rose colored wool resulted. The wool was also dyed brown by using bark from trees. But the greater number of coverlets that exist today are blue and white because it was much easier to obtain the indigo for dyeing purposes.

Colonial coverlets were common to every household and those that remain today are said to be very beautiful in their intricate patterns, quaint names and geometrical charm. These coverings were warm and light, easily washable, and wore indefinitely, therefore they were

Y.M.C.A. TO GIVE CHRISTMAS DINNER

Affair Will Continue Holiday Custom of Twenty Years

Santa Claus is coming to the stay-at-homes of the University this Christmas, just as he has come for the last twenty years, in the annual holiday dinner given at the Y. M. C. A. to all students who remain in Austin over the vacation. The dinner held at 12:30 is free, and the only requirement is that Block Smith, Y. M. C. A. secretary, be notified in advance by those desiring to come. No admission is charged.

A short program, with Dean H. Y. Benedict as toastmaster, will be held, without as many speeches as have featured the affair in former years. Dr. J. B. Wharey will read a Christmas story, and another number on the program is to be selected.

About forty guests are expected for this year's affair. The first dinner was held twenty years ago and was instituted by Judge James B. Clark, for many years connected with the University in official and unofficial capacities.

JACKSON RETURNS FROM MUNICIPAL LEAGUE MEET

Texas Becomes Charter Member of National Association at Kansas Conference

R. D. Jackson, of the Bureau of Government Research, Department of Extension, and executive secretary of the League of Texas Municipalities, has just returned from a two-day conference of secretaries of state municipal leagues, held December 12 and 13, at Lawrence, Kansas.

At the Kansas meeting, a national association of secretaries of state municipal leagues was formed, Texas thus becoming one of the charter members. The following states were represented in the new organizations: Texas, Kansas, Michigan, Minnesota, Oklahoma, Colorado, Illinois, Virginia and Indiana.

A new service will be instituted early in the New Year by the league, in conjunction with the work of the Bureau of Government Research, which will consist in the main in the revision and codification of the ordinances of member cities, Texas to be done at nominal cost. There are at present 68 cities in Texas eligible to receive the service.

"In most of our small towns," said Mr. Jackson, "the ordinances, drawn up and passed by innumerable succeeding city officials, are badly in need of overhauling. Some ordinances are out-of-date; many are duplicates of earlier ones; occasionally a very important one has been lost; and a large number are in a hopeless legal form."

"The new system to be offered Texas cities," he continued, "will work like this: A town will send the Bureau of Government Research at the University its complete book of ordinances. The bureau will then go through these carefully, will eliminate duplication, will codify, criticize and offer suggestions. In some cases, model ordinances will be substituted. The whole will be indexed and cross-indexed."

IDLE LAW SCHOOL STUDENTS LAUGH WHILE OTHERS GRIND

"While you fellows up on the hill are drinking cokes and coffee to stay awake at night to prepare for finals, those of us in the law school are being feted with banquets and are going to all of the picture shows," said a well known student in Judge Hildebrand's dunghill yesterday.

"It certainly would be ideal if a student could be registered in Deans Penny's and Parlin's sanctimonium around Thanksgiving time, and then be in Hildy's department during the Santa Claus season," replied the student on the hill.

"I was up all night Monday night," explained one co-ed. "I had two exams Tuesday and I have two more Wednesday. I'll be like Kipling's 'a

LAW DEPARTMENT HAS ANNUAL BANQUET AT CAF TUESDAY NIGHT

LIBRARY BOOKS CLASSIFIED BY DECIMAL SYSTEM

Volumes Plated and Labeled in Order Room Before Cataloguing

LISTED ALPHABETICALLY

Books Arranged on Cards According to Title, Author, and Subject

Cataloguing books at the Library of the University of Texas is done under the Dewey Decimal system of classification. The plan is worked on the decimal basis.

Many new books are sent to the cataloguing department from the Order Department each day, and it is the work of the cataloguers to fix the books in a manner that will enable the public to find them, according to Miss Goff of the cataloguing department.

