Payne Reads At Weekly Public Lecture Today

"To the Ladies" a Play Is the Reader's Subject

Biology Building At 5 o'clock

Dr. L. W. Payne of the English department will read the play, "To the Ladies," by George S. Kaufman and Marc Connelly at the regular weekly English public reading Thursday afternoon at 5 o'clock in the biology laboratory auditorium. According to Dr. Payne, the play is delightful, light and charming comedy centered around a young married couple, the general theme being that most men who succeed in life are married. The play is full of humor and should afford splendid entertainment for the audience.

Brilliant Authors

The authors of the play are two brilliant New York journalists who have written some of the most popular plays in recent years. The companion piece of "To the Ladies" is "Dulcy," written by the same authors but exactly different in theme. Both plays created quite a sensation in New York about five or six years ago. The most recent success of the two dramatists is "The Beggar on Horseback," which has had long runs in the East.

Read in Character

The play will be read somewhat in character and the audience will be able to follow the story as well as if they were looking at the play itself.

From the amount of interest aroused by a recent article in the Longhorn, "Why I Would Not Marry a Co-ed," this reading should bring quite a large audience because it is exactly opposite and in a way an answer to some of the arguments brought out in that article.

Given Weekly

These readings are given every week by the faculty on some subject and bring fresh, stimulating modern literature through some interesting reading to the students of the University. The readings are free to the public and all students, all new students being invited to attend. These readings have been very successful in the past and have proved to be of great educational value to the students, Dr. Payne added.

Graduate Club Elects Hob Gray

Moore Speaks of Social Contacts at Initial Meeting

Graduate club held its first meeting of the year Wednesday night, electing Hob Gray, president. Dean V. I. Moore made a short speech in which he stressed the importance of social contacts in a graduate organization.

The primary purpose of the club, according to Dean Moore, should be the development of social life, of mutual pleasure in what each individual is doing.

The following officers for the year were elected: president, Hob Gray; secretary-treasurer, Dexter King; vice-president, T. P. Walker.

Academic Seniors Elect Theo Weiss

Academic senior class elected the following officers at a meeting Wednesday: president, Theo Weiss; vice-president, Vic Moore; secretary-treasurer, Constance Zirjacks.

A committee, consisting of these three officers, was appointed to arrange for class rings and invitations.

Modest Author Is Reviver of Lost Modesty on Campus

"Modesty will have its way even with the blasé college student," says James Parke, editor of the Longhorn, who has received a story entitled "The Man Who Played Fair," turned in without the author's name.

The following note was sent attached to the story: The Editor: I hope the enclosed story may suit the requirements of the Longhorn. If not, you may drop it in the waste basket. In case you use the story, just manufacture any name you like as that of the author. A Student.

The story is worthy of consideration, says the editor, who would like to discuss it with the author at the Longhorn office in B. Hall.

No story is eligible to be printed without the author's name, according to James Parke.

Former Co-ed Sings In Broadway Show

"Musical America" for October 15 carries a picture of Mary Lubbock, former Girls' Glee club soloist of the University of Texas and frequently heard singer on the campus and in the city, where her teacher, David Griffin, three times presented her in recitals.

Miss Lubbock is one of the singers in Roxy's Theater, New York, the fifteen million dollar enterprise that set a new standard in the movie entertainment world.

Arts, Crafts Club Meets To Hear Reports

Committees Draw Up Unique System of Organization

Insignia Chosen Tonight

The second meeting of the Arts and Crafts club will be held this evening at 7:30 in Education Building 312. Since 60 students were present at the last meeting, despite the fact that there were other conflicting functions on the same evening, it is expected that a large number will be on hand to hear the reports of the committee on constitution and by-laws and on the preparation of the studio on the Little Campus.

By-laws Formulated

The committee on constitution and by-laws met Tuesday and formulated a scheme of organization which includes several unique points, the aim of the scheme being to eliminate any chance of autocracy in the government of the club.

The committee on the preparation of the studio has been investigating the needs of the club room and means of supplying them.

Insignia Chosen

A competition will be announced tonight for a device to be used as the official insignia of the organization, and plans for the division of the membership into groups interested in various kinds of work will be formulated.

Actual work will be commenced in the near future, when great mural panels, blazing batiks, decorative screens and various other products of the arts and crafts will begin to take form in the club's shop.

Little Campus Has Open House

Reception at Dormitory Friday Night Followed By Dance

The Little Campus will hold an open house Friday evening, November 4, from 8 to 10 o'clock. The program consists of a reception, demonstrations, and displays in the economic geology and engineering research and division of extension departments.

