

Ballot in Official Form Determined This Afternoon

Drawing For Places Held In Assembly Room, Main Building

West Withdraws

Bubella, Parker, and Orlick Enter Editor Races; Total at 46

Candidates will prepare for their first tense moment during the election campaign this afternoon at 2 o'clock, at which time the drawing for places on the official ballot will take place in the assembly room on the second floor of Main Building, Zula Williams, secretary of the Students' Association, announced Friday.

Each candidate or his representative should be present at the drawing. The names will be listed and placed in a hat on individual pieces of paper, and then the names placed on the official ballot as they are drawn from the hat.

The first name to be drawn out will be listed first under the race for which he or she is running. If the next name is in the same race, that candidate will be placed second in that race, but if in a different race it will be placed first on the ballot in that race.

1 o'clock Deadline
Any candidate who files his petition today may hand in his campaign platform to run in the Texas Saturday at 2 o'clock in the Main Building at the assembly room at the time of the drawing. All candidates' platforms will appear in a special political supplement of Sunday's Texan.

Forty-six candidates have filed petitions for the nineteen campus offices. No petition will be accepted after 1 o'clock today, Miss Williams said.

Three candidates have filed their petitions since the ballot was last run in the Texan. Raymond West has withdrawn from the Texan associate editor's race. Adeline Bubella and Adone Parker filed petitions for Texan as (Continued on Page Three)

Baylor Selects Its Sweetheart

Six Schools Represented At Round-Up

Of the six schools asked to send a representative to the Round-Up and celebration of the Fiftieth anniversary of the University, only one has chosen a representative, Joe Riley, chairman of the sweethearts invitation committee of the 1933 Round-Up, said Friday.

Frances Sanderson of Trinity has been chosen by Baylor University as its representative. Miss Sanderson has also been selected to occupy the first page of the beauty section of the 1933 Round-Up yearbook of Baylor University.

Other schools of the Southwest Conference, all of whom are to be represented, have written that they have not yet decided upon a representative.

The sweethearts of the various schools will be presented at the Round-Up revue and ball April 28 along with the sweetheart of the University.

around the perip

with the buzzard

Can it be that MARGARET WILLIAMSON burned her hand on purpose so that she would not have to write them?

Found—a girl who doesn't want to write the buzzard, and a "honey" at that—CARRINGTON "PUNK" FLYNN.

BILL SMITH and FAY MERGENTHAL, beware! The buzzard has an eye on you. ALICE RHEA has a pleasing personality, boys, and her place at the Germans is in the southwest corner.

Won't someone please bring HELEN JOHNSON a pillow at her noon education class; she doesn't sleep well without one.

VELMA HAMPE says the way to keep one is to give him a kiss on parting. DEMOY PAULK hasn't shown you his gold basketball, has he? Well, he has one. Lost, strayed, or stolen, "RED" SHEPPARD'S girl.

VALISHA PATRICIA MARIE RIHA has a rather long name but a sweet smile.

Spring! Faculty Turns Athletic

The roll of the bottle pool players will be called Saturday, March 25 at 8 o'clock, for the second semester tournament of the Faculty Club, and all those who are physically able to lift a cue should be there; the cues weigh from 15 to 22 ounces, Dr. Griffith, secretary, announced for the benefit of the new members.

The list of the "sharks" are given as follows: H. Y. Benedict, T. U. Taylor, C. D. Simmons, G. J. Stephens, Max Fichtenbaum, C. L. Skelly. In addition, there are many lesser lights who show great promise.

Group Plans For Carrying Out Of Round-Up Theme

Activities to Be in Accord With Semi-Centennial Celebration

The committee on organization and group activities for the Round-Up decided that all dormitories, fraternities, and rooming houses should as far as possible, tie in their Round-Up decorations this year with the general theme of the semi-centennial celebration, "The History of the University Through the Past Fifty Years."

The committee met Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the Ex-Students' Association building. The co-chairmen of the committee are Dause Bibby and Zula Williams. Meeting with the committee was S. E. Gideon, chairman of the decorations committee, and Read Granberry and J. A. McCurdy, executive chairman and secretary of the Round-Up.

Study Old Yearbooks
The committee set itself the initial task of going through with care every volume of the Cactus since it was first issued in 1894 in order to select events and incidents and personages about which the historical decorative scheme might revolve. They also will choose subjects which lend themselves to scenic effects and decorations.

As soon as the committee finishes this investigation it will contact each organization planning to decorate and will ask that organization if it prefers some event in its own history as its scheme and if that particular organization has no preference then the committee will make suggestions, and Mr. Gideon's group will undertake to direct the plan of decoration, in order to correlate the whole decorative scheme among the organizations.

The emphasis will be placed as far as possible on the human interest incidents in student life through the years.

Professors Give Informal Dinner

Dodge Will Speak Before Group on Education

The University of Texas chapter of the American Association of University Professors will have a meeting and an informal dinner at Faculty Club Monday, April 3, David Lee Clark, secretary of the University chapter, said Friday.

Professor H. L. Dodge of the University of Oklahoma, field director of the association's committee investigating the essential factors in effective college teaching, will make a report on the findings of the committee.

Mr. Dodge will discuss the following problems: how recognition of good teaching can be increased; the place of research in the college professor's program; the effect of comprehensive examinations on college teaching; and what values should be attached to such methods of instruction as the tutorial system, the conference plan, and the honors course.

Methodists to Hear Georgetown Pastor

The Rev. Dr. Edmund Hiensohn, pastor of the First Methodist Church of Georgetown, will deliver the morning sermon at the University Methodist Church of Austin Sunday morning. The Rev. L. U. Spellmann, pastor of the University Methodist Church, will speak at the Sunday morning service of the First Methodist Church of Georgetown, Allan G. Roe, announced Saturday.

Dr. Hiensohn is well-known in Austin, having spoken here a number of times.

Legislators Plan Quick Passage Of Major Money Bills

Sub-committee to Discuss Proposed Budgets With Officials

Convene Monday

Lump Sum Appropriations Planned for State Schools

With both houses in adjournment over the week-end, plans were being made to expedite the passage of the three remaining general appropriation bills through both branches of the Legislature, a free conference committee, and to the Governor in order to assure sine die adjournment by the end of the 120-day session.

Monday afternoon, a sub-committee of the Senate finance committee is scheduled to draft an appropriation bill, with the aid of an advisory committee from the State-supported colleges.