After certain books have been suggested by professors, they are bought and then go through the Order room where they are plated and labeled; the accession mark is placed on them and the leaves are cut. After this they are ready for the cataloguing. Here they are listed in alphabetical order by author, subject and title.

The books are classified by a short hand method which tells the subject nature of the books. It is desirable that all books relating to the same subject be placed in the stacks together; so there are certain numerals and combinations of numerals which stand for certain subjects.

These numerals are marked on the outside of the books. An example of this number method is found in the following: .73 represents the United States, and 976.4 stands for Texas. Other combinations stand for such things as economics, history and literature.

Before the books are sent to the stack rooms and the cards to the card catalogue, they must be arranged according to author and title, and in most cases according to subject. In the card catalogue room any one may find a book either by looking up the name of the author, the title of the book, or the subject under which the book is listed.

FEW WORTHLESS CHECKS GIVEN EXTENSION STUDIO

"We have had very few worthless checks this year," stated Dan E. McCaskill, manager of the Extension Studio, Tuesday, "and what few we have had have been promptly redeemed in practically every case. Most students are both honest and careful in their business dealings, and those that are careless usually do not plan dishonesty."

Many students want to have their pictures for Christmas, and checks are being accepted in payment for packages.

Patron Saint Makes Annual Appearance and Receives Ovation

Nero fiddled while Rome burned, and the J. A. banqueter in his annual celebration last night at the Cafeteria while the rest of the student body began the term journey into the valley of disaster.

Speeches by representatives from the senior, middle and junior law classes, justices of the appellate courts located in Austin, members of the faculty, and the tapping of new members by the Chancellors constituted the set program. The chief feature, however, was the by-play and exchange of legal wit across the banquet board.

Hildebrand is Toastmaster

Judge I. P. Hildebrand, acting as toastmaster, opened the program with a short talk, liberally sprinkled with the pleasantries which have made the law dean a unique character in the valley. Joyce Cox, representing the "J. A.'s," the first year class, told of the importance of his group as essential to the rest of the school. Will G. Knox, middler, discussed the relation of the rest of the school to the second group.

CHANCELLORS ELECT FOUR

Members Are "Tapped" at Annual Law Banquet Tuesday Night

Cecil Rhodes Chamberlin
Josh Halbert Groce
Robert Bourland Holland
Harry Kendall Welch

Chancellors, the honorary society of the School of Law, announced the election of four members of the Senior Law Class by tapping them at the banquet Tuesday night.

This is the first election from this class and the second election will be held in the spring. No more than fifteen per cent of the class can be selected from any senior class.

The Chancellors is the honorary legal order of the Law School of the University of Texas, whose purpose is to honor and reward by election those law students who by a combination of consistent scholarship, personality, and achievement, have shown themselves most likely to succeed and become a credit to their profession.

The prerequisite for membership is to be in the highest twenty per cent of the class.

Election to Chancellors is considered to be the highest honor in the Law School.

MAVERICK STANDS ALONE IN CHARGES MADE

Revised news stories from San Antonio give entire credit to Maury Maverick of that city for the statement made Monday that "athletics, booze, and society are ruining the University—unless the policies of the institution are changed, the institution will soon be the most demoralized State University in the United States."

The first dispatches credited the statement jointly to Maverick and to John A. Lomax, secretary of the Ex-Students Association, and the city edition of the San Antonio Evening News carried the story in that way, quoting both of the persons named.

In discussing the meeting, President Splawn, who was in attendance, stated Tuesday that Mr. Lomax spoke on the work of the Ex-Students Association, emphasizing the student loan funds.

It would seem therefore that the San Antonio Evening News owes Mr. Lomax an apology for the alleged interview.

The Texan is glad that the ex-student secretary has been relieved of responsibility in this serious matter. It was hard to conceive how an official who loves the University as the secretary does could join in making such a statement in the face of the facts.

And from these revised news-stories we see that the ex-students of San Antonio refused to join Maverick in his charges. So all is well again.

