Session

By CAPITOLA CANNON

R. A. Tsanoff, native of Bulgaria, professor of philosophy at Rice Institute, will speak at 8 o'clock, Friday night on "What Is Conscience?" at the open air theater.

Dr. Tsanoff who was born in Sofia, Bulgaria, has been educated in Bulgaria, in Constantinople, and in America. His travels in Europe and America have given him opportunity to learn the languages and natures of many people. His close observation to the study of his work has given him national recognition in the field of philosophy.

For many generations, Dr. Tsanoff's ancestors have lived in Bulgaria, some of his people always coming to America to receive American education. The early years of his own life were spent in his country where he studied until he went to Robett College, Constantinople, from 1902 to 1903. He received his bachelor of arts degree from Oberlin College, near Cleveland, Ohio.

After finishing this work he taught for one year in an American high school. He attended Cornell University, where he received his doctor of philosophy degree. Here he was a fellow of the Sage school of philosophy.

A great part of his education was self-earned through assistantships and fellowships.

Social Service Worker

After receiving his doctor of philosophy degree, Dr. Tsanoff did social service work in New York until he went as an instructor in philosophy to Clark University, Worcester, Mass., from 1912 to 1914.

His travels in Europe have taken him to Berlin, London, Paris, Oxford, and other cities.

He speaks German, French, besides his native tongue, and English.

During the Balkan war in 1913 he was sent by the Bulgarian ministry to London to make the position of his country in the war clear to Europe. Since 1914, Dr. Tsanoff has been in charge of the department of philosophy at Rice Institute. This department embraces, besides philosophy, those of psychology and education. He is now an American citizen and has two daughters born in this country.

Dr. Tsanoff, who is active in other interests as well as his field of work, takes great interest in his home. His chief hobby he lists as "playing golf with a hoe and sickle" in his back yard. His home is in Houston. His daughter Nevena is a junior in Rice Institute. His younger daughter, Katherine has just graduated from high school.

Bronze Statue
Against Hogg's
Wishes—Dobie

The surroundings of the statue of James Stephen Hogg on the main walk of the campus are possibly out of harmony with the last wishes of the governor, according to J. Frank Dobie, professor of English in the University.

The possibility is created by the following statement made by the governor to his friends on the last day of his life: "When I die I don't want any cold marble placed at the head of my grave. I want a soft-shelled Texas pecan tree planted there, and at the foot a regular walnut, and when they bear fruit I want the nuts sent out to the farmers of Texas that they may plant them, and they will do it."

Incidentally, the major part of this request has been carried out. The two trees have been planted at Governor Hogg's grave, but only recently has there been any attempt at distribution of the nuts. They are now being distributed through Texas A. & M. College to the school children instead of to the farmers.

Mr. Dobie is confident that a similar planting of a pecan and walnut tree near the statue of the governor would be more in keeping with his last wish than the prostrate juniper and wax ligustrum now planted there.

Ayer To Direct Conference
On Revision Before
Work Begins

A Curriculum Revision Conference, sponsored by The University of Texas under the direction of Dr. Fred C. Ayer, Professor of Educational Administration, for the purpose of studying basic principles in curriculum revision will be held in the Hogg Memorial Auditorium, July 19, 20, and 21. This is the announcement made Tuesday by Dr. Ayer, who is state curriculum consultant.

Dr. Ayer explained that the conference is a part of the five year curriculum revision program instituted last fall by a cooperative movement among the Texas State Teachers Association, the State Board of Education, and the State Department of Education. The program this far has been composed of orientation methods. The conference is preliminary to the beginning of actual revision work and is held to acquaint the educators of Texas with methods to be used.

Public To Be Admitted

The program, which will attract school administrators and supervisors from all parts of Texas, will be composed of general sessions, panel and round table discussions and evening lectures. All discussions will be on basic principles involved in curriculum changes. While the meetings will be primarily for those connected with the public school curriculum of Texas, the public will also be admitted.

A detailed program is being organized by Dr. Ayer and will be announced as soon as it is completed. Outstanding among the speakers from other states already arranged for are Carlton E. Washburne, superintendent of schools, Winnetka, Illinois; Professor H. L. Caswell, George Peabody College, who is curriculum consultant for the Virginia, Florida and Arkansas state curriculum program; and Mrs. Hazel H. Ott, curriculum director for South Dakota.

Business Students
To Hold Meeting

Delta Sigma Pi, professional business fraternity, will hold their first meeting of the summer Wednesday, June 13, at 7:30 o'clock at the Texas Union, room 301.

Officers persisting during the summer will be Norman Egeless, Head Master; Donald Belknap, Senior Warden; W. D. Craig, Treasurer; and Mick Spellman, Scribe.

The meeting next Wednesday will be presided over by Kenneth B. White, Director of the Southwest Province. Plans for the summer social activities will be the outstanding business of the meeting.

The office of the fraternity, room 312, Texas Union, will be open during the entire summer.

Mathews Expects Second Term Registration
Of Over 5000

Final tabulations on the registration for the first term of the summer session set a new record with an enrollment of 4,066 students, E. J. Mathews, registrar announced Wednesday. This is an increase of 1,785 over first term enrollment last summer.

Figures at this time last year showed a large decrease from previous marks, with only 2,281 students enrolled. In 1932 the total reached 3,612, only three less than the record of 3,615 students who registered in 1931. The totals for 1930, and for 1929 were 3,135 and 2,958 respectively.

The number of men and women students for this term are not available but the number of men students have been increasing for the past two years. In 1933 there were 1,178 men students as compared to the 1,103 women enrolled. In 1932 the figures were 1,706 for both sexes. Prior to 1932 the women students exceeded the men by a majority of nearly 300 students in 1929, 1930, and 1931.

Students during the second term will likely exceed the five thousand mark, Registrar Mathews stated.

The great increase over previous marks is likely due to the lack of out-of-state student fees for the summer terms and the new state requirement regarding additional work for school teachers, authorities believe.

Enrollment of Law School Increases

It is possible that the proposal of the State Bar Association to suspend diploma privileges of law school graduates may be the cause of the increase in the enrollment of the School of Law for the summer semester.

According to Dean I. P. Hildebrand of the School of Law, 203 students have enrolled this semester, which is an increase of ten per cent over the last summer session. And the enrollment last summer was 30 per cent larger than any preceding summer term.

Graduates of smaller law schools in Texas are seeking diploma privileges that are extended to the graduates of the larger law schools. For that reason, the State Bar Association proposed to suspend the privilege and require all law graduates to stand the bar examination.