Senator H. Grady Woodruff of Decatur is chairman of the sub-committee. Other members are Senators John S. Redditt of Nacogdoches, and Arthur P. Duggan. At the same time the committee will confer with the colleges regarding the itemization of proposed budgets, which is required in the plan for lump sum appropriations. Educational institutions are scheduled to be represented by Dr. H. Y. Benedict, president of the University, Dr. T. O. Walton, president of the Agricultural and Mechanical College, Dr. Bradford Knapp, president of Texas Technological College, Dr. L. H. Hubbard, president of College of Industrial Arts, and Dr. C. E. Evans, president of the Southwest Texas State Teachers' College at San Marcos, for all State teachers' colleges.

Eleemosynary Bill Next
Senator T. J. Holbrook, chairman of the finance committee, said Friday that he will exert his best effort to have the Senate pass finally next week the eleemosynary and departmental bills. The House is now at work on the departmental bill, and the election (Continued on Page Three)

Dolley Analyzes Financial Crisis

Correction Made of Story Misinterpreting Facts

In the news story published in The Daily Texan yesterday concerning Dr. J. C. Dolley's analysis of the present financial situation, the writer erred in interpreting Dr. Dolley's statements. In order to present an exact report of the analysis, the Texan is publishing below the original statements which were condensed in the last three paragraphs of the news story.

"At the height of the panic, there was a widespread feeling that the United States would be forced off the gold standard indefinitely and that an immediate price inflation was in prospect. At the time of this writing, that fear has been definitely dissipated. With the present restrictions forbidding commercial banks to pay out gold and gold certificates the country may be said to have adopted a modified gold standard. This latter standard permits the export of gold to meet legitimate business requirements and therefore holds the foreign exchange rates just as definitely within the gold points as before the banking holiday. Accordingly, no substantial depreciation of the dollar in terms of foreign currencies is possible. Indeed, since the balance of international payments continues to be definitely in favor of the United States, there is every prospect that the dollar will shortly move to a premium and (Continued on Page Three)

Cox Seeks Material For Round-Up Issue

A cover design is needed for the Round-Up number of the Longhorn-Ranger, Jackson Cox, editor, said Friday.

Other material needed for this issue includes cartoons, feature stories, short humor, and short fiction with an atmosphere of the old West. Photographs of the campus as it used to be years ago also are wanted.

The deadline for art work is March 31 and for written contributions April 4. Cox will be in his office at 131 B. Hall every afternoon next week and will consider any contributions offered.

Association Head and Star Pupil

Ellwood Griscom, left, chairman of the department of public speaking, was elected president of the Missouri Valley Oratorical Association Thursday

Oratory Group Elects Griscom New President

Villareal Wins First Place In Missouri Valley Contest

Ellwood Griscom, chairman of the department of public speaking, was elected president of the Missouri Valley Oratorical Association for the coming year at a meeting of the association held in Columbia, Mo., Thursday. At the same meeting it was decided that the contest, which is held yearly, will be held in Austin next year. Mr. Griscom accompanied Jesse Villarreal to Columbia, where Villarreal represented the University in the contest. Villarreal's oration, "The Unfortunate Generation," won first place. Jay Deiss, student of the University, won third place in this contest last year.

Schools which participated in the contest, and which will probably be represented in Austin next March, include the University of Kansas, Kansas State, Washington University, University of St. Louis, University of Missouri, University of South Dakota, University of Arkansas, University of Oklahoma, University of Colorado, and The University of Texas.

Debate Tournament Here
At the same time that this contest is held in Austin next year, Delta Sigma Rho, national debating fraternity, will hold a debate tournament here. Members of Delta Sigma Rho come from most of the schools belonging to the Missouri Valley Oratorical Association, and participants in the debate tournament and the oratorical contest will come at the same time, Thomas Rousse, adjunct professor of public speaking, said Friday.

Mr. Rousse recently accompanied Frank Knapp and Spurgeon Bell to Iowa City, Iowa, where they won third place in the Delta Sigma Rho debate tournament for 1933. Mr. Griscom will be in charge of arrangements for both tournaments, Mr. Rousse said.

Librarian to Give Public Lecture

Castaneda Will Describe University Origin

Dr. Carlos E. Castaneda, Latin-American librarian, will speak on "The Beginning of University Life in America" in Garrison Hall auditorium, Wednesday, March 29, at 5 o'clock. This lecture is one of the series being sponsored by the public lectures committee.

Dr. Castaneda will give the origin of the University of Mexico, the oldest University in America, showing the forces that brought it into being, the details of the organization of the institution, such as the first courses offered, the character of the teaching staff, the way in which the students lived, and will compare its beginning with the beginning of universities in the United States.

Dr. Castaneda is making a life study of the history of North America. In 1924 he published a study on the early teaching of modern languages in American colleges from 1779 to 1800. He is the author of "The Oldest University in America," which was published in three different editions. He has also written numerous articles on the early teaching of mathematics, astrology, and astronomy.

at Columbia, Mo. Jesse Villarreal, right, representative of the University in the oratorical contest, won first place with his oration, "The Unfortunate Generation."

S. R. D. Director Dies

Mrs. John G. Slayter, director of Scottish Rite Dormitory, died at 1 o'clock Saturday morning at the dormitory. The death came as a result of a heart attack.

Mrs. Slayter was the widow of the Rev. John G. Slayter of the First Christian Church of Dallas. She has been connected with the dormitory since its opening in 1922.

The body is being held at the Thurlow B. Weed Funeral Home pending the arrival of her two sons, Dr. James Slayter of Dallas and Richard Slater of Michigan.

Story Contest To End April 4

Any Undergraduate May Submit Work

Embryo authors who expect to enter the Texas Book Store short story contest must have their manuscripts in the hands of the judges within ten days, C. E. Berkman, manager of the store, announced Friday. The contest closes April 4.

Stories must be turned in to one of the following judges before the closing date: Dr. L. L. Click, professor of English; Mody C. Boatwright, instructor in English; or Donald Joseph, professor of Romance languages. There will be a prize of $25 to the winner.

Contributors should hand in their stories in typed or written ink on one side of the paper only. The author's name, story's name, and pen name are to be placed in a sealed envelope. The name of the story is also to be placed on the outside of the envelope.

The contest is open to any undergraduate in the University, Mr. Berkman said. No specific theme for stories is designated, although stories based on Southwest history, life, or tradition will have preference.

Solons Cause Delay In Athletic Budget

Because of the delayed action of the Legislature in arranging the University budget for next year, the budget of the Athletic Council, including the contracts of the coaches, has not yet been made out, W. E. Metzenthin, chairman of the Athletic Council, said Friday.