THE PRACTICAL VALUE OF THE UNIVERSITY

Boiler tests recently made by twelve University of Texas students, proving that Texas lignite can be used in specially designed stokers, will probably mean a saving of thousands of dollars to power plants of the State and a further development of the lignite industry, according to a report recently made.

These boys spent many hours in most disagreeable surroundings making these tests, and many more hours in compiling the information they secured.

This is just one little item on the long list of practical accomplishments of the University of Texas, the majority of which go unheralded.

NEW GOVERNOR TO HOLD CONFERENCES WITH EX-STUDENTS

The conference between Governor-elect Ferguson, the Administrative Council of the Ex-Students Association which is said to be contemplated, would be a decided step in the direction of harmony and progress.

The needs of the University could be presented calmly and intelligently at such a conference and an acceptable program worked out.

It is certainly to be hoped that the conference will be held in the near future.

YE STUDIOUS DAUGHTERS OF EVE

We have heard a lot about the question of whether or not co-educational schools should exist, but we have never before seen an orthodox opponent of the system.

Now, however, Elinor Glyn, noted novelist, appears on the scene and takes direct and uncompromising issue with the theory of co-education. And here is her reason:

"Co-educational institutions I do not believe in. Perhaps I am too old fashioned, but I think that men and women should not know too much about one another. When a man and woman are on the same plane with one another there can be no true love. One must look up to the other and there must be a mutual admiration. This is not possible under the present conditions. Women are losing all their charm by attempting to become masculine; both in ideas and actions, and men do not admire this in the opposite sex.

"Under the present marriage laws, there can be no happiness for either party because of this change from the old-fashioned girl to the modern young woman who is so independent, that she will not be hampered by any obligation to a mere man."

Well, well, here seems to be one who has strayed from the path hewn so ruggedly by pioneers of her sex and who would eternally oppose the age-old question of "votes for women."

"... and the rights of none shall be abridged because of race, color or previous condition of servitude, or SEX."???

MILLIONS FOR EDUCATION

The simultaneous announcement of the creation of a $40,000,000 trust fund for education purposes by James B. Duke, millionaire power magnate, and new gifts amounting to $12,500,000 by George Eastman, head of the Eastman Kodak Company, have aroused considerable attention and comment, and deservedly so, among educational circles of the South and East.

It is interesting to analyze these gifts with a view to ascertaining their real value and the type of institutions which will be most benefitted by them. Such an analysis reveals the fact that all but two millions of the twelve and a half million dollar sum will go to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and the University of Rochester. Two Negro colleges of the South, Hampton and Tuskegee institutes, are each the recipient of a million dollar bequest.

While one sees as the possible result of the gifts, a great advancement, particularly in technical education, there is always present that element of commercialization and tendency to laud too highly the material advancement of education through the addition of great new buildings along with the effect of minimizing the other and more human side. This condition already exists in too great a degree in the United States today to allow any perceptible increase. The charge that American higher institutions of learning are little more than huge intellectual factories is too true.

There is much of worth in the two lesser gifts of Mr. Eastman toward the advance of Negro education through the two leaders in this field in the United States. There is probably no school in the country that is doing more for the colored race than the Tuskegee Institute while the Hampton Institute is not far behind. In aiding these two institutions, Mr. Eastman has recognized the fact that only through education can America hope to solve the so-called Negro problem. For this, he should be congratulated.

In view of the fact that Southern education has been and still is appreciably behind that of the North, the establishing of a new institution or the expansion of Trinity College of Durham, North Carolina, under the name of Duke University as the benefactor provides, is a worthy move. Both this and other gifts to the churches and schools of the Southern state should become a great force for its advancement in religion and education.

Yet, no matter how many such trust funds are created or sums given, there is always that ruinous tendency to overemphasize material greatness against which American educators must guard. As they are fully aware of the fact, however, there is every reason to believe that they will be able to direct these great sums of money into the channels of better education.

Theses for B.B.A.

Benefit Profs As Well As Students

Since the time the Department of Business Administration was begun, it has required that all persons applying for the degree of Bachelor of Business Administration should complete a thesis on some business problem before they would be entitled to a degree.