Girls from the home economics classes will have charge of the decorating for the event. They will also be the judges for the best and second best appearing rooms of the dormitories, prizes being given.

According to announcements, visitors during the open house will have the opportunity to see the various machines and equipment in operation which are used in the testing of all kinds of building and highway materials. The materials tested include cement, concrete materials, concrete cylinders taken from pavement, samples of stone and crushed stone, road gravels, asphalt, brick, tile, and reinforcing steel.

Economic geology displays on the second floor of the museum building will show fossils and minerals, among which are gold, silver, quicksilver ore, and meteorites.

Sealy Hospital Gets $500,000 Improvements

Improvements costing nearly $500,000 will be made on John Sealy Hospital at the Medical Branch of the University, located at Galveston, according to a newspaper report recently carried by the Galveston Daily News. This is the first of the proposed expansion programs provided for by the gifts of the late John Sealy, Galveston philanthropist, whose entire estate will eventually revert to the medical hospital.

Nurses' Home Enlarged

According to the plans submitted by the architects, improvements will be made on the nurses' home which, when completed, will provide facilities for 140 nurses, and also the enlargement of the dining room and kitchen, and the provision of additional room for patients of moderate means, the erection of a new power plant and laundry, and the rebuilding of the negro hospital with additional rooms.

Dr. Goldwater to Assist

The advice of Dr. S. S. Goldwater, one of the world's foremost authorities on hospitals, has been procured, and Dr. Goldwater will personally direct the expansion program. Dr. Edward F. Randall, Sr., chairman of the building committee of the Sealy foundation, to which is entrusted the disbursement of the estate of the late John Sealy, expressed himself as being satisfied with the building program, as most of the buildings connected with the hospital were in a very dilapidated state.

Baylor Ticket Sales Go Slow

Abundance of Time Before Games Blamed For Delay

Tickets for the Baylor game November 5 and for the Arkansas Aggie game November 11 are selling very slowly, according to Wiley Glaze, business manager of men's athletics. His opinion is that since there is plenty of time before each of these games, students and townspeople are waiting until the last moment to secure their tickets. As yet he has sold about one-half of the west side section of the Stadium. He expects a rush on tickets for the Kansas Aggie game, especially from the people of Austin because of their statement that it is possible to get as large a crowd here as in Dallas.

Tickets for the Thanksgiving game with A. & M. are selling so fast that the only ones left are on the goal line. Perhaps this is because of the general knowledge of the large crowds that are always attracted to this game, and also because of the noted rivalry between the two schools.

Beginning with the Baylor game all those holding student athletic tickets and general admission tickets will occupy the east side of the Stadium, entering gate two on twenty-third street, gate four on Red River street, and the south gate number five.

Those having reserved seats will go into the Stadium by any of the gates but more conveniently by gates six and seven, and occupy the west side. All west side seats are reserved.

Rumor of Cold Wave Denied by Authority

The general alarm of a coming cold spell sent out by the thousands of ducks and geese that flew over Austin early Wednesday morning is not well founded, according to A. R. W. Stoesen, Austin's weather man, who late Wednesday declared that the cold wave that was over the Rocky Mountains had subsided and that it was much warmer than the day before.

At noon Wednesday the temperature was 71 degrees. A drop of 20 degrees is expected, 48 degrees being the minimum. Fair weather is also predicted. The cold weather that Austin will experience is not a real cold wave, but rather what is called "generally cooler."

Hanson Arrives To Aid Work Of Zoology Tests

Genetic Expert Assists in Fly Mutation Experiment

Professor Muller Began Work

Dr. F. B. Hanson, professor of zoology at Washington University, St. Louis, has arrived in Austin to work with Dr. H. J. Muller, associate professor of zoology in the University of Texas, in continuing the latter's genetic experiments on the fruit fly, Drosophila. Dr. Muller's work recently attracted world-wide attention.

Dr. Hanson has been doing research in the field of genetics for some time, attempting as has Dr. Muller to determine whether external stimuli of various sorts are capable of causing mutation. Dr. Muller has already shown that by the use of the x-ray the rate of mutation is increased at least 100 times.

Fruit Fly Used

At the present time Dr. Muller is engaged in extending his work on the original form used, the fruit fly. There appears to be a vast amount of work to be done in studying the effects of the x-ray on mutations, and it is expected that experiments elsewhere will be conducted to verify the results announced by Dr. Muller at the International Conference of Geneticists at Berlin last September.