The council has decided to await the decision of the Legislature, and as a result it will probably be some time before this matter is settled, Mr. Metzenthin said.

SELLARDS ATTENDS MEET

Dr. E. H. Sellards, head of the Bureau of Economic Geology, Mrs. Sellards, and Herbert Hemphill of San Angelo are attending the national convention of the American Association of Petroleum Geologists in Houston, which concludes its three day meeting Saturday.

TO HOLD GOLF CONTEST
Plans for the spring golf tournament of the Faculty Club have been made, and all members who are interested should make their entry blanks and turn them in to Dean Nowotny.

Pan-America Day Celebration Set For Round-Up

Departure From Previous Practice Announced By Benedict

Exhibits Planned

Mecham Named to Guide Proposed Exposition Preparation

International Pan-American Day is to be celebrated by the University in a manner which is a distinct departure from previous practices, President H. Y. Benedict has announced. This year there is to be a Pan-American Exposition for the duration of the University's Fiftieth Anniversary week which includes the three days of the Fourth Annual Round-Up, April 28, 29, and 30.

The exposition will bring before the public the great resources contained in University libraries and museums in the field of Latin-American and Southwestern collections. These resources are quite unique, Dr. C. E. Castaneda, Latin-American librarian, explained, and students from all over the nation come to consult the material. Some regard the Garcia collection as superior to the Bancroft collection of the University of California, and all agree that it is second to none, Dr. Castaneda continued.

Meecham Heads Committee

Dr. Benedict has appointed a committee to prepare the exposition, and it is hoped that it will be housed in one of the spacious rooms of the new Union Building. Here will be placed not only materials of great interest to historians and other scholars, but exhibits of Latin-American curios which the public will find absorbing.

Dr. J. L. Meecham, associate professor of government, heads the committee, which includes Dr. Castaneda, Dr. C. W. Hackett, Miss Dorothy Schons, and Rufus Hall of Sherman, student president of the International Relations Club, and Sanchez Diaz, student president of the Latin-American Club. Miss Lillian Wester of the Pan-American Round Table has been appointed to cooperate with the committee on arrangements.

Dr. Bailey Leaves For Washington

To Present Papers Before Chemical Society

Dr. J. R. Bailey, professor of organic chemistry and holder of the University research fellowship, will leave Austin early Saturday for Washington, where he will address the American Chemical Society, G. R. Lake, Dr. Bailey's assistant, said Friday. Mrs. Bailey will accompany Dr. Bailey.

Dr. Bailey will read two papers to the society. One paper, "The Accumulative Extraction of Kerosene Base," will be given to the organic section of the society. He was assisted in the preparation of this paper by F. S. Perrin, advanced student in organic chemistry in the University. The other paper, "Structure of Hydroaromatic Base," will be delivered to the petroleum division. Dr. Bailey was aided in the preparation of this paper by Dr. W. C. Thomson and Dr. B. F. Armendt, professor of chemistry and by R. W. Lackey, advanced student of chemistry in the University.

'God's Fools' Topic Of Wharton's Sermon

"God's Fools" was the subject of a sermon by Rev. J. H. Ruggles at the First Methodist Church of Austin Sunday morning. The sermon was based on the parable of the fig tree in Luke 13:6-9. Mr. Ruggles said that the fig tree represents the church, and that the fig tree must be cut down if it does not bear fruit. He said that the church must be renewed and that it must be based on the Word of God. He said that the church must be a place where people can find God and where they can live their lives for God. He said that the church must be a place where people can find peace and where they can find joy. He said that the church must be a place where people can find love and where they can find hope. He said that the church must be a place where people can find life and where they can find eternity. He said that the church must be a place where people can find God and where they can live their lives for God. He said that the church must be a place where people can find peace and where they can find joy. He said that the church must be a place where people can find love and where they can find hope. He said that the church must be a place where people can find life and where they can find eternity.

Chem Students Know Too Much

A little chemistry learning is a dangerous thing—especially to roommates who raid dresser tops.

A chemistry student had a roommate who surreptitiously soaked his locks in his friend's costliest hair tonic. The chemist, suspicious at the tonic's rapid dwindling, poured out the colorless hair oil and substituted sodium silicate, "water glass." Dressing for a dance, the roommate helped himself, with the usual vigor, to the liquid glass in the innocent-looking tonic bottle.

In the middle of the dance the slick-headed roommate felt his hair stiffening into brittle bristles and hurried home to find his tresses smeared with dried glass. The glass was finally removed from his head only by a close hair clipping.

Debate Society Holds Memorial Service to Hogg

Holbrook in Speech Says He Will Always Be Remembered

Commemorating the birthday of James Stephen Hogg, former governor of Texas, and presenting a tribute to his memory, services were held in front of the statue recently erected to him on the campus Friday. The program was held under the auspices of the Hogg Debating Club.

Opening the ceremony with a short introductory speech, Charles O. Patterson, president of the Hogg Debating Club, stated the purpose of the celebration and its significance to people all over the State. His speech concluded, Patterson introduced Franklin Lanier Cox, member of the society, and senior law student. Cox presented the speech for the club, giving the life, ideals, and work of Governor Hogg as directly related to the University and to the Hogg Society in particular.

A Great Statesman

"James Hogg," Cox said, "is an inextricable part of Texas history, a never-to-be-forgotten man, and a man who loved his nation but loved his State more." Speaking further, Cox said that Mr. Hogg was a great politician, a wonderful orator, but above all a great statesman.

"In 1905," Cox said, "a group of young men in the University of Texas organized themselves into a club to further the ideals of one of the greatest Texans who ever lived, James Stephen Hogg. To help immortalize his name they called themselves the Hogg Debating Club. The purpose of the club was to train the youth of the University in the arts of self address, to develop character, but above all to carry on and pattern themselves after Mr. Hogg."

Concluding his speech Cox said, "Today the club is commemorating the memory of a great man, and a great Texan."

Following Cox's speech the Men's Glee Club sang a hymn in tribute to Governor Hogg, and then Patterson presented H. Y. (Continued on Page Three)

Montgomery Speaks On Public Utilities

Dr. R. H. Montgomery, professor of economics, expressed himself as being in favor of government ownership and operation of public utilities, in a discussion lecture delivered at an open forum meeting of the San Antonio Y. W. C. A. Friday. The lecture entitled "The Case for Government Ownership of Public Utilities," contained two main arguments: the greater economy of government ownership as compared with private ownership, and the difficulty of regulation under private ownership. "These two difficulties lead me to feel favorably toward government ownership and operation," said Dr. Montgomery.