These papers are of benefit, according to Dean Spurgeon Bell, who is head of the department, to the professors as well as to the students. Many of the papers have been used for aid in instruction of the courses.

Students of this department can choose their subjects and write anything which appeals to them the most. Many of them write about subjects which are relative to some business in their home town.

In this way, detailed information is obtained by the faculty of numerous localities in Texas. Students are urged by the faculty to choose a subject for their thesis which is along the line of business which they wish to follow.

Monumental Granite Is in Great Demand

Demand for granite for monumental purposes is constantly increasing and quarrying facilities have never been able to provide an adequate supply, according to G. A. Parkinson, assistant testing engineer of the Engineering Experiment Station of the University.

"Production of stone for building purposes is an industry of slow growth in Texas as labor costs are high, quarries are few, and freight rates are high," said Mr. Parkinson. "Despite these drawbacks, however, there are many instances where Texas' stone has been used for construction. The state capitol, the University of Texas library, the Galveston jetties, and other structures were built from such materials."

Judge C. M. Cureton, chief justice of the supreme court, was first of the visiting speakers. The chief justice was followed by Judge F. L. Hawkins of the court of criminal appeals, Judge Stayton of the commission of appeals and Judge Baugh of the third court of civil appeals, each of them speaking as representative of the higher courts of which they are members.

Law Faculty Speaks

Members of the Law faculty then followed with more talks. Those who spoke were: Col. W. S. Simkins, A. L. Green, C. T. McCormick, and Judge Hildebrand. Each of the speakers emphasized some phase of the life in Law School which has appealed to him most during his work there.

New Chancellors Tapped

Then came the tapping of new members by the Chancellors, honorary scholarship society, the most impressive ceremony of the banquet. Each of the new men was escorted to the Chancellor table and given his place with the old men.

Peregrinus, weirdly formed patron saint of Laws, made his annual appearance and was accorded the usual

Approximately 250 persons were present. In addition to law students the guest list included the names of all members of the appellate courts and of the law faculty.

Betty Compson Will Star at Texas

Betty Compson has outdone herself in "Woman to Woman," the throbbing photodrama, which opened yesterday at the Texas Theater. Those who have seen Miss Compson in the past remember her exquisite acting, but nothing she has ever done can compare with her delineation of Deloryse in this picturization of Michael Morton's successful stage play of the same name.

The leading male role is played by Clive Brook, whose sturdy masculinity is an admirable foil for Miss Compson's dainty girlishness.

Josephine Earle and Marie Ault are most convincing in their characterizations and add much to the reality of the production.

The settings are not only magnificent, but in the best of taste, and Graham Cutts is to be congratulated on his good judgment.

As for the story itself, it is brimming with poignant appeal. The little French girl, Louise Boucher, dances her way into your heart and when she becomes the great artiste, Deloryse, she not only retains but increases her grip upon your affections. All in all, "Woman to Woman" is distinctly worth while and no one who enjoys a really good photoplay can afford to miss it.

"The Narrow Street" Features at Queen

"The Narrow Street," one of the season's "best sellers" from the pen of Edwin Bateman Morris, has been re-created on the screen by Warner Bros., and will play at the Queen Theater today.

Possessing all the qualities of mystery, romance, and humor that made it a "best seller," it is expected that the picture will more than live up to the written word, by translating the whimsical interest of the novel onto the screen.

Dorothy Devore has been chosen to portray Doris, who injects pep into the erstwhile colorless life of Simon. She appears suddenly in his home, out of a bitter storm, and throws herself on his mercy for refuge. This characterization calls for sparkle and snap, and it is expected that Dorothy Devore, with her Christie Comedy experience, will more than fill the bill.