The proposal was adopted by the board of directors at a meeting of the State Bar Association in El Paso last winter. But until the matter is passed on by the legislature, students may register in the School of Law with the privilege, upon graduation, to practice without standing a bar examination.

Austin Band Gives
Free Concert Today

A program designed to suit music lovers of everything from ragtime to grand opera will be presented by the Austin City Band Thursday night at 8 o'clock at the open air theatre on the University of Texas campus, according to Burnett Pharr, director. The concert, second of the summer series, will be free.

The opening will be the bombastic "Them Basses" march by Huffine, and then proceed to one of Sigmund Romberg's favorite musical comedy "Selections" from "Maytime." Dvorak's famous "Largo" from the "New World Symphony" with its organ tones and blending of reeds will be played. To lighten up a bit Vincent Youman's "Carica," with its off-beat tempo rhythm will be offered. The ever-popular band composer Ketybey will be represented with "In a Persian Market." After the intermission the drumming and bugling of Sousa's stirring "Semper Fidelis" will be heard, followed by Greig's "March of the Dwarfs." A cornet soloist will play Ponce's haunting melody, "Estrellita." An arrangement by Theo. Moses-Tobani from the Metropolitan Opera House, called "Echos" will give opera-lovers their due. Workmen Begin Demolition of Main Building

Tower, Chimes, Stained Windows, and Cornerstone Preserved in Shrine

By KATHRYN OWENS

AS a climax to a career of fifty years, the Main Building of the University is to be torn down—demolished and trampled in the dust made by thousands of feet that walk the campus hourly; its location will be the site for a new building, modern in every detail, which will be much more in keeping with the present surroundings; the only thing that will remain of the building to remind former students of their college days and to link the past with the present and future, is the Main Tower.

During the past week, the clock has been dismantled, and taken down from the place where it has looked out over all Austin four years; the chimes have been taken down; all offices have been moved—some of which had been in the same room of the Main Building ever since it was built; of all the numerous offices that were formerly in this building only three remain—the stenographic offices, the telephone exchange, and the janitors' offices.

THE MAIN BUILDING the "Parthenon of the University's Acropolis," is the oldest building on the campus. The corner stone was laid November 17, 1882. First classes were held in the old temporary Capitol building until the west wing of the Main Building was completed January, 1884. Only the western section of the present building was erected originally and here all the departments of the University were housed until 1889.

It was not until 1889 that the middle portion and the old north wing were erected. The auditorium, where the immortal phrase "Remember, young ladies and young gentlemen, the eyes of Texas are upon you," was uttered by President Prather, was located in the north wing.

The new structure will be an addition to the new Library unit. It will face south and will constitute the central motif of the long-range program of development of the campus. A tower is to be constructed on the central portion of the Library, rising an additional 200 feet. It will include 31 levels, to be used for book storage.

The main, or front addition, is designed to house the administrative offices of the school and to provide additional reading room facilities for the Library. It will be four stories high, the height being approximately that of the Library Building.

Each stone in the tower of the building is to be marked as it is torn off, thus will the constructors be enabled to build it as it originally was, making it into a shrine dedicated to the former students and members of the University, to be located in some suitable spot on the campus. This reconstruction is pending the appropriation of the $20,000 or $30,000 needed.

Surf-Boat Riding
Captures Dean

Dean V. I. Moore has a new hobby. It is surf-boat riding, and he says if you are as good as he, you can learn it in two short easy lessons at Camp Khiva.

Camp Khiva is an ideal vacation spot located on Medina Lake, 35 or 36 miles up the river from San Antonio. The camp is being conducted by Miss Dorothy Gebauer, Miss Terrill's assistant and Miss Lancaster, instructor in Economics, with the assistance of Gus Hill, ex-student of the University.

The camp has been formerly open to girls exclusively under the direction of Miss Eunice Aden, but it is now open to all summer vacationists. The camp features a splendid and safe enclosed swimming pool in the lake, boating, surf-boat riding, and fishing. The cottages are cool and well equipped for open-air sleeping.

Last week a party of 25 S.M.U. students enjoyed summer sports at Camp Khiva.

GRADES MAILED OUT

Grades for the spring semester will be mailed out to students this week, Max Fichtenbaum, Assistant Registrar, announced Wednesday. All record of work books should be turned in to the Registrar's office now. At the end of the summer grades will be noted in the record of work books and they will be mailed to students, Fichtenbaum stated.

1,200 PAY FEE

Approximately 1,200 students have paid the blanket tax, according to an announcement from Dean V. I. Moore Wednesday.

Summer Students to Make Excursion June 20

A local sight-seeing excursion to the haunts of Amelia Barr and O. Henry for summer school students holding the activity tickets is scheduled for Wednesday afternoon, June 20. S. E. Gideon, who will conduct the tour, announced that the party will leave the Texas Union at 3 o'clock.

Mr. Gideon will give an illustrated talk on the lives of Amelia Barr and O. Henry at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening, June 9 in the assembly room on the first floor of the Architecture Building. This lecture which will be given the night preceding the excursion, will be free of charge to the public, but the excursion Wednesday is exclusively for holders of activity tickets.

Mrs. Barr was a novelist who lived in Austin during the Civil War period. She wrote approximately 100 stories, the most famous of which are "The Bow of Orange Ribbon," "All the Days of My Life," and "Remember the Alamo."

O. Henry Home Moved

O. Henry is the renowned short story writer who edited "The Rolling Stone" and worked in the State Land Office while a resident of Austin. The house that he occupied with his bride in Austin has been moved to Brush Park by the city of Austin where it is open for inspection.

This excursion is one of a series of local and out-of-town sight-seeing excursions planned for the summer students by the recreation committee of which Dean V. I. Moore is chairman.

Other excursions scheduled for the summer are: Wednesday, June 27—A trip to the Elisabet Ney Museum and to the exhibitions in the department of architecture and elsewhere on the campus.

Monday, July 9—A trip to Fredericksburg, Bear Mountain, the Enchanted Rock, and other nearby places of interest.

The Wednesday excursions will be preceded by an illustrated talk the night before an 8 o'clock in the assembly room, first floor of the Architecture Building. The Monday excursion has its explanatory (Continued on Page 3).

Weeks To Talk
On Democracies
And Dictatorships

Governmental Tendencies
In Europe and America
Sketched in Talk

Dr. O. D. Weeks, Professor of Government, in the University, will speak June 19 in the Open Air Theater on "Democracy and Dictatorship." This is the third of a series of lectures to be presented during the summer in the Open Air Theater, and one of the outstanding features of the week of June 14.

Dr. Weeks' discussion will deal with the present tendencies of democratic government in Western Europe and the United States and comparison of the strong executive leadership of the Roosevelt administration and the European dictatorships.