Phi Beta Kappa Chooses 25 New Members Friday

Fraternity Votes Decrease In Class Percentage This Year

Names Listed

April Banquet Discussed At Garrison Hall Meeting

Twenty-five new members were elected to Phi Beta Kappa, honorary scholastic fraternity, when members of the organization met Friday afternoon in Garrison Hall 5.

The new members are:

Rachelle Lee Allen
Joyce Benbrook
Marjorie Alice Bryan
Louise Bradford
Ruth Lois Cagle
Henry Seale Eakens
Lura Adelle Forister
Verona Theresa Griffith
Jarrell B. Garonzik
Richard Henderson

Covey Thomas Oliver
Terrence Arthur Pollard
James Lemoyne Roberts
Mathias Joseph Schon
Branch Louise Smith
Virginia Emily Thompson
Ruth Elizabeth Turley
Mary Walthall
Glen Worthington

Previously, one-eighth of the graduating class has been allowed membership in the fraternity, but the members voted Friday in favor of decreasing the percentage to one-tenth. Only those students whose grade record is at least one-fourth of the way from A to B may be considered for membership.

Officers of the University chapter of Phi Beta Kappa are Miss Ruby Terrill, president, Hugh Dunlap, vice president; and Dr. Arnold Romberg, secretary-treasurer.

Plans were discussed for a banquet to be given Monday night, April 17, in the Driskill Hotel.

Baldrige Heads News Committee

Round-Up Helpers to Meet Today in B. Hall

Bob Baldrige has been appointed chairman of the campus news committee of the Round-Up and Jackson Cox, vice chairman, DeWitt Reddick, adjunct professor of journalism, announced Friday.

Other members of news committees are as follows:

Inez Grenau, chairman of the executive committee news and the Round-Up revue and ball.
Robert Patterson, chairman of the historical revue.
Ed Ferris, chairman of the organization and group activities and the barbecue.

Ted Read, chairman of campus decorations and reception.
Grace McSpadden, chairman of exhibits and lectures.

Bob Baldrige, advertising.
All members of news committees will meet at B. Hall 137 from 1:45 to 2:30 o'clock Saturday, Mr. Reddick said.

Just a Little Late

Whether it's these languid spring days or just plain laziness, most of us seem to have lost all sense of punctuality. There is hardly a class in the entire University where all students arrive on time. And many organization meetings are retarded by members who stroll in five or sometimes thirty minutes after the appointed hour.

Little boys and girls in grammar school may be excused for occasional tardiness. This great big world is fascinating to them, and who can reproach them too severely if they pause to speculate upon certain phenomena when they should be hurrying to the little red school house?

University students are past that stage—at least most of them are. Time is too valuable to be carelessly thrown aside. It is measured in minutes and seconds, and just hours. There can be no loitering on the wayside before or between classes when the hands of the clock approach the "deadline."

Thoroughness and smoothness of classwork is greatly expedited by punctuality. Confusions resulting from late entrances are avoided, and the instructor is apt to feel more kindly to a class which observes the rules.

Complaints have been heard, especially from women, that to go from Law Building to Chemistry Building or from Sutton Hall to Biology Building, in the space of seven minutes is impossible. Subtract the casual conversations, and we'll wager that the student could have made the class with another minute to spare.

Few of us are habitual laggards, but a clean record is marred by constant, inexcusable tardies.

Keeping Memories Alive

The memorial services held yesterday for James Stephen Hogg, former governor of Texas, under the auspices of the Hogg Debating Club, are of a nature deserving of the continued support of the faculty and student body. Erection of the statue of Hogg on the campus has also given an added incentive to the work of the debating club in preserving the memory of one of the most famous men in Texas history.

Shakespeare said that "the evil men does lives after them, the good is oft interred with their bones," but such is certainly not the case with James Stephen Hogg, who undoubtedly devoted his entire life and energies to making Texas the outstanding commonwealth and union which it is today. The good done by former Governor Hogg can never die and his memory will certainly be kept fresh by the continuation of the type of services held yesterday. Many do not believe in the perpetuation of the memories of men who have so well served their state or nation, but few indeed are those who can question the glory which is now coming to Mr. Hogg as his just due.

The Hogg Debating Club is to be congratulated for their actions crystallizing student interest and opinion concerning Mr. Hogg, and in presenting the type of services which succeeded in keeping the memory and works of one of Texas' most noted citizens alive. It is also to be hoped that the object of the club in making the affair annual in character will also succeed, so that from year to year the same tribute can be paid.

Setting an Example

The recent address to members of the "T" Association by a prominent coach and former college football player brings attention on some phases of an outstanding subject—college athletics and college athletes. Mr. Hardwicke emphasized the practical benefit of athletic participation to the individual. Lessons of perseverance, precision, and cooperation learned in college are invaluable when applied to actual, practical problems of life. That such training is of the utmost importance cannot be denied. For every tramp athlete, failure in life, misfit, which attackers of college athletics point out, there are scores of less obvious, successful, competent professional men who have found that life is played according to the same rules that they learn in college athletics.

But there is another side of the coin. Of equal significance with the one of athletics to the individual is the one of the individual athlete to the world. Easily forgotten is the fact that in excelling in physical accomplishments, athlete acquires responsibilities. U such conditions as prevail today, when wide advertising is given to college athletic stars in every branch, these men become models, heroes, even ideals for a surprisingly large public, especially for young people. Their followers strive to imitate, consciously or unconsciously, not only physical characteristics, but mental and moral features as well. On the college athlete then falls the responsibility of keeping himself clean and straight and manly, not only for his own benefit, but for the sake of those to whom he is some form of an ideal. He lives no longer to himself alone; by the very fact of his accomplishments he becomes an influence, and if that influence is in any respect for bad, he does not deserve the smallest part of the praise he receives for his attainments.

As attention turns more and more to college athletics, college athletes become more and more the public heroes. The Sullivan, the Ruth, the Dempsey is giving way to the Grange, the Gausch, the Carr, the Gray as idol of the present day, and those who gain athletic renown in college are bound to recognize the responsibility they have taken on of keeping their lives clean and worthy of emulation.

Student Forum

The Daily Texan invites the writing of free-lance editorials or "firing line" articles to be published in the Student Forum columns.

Such editorials must be written by students of the University and must pertain directly to some phase of student life.

All contributions must be signed, but the contributor's name will not be printed if he so requests. Unsigned articles will not be printed.