Following this work on fruit flies with the x-ray, further experimental study, both of plants and animals, will be conducted, it is understood. Of the plants it has been pointed out that cotton has peculiar advantages for experimental purposes, in addition to any possible economic value that might be derived from its study.

Advantages of Cotton

Among the several reasons pointed out for the likelihood that cotton will be used for experimental purposes is that cotton is self-fertilizing, produces a great number of seeds per plant; two generations a year can be forced with proper greenhouse facilities, and the plant is adapted to climatic conditions, in Texas. However, if work on cotton should be undertaken, it has been explained, there is no basis for predicting what the results will be. Most mutations are harmful, and those that are beneficial are generally very minute, experiments show.

Pre-Med Society to Hear Dr. G. Bethel

The principal feature of the pre-med meeting Thursday night will be a talk by Dr. George E. Bethel, University physician. Before he came to Austin Dr. Bethel was a professor in the medical school at Galveston, and his talk promises to be interesting to all pre-medical students.

Grimki Browder, pre-med intramural athletic manager, has asked all pre-meds interested in basketball to be present.

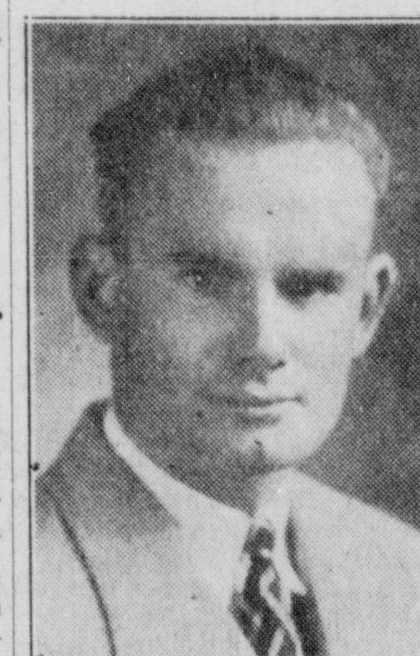

The meeting will begin at 7:15 o'clock in Main Building 172.

First Meet of B.B.A. Council Elects Officers For Session

Executive Council of the School of Business Administration met for the first time of its existence Wednesday afternoon and elected as officers Archie Adams of Jacksonville, president; Richard McMurray of Ennis, vice-president; Evelyn Heath of Austin, secretary-treasurer; Gabe Smith of Gatesville, publicity agent.

The council officers will serve for the entire year and are the officers of the School of Business Administration students. Dean J. Anderson Fitzgerald was chosen as advisor of the council. The council consists of one representative from the senior class, one from Beta Alpha Psi, one from Alpha Kappa Psi, one from Beta Gamma Sigma, one from

Junior Section Open in Cactus As Fee Lowers

Approximately 600 seniors will have their pictures in the Cactus this year, according to a report given out by the Texas Student Publications, Inc. This is an increase of about 30 over last year. Wednesday was the first day for juniors to make studio appointments for their pictures. The fee charged juniors has been reduced 25 per cent, about the same reduction over last year's fee charged seniors. An increase is expected over last year's number of junior pictures, which was about 350.

Powell Leaves Supreme Court

Former Student Retires After Seven Years On Bench

Judge Benjamin H. Powell, a former student of the University has retired from the bench of the supreme court commission of appeals. Judge Powell held this office for a period of seven years.

During the administration of Governor W. P. Hobby, Judge Powell received his first appointment, and due to his excellent work he was reappointed by governors Neff, Ferguson, and Moody. Once during his term of office he was offered by Governor Neff the appointment of attorney general of Texas, which he declined due to his interest in judicial affairs.

It is probable that Judge Powell will return to his home here in Austin and resume his practice of law. He was formerly a member of the firm of Dean, Humphrey and Powell of Huntsville, associated with Senator W. L. Dean, author of the state prohibition law.

Swordsmen Meet For Organizing

University Fencers Are Called to B. Hall Monday at 5

University men interested in fencing have been called together for a meeting to be held in B. Hall 122 next Monday afternoon at 5 o'clock, according to official announcement made yesterday.

"Plain and fancy wielders of the elongated hat pin," the announcer stated, "will meet with other men on the campus who have not had any fencing to discuss plans for organization of classes in the University physical training department.

Applications from a dozen or more men have been received already, and instruction to at least 20 men will likely be arranged so that credit can be given in the physical training classes, it was explained.

Fencing was a regular course in the physical training department last year, but was not reinstated this year because a departmental instructor was not available, it is understood.

Aggie-S.M.U. Game Draws Many Studes

Large numbers of University students are planning to go to Aggie and Saturday to see the game between A. & M. and S. M. U., according to campus reports. So far as is known, no special trains will be run from Austin on that date, although they will be run from many points in Texas. The trip will chiefly be made overland.