A comparison of the governments of Italy, Russia, Germany, and the United States will be an phase of the lecture.

With ten years of teaching experience in the University, Dr. Weeks has acquired the reputation of being an expert in the field of political parties and political theory and has many publications on this subject to his credit. Before coming to Texas, Dr. Weeks received his Ph.D. from the University of Wisconsin.

The program of lectures will include five other lectures to be given during the summer by prominent University faculty members. Dr. C. W. Ramsdel will lecture June 22 on "Lincoln and Ford Sumter"; June 26, Dr. J. C. Dolley will talk on "Doing Something about Silver." Professor Arthur Deen will give a lecture on "Wanderings in America's Wonderland," Dr. J. E. Pearce on "Digging up the Past in Texas," and Dr. W. J. Battle on "The Athletic Contests of Ancient Greece" on July 3, 5, and 6 respectively.

Dr. C. F. Arrowood who has charge of this series of lectures spoke favorably of all the lecturers and their topics. Some of the lectures are being given at the request of students. All the lecturers are considered authorities in the field which they will discuss.

Mrs. Arch Dawson, Wichita Falls, was chosen first vice president, and Mrs. Sara Ellen Cornell, Galveston, second vice president. Mrs. Roy Miller, Fort Worth, was named secretary, and Miss Mary Katherine Boone, Dallas, treasurer.

WESTER TO TEACH

Due to an unusually large enrollment in the Spanish department Miss Lillian Wester, instructor in Romance languages, has been called back to the University to teach a class. Her office is in the New Library, Room 302.

Benedict Submits Regent's
Requests for Next Biennium

Hearings Today

$1,342,850 for Each Year
Asked for Main
Division

Hearing on the budget of The University of Texas for the biennium of 1935-37 was held by the State Board of Control on Wednesday, and Thursday, June 13 and 14.

Presenting the requests of the Board of Regents, President H. Y. Benedict reviewed the work of the institution, called to attention the standard form of accounting employed in giving a complete picture of the entire financial operations of the institution, cited figures to show that the University has the lowest cost per student of any other State-supported school of its rank in the United States and a cost per student lower than the average of the other State-supported educational institutions of Texas.

Attention was called to the fact that only about one-third of the budget for the maintenance and operation of the University, and, of course, no part of the expenditures for permanent buildings, comes from the general revenue of the State. The remainder is appropriated from the available University fund and from fees paid by students.

The Regents have requested a total of $1,342,850 for the Main University and $246,870 for the medical branch for each year of the 1935-37 biennium. The budgetary recommendations for each year include items of salaries of $1,182,850 for the Main University and $206,870 for the medical branch; maintenance and equipment of $100,000 for the Main University and $40,000 for the medical branch; and $60,000 for the summer session at the University. The salary requests contemplate restoring salaries which were cut by approximately 25 to 30 per cent at the last regular session of the Legislature.

By way of comparison with the new biennium, actual budget for the 1933-35 biennium is noted. The 1933-35 budget of the Regents for all expenditures—for which funds are secured from the general revenue of the State, fees, and the available University fund—was $1,659,101.35 for the Main University and $270,715.07 for the Medical branch for the year 1932-33 and $1,520,287.32 for the Main University and $194,232 for the Medical branch for 1933-34, the current year.

The requests for the next biennium are substantially lower than the requests for the present biennium. When submitting the budget two years ago for the 1933-35 biennium, the Regents requested the right to expend each year $1,966,870 from the general revenue for the Main University and $270,760 from the general revenue for the Medical branch. The Legislature actually appropriated from the general revenue of the State for the Main University $1,276,675 and for the Medical Branch $238,580 for the 1932-33 session and $495,335 for the Main University and $172,662.50 for the Medical branch for the 1933-34 session.

What is the center of attraction on the third floor of the PHI DELT house?

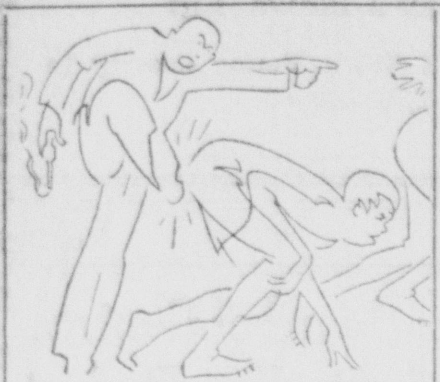

Yes, MARJORIE DAVISSON, we hope ADOUE PARKER gets that job too.

BOB HORNBERGER, why don't you give the girls a break? You look lonesome riding alone.

AUBREY GREENWOOD, please give the cause for the week you and HARVEY PENLAND were in last week.

Believe it or not: BILL WOOD really gave his fraternity pin to a certain Kappa. Haven't you seen?

PINKIE WYNN couldn't get a late date at Barbish's last week.

This SPORTING World

By STANLEY GUNN
Associate Sports Editor

TODAY at Cleveland, Ohio, three Longhorn golfers will represent the University in the National Intercollegiate Golf Meet which will continue through June 16. Ed White, twice singles champion of the Southwest Conference and captain-elect of the 1935 squad; John Payne, 1934 captain; and Charles Kistenmacher, team member, will try to better the fourth place won last year. In last year's meet, held at Williamsville, New York, Texas finished fourth behind Yale, who won the tourney, and ahead of Notre Dame and Michigan. Of this year's Texas entrants White and Payne competed last season. As a result of this experience in national competition, the leading Steer golfers should go far toward winning the title. In the Southwest Conference meet this year the Steers won the singles and the team titles.

Ox Emerson—

OX EMERSON, one of the greatest guards ever seen on a Southwest Conference gridiron, is back in school for the summer, working toward his law degree. He said yesterday that he would go to Detroit next fall to play professional football. While at Texas he captained the 1930 team, was chosen on the all-conference eleven, and received honorable mention for the All-American team of 1930. Since leaving Texas, Emerson has played three years of pro football with the Portsmouth (Ohio) Spartans. He was named on the All-American pro team for two seasons. Last year he studied law at Ohio State.

Frog Dope—

SPEAKING of football reminds us that Coach Dutch Meyer of T. C. U. is bemoaning the lack of experienced wingmen which he needs to round out his first varsity team. The only prospect with conference experience is Melvin Diggs. Others who will report next fall include Aubrey Linnie, L. D. Meyer, Tommy Adams, Willie Wallis, and Walter Roach. Linnie seems to be slated for service. He is a junior college transfer from San Antonio and is a husky capable of handling the job. The Frog backfield will be ace high with Joe Coleman, Jimmy Lawrence, Dan Harston, Howard Pulliam, Taldon Manton, Scott McCall, Sam Baugh, and others to draw from. The guards will be weak with only one letterman back, Tracy Kellow. Cotton Harrison is the most likely of the newcomers. Darrell Lester will play center and Judy Truelson, Wilson Groseclose, and Paul Hill are the most potential tackle candidates.