Those of 200 words or less will receive preference.

THANKS TO YOU FOR THESE KIND WORKS

To the Firing Line or College Press or Whatever: I suppose you are fired with many things besides ambition, but I confess I write to you fired with, perhaps spring fever, but what I think is honest admiration for one of the best editions I ever saw. I say this, not because I found a piece of my own in it very unexpectedly, and not because there is just that sort of feeling expressed by political candidates and birds in the air, but because it has more actual, interesting, well written news in it than any one edition seen in a long time.

The strange part about it is that it's not just the front page that counts. Working in an establishment where 500 newspapers are received weekly, teaches the art of what to read and what to skip. For the first time in six months, I read down one column and up another. Discrimination played a part. Hogg's story is almost as good as the memorable Fite Nite one. D. B. "did himself proud" on Dr. Penick, one of the world's best. (What woman ever read the sports page before!) If the Model Drug Store isn't rushed now, it never will be. Maybe it won't anyway, but who cares? The editorials come next. There were three. There were also of this three—three that were perfect. The first was probably the one that set the tone for the whole paper. The third, especially paragraph 1, C, about courses for students where credit is given for "manuscripts scribbled before sunrise and torn up in disgust before breakfast," hits home here. Must be others who feel the same along different lines.

The Allison story and the land office story are good. It was so jammed full that there had to be three boxes to cram in three more interesting stories. (And that didn't start out as a pun.) Down in the lower left corner of page six was something that—well—did you ever hear of the texture of Mrs. Thingummy's dumplings? I mean the one who made the good ones—maybe I was that way before. Don't know much about make-up, though I've chopped up newspapers and pasted them together again with some of the best in DeWitt's class—haven't we all? Make-up may be lousy. Edition's probably rotten.

But it must have been written with the same spirit that made me write this, or I, who am really too timid to write to the "Times," even if some people don't think so, couldn't have done this bold thing.

Heard somebody next to me in the Lib. say "Never saw so many people reading Texans." Saw two, of what Uncle Billy terms "cart horses," laughing at your editorial!

Can journalism, too, be looking up?

DEBATE SITUATION

What has happened to debating at Notre Dame? Enthusiasm that was prevalent here last year, at least among the team members, is gone. No definite program, we are told, has been drawn up for current the season, debates are being scheduled and postponed, "B" teams of other schools are tackling our varsity.

Maybe the topic that Notre Dame is debating has something to do with the unquestionable apathy in forensic circles. If such is the case we have an idea that the apathy is well founded. Who can get excited about the tax situation in Michigan and Indiana? We know that we are civic minded only when we are engrossed with such things, but right now it all seems a little too involved for college students to spend a lot of time on.

Why must debate teams always be throwing figures at us about unemployment insurance or tax anticipation warrants? We have made up our mind time and again to vote for the most interesting campus forensics, only to be misled by a barrage of technicalities.

CAMPUS CHATTER

By BILL DOZIER

Some thoughtful soul, evidently with quite good intentions, sent in a list of Bible passages which he says are just the thing to read when one is blue, discouraged or lonely. I haven't had occasion to look up any of them yet, but anyway here they are for those who might feel the need of them: When things look blue read Isaiah 40; when facing a crisis, Psalms 46 and 139; discouraged, Psalms 23 and 34; lonely or fearful, Psalms 27 and 42; when things seem going from bad to worse, Second Timothy 3; when friends seem to fail, First Corinthians 13. The last suggested passage will probably be read mostly by University students.

An example of the budding optimism which has made this country what it is today was recently exhibited by the plants of the Edison Company in New Jersey. A bulletin to the following effect was posted: "Pres. Roosevelt has done his part; now you do something. Buy something—buy anything, anywhere; paint your kitchen, send a telegram, give a party, get a car, pay a bill, rent a flat, fix your roof, get a hair cut, see a show, build a house, take a trip, sing a song, get married. It does not matter what you do—but get going and keep going. This old world is starting to move." It is suggested that the gentleman who wrote that be hired by some of the campus politicians to turn out their campaign copy for them.

From certain statistics recently forthcoming concerning the circulation of "20,000 years in Sing Sing," the book which created such a furor, it would seem that a great number of those interested in literature are residents of Sing Sing. No less than seventy-six of the prisoners purchased copies of the book, and some thirty of the officers and guards. But here's the best thing of all: there were also about ten prisoners who did not have to buy the book, since they were members of the Book-of-the-Month Club, and as the book in question had been its last selection they had already received it.

Every year there are always a number of various and sundry textbooks which disappear mysteriously from desks, rooms, and wherever students leave books. Instead of giving them up and merely notifying the bookstores to report anyone trying to sell them, the following procedure is humbly suggested. In the case books containing important notes which cannot be of use to whoever has the book, merely advertise that if he will return it, that you will give him a nice new copy of the book with no notes and no questions asked. There are many here who make a habit of carrying course notes about in texts and to lose them irretrievably would be in the nature of a catastrophe. The idea, which is not original by the way, is passed on.

Students who are continually worrying about what to do with their extra money (maybe I should say money) should read an advertisement which one of the New York department stores recently ran. It concerned the making of a hand-woven Persian rug, an exact replica of the Holy Carpet of the Mosque of Ardabil in the Royal Museum in London, and took several years in the making. The thing is about thirty-eight feet long and seventeen feet wide and sells at the "depression price" of only twenty-two thousand five hundred dollars. It is suggested that the carpet would be just the thing to give to mother on her next birthday!

HAROLD TEEN—BETWEEN THE DEVIL AND THE DEEP

Littlefield Memorial Gate Symbol of Nation's Fusion

"The life given us by nature is brief, but the memory of a life well spent is everlasting."

This glowing encomium inscribed in Latin on the wall at the rear of the Littlefield Memorial fits aptly the life of the late George W. Littlefield, whose establishment of a $250,000 trust fund made possible the erection of the majestic tribute to persons of the University who died in the war of 1917 and 1918.

Dr. R. E. Vinson, president of the University from 1916 to 1923, explained in November of 1922 the purpose and original conception of the Littlefield Memorial as follows:

Division Set Forth

"The conception in the minds of the architects and sculptor of the Littlefield Memorial is the setting forth of the division which existed in American life practically from the beginning of the history of this republic and which found its climactic expression in the Civil War, the result of which was to destroy the cause of the previous division, and to furnish the opportunity through which national life might become fused into one complete whole. The gate, however, is intended to express the thought that this fusion was not completed until the army and navy of the United States crossed the Atlantic Ocean, in the great war of 191 and 1918."