The game is attracting quite a bit of attention throughout the state, for the winner of that game may be conference champion, and fans are expecting a great fight.

Definite Offer Expected After Meeting Monday

The next move to locate the 1928 Texas-Vandy football game will be made by the Vanderbilt athletic council in session next Monday night, according to Frank L. Bobbitt, University law professor and member of the Athletic council, where he presented propositions from the University council regarding the proposed game.

Answer Tuesday

Bobbitt declined to make a public statement as to the nature of the propositions he presented to the Vanderbilt executive council, which body will offer the proposals to the Vanderbilt athletic heads next Monday.

"They promised me," Bobbitt said, "that they would give us a definite decision on the matter immediately following their meeting Monday night. We ought to know Tuesday anyhow."

It is very probable that the University Athletic council will not meet until after word has been received from the Vanderbilt authorities, as Bobbitt stated last night that nothing definite will be known until after the Vanderbilt council acts on the Texas proposals.

Cagemen Hold First Workout

Five Regulars Will Report For Practice Under Coach Walker

Varsity basketball gets its first send-off of the season at a meeting of prospective members of the basketball squad in Garrison Hall 1 tonight at 7:30 o'clock, according to a call issued Wednesday by Coach Fred Walker.

Five regular squad men from last year, including Captain Johnnie Estes, will be back for this season, Coach Walker said. In addition to Captain Estes, there are Joe King, Red Gray, Holly Brock, and Jake Looney.

Leo Baldwin, letter man of two years ago, who did not play last year on account of injuries, will also be among the first string men to report for the 1927-28 season, Coach Walker added. Among the other good prospects are Big 'Un Rose, Nona Rees, and Frank Cheatum.

Latent Talent Is Given Chance for Campus Expansion

Plans to augment the strength of The Texan staff by enrolling students who have talent but who have not exercised their native ability by work on the campus publications will be presented at a meeting of students interested in writing in Garrison Hall auditorium Friday afternoon at 5 o'clock.

"Every organization on the campus," declared Truman O'Quinn, editor-in-chief of The Texan, "can boast of two or three members who write well, but who have not been given the proper encouragement to express themselves or exercise their talents in writing. Our plan is to enlist these people as members of The Texan staff, where they can be given an opportunity to develop their latent talents."

Writers interested in editorial work, features, sports, or straight news reporting on daily newspapers with serious intentions toward making journalism a life's work or merely interested in writing for the sake of writing have been extended invitations to attend the meeting Friday.

There Shall Be Rejoicing

For the first time in a long and painful career of being bushwhacked by the banditti of the provincial press, The Texan today finds itself forced into agreeing with certain remarks made by an editorial writer for the Austin Statesman. Preparing another ambush yesterday for the University athletic council, with the design of forcing these gentlemen to bring certain football games to this city, that writer so far forgot himself as to make a very damaging admission. He said:

"The Statesman does not seek a controversy with The Texan. It is not concerned in bringing to bear personal criticism on I. Theo Belmont, who has ably conducted the business of his department. Nor does it presume to dictate a policy which should guide the decision of the athletic council."

The Texan hereby congratulates the Statesman for its manly and honorable apology. For the first time in some years, that journal has brushed the mote from its eye, spat on its hands, and frankly admitted that what the University of Texas decides to do, is none of the Statesman's business. It may seem to the less forgiving among us that the paper in question has been a long time in confessing its lapses from grace; but there shall be more rejoicing in Heaven over one sinner that was lost and is returned than over the ninety and nine that went not astray.

The Statesman has confessed to its errors. It professes a sincere desire to walk rightly hereafter. All that remains to be done is for some charitable friend to point out the paths of righteousness and guide the faltering steps of the penitent along them. We take an ineffable pleasure in presenting to the Statesman the following road-map to Salvation:

The Trotzkys of the local press must now forswear their communistic propaganda and concede that the athletic council has a right to such monies as it earns, so long as it earns them honestly. By corollary, if it can earn more money in Dallas than in Austin, it not only may but should play football in Dallas occasionally.

In passing, the Statesman should recognize L. Theo Belmont as rather the employe, than the emperor, of the University, and should cease foisting upon him the dubious glories of Czardom.

Finally, the Statesman should blow the dust off its arithmetic, turn over the yellowing pages and perform a few simple calculations. It will then learn that as Austin gave more to the Stadium than any other city, the University has given more to Austin than to any other city—nay, ten times more. Certain cities, indeed, gave much to the Stadium and have received nothing in return—as witness Fort Worth, Houston, El Paso, Wichita Falls, and Pflugerville.