Special Train—

BILL HITZELBERGER of Dallas, who sponsored the Texas special train to Harvard in 1931, is planning another special to carry Texans to see the Texas-Notre Dame game at South Bend, Indiana, or the Rice-Purdue game at Lafayette, Indiana. Both of the games are carded for October 6. The combination affair will leave Texas in one or more de luxe special trains and will carry the rosters for both schools, the band, etc. Hitzelberger plans to include a visit to the World's Fair at Chicago and also world's series game should the St. Louis Cards or the Chicago Cubs win the National League championship. The trip will be good for a minimum of three weeks with the added privilege of returning on a regular train. In case you are interested in making reservations get in touch with Lee Broilier, of Houston, or W. H. Hitzelberger, 3804 Normandy, Dallas.

Pinky Higgins—

WELDON HART, the Austin Statesman sports editor, waxes hot—and loyally—to the defense of Michael Francis Higgins, who is known in these parts as Pinky Higgins. The former Longhorn baseball captain is running a close second in the nationwide poll selecting players for the All-Star game to be played at the Polo Grounds in New York on July 10. At this writing the Athletics' third baseman is behind Jimmy Dykes of Chicago. Weldon points out that Higgins has a far better batting average than Dykes. The Sporting News says that the stellar protege of Uncle Billy Ditch is even better this season than last season, when he finished the year with a record included playing in every inning of every game in the 1933 championship season and concluding the year with a batting average of .314. His fielding, both this year and last year, leaves nothing to be desired and at present he and Jimmy Fox are the Athletics' principal candidates for the American League All-Star team.

Gleanings—

GATHERED from here and there at a great risk of life and limb, Harrison Stafford may play professional football next fall. . . . Bill Smith is working for the Humble Company at Cisco. . . . Olin Dutra, new U. S. open golf champ, will team with Walter Hagan in a barnstorming tour—he should realize about $25,000 a year from the tour. . . . Guy Bush, Chicago Cub ace, says that the secret of pitching success is "control and a high, hard one."

Five Longhorn Track Stars Get in Shape for National Meet

Four Steers Put On Exhibition For Littlefield

By WARREN COOPER

Five members of the University of Texas track and field team, who have been invited by the national committee to compete in the national collegiate track and field carnival at Los Angeles June 22 and 23 along with outstanding college athletes from other sections of the United States, ended the first week of training for the national event Saturday.

Four of the Texas athletes, Captain Alex Cox, Forrest Wilson, Mule Wilson, and Jay Arnold, have been doing their training at Memorial Stadium. Chink Wallender, dash man of the group, has been working out daily at his home in Tyler. Wallender will finish the last part of the training at Memorial Stadium.

Saturday at the stadium Cox, Arnold, and the two Wilsons put on exhibitions for Coach Littlefield. Cox stepped the quarter in 49 seconds; Forrest Wilson, the high hurdles in 14.9 seconds; Mule Wilson made the mile in 4 minutes and 40 seconds, and Jay Arnold got over 190 feet on the javelin three times.

Hardin Favored

Cox will compete with one of the greatest array of quarter milers ever to be assembled in the national meet. Slat Hardin, winner of the event last year in the national meet, and who set a new record in the Southern Conference this spring with the time of 47.6 seconds, is the favorite. Other stellar quarter men who will compete are Faqua of Indiana, Green of A. C. C., and Brothers of Rice.

Berkeley Bell Wins Tennis Title

Berkeley Bell, former University of Texas tennis star, won the Brooklyn singles tennis championship last Sunday by defeating Leonard Hartman of New York, 6-0, 7-5, 8-6. He also shared the doubles title as he and Gregory S. Hangan of Newark defeated Cliff Sutter of New Orleans and Robert Law of New York, 8-6, 5-7, 6-1.

In his march to the singles title, Bell did not lose a set. He eliminated three players in quick order to be the first one to reach the quarter-finals. He reached the finals by downing William Thompson, 6-0, 6-3.

Clifford Sutter of New Orleans and Gregory S. Mangin of Newark, seeded number one and two respectively, were eliminated in the second round. Bell was seeded number three.

Bell was one of the foremost college players in the United States during the three years he was a member of the Texas team. In 1928, his first year as a varsity player, he won the singles championship of the Southwest Conference and shared the doubles title with a teammate.

At the conference meet in 1929 he lost the singles title to his teammate, Bruce Barnes, but teamed with Barnes to win the doubles crown. At the national meet he won the singles title by defeating Gregory S. Mangin of Georgetown University. He and Barnes were runners-up in the doubles.

Bell did not get to finish out his third year as a member of the Texas team as he was drafted for the Davis Cup team.

Four Regents Meet; Discuss Building Plans

Tower of Old Main Building To Be Saved For Shrine

Four members of the University Board of Regents—Chairman Beauford H. Jester of Corsicana, Charles I. Francis of Wichita Falls, Dr. A. K. Aynesworth of Waco, and L. J. Sulak of La Grange—met in Austin Monday and discussed with Architect Paul Cret and University officials the plans for the new Main Building-Library Extension. Preliminary plans for the building have been approved and this matter will be considered further at the next meeting of the Regents which will probably be held July 21.

A quorum of the Board was not present and no formal action was taken on the matters discussed.

Two of the regents conferred with a group of ex-students and representatives of the Austin Chamber of Commerce on a proposal to save the material from the tower of the old Main Building, soon to be demolished, and to rebuild the tower as a historic shrine on a suitable site on the campus. Those conferring with the Regents included: John A. McCurdy, secretary of the University Ex-Students Association, Charles H. Page, architect, and president of the University Dads and Mothers Association, Dr. Goodall Wooten, Hubert Jones, vice-president of the Austin Chamber of Commerce, and Fred C. Morse.

Regents Agree

The two regents who conferred with the committee agreed to take steps to see that the material from the entire tower was preserved and that a suitable site for the rebuilt tower would be provided on the campus. The ex-students and other Austin citizens interested in the plan were to investigate the possibility of raising the $20,000 or $30,000 necessary to finance the project. Paul P. Cret of Philadelphia and Robert Leon White of Austin, architect and associate architect respectively for the new building, will confer on plans for the rebuilding of the tower.

The contract with E. B. Sneed of Austin for the demolition of the old Main Building is now before the State Engineer of the Public Works Administration for approval.