The original plan was to have the six portrait statues form a "court of honor" facing and converging toward the central, heroic figures of Victory, the Army, and the Navy, standing erect upon the ship Columbia. This central group was to represent, in the words of Dr. Vinson, "a united and victorious America" crossing to aid in ridding the world of autocracy.

Paul Cret, consulting architect for the University building program, revised the first plans and suggested that the six portrait statues be placed in the area between Main Building and the rear of the arch so as to face each other and the central walk.

Contract Awarded

After considerable delay by the Board of Regents in taking advantage of the award, bids for the construction of the Memorial were received March 20, 1932, and March 21 the contract was granted to J. P. Johnson of Austin, his bid having amounted to $118,600.

Previous to the letting of the contract, the Students' Assembly had adopted a resolution February 13, 1930, urging the Regents to accept the gift made by Major Littlefield, who "out of his love for the University provided a fitting tribute for the Old South and a beautiful work of art as a gift to the University in the form of a memorial arch."

Realization of a dream, which fate decreed should not be witnessed and enjoyed by Major Littlefield but which would serve to commemorate to posterity the valor and fortitude of men who died while serving their country, was finally accomplished February 17, 1933. On that date the board of trustees of the Littlefield fund formally notified the Board of Regents of their acceptance of the statuary, masonry, and accessories of the Memorial.

Victorious America, the Army, and the Navy aboard the ship Columbia, drawn by three restive sea horses upon which are mounted two demigods of the sea, compose the symbolic ensemble in the arch at the head of University Avenue. On one side of the ship is inscribed in Roman numerals the date April 6, 1917, and on the other, November 11, 1918. These are the dates of the United States' entrance in the World War and of the signing of the Armistice.

Modeled by Coppini

All of the statues were modeled by Pompeo Coppini, renowned sculptor of New York. The bronze casts were made by the Roman Bronze Works. Three years were required for the sculptor to complete the six statues resting on marble bases between the arch and Main Building. These are

Blowing of Glass Nowlin's Specialty

To be a professional glassblower is one thing, and it has its attractions, but to be able to make glass figures as a pleasurable experiment, is another thing, and is an accomplishment which many would like to be able to claim.

That is what B. T. Nowlin, chemical store keeper on the third floor of the Chemistry Building often does.

During spare moments he experiments with glass blowing. All his knowledge of that art has come directly from his experiments, for he has never had any instruction along this line. He makes the figures because he enjoys making them and because he wants further knowledge of the subject.

statues of six illustrious Americans—James Stephen Hogg, John H. Reagan, Robert E. Lee, Albert Sidney Johnston, Jefferson Davis, and Woodrow Wilson. The figures of Wilson and Davis are nine feet high. The others are eight feet high.

A bronze plaque attached to the wall behind the symbolic figures pays homage to 96 sons and daughters of the University who sacrificed their lives in the World War. Inscriptions on either side of the plaque eulogize those heroes who fell in serving their country.

Three circular pools, with walls radiating from the group of symbolic figures, are supplied with water by means of three centrifugal pumps with 20 horse power motors. The walks around the ponds are of concrete but appear to be made of granite rock.

The Littlefield Memorial in its entirety expresses the transition from conflict between civil elements to a process of unification culminating in the World War. It was made possible because of the generosity of Major Littlefield, soldier in the Confederate Army, leader in Texas industry, and Regent of the University. It is dedicated to that vast legion of dauntless warriors who died on the battlefields during the Civil War and the World War.

Ex-student to Open Local Travel Agency

Dana Monroe, ex-student of the University, who is now associated with the Keller Travel Club, Inc., of New York City, arrived in Austin Thursday to make plans for establishing a travel bureau here, DeWitt Reddick, adjunct professor of journalism, said Friday.

Mr. Reddick accompanied Mr. Monroe on a summer tour through Europe in 1931. Ellwood Griscom, associate professor of public speaking, was also a member of this tour as were several students in the University. Mr. Monroe intends to make Austin his headquarters while traveling around the State, giving information regarding his tours, Mr. Reddick explained.

Mr. Monroe has personally escorted motor tour parties through Europe during the seasons of 1931 and 1932. He lived in Europe for nearly two years, working for European travel organizations, and studying travel conditions, Mr. Reddick said. He received his degree from Baylor University at Waco in 1928, and was a student at the University prior to his attendance at Baylor.

Maxine Price and Ella Koemel will spend the week-end in San Antonio.

THEATERS

"MURDERS IN THE ZOO"

(?)—Charles Ruggles, Lionel Atwill, Kathleen Burke, Randolph Scott, today through Tuesday. At the Paramount.

"OUR BETTERS" (?)—Constance Bennett, Anita Louise, Charles Starrett, Gilbert Roland, today through Tuesday. "The Mind Reader." Warren Williams, Constance Cummings, midnight matinee preview tonight, 11:30 o'clock. At the Hancock.

"SHE DONE HIM WRONG"

"CLEAR ALL WIRES" (?)—Lee Tracy, Benita Hume, Una Merkel, James Gleason, today through Tuesday. At the Queen.

"EAST LYNNE"—presented by the Little Theater, direction of James H. Parke, last time tonight, 8:15 o'clock. At Saengergrunde Hall.

Estimates: A, great; B, good; C, fair.

Opening Today

"MURDERS IN THE ZOO," comedy-horror thriller, will be the attraction on the Paramount Theater screen today through Tuesday, bringing another ripple in the cycle of zoological homicide currently waxing toward a climax on the screen. Lionel Atwill, man of diction, again lends his talent to a monomaniac role, with Kathleen Burke (the Panther Woman, once upon a time), Randolph Scott, Funnymen Charles Ruggles, and Gail Patrick assorted among the victims. Animals uncaged and on the loose do their share too.

CONSTANCE BENNETT in "Our Betters" with Gilbert Roland and Anita Louise opens today to play through Tuesday at the Hancock. The picture is from a stage play by the same name.

It concerns a rich American heiress who married an English nobleman for his title only to discover on her wedding day that he loves another woman. She opens a lovely home in London and spends her time being a perfect hostess.

Her husband sees her only when he is invited to her parties. Her little sister comes to live with her and is disfigured when she sees her sister, whom she has idolized, in the arms of another woman's gigolo.

The fact that Constance Bennett is starred in the picture will make it worth seeing.