Little Jesse James Coming on Christmas

It is not often that the theatergoers are given the opportunity of witnessing a smart musical comedy presented Austin in the same on tour as it was in New York, however when L. Lawrence Weber's musical comedy "Little Jesse James" comes to the Hancock, Christmas Day local playgoers will see this splendid attraction given in the same elaborate manner that made it the out-standing success during its year's run in the metropolis last season. Mr. Weber, a firm believer in having good music well played has engaged, and carries with the company, a Paul Whiteman Band to play the score and to make the engagement here a memorable one the Band will give a Jazz concert between the acts. There are few music lovers who are not familiar with Harry Archer's pretty score and one of the song hits, "I Love You" is now being sung in thirty-two different languages.

ed at the Majestic last night, brings Pola to the screen in the First American-made production by this greatest of all European directors.

The story is a romantic drama of a small Balkan kingdom. Pola has the role of the Czarina, a woman of many loves; Rod La Rocque is a soldier in her army at the front and Adolphe Menjou plays to perfection the role of court chancellor. Pauline Starke, who completes the featured players, is first lady-in-waiting to the queen, in love with La Rocque, as Alexei.

Pola, too, has developed. As a queen she is superb. La Rocque, Menjou and Miss Starke are all ideally cast. All in all, "Forbidden Paradise" offers entertainment for everyone. It has gripping drama, heart-appeal, genuine humor—a picture that's bound to please.

Coach Littlefield: "I am going to spend my Christmas visiting relatives in the Panhandle on a duck hunt."

Coach Billy Disch: "I'm going to be home washing windows on my new house."

Berry Whitaker: "I expect to be around home this Christmas."

Wiley Glaze: "I am going to West Texas for about a week to pay a visit to my people in Jones county."

FACTORY PLUMBING CAN CONTRIBUTE TO EFFICIENCY

Supplying dependable valves, fittings and steam specialties that exactly satisfy all piping requirements is only one of the ways Crane Co. serves American industry. Crane provides another important means of lowering manufacturing costs in its complete line of factory plumbing fixtures.

In many ways this sanitary equipment can be used to bring up efficiency. Toilet rooms and lavatories of ample capacity, placed close to the "population centers" of the departments they serve, save many wasted minutes. Enough drinking fountains, convenient to machines and benches, increase production by shortening the time taken off by workmen in quenching their thirst. Because Crane plumbing materials stand up under ordinary, careless usage, they perpetuate these savings of time. Their upkeep cost is low, their life much longer than could be expected of fixtures made to sell on price alone.

When you plan plumbing installations, a Crane specialist at the nearest Crane Branch or Sales Office will be glad to help you select the correct type of fixture for each particular requirement. One hundred two Crane branches and offices bring this service within easy reach of every industrial plant in the United States and Canada.

CALLAWAY TO BE 1925 LECTURER

Dr. M. B. Porter Gave First Series of Lectures in 1923

In 1922 the University Research Lecturship, providing an annual series of lectures in the University to be delivered by a member of the University faculty, was established, according to Dr. G. Watts Cunningham.

Dr. M. B. Porter, professor of Pure Mathematics, gave the first series of lectures in March, 1923. Dr. G. W. Cunningham was the University Research lecturer in 1924. Dr. Morgan Callaway Jr., professor of English, will give the lectures in 1925.

Appointed by the Graduate Council as research lecturer in 1923-1924, Dr. G. W. Cunningham, professor in Philosophy, in March 1924 gave a series of lectures discussing the problem of mind. Dr. Cunningham is now engaged in re-writing these lectures to be published in book form by the University. It is hoped, according to Dr. Cunningham, that this will be the first of a series of volumes devoted to the research lectureship.

Dr. Cunningham's latest book, "An Introductory Survey of Problems of Philosophy," was published by Henry Holt and Company and appeared last October. The book, designed for students beginning the study of philosophy, is being introduced as a text-book in various institutions, according to Dr. Cunningham.

son under the eye of Darby. The greatest part of the veterans of the team live in Houston and attractive offers to come to that city have been made. Final plans have not yet been announced, but it is probable that Houstonians will get to see the Farmers in action against some of the local pre-teams.

Darby and Gill Out

Unlike other teams in the conference, the Aggies are not boasting of losses which will cause them trouble this season other than the loss of Gene Darby and King Gill. Bible has a good nucleus to build a basketball five around the five letter men he has in his ranks.