Faculty legislation pertaining to a new schedule of holidays and to intermissions between classes will probably be considered by the Regents at their July meeting.

POST OFFICE MOVED

The University Station United States Post Office has been moved from the Main Building to the downstairs of the Old Library Building, due to the demolition of the Main Building.

Former Student Buried Monday

Edward Murray Dies After Being Operated On

Edward Stuart Murray, student in the University during the last long session, died Sunday at St. David's Hospital. Murray was to have received his bachelor of business administration degree Monday, June 4, but was undergoing an emergency operation for appendicitis at that time.

His death came as the result of complications from the operation. Funeral services were held Monday with burial in Oakwood cemetery. He is survived by his mother, Mrs. J. P. Murray.

While in school Murray was a member of the Business Administration Council and senior class representative.

Haunts—

In order to obtain adequate free transportation for holders of summer school activity tickets who wish to go, Dean Moore asks that that his office be notified not later than 1 o'clock on June 20, the day of the excursion. Students using their own cars are asked to follow as closely as possible the buses carrying the excursionists.

Betty Compson will play the lead in the feature, "The Lady Bird" which will be shown at the Open Air Theater Saturday night. In addition to the feature there will be a comedy and a scenic, the department of visual education announced Wednesday.

PLAYS GANGSTER ROLE

Edward Brophy handled his gangster role in "The Thin Man" so masterfully that he has been cast in another choice gangster role in the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, "Hideout."

Concert—

(Continued from Page 1) by George Briegel of "Cowboy Melodies" including "Home on the Range" will bring the music nearer home. Sousa's immortal "Stars and Stripes Forever" will conclude the program.

While only "Carico" of the late hit tunes has been named on the program, a number of others, probably "You Nasty Man," "Way on Wheels," "Cocktails for Two," "Boulevard of Broken Dreams," etc., will be interpreted between the heavier numbers.

Stark Young—

(Continued from page 1) three novels, a book of short stories, and has found time to work as dramatic critic for several newspapers from time to time.

"It is difficult to advise a young college student who wants to write," Mr. Young explained. "So much depends on the individual. I suppose he should go on and get a degree. And then live and read books and get to know people. Then, if you're going to write, you'll write because you can't help yourself."

"Two important ideas which the young writer should keep before him are these: He should learn to recognize the essential difference between pieces of work; that is, he must be able to look at a piece of writing and discern the thing which distinguishes it from every other bit of writing. And he must study good models—learning how to say things in the best possible way."

"Of course, to have people interested in your work helps make the labor easier."

On past midnight, Mr. Young talked—about Sherwood Anderson, Allen Tate, Julia Peterkin, Ellen Glasgow, J. Frank Dobie, the Curtin Club, Nijinsky, Nathan, Austin whiskey, and books.

Sometime near morning he accompanied me down to the gate. "I hope you have enough for a story," he said. "You know, I'm the hardest person in the world for you to write about, because I haven't married... say, Mary Pickford."

Conscience—

Writes Novel With Wife With his wife, Dr. Tsanoff has written a novel on the struggle for freedom in Bulgaria which is entitled, "Pawns of Liberty."

Mr. Tsanoff was born in Kansas. Before her marriage she was Corinne Stephenson. His civic pride and his love for music has led Dr. Tsanoff to take great interest in the Houston Symphony Orchestra. "It is our immediate hope for Austin and The University of Texas that you will invite the Houston Symphony Orchestra to give you a concert during the coming season," he says. He likes mountain tramping, especially climbing.

Besides the novel, Dr. Tsanoff has published four other works as well as various articles and essays in philosophical journals. His books are: "Schopenhauer's Criticism of Kant's Theory of Experience," "The Problem of Life in the Russian Novel," "The Problem of Immortality," and "The Nature of Evil." He has contributed, with various philosophical writers, in forming a symposium and writing a book on Modern Idealism in America. His chapter was entitled "The Theory of Moral Value." At the International Congress of Philosophy at Oxford in 1930, he read a paper and was previously on the committee of arrangements when this congress was held in Cambridge, Mass. He is a member of the American Philosophical Association.

Dr. Tsanoff has taught twice before in The University of Texas, but this is the first time he has been here since 1927.

Valuable Picture Given University

Mexican Art Work Donated By Former Student

A picture of Christ's departure from his disciples, a valuable piece of Mexican art, has been presented to the University by Miss Mary Carrol, who was graduated from here in June. Miss Mattie Austin Hatcher, archivist in the Library, announced Wednesday. The picture is done in oils in rich shades of blue, red, and gray, and is on a canvas four feet wide and five feet long. It came from the Valley of Puebla, Mexico, and was created as a memorial to Licenciado Don Nicholas Garcia de Figueroa.

The work is characterized by a rhythmic flow of action which is particularly striking. John in the picture is reminiscent of Leonardo da Vinci's "Last Supper."

This gift lays the foundation for the collection of Spanish and American Art at the University. A small group of portraits of Mexican rulers forms the nucleus of this collection. Portraits of Antonio de Mendoza, first viceroy of Mexico, and Antonio Margie de Jesus, founder of the first permanent mission in Mexico, are among the group, which at present are hanging in the archives of the New Library.

T. C. U. Coaches Are Ex-Students

Meyer, Wolf, Clark, Grubbs Will Be Mentors

FORT WORTH, June 13.—A coaching staff composed entirely of its own graduates will be the unique situation at Texas Christian University when school opens next fall.

Coach Meyer was a football end, baseball pitcher, and basketball forward. He closed a brilliant career for the Purple and White in 1922.

Injury Halts Career

Wolf was one of the finest of the number of great football line-men produced at T. C. U. and good enough in baseball to step from the campus to the big league upon his graduation in 1927. A knee injury kept him from going ahead in baseball.

Clark, being small, was never a great star, but he was a hard-working member of both football and track squads. He graduated in 1927.

Grubbs lettered in baseball and football and is rated as one of the most brilliant quarterbacks the conference has seen. He helped lift the Horned Frogs to their first football championship in 1929, his senior year.

RUGBY FOOTBALL FILMED

Ruby, the world's oldest sport, is to be the subject of an oddity to be filmed by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. Pete Smith is to add explanatory remarks to the short which will trace the history of the sport from the present day down to 500 B.C.

Minor City League Discussed Tonight

Plans for the organization of a Minor City League will be held in the City Recreation Department at the City Library on Ninth and Guadalupe streets Thursday evening at 8 o'clock.

Harvey Williams, city baseball promoter, has called this meeting for the purpose of re-organizing a baseball league for the benefit of those who are not able to play in the City League.