The Auxiliary Conscience

Mention was made in Tuesday's Texan of the fact that the grind section of the Cactus has been under way for some time, and that the grind editor and his henchmen are busily collecting the material necessary to properly air certain skeletons supposedly safely closeted. The editor of this section holds an office that is regarded with envy the campus over. In the imaginative mind of the student body he occupies a position somewhere between the Recording Angel and the yellowest of yellow journalists. As the bugbear of the University, the Gog and Magog of the forty acres, his vitriolic pen is regarded uneasily by many; and at the same time his attention is courted with temerity by not a few. The purpose of the latter seems to be the performance of feats just bad enough to be smart, and spectacular enough to be distinctive.

On the whole, however, although the grind section may not exert a particularly disciplinary influence on the conduct of the students, nevertheless it is a great stimulus to the exercise of discretion on the part of the wayward. The general effect is salutary, and purges the campus of much unofficial scandalmongering whose authenticity might be questioned.

What wonder, then, that drama and mystery attach themselves to the great auxiliary conscience of the campus? Knowledge and power commanded the respect of the ancients. They should do the same today. When the ax is about to fall, foolish are they who put out their neck.

Chaos in Education

"Our college students are more interested in the labels on their intellectual luggage than in what it contains," is a general accusation levelled at American undergraduates by Professor Henry W. Holmes, dean of the Harvard Graduate School of Education. In an article which he entitles "Chaos or Cosmos in American Education," this noted educational authority reviews the whole question of schools and colleges and their interrelations, and launches an attack on the system of education in his country.

The chaotic picture which he draws does not necessarily apply to this side of the line, but as there are many points of similarity between the educational systems in the two countries, much good may be derived from a review of Professor Holmes' criticism.

Standardization and the stress laid upon quantity rather than quality are shown to be at the roots of the unsatisfactory state of affairs in the United States. Professor Holmes sees only a mad scramble to push the student through school until he can satisfy college entrance requirements; then a further rush through college in the shortest possible time, and at the conclusion of a certain number of years the student is tagged with whatever degree he has been working for and sent out into the world as another educated American.

One remedy which the writer suggests for this state of affairs is that the schools should set up a greater variety of curricula and see that they lead on to definite ends, many of them vocational. Closer relations must be established between school and college; the school must reach a state where its word may be accepted by the college; and the college must, in its turn, learn to place more reliance on the primary educational unit.

Professor Holmes' idea is that if a student intends to take honors in a certain course at college, it would be greatly to his advantage to specialize in that subject during his later years at school. Then if this method were followed the student would have a fairly thorough knowledge of his own particular subject when his courses at college have been completed.

Professor Holmes is conscious of the difficulties which would arise from over-specialization, but he argues that some radical change in the present system should be made and must be made.—McGill (Canada) Daily.

YESTERDAY

Yesterday, I met my friend Toby Toddles. "You have been away," I said, "It is true," he replied, "there have lately been manifestations of Texas spirit. It is my constitutional right to escape them if I can."

"I had thought you more loyal." "It is not a question of loyalty. It is a matter of self-preservation. If I had stayed here I would have laughed myself to death; hence I left."

"You have a very low opinion of Texas spirit."

"It is my belief that there is not such a thing; that there never was; that there never will be. And the Texas student body with its solicitous care of this emaciated old relic reminds me very strongly of an unlucky heroine I once read of. The lady was married and burdened with a husband whom she supported cheerfully. He was a good husband in his way; as good, I suppose, as any other if he had not been a lunatic and in love with another woman. A good husband, perhaps, but a little impractical."

"Well?" "Well, this Texas spirit is about in the husband's class."

"Have you heard of this nefarious scheme to crystallize student opinion?" asked Toby.

"No, I haven't yet."

"It seems that Gene German and some other parties around here are worried about student opinion; so they have determined to crystallize it."

"What are they to crystallize it on?"

"I don't know. It is a little uncertain, but it is going to be crystallized. Don't you worry about that. There is Mr. German and a committee, and that is enough to crystallize anything. In fact, I see only one obstacle in their path."

"What is that?" "So far as I know, there isn't any student opinion to crystallize."

"I see by the papers that the fraternities have begun to apply the rules of citizenship to University life," remarked Toby.

"How is that?"

"They are trying to have their houses made free of city taxation. I am glad to see them do this. It shows that the brothers are growing up, that they are following the traditions of their family life. But I think they are still a bit innocent."