The five who have returned to play for A. & M. again are Captain Washburn, Harry Duckett, Marvin Dealy, Arch Damon, and Mark Wilcox. The five itself would be a formidable opponent for any team as Damon and Wilcox are capable forwards, Duckett a first string center, and Washburn and Dealy first string guards.

However, to bolster up this string of five players, Bible has ten other men who have shown marked ability at some time or other at A. & M. College. Chief among these are Sid Kyle, Norman Dansby, and Gus Krueger, center, guard, and forward respectively who were with the Farmer squad last year. Kyle played quite a while on the team, but not long enough to win a "T."

Five Last Year Frosh

Five men of the fifteen on the A. & M. squad now were called from the Freshman team of last season. Every one of them is showing good basketball ability and may win a berth on the team for himself. The most prominent however of the six are Stanley Baker and Hugh McConaughy. Cy Perkins and F. J. Blount are showing up well in the work and Milton Dansby, the fifth, will get a chance to show his wares after a recuperation from a strenuous football season.

The other two members of the basketball squad are products of the interbattalion basketball fostered by the college. John Broad was chosen as one of the best guards in the circuit last year and Bill Montgomery ran him a close race. They are both showing up well.

Offense Undetermined

The attack which the Farmers will use this season cannot yet be defined, that it will probably be built around the scintillating Captain Tubby Washburn. Cotton Wilcox, who at present is flashing a great speed on the floor may also be included in the plans as he has the same Washburn ability to twist and turn that Washburn has. It is this ability which make these two men, both of them small in stature, of great value to the Farmer team.

Kyle vs. Duckett

Sid Kyle and Harry Duckett will have a battle for the pivot berth. Both are tall and have good judgment and are fast on their feet. Duckett has the advantage of two years of varsity experience over Kyle, but the latter has the jump at center on Duckett. It is highly probable that these two will alternate at the center place.

The question of whether it will be Dealy, Damon, or Baker at the other guard place is now being debated. Damon and Baker are both showing a wonderful style, while Dealy, the logical choice, is fighting hard to retain his place as favorite for the position. Broad and Montgomery are putting up a hard battle for the guard places also, as both of them are guards. Norman Dansby, a football player, has yet to get in basketball condition.

Plenty of Forwards

Wilcox, Perkins, Krueger, and McConaughy are fighting amongst themselves for the forward places with McConaughy and Wilcox in the lead. Perkins and Blount for the last few days have been a bit off form. Milton Dansby, another football man, will be out for a forward place in a few days, though his logical position is guard. It may be that D. X. Bible will shift a few of the men around, to get rid of the wealth of guards and satisfy the dearth of forwards. Damon can ever be shifted to center.

Have Hard Schedule

The Aggies play a rather hard schedule under the new ruling of one game away from home and a return engagement at College Station. The card shows that the first game of the season is at Waco with the Baylor Bears as opponents. From Waco, the Aggies make a trip to Fort Worth to tie into the Horned Frogs of T. C. U. and then back to College. After two games at home, they go on a road trip which lasts for three engagements and then they return to take up a stay of some four engagements. The final date of the season is with Texas University at Austin.

FORMER VARSITY PROF PUBLISHES BULLETIN

Deals with Controversy Between U. S. and Allies on Neutrality from 1914-17

Among the late bulletins published by the University Press is one by Dr. Malbone Watson Graham, Jr., discussing the controversy between the United States and the Allied Governments respecting the neutral rights and commerce during the period of American neutrality, 1914-1917. The discussion is a rather full condensation of Dr. Graham's thesis written on the occasion of his taking his Ph. D. degree.

Dr. Graham took his degree from the University of California in 1921 where he distinguished himself with his thesis. It is the fullest, most detailed, and contains more of the original documents written about, than any ever seen by the interviewed members of the University of Texas Government Department.

The past two years Dr. Graham has been an adjunct professor of Government in the University of Texas. He now holds an adjunct professorship of Political Science in the University of California, southern branch, which position he accepted this past summer.