Midnight Matinee

"THE MIND READER," starring Warren Williams and Constance Cummings is the story of a crooked clerk who falls in love with an unsophisticated girl, entices her to become his secretary, and finally marries her. She leaves him when she finds he is playing a crooked game but returns at the close of the picture determined to "bring out the good in him." This show will be shown at a midnight preview at the Hancock tonight at 11:30 o'clock.

Emily Crow will spend the week-end in Dallas.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sharp of Fort Worth visited their daughter, Isabel, here this week.

DISCHMEN SWING INTO LAST PRACTICE GAME THIS AFTERNOON

Thumbnailing
"Ox"
Miracles of Sport
F.D.R. Pulls One

THEY CALL him "Dub" at Hewitt, "Doc" at Cisco, "Babe" at Lorena, and "Ox" at Austin. His teachers call him Claude Howard Blanton. Born June 3, 1909, at Hewitt. Attended Hewitt, Lorena, and Cisco high schools. Reaches 6 feet, 2 inches with his hat off, and weighs 210 pounds when ready for the tub. Entered the University to get a bachelor of science degree. He'll get that degree this spring. Picks physical education, education, and public speaking as his favorite courses.

Lettered as tackle on the Longhorn football squad in '30, '31, and '32. Made all-conference eleven in '30 and '32. Lettered as catcher on the Steer baseball nine in '31 and '32. Will receive his third baseball letter this spring.

Ambitious to play in a World's Series baseball game. His idea of a dinner that's fit for a king: fried chicken, creamed potatoes, ice cream, and devil food cake.

Looks forward to a glimpse of (Two) Times Square. Kay Francis and Jimmy "Schnozzle" Durante are his pet screamies. Eddie Cantor's radio nonsense appeals to him.

Regular reader of Colliers' and Film Fun magazines. Grantland Rice is his favorite writer. Idealizes William J. Disch, the noblest baseball coach of them all. Versatile Eddie Price gets his ideal athlete vote.

Likes to blow smoke rings. Poor sports, "blind" umpires, and warming up pitchers are his pet antipathies. His habits, he says, are not fit for publication.

The ball game had reached a crucial stage in the last inning—two were out and the deciding runs were on base—when an electric storm loomed in the skies. The pitcher hurriedly threw the ball, and the batter, ready and anxious, slammed it far and high to center field. With the crack of the bat against ball, the centerfielder started running. He sped in the direction of the ball, caught up with it, and set himself for the catch.

But the playful gods interfered. Crack! went a bolt of lightning and swish! went the ball as it was neatly cut into two pieces. Undaunted, the fielder grabbed half of the pellet as it sailed off in one direction.

Then, he shot out his gloveless hand and snared the other half as it started off in another direction!

One for the Governor

Although this story has nothing to do with Longhorn sports, I can't resist telling it.

A sub-deb one time met Roosevelt and said: "I just know you took part in college athletics, Mr. Governor." (He was New York's governor at the time).

"I did," he said.
"And what did you do?" possibly visioning a 90-yard run with a ball under his arm.
"I was treasurer," he said.

Heheheh!

My conversation with "Ox" Blanton yesterday brought back tender memories of Oklahoma football games, for "Ox," you know, always played well against the boys from the Sooner State.

Well, anyway, it is on the mornings of the Oklahoma games that the Longhorn Band performs on the streets of Dallas for the citizenry. Ah! what a parade it was last year through the downtown district.

Mortorcycle officers sounded their wailing warnings, whistles blew shrilly, and buntings (probably left over from some convention) fluttered in a cool delightful breeze.

Yes, a swell parade until your Reeler, who was alone in the last car in the procession, heard some low creature shout:

"Har! Har! Har! What a funny looking water-boy in that hack!"

STRIKE UP the band for:

Robert Loane Sewell, Texas track star . . . He set a record of some sort when he pole-vaulted 12 feet, 9 1-2 inches at the Southwest Exposition track and field meet held last week at Fort Worth . . . Whatever it takes, Bob's got it

All-Stars Play Longhorn Nine

By FRANK MORROW

When game is called between the University Longhorns and the City League All Stars this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at Clark Field, Dischmen will swing into their last practice game before taking up the burden of their heavy 1933 schedule. Presenting practically the same team they did last week the All Stars hope to wreak revenge on the stomping Steers.

The All Stars will have a slight change in their old lineup with the following men set for action: Walsh, third base; Burger, shortstop; Lewis, right field; Allen catcher; Faulk, center field; Pinckney, second base; Greenfield, left field; McLaughlin, pitcher; Webb and Greenfield, utility men, and "Swede" Lind, an old man in the game of baseball, at first base. Marty Karow, freshman baseball coach, may possibly see action at third base during the game.

Teams Galore

Coach Billy Disch announced Friday that both teams would probably get action in the game. Infield competition is keener now than it has been at any time this season since four men have taken up the baseball with the ending of the basketball season. The players are Ed Price, DeMoy Paulk, Bennie Rundell, and Ronnie Fagan. Price, Rundell and Lovelady are running good races for first base, while Fagan is showing excellent form in his batting and fielding.

Bohn Hilliard, competing against McDowell for second base, is more dangerous than ever at batting practice, and will probably see service in the game today. McDowell, Ankenman, and Viebig will probably start at second, shortstop and third, respectively. Pete Sikes may hold down shortstop in the latter part of the game.

Koy, Miller, and Baebl will probably spend the first few innings in the outfield with January and Gannon coming in later. Blanton will probably do the catching for the first few innings, with Bloebaum catching the last few innings.

Starting Thursday, March 30, the Steers start on one of the most crowded schedules in years. The schedule is as follows:

March 30, San Antonio Missions at San Antonio; April 1, San Antonio Missions at Austin; April 7, Oklahoma City University, April 8, Oklahoma City University; April 17, T. C. U. at Fort Worth; April 20, S. M. U. at Dallas; April 28, A. & M. at Austin; April 29, A. & M. at Austin; May 2, T. C. U. at Austin; May 5, Baylor at Waco; May 6, Baylor at Waco; May 12, A. & M. at College Station; May 16, Baylor at Austin; May 17, Baylor at Austin.

The Return of the Native

Pictured above is Bruce Barnes, former Steer net captain, who will appear here next Wednesday night at Gregory Gym with the professional tennis troupe headed by William T. Tilden, renowned netter. Barnes captained the University squad in 1930 and covered himself with glory by winning the conference singles championship. He also accomplished this feat in 1929 and 1931.