"Why so?"

"First, they are to present their petition to the council as any ordinary applicant would do, except, of course, the submission of the petition to a select jury of law students for their approval. I don't think the average man would do this. And then—"

"What then?"

"Then if the council refuses them, they have threatened to educate the people of Austin."

"It is not impossible."

"They are to educate the people of Austin to the point where they will compel the council to do as the fraternities originally wished. That is, side with students of Texas University."

"Well?"

"It is an unprofitable task. The inhabitants of this city are beasts of prey, and the students are their meat. Off us they make their living, or a good part of it; and I say that no one, and I go so far as to include even the brothers of this dear University, can reform such a gang."

And I think so too.

Textile Expert Is Appointed

Appointment of Grossman
Is Confirmed by Dr.
Benedict

Appointment of C. G. R. Grossman of Walpole, Massachusetts, as industrial engineer of the Bureau of Business Research of the University has been approved by Dr. H. Y. Benedict, president of the University, according to Dr. A. B. Cox, director of the Bureau. Mr. Grossman is expected to arrive in Austin within the next several weeks to begin his new duties.

Mr. Grossman's connection with the Bureau is for the purpose of making a study of textile manufacturing in Texas. He comes to the University with an exceptional record of work in connection with textile mills in the northeastern and eastern states. He has studied in Zurich, Switzerland, and in the Harvard School of Business, taking degrees from both places. Since that time he has had five years' of practical experience in New England states and particularly in New York. He has been connected with the branch of the Kendall Mills in Walpole, Massachusetts, most recently. Before coming to Austin, Mr. Grossman has been requested by Dr. Cox to make a brief survey of the textile industry in the states with which he is familiar.

JOHNNIE MACK BROWN in THE FAIR CO-ED

The Great Mail Robbery

An excellent melodrama! There are thrills aplenty caused by the operations of bandits engaged in robbing mail trains. The battle between the outlaws, and U. S. marines, in which aeroplanes, tear-gas bombs, and machine guns are brought into play, is one of the most thrilling melodramatic sights seen in pictures for many a moon. It is strong in suspense as well as thrills. It is also original.

Few spectators will suspect the identity of the bandit-leader in the early stages of the picture, as he first appears to be an honest, good-natured old fellow, with a lovable wife, and one of the biggest surprises is when these two are shown in their true colors. The spectators are kept guessing as to the hero's true character until he turns on the bandits during the attack on the train. The dynamiting of the train and subsequent hold-up is thrilling in the extreme and remarkably well staged, but the supreme thrill comes in the final battle between the outlaws and marines, with the aeroplanes taking part; it is a whirl of excitement.

Lee Shumway, as the hero, and Theodore Von Eltz, as the marine captain, do fine work. Jeanne Morgan is an appealing heroine, and Frank Nelson scores a comedy hit as the roughneck marine sergeant disguised as a hobo, who saves the sheriff's life at a critical moment.

Dewitt Jennings' characterization of the bandit-leader is excellent. Cora Williams is good as his wife, and Nelson McDowell fills the part of the sheriff satisfactorily. The story and scenario are by Pete Milne. The picture has been directed skillfully by George B. Seitz. "The Great Mail Robbery" is presented at the Queen Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

The Fair Co-ed

One way to decide which college to go to is to throw a book in the air at random and see whom it hits. If he is good-looking, and goes to college, why not become a co-ed in the college HE attends. That's what Marion Davies does and whom her book hits decides for her.

Marion Davies in the title role of "The Fair Co-ed," playing at the Majestic the rest of the week, has an opportunity to display her skill as a basket ball player. To see her making basket after basket with adroitness, reveals the star in the new light of an athlete.

The exterior college scenes were actually taken at Pomona College, Southern California and to make them more effective, various California colleges were called upon to furnish students and ideas. The interior scenes of the large, and beautiful gymnasium—especially built for this picture, will be the object of deep sighs from students who see this attraction.

Johnny Mack Brown who has the male lead in "The Fair Co-ed" lends color to the film. He will be recognized by many as the former Alabama star half-back.

—J. D.

Old Ironsides

"Ironsides" sails into port at the Hancock this week under the captaincy of James Cruze of Covered Wagon fame. It is an epic that is more than worthy of the title.

This picture has something that all other of the big pictures have missed, namely, a certain nobility of character coupled with greatness of theme. It is more spectacular than "The Big Parade," more restrained than "What Price Glory," and more important in theme than "Beau Geste." In short, it is the greatest yet.