Any student who desires to play or enter a team in the league this year may do so by calling Mr. Williams at the City Recreation Department, or by calling The Summer Texan office.

Joseph's Man's Shoppers, who have monopolized the winning of the Minor League championship in its two years of existence, will not enter a team in the league this year. South Austin Rangers, Handy-Andy Ramblers, and the Austin Advertisers are expected to enter stronger teams in this year's race.

The Minor League games will be played two afternoons and two nights a week in regular schedule games.

Association Names Kone Field Adviser

Marilee Kone, University of Texas sophomore, was given the position of Southwest field counselor at the annual conference of the Southwest Christian Association held at Hollister, Mo., from June 1 until June 10, W. A. Smith, Y.M.C.A. secretary, announced Wednesday.

University of Texas students attending the conference were Elizabeth Hollander, Violet Most, Frances Mueller, Nannette Crouse, Marilee Kone, Nanine Simmons, Lady Dodson, Louise Nichols, Margaret Grasty, Sarah Margaret Blair, Mary Elizabeth Garrett, Alvin Scaff, Paul Rocks, O. C. Brown, and Curtis Dunk.

Miss Margaret Peek and W. H. Smith, student life secretaries for women and men, also attended.

The meeting was held on the White River at the Y.M.C.A. camp. In addition to the conferences, lectures, and meetings, swimming, riding, and other sports were engaged in.

Old Main Building Painted by Everett

The last painting to be made of the Main Building before its demolition was executed two weeks ago by Ramond Everett, Associate Professor of Freehand Drawing and Painting. The finished work appeared shortly after completion in the window of one of the local book stores.

Professor Everett spent four three-hour periods with his easel and brushes on the campus, and eight additional hours of finishing work at his home. The picture is a 24 by 30-inch restoration of the building as it appeared in the eighteen nineties before the addition of the present steps, and was done to catch the spirit of the building for those familiar with it at that time.

As yet, no name has been given to the work, but it will probably be named before it is sold to a private party who desired the painting to be done before the work of razing the structure was begun, Professor Everett said.

Alexander Says Teachers Needed

Modern Instructor Seems Better Trained

There is no over supply of competent teachers in the United States today, but actually there is a shortage. This is the opinion of Dr. Carter Alexander visiting professor of education from the Teachers' College of Columbia University.

"The opportunities for the able person who prepares himself are better than ever before, but not for everybody who simply wants to be a teacher. It takes more ability and training to be a teacher than formerly," he explained.

He thinks the teachers of today are no better than the master teachers of former years, but on the average they are better. The modern teacher is better trained.

Regarding the educational situation in the United States today Dr. Alexander said, "It is in a pretty precarious situation. Cuts in school support and the increased burden on schools in caring for more pupils have brought about a condition where the educational system is liable to be damaged before the people wake up."

Sees Improvement

He sees slight improvement in some sections, however, as evidenced by recent raises in salary.

Dr. Alexander is teaching a course in "How to Locate Educational Information and Data" and has charge of the doctor's theses in school administration. He is author of several books in this field and is generally recognized as an authority on the subject. In spite of the hot weather and large classes he insists that he is enjoying his work thoroughly. He characterized the Texas student as being interested and hard working. He expressed commendation for the changes in the University since his last visit here in 1929, and termed the present building program "magnificent." Dr. Alexander will be here for the first term only.

Presbyterian School Changes Postponed

Plans for the consolidation of the four seminaries of the Presbyterian Church, which would have entailed doing away with the Austin Seminary, were squelched by a resolution introduced at the close of the annual general assembly Wednesday, May 30, in Montreat, North Carolina.

While failing to vote on the measure the assembly decided to ask all seminaries to give the matter their most serious consideration. The measure proposed would have retained the Union Theological Seminary at Richmond, Va., as the seminary for the eastern section while the Austin seminary and the Union Seminary at Decatur, Ga., would be consolidated and located at some strategic point in the west.

University Student Wins Scholarship

Margaret Soule, student in the University, was awarded a scholarship by the Daughters of the American Revolution, according to authorities.

This scholarship is awarded each year to some junior or senior girl of the University who has good grades, is active in campus activities, has good health, and needs the award.

Frogs To Have Big 1934 Football Team

FORT WORTH, June 13.—The 1934 edition of the T. C. U. Horned Frogs will have about seven men who weigh 200 pounds or better, and a number of others who will not miss the mark far.

Heading the weight list is Paul Hill, tackle from Pampa, who tilted the scales at 270 pounds in spring practice. Others of the heavyweights include Judy Truelson, Dallas, tackle, 230 pounds; Tiny Godwin, Hot Springs, Ark., tackle, 225; Darrel Lester, Jacksboro, center, 210; Clovis Green, Pampa, tackle, 206; Willie Walls, Little Rock, Ark., end, 204; Wilson Groseclose, Abilene, tackle, 200.

What To Do, What To Do—

To do or not to do (it still is the question)! What to do with the leisure time of every student enrolled in this institution in the good old summer time! One need not assume, for one definitely knows, that there is much time for play and then more play.

After classes there is the drag. The "dead" old drag which is old to most of those who have not even been in this University before! To describe it would be to take away some of its intrinsic value; one must get acquainted with it first-hand. There is nothing like a little siesta over in that direction during the middle of the morn, or at any other time one thinks about it.

But maybe it's the show, the theater, one should say. Three hours of cool comfort when outsiders are melting fast! Or perhaps it's the old swimming hole which catches the eye of the college lads and lassies. A swim and a nice chat on a blanket afterwards! Then, too, there's Dillingham's and the parks. And there's—other places one probably has already heard about or seen.

And there are magazines and books to read in the Library. And papers and magazines in the Student Union, the playhouse of the Forty Acres. And on and on—

There's many a way to spend an hour or a few moments around these parts. If one needs to know or wants to know, just ask thy neighbor!

Don't Gripe

When your gal gives you the high sign or your best beau does you wrong, don't gripe. Everyone else has probably gone through the same experience.

When you study for a quiz and then miss half the questions, don't gripe. You aren't the only person who has been in such a situation.

When someone asks to borrow your pencil and then you never see it again, don't gripe. Quite a number of persons know something about similar cases.

When your roommate dates your best girl while you are away on the week-end, don't gripe. It has happened before.

When you discover your bank account is below par, don't gripe. Why, you're just getting in with the crowd!

The Fort Worth boy who earned by cutting hair to pay his way through college has had an unusual experience. It isn't often that a young fellow can start at the top and work down.

In Omaha, Neb., they are displaying paper lingerie for women, a new style of "wear once, then throw away." This should do away with the excuse, "I just couldn't tear myself away."