BRUCE BARNES MAKES RAPID CLIMB TO TENNIS HEIGHTS; TILDEN PRAISES EX-STEER

By GORDON PEASE

Texas Sports Staff

THREE TIMES Southwest Conference tennis singles champion and holder of the world's tennis doubles championship with Bill Tilden are two of the records hung up by Bruce Barnes, international tennis star of Austin, who will put on a tennis exhibition with Bill Tilden, holder of nearly every tennis title of any importance in the world; Hans Nusslein, professional champion of Germany; and Emmet Pare of Chicago, former holder of the national clay court champion as representatives of the Tilden Tennis Tours at Gregory Gym Wednesday night, March 29.

Barnes Started in 1926
Bruce won the State high school championship in doubles with Earl Taylor, as representatives of Austin High School in 1926. He was number one man on the freshman team in the University in 1927. In 1928 he withdrew from the University and went to work for a sporting company in Houston. There he worked, played tennis, and wrote a column for a Houston newspaper.

In 1929 he won his first conference championship by defeating Berkeley Bell in the finals. Bell won the national intercollegiate championship in singles later on in the year, and the two teamed to win the doubles championship. In 1930, as captain of the University team, Barnes won his second conference title by defeating Jake Hess of Rice in the finals. He won his third conference title in 1931, defeating Karl Kamrath also of the University, in the finals.

Later on the Steer net squad won the national intercollegiate doubles title.
Defeated by Gledhill
Barnes was defeated in the finals of the singles tournament by Keith Gledhill of California. After the national singles tournament at Forest Hills in 1931, he turned professional and signed up with Bill Tilden. Since then Barnes has toured Europe and recently won the world's professional doubles title with Tilden in Berlin.
Dr. Penick announced that the tickets would be on sale Monday at reduced prices in order to allow everyone interested to witness a good exhibition of tennis. Reserved seats will be $1, general admission at 75 cents, University students with a blanket tax or Auditor's receipt at 40 cents, and high school students at 25 cents.

Alamo City Seeks Steer-Gent Melee

When and where the Texas-Centenary game will be played next year is yet to be decided, W. E. Metzenthin, chairman of the Athletic Council, announced Friday. No word has come from Centenary lately, he said.

San Antonio officials have asked that the game be played there, since citizens of that city seldom have the opportunity to see a college football game, but since Centenary has charge of the game, the site has not yet been decided upon. San Antonio has agreed to meet all requirements, Mr. Metzenthin asserted.

FOUNTAIN RUNS SUNDAY

All students of the University and residents of Austin will have a chance to see the fountain of Littlefield Memorial in operation from 12 to 1 o'clock and from 3:30 to 4:30 o'clock Sunday, J. W. Calhoun, comptroller, said Friday.

Janet Wofford will spend the week-end in San Marcos visiting Billie Margaret Starnes.

Longhorn Tracksters Stage Final Intra-Squad Races At Memorial Stadium Today

IF WEATHER conditions permit, Coach Clyde Littlefield will send his varsity and freshman tracksters through their final intra-squad meet at Memorial Stadium this afternoon. The first event, the 440-yard dash, will start at 2:45 o'clock. The competition will be run off in the same order and manner as a regular meet, Coach Littlefield stated. The Steers will open their conference season with a meet with the Texas Aggies at College Station April 1.

In four events, the 100, 220, 440, and mile run, special medals will be awarded the winner, Coach Littlefield said. These four races are expected to be the best of the afternoon, with the possible exception of the two-mile run in which Captain Lane Blakeney and Freshman George Wilson will fight it out.

Meyer Seeks Vengeance

In the dashes Ed Meyer, veteran and one of the best sprinters in the State, will attempt for the first time in competition to defeat Harvey Wallender, sensational freshman speedster.

Alex Cox, Southwest Conference 440-yard record-holder, will be hard pressed by his teammate Ed Blitch and Frosh Captain Jeff Austin in the quarter.

One al Archer, conference champ, and his running mates Bill Cohen and Joe Storm, will be favored to finish in that order in the mile.

The last event, the mile relay, is scheduled to start at 4:45 o'clock.

DEGREE CARDS CHECKED

Candidates for degrees this June have all had their degree cards checked, Dean Parlin said Friday. "As far as we know, all candidates have had their requirements checked; but, of course, there may be some student who has not yet done so."

Brothers Cheer, Pledges Grieve at Frat Ball Game

Strike one! Strike two! The crowd is tensely awaiting the throw that may win or lose the ball game. As usual the team at bat in this (the last of the ninth) inning is behind in the score by about three runs and the man at the plate holds the fate of his comrades in his hands. The next ball comes whizzing toward the plate—"thwack" it's a hit! And both sides start pleading with the players to fight for dear ol' Eta Beta Pi or Rho Dantig Rho, as if this were the crucial moment in their lives.

Color predominates the field and the stands. Motley uniforms that are reminiscent of high school days dot the diamond; red caps, blue shirts, grey trousers, blue trousers, short pants, long pants, shirt sleeves, no sleeves, and sometimes a full uniform with shirt, pants, and cap that match.

Pledges Oblige
A continuous stream of banter, wisecracks, and encouragement comes from the ramshackle bleachers, and it is evident that several very juvenile, submissive boys are doing much of the yelling under the supervision of their grim-visaged elders who periodically spur them on with the threat, "Pledge, if we lose this game, you know who will suffer." Also, the pledges must suffer untold damage to their clothing in the pursuit of foul tips that always go over the highest barbed wire fence in the vicinity. The stands rock with the alternate mirth, pleading, and cheers of dizzy co-eds, anxious brothers, and dutiful pledges as the players plod on, seemingly unaware of the gay spectators.

These inter-fraternity baseball games are sure to be amusing, whether the actual participants in the contest display a very great amount of prowess or not. There is always the spirit of good fellowship and gaiety, regardless of the fact that the two factions may be mortal enemies. It's a great show.

Statistics Show Readers' Habits

Are you a left-handed reader? Which side of a newspaper do you glance at first when you open it? Editors as well as advertisers are interested in this question.

More than half of the people in the cars and waiting rooms of a New York City railroad company begin reading the left hand side of a paper, a report prepared by a graduate of the School of Business at Columbia University shows.

There was little difference in the tendencies of men and women, the compiled statistics reveal, and the results for tabloids were practically the same as those for regular papers, except that tabloid readers invariably looked more at the front page.

Many of the readers, after glancing at the first page, turned to the back page and read toward the front. This is a common practice among newspaper men. Advertisers may change the position of their advertisements if other reports show this same tendency.

Mary Dupuy is spending the week-end at her home in San Antonio.