The production is handled with an astounding wealth of detail. The photography is considerably clearer than is expected in sea pictures. Camera shots from above in the midst of the sails, from angles off the ships, and from below, create an illusion of immense size that has never been equalled on the screen. It serves to make the deck of the boat important by emphasizing it from all sides. The person who sees the show will have all the sensations of life on board a sailing vessel.

The stars are well cast. Esther Ralston has little to do but look her best, and she does that. Charles Farrell looks the part of the country boy gone off to sea. He plays his part with restraint and departs from the usual manner of a hero as much as he departs from the usual beauty of a hero.

While "Old Ironsides" might have been ruined by sentimentality and flag-waving, this is kept at a minimum and the entire picture shows a sane and patriotic rendering of a powerful and beautiful moving picture. The story is ingenious and worthy of presentation in such a powerful setting.

Sloan - Caldwell Match Is Feature of Day's Play

Opening Round Doubles Starts This Afternoon

Seeded Stars Come Through With Easy Wins in Varsity Tourney

John Barry Caldwell, the diminutive little Austin player, again figured in the feature match of the day in the all-University tennis tournament yesterday afternoon. Matched with an opponent that is recognized as his superior, he fought with a stubborn will to the last. Charlie Sloan, a star from the freshman squad, finally won after the courts were in darkness, 6-2, 6-3. The score does not indicate the closeness of the game, as every point was closely contested.

Karl Kamrath, an Austin high school player, gave Jimmie Quick a tough fight, Quick winning 6-2, 6-2. This was one of the prettiest contests played so far in the tournament.

Bell Has Easy Time

Bell had an easy time, and he lost through his match with Piggy Minchen to win 6-1, 6-1. Allison defeated the little Austin high player, one Cotton Brally, 6-0, 6-0.

All third round singles matches will be played today and the first round of the doubles will be started.

Players seeded for the tournament, with the first four in order of their ranking, are Allison, Bell, Quick, L. Ferguson, Fitch, H. Dunlap, Barnes, LaCoste, Sloan, A. Key, and H. Key.

First Round

Complete first round results are as follows: Sloan defeated McKnight, 6-1, 6-1; Caldwell defeated G. Seay, 2-6, 7-5, 7-5; Quick defeated H. B. Moore, 6-1, 6-1; Kamrath won from Herndon by default; Dunlap defeated Edwards, 6-1, 6-4; Harris defeated Willis by default; A. Key defeated McNair, 6-1, 6-3; Cunningham defeated S. Ferguson, 6-2, 6-2; Bell won from Stiles by default; Laurent was defeated by Minchen, 6-4, 7-5; Barnes defeated Cann, 6-0, 6-1; Meroney defeated Harvey, 6-2, 6-2; Penick defeated J. E. Seay by default; Ferguson won from Orgion by default; Love defeated Grubbs, 6-1, 6-3; and Taylor defeated Ammons, 6-2, 4-6, 6-4.

Second Round

Results of the second round matches played thus far are as follows: Sloan defeated Caldwell, 6-2, 6-3; Quick defeated Kamrath, 6-2, 6-2; Dunlap won from Harris by default; A. Key defeated Cunningham, 8-6, 6-4; Bell defeated Minchen, 6-1, 6-1; Barnes defeated Meroney, 6-1, 6-1; LaCoste defeated Caswell, 6-4, 6-4; Key defeated Wells, 6-3, 6-3; Harrison was defeated by Ehman, 6-8, 6-4, 6-3.

Phi Mu Alpha Plans For Public Recital

Phi Mu Alpha held its regular meeting Tuesday night. Ralph Leo made a short talk followed by several musical numbers by members of the fraternity. A feature of the meeting was talk by "Red" Sheppard on the clarinet.

Arrangements were made for the first public recital to be sponsored by the club. The fraternity will present Ralph Leo in public recital at an early date. The proceeds from the recital will go into the building fund of the fraternity.

Frosh Prepare For Terrill Tilt

Faulkner Brings Well-Balanced Aggregation To Meet Slimes

A week of intensive training on the part of the University freshmen will culminate tomorrow with their clash with Terrill Military School of Dallas. Prospects for a victory for the budding Longhorns are far from bright.

The visiting team is generally conceded to be one of the best academy teams in the state, if not in the entire Southwest. They have made an excellent record this season, not having been defeated by a single school of their own rank. North Texas Agricultural College found it extremely difficult to push the ball over their line for the lone touchdown that gave them their 6 to 0 win. In their clash with the S. M. U. freshmen a few weeks ago, the young Ponies, who are supposed to have some very promising material, were unable to score at all, and they were held to a scoreless tie.