A 21-year-old youth calmly told of killing his mother and brother because they kept him on a $1 weekly allowance. We fear that the court in trying this case will make no allowance, however small.

The Republicans had a hard time selecting a chairman for their national committee because their convention divided into two factions and each faction called the other one a bunch of crooks. The Democrats agree with both factions, but thought of the idea first.

The new fangled car has knee action, which is quite an improvement on the old T Model flivver which would often refuse to produce any action at all.

Soviet Russia and Japan are still having an occasional bit of trouble on the Manchukuoan front, where sooner or later our little brown brothers will twist the tail of the Soviet bear just to hear it growl.

The author of "A Slow Train Through Arkansas" was found mortally wounded the other day, and since then the Toreador is wearing a bullet-proof vest, because once or twice his offerings have been considered humorous.

IDLING ALONG

MAIN BUILDING MEMORIES

By The Toreador

Aye, tear those battered brickbats down, And cart them off to well-earned rest, With them go many a memory dear, Of days when life was young and full of zest.

When in the path of mighty progress An ancient building encumbers the land, The ax must fall where memories Have made their last great stand.

The ivy on those old gray walls Is tangled 'mong our heartstrings too, And e'en the topmost turrets high Forever shall our fancies woo.

The shacks are gone, but seldom mourned, We knew they could not always stay; But this old stronghold of the mind We felt would ever hold its sway.

But courts of men have tried its case And written a verdict that condemns; They charged no wild, nefarious crime, But found it guilty of old age.

Where shall they go who come at night? To walk thy corridors and wait, Shades of those who have gone on, 'Mong whom are many of Texas' great.

Sadly we await the coming hour, When hordes of workers we'll see; In dust shall fall the proud, old towers, To be preserved in memory.

BOOK CHATS

By VINCENT ALLEN

In the past few weeks the subject for discussion in the book world has dealt largely with the awarding of the 1933 Pulitzer Prizes for Literature; therefore, let us look at the various merits and demerits of these awards. As always, the focus of the public eye was on the novel award, and it came as a surprise when it was announced that Caroline Miller's LAMB IN HIS BOSOM was the winner of the prize. This book is a "first novel," and is exceptional in that fact; however, it is little bewildering to the person who has read consistently and intently throughout the year, to try to figure on just what basis the book was awarded the prize. It is a colorful book, and one close to the soil, dealing with the people and environments of Georgia, the author's native state, and the reader does get the impression that there is sincerity of purpose and feeling, and that the author "knows whereof she speaks"; but as for any profound or lasting literary merit, there seems to be considerable doubt in the minds of many.

We are inclined to think, however, that any book that would have received the prize would have been the target of criticism; for 1933 was indeed an exceptionally productive year in the field of fiction, and it strikes one glaringly that it was the year that yielded ANTHONY ADVERSE, and it does seem a bit strange that so notable a piece of work, so likely to have itself placed on the shelf of contemporary classics, could have been passed by without a murmur. It was also the year that gave us SOUTH MOON UNDER, and AS THE EARTH TURNS, both best sellers, and for the "soil" type of writing, among the best of the past ten years. Hence we claim the right to question whether Miss Miller's book was really the great American novel of the year; but at the same time we state that it is a book that will be read and enjoyed by those who relish a feeling of the elemental, and those who find a distinct pleasure in the freshness of a first novel.

And now to the high point of conflict in the awards, the play, MEN IN WHITE by Sidney Kingsley, also a newcomer in the field of letters and dramatic writing. This award was the most startling of all, and was the immediate beginning of a controversy that is due to last quite a while. It is pretty well known that the committee chose as its selection Maxwell Anderson's MARY OF SCOTLAND, and their decision was ignored and the prize money went to Mr. Kingsley. The play, MEN IN WHITE, is woven in and around the life in a large metropolitan hospital, and involves the struggles of a young promising surgeon and his conflict between love and the oath of Hippocrates. There is nothing unusual or even outstanding about the plot, and there is no great exhibition of dramatic genius shown, and the only basis that we can figure for the award is the fact that there are certainly ample opportunities of effective scenic effects in production; the committee of awards must have seen the play with all its effective lighting and stark realistic atmosphere. We find nothing exceptional even in the dialogue, and surely nothing could be more trite than the love life of a hospital staff with all its callousness and search for relief from everyday realities. We wonder why O'Neill's AH WILDERNESS should not have appealed to the judges as being, at least, refreshing; and representing a slice of American life well done by an artist of the drama. But then, O'Neill has had the Pulitzer three times.

Robert Hillyer's COLLECTED

POEMS was winner of the poetry competition. There are probably very few people who are familiar with Mr. Hillyer, in fact your writer had to hasten to anthologies and seek him out. The first impression is apt to be a bit disappointing, and to strike you as the usual young modern striving for blatant effects in the middle of very nicely chosen phrases. But a little deeper study of his things will yield to you a sincerity of theme, and a strong lyric quality indicative of real poetic ability. His poems are at times definitely of the school of realism; then again he dashes into the impressionistic mood; in short, he has sought and achieved something new, and he seems to have something a bit above the general run of the younger moderns. However, he has not reached full maturity, and his writing in the next few years should show whether he has the power to create living poetry.

So the Pulitzer Prize winners of another year are settled, and already we have begun to choose our possibilities for the year current. Will it be Stephen Vincent Benet's JAMES SHORE'S DAUGHTER, Stribling's UNFINISHED CATHEDRAL, the last of a great trilogy, or will there again be some unknown to snatch a literary reputation from the "gift of the gods?"

Around The World Today

By GRACE M'SPADDEN

Each nation comes face to face periodically with a crisis. These crises are a test of the caliber of a country, and a test of the people of the nation.

The United States is now confronting a problem which will in the end be one which the people must solve. The solution will depend on knowledge, and knowledge can mean power.

The lucrative business of supplying instruments of human slaughter to nations at war—or on the brink of war—has been continuing briskly since the first indications of a world war were made known. The United States, as a world power, and Great Britain are the chief sources of war munitions and aviation factories. In spite of the elimination of Paraguay and Bolivia legally as arms purchasers, as far as the United States is concerned, the latest evidence shows that exports of war material are going ahead at an increased rate to other countries engaged in international disputes.

Imports Increase

Imports into Germany were more than 21 times heavier in May than in January, 1933, just before Hitler came into power. Colombia, receiving almost three times the value of United States aviation supplies as in the three preceding months combined, led the world in the importation of war materials. China and Japan made bigger than average purchases, and Soviet Russia continued a tendency which has caused interest of some concern in other military circles. Eirstein in a recent article took occasion to warn the United States against the cultivation of a "revenge spirit" among other countries by our attitudes toward the debt question and toward the production of munition. Since our position is so important in world affairs, he advises us "to look around you and take care." Retaliation and added efforts for an authentication of the true attitude of the people can clear up our problem. It is, however, up to us to do it.