Slimes Work

Shorty Alderson has been putting his men through signal practice this week in an effort to counteract their weakest point. It has been hard for the freshmen to get organized into a smoothly working machine this year on account of the size of the squad. He has not yet announced his lineup, but he will have a good deal of room for selection when he does.

Indications are that the Terrill players will have some real opposition, however, for the freshmen have a number of men that can compare in size and weight with any of them. Their real strength, however, remains more or less of an unknown quantity.

Terrill Hot

Terrill has some of the best high school players in the state and Oklahoma as well. They so outclassed and outplayed Allen Academy last week that they were able to put over a 14-0 win over one of the strongest academy teams in the state.

Outstanding among Coach Faulkner's men is the big center, Bakes, from Beaumont, who will weigh in the neighborhood of 200 pounds and who is recognized to have some real football ability along with his weight.

This is the second consecutive season that the Tigers have won the state championship in their class. Hardesty's brilliant playing in the backfield is without doubt one of the several reasons for their success.

Texas Exes Join Geology Faculty

Two appointments have recently been made to the faculty in the department of geology of the University, according to information from the office of President H. Y. Benedict. One of these is the appointment of Miss Dorothy Lee Yates of Rosenberg as student assistant and the other is the appointment of S. O. Burford of Lubbock as instructor in geology for the coming year.

Both Miss Yates and Burford are graduates of the University and are also continuing to do graduate work in the University. Miss Yates received her bachelor

Texas Harriers Meet Farmers

Seven Men Make Trip To College Station for Cross-Country Race

Elimination contests were held Tuesday afternoon for both the Varsity and freshman cross-country squads. The seven Varsity men who finished first will make the trip to College Station tomorrow where they will meet the Aggie harriers Saturday afternoon.

Arrangements have been made to have the meet run off so as to end on Kyle Field between halves of the S.M.U.-A. & M. game.

Third Contest

This will be the third contest that Texas harriers have engaged in this year, the first having been lost to the Rice Owls and the second having been won from the S. M. U. Mustangs. Texas has a fairly good team this year, and although the possibility of winning a conference championship is lessened by the fact that Rice and the Aggies are both unusually strong this year, it is likely that they will make a good showing.

Conference honors will be determined in Dallas two weeks from Saturday.

There is also a possibility of a freshman meet this year with Schreiner Institute when the first-year football men go to Kerrville for their game.

Seven Leave

Seven Varsity men will make the trip to College Station, including Captain Harvey Blanton, Roper, Caldwell, Goode, Benowitz, Vestal, and Guffin.

Prospects among the freshmen are unusually good for a strong cross-country team next year, according to Coach Roy McLean. The ten men who finished first in the freshman tryouts Tuesday are listed in the order in which they came in: White, Schmedley, Levy, Bowen, McNatt, Wiggins, Gulleth, Cate, Kelsey, and Cole.

of arts degree this past year and Burford returned after Christmas of last year from several months in Mexico to complete work for his bachelor's degree.

Burford has worked for two years in West Texas doing oil geology for an oil concern. He was employed for about six months by one of the leading oil companies located in Coahuila, Mexico, as field geologist and in charge of a geological party which mapped a considerable stretch of land for the company.

TURTLE CLUB

Turtle and Turtle clubs met Wednesday night at the Y. M. C. A. They will continue to practice dives in the larger pool; strokes will be practiced after they have moved their meeting place to the Woman's Building pool. Turtle club elected the following officers at the last meeting: president, Kate Belle Lacy; secretary and treasurer, Glade Sylve.

Longhorns Lose Backfield Stars

Baldwin, Hughes and Rose Will Be Out of Baylor Game With Injuries

Texas will likely enter the Baylor game Saturday minus the services of Big 'Un Rose, Leo Baldwin and Tommie Hughes. These are three of the best backs in the Southwest, and their loss will greatly hinder the chances of Texas for a big victory Saturday.

As a result of these injuries Littlefield will be forced to start a makeshift backfield against the Bears when they come to Austin. Baldwin was told to stay away from practice to see if his old ankle injury wouldn't come around. Tommie Hughes and Big 'Un Rose are still suffering from injuries received several weeks ago.

With these men out, Littlefield will probably start Joe King at quarter, Eddy Beular and Johnnie Estes at halves and Jimmie Boyles at full. The loss of these three men will cut the Texas offensive power almost in half, as Baldwin, Rose and Hughes were the big guns in the backfield, and between them most of Texas' gains were made.

The active chapter of Phi Mu entertained its pledges with an informal Hallowe'en party at the house Monday night.