Personnel Experts Consider Methods of Recruiting Graduates

All three members of the United States Civil Service Commission, outstanding personnel and administrative experts of the national government, and representatives of twenty leading universities and colleges scattered throughout the United States were present at a conference held in Chicago June 2 and 3 to discuss the recruitment of outstanding college graduates into the administrative services of the national government, J. Alton Burdine, adjunct professor of government, announced Wednesday.

Mr. Burdine represented The University of Texas at the meeting, which was held at the University of Chicago. The conference consisted of three round-table discussions of the problems which arise in connection with the realization of the aim of improving all branches of the administrative service, particularly the higher branches, by the introduction of college trained men and women into these offices.

Many Experts Present

Among those present at the meeting were Chairman Mitchell, Mrs. McMillin, and Leonard D. White, all members of the United States Civil Service Commission; Dr. L. J. O'Rourke, Director of Scientific Research in Personnel and Administration under the Civil Service Commission; W. W. Stockberger, Director of the office of Personnel Business Administration of the Department of Agriculture; Luther Gulick, one of the first men to fight for the introduction of the merit system into the national government, now a half-time professor of government at Columbia University; R. L. Mott, Secretary of the American Legislators Association; Paul Betters, secretary of the American Association of Mayors; Clarence Ridley, head of the Association of City Managers; Louis ministration Clearing House, and representatives of twenty leading colleges and universities.

"The first problem that was discussed by the conference was how to get well-trained college graduates into the administrative services. It was felt by the conference that there are countless numbers of college graduates who have had broad training in the social sciences who would like to go into the governmental services, but who are restrained from doing so because of the lack of professionalization of the administrative branches," Burdine said.

"The ever-increasing extension of the hand of government into new fields such as the regulation of business makes it imperative that we have a host of well-trained administrative experts, men who have had training in the problems of administration. Today when we need men for high administrative offices, we take business men, lawyers, generals, politicians, men who have probably been outstanding in their own fields but who oftentimes are overwhelmed by the many problems of administration. The hope expressed by the conference was that some scheme could be devised whereby intelligent college graduates could be enabled to make a thorough study of the problems of administration so that the work of government regulation can be carried on more efficiently," Burdine continued.

White Calls Meeting

The conference was called at the behest of Leonard D. White, member of the Civil Service Commission, and long an expert in the field of administration. White desires the creation of a Junior Administrative Service, a branch of personnel which will take college graduates with broad, general training, and attach them to the higher administrative offices of the national government, thus enabling them to learn the difficulties and problems to be encountered in administration. Then these men could be put in high administrative offices in positions roughly resembling the Permanent Undersecretaries of the British Government. Such a change would greatly improve the morale and efficiency of the governmental services, Burdine believes.

The second problem taken up at the meeting was the type of exams to be given the applicants for the Junior Administrative Service. It was generally agreed by those present at the meeting that a broad, cultural exam should be given rather than a specialized test. The desire in this movement is to take men who have not had special training, but who are intelligent and have a broad background and then let the services train them in the field of public administration.

The last problem considered by the conference was the question of post-entry training. Very little has been done in this field, the Department of Agriculture being almost the single exception, in the national government, and the state of California among the states. Since the members of the Junior Administrative Class would not have any training other than a broad cultural background, it is obvious that specific and regular post-entry training would be required to make the plan a success, Burdine pointed out.

Service Needed

Several officers of the national government made the observation that the present situation showed the need of such a service. It was pointed out that the difference between the administrative efficiency and success of the N.R.A. and the A.A.A. was due largely to the fact that the Department of Agriculture, administering the A.A.A., had at its command a huge network of trained administrative agents, the county agents, who took care of the administrative work of the act, and who have done splendid work in this connection. On the other hand the N.R.A. went into the difficult task of regulating business in every nook and corner of the nation without the help of any such trained administrative staff. For the administration of the codes and the Act in general, the Administration was forced to call on local citizens, lawyers, doctors, professors, who had had no special training in administration, and who therefore have been far less efficient and less satisfactory in the execution of the N.R.A. than were the county agents in the administration of the A.A.A. This difference, it was thought by many present at the conference, explains to a large degree the respective success and failure of the A.A.A. and the N.R.A.

Would Increase Efficiency

"Since the march of government regulation is sure to continue," Burdine said, "it is certainly desirable that we have a large group of trained administrators ready to assume the task of carrying on this work. Efficiency means a saving in time and money, to both the citizen and the government, and the movement is worthy of full support from all governmental officials."

No definite plans were drawn up at the conference. The purpose of the meeting was to get the attitude of administrative experts representing colleges, governmental agencies, and extra-governmental organizations concerning the establishment of such a Junior Administrative Service, Burdine said.

The establishment of such a service is not contemplated for the immediate future, but the Civil Service Commission is steadily working on some feasible plan for the improvement of administration in the higher governmental offices.

Burdine stated, and the beginnings of such a service may be found within two or three years.

"It would be to the great advantage of both the college student who is interested in governmental affairs and work, and to the workings of governments itself to establish such a service. It would raise the prestige of the civil service, and would make more effective the administration of the various governmental functions. Although the idea is still a potentiality, there is every reason to believe that in the next few years we shall see the idea evolve into a reality," Burdine pointed out.

Full Intramural Program Planned For Next Week

Whitaker's Summer Events Score Success As Many Sign Up

Aesop said 2600 years ago: "Play and work teaches a man to always be alert!" With this purpose in mind, the intramural department of The University of Texas has inaugurated its first summer intramural program.

Play in intramurals opened this week with each sport receiving a more-than-expected good start, and with prospects for the second term looking even better.

Handball with 82 entrants received an approximate two to one lead over tennis which has 47 contestants, and horse-shoe tossing has 40 students writing home and telling "the folks" about ringing those goals like dad does at the fire-station.

Ten teams are entered in volleyball and playground ball, with activities in volleyball opened Thursday, a day after the opening of the first playground ball.

No certain time has been assigned for the playing of handball, tennis, and horse-shoe matches, but the intramural department will require at a later date that the matches be played before a certain period.

Intramural sports have been very popular at the University during the long session, and if plans go through, this type of activity will also prove to be a success in the summer session.

The following is the program outlined by the intramural department for this week:

THURSDAY, JUNE 14

Volley Ball

7:15—White Sox vs. Swank House.

7:15—Czechs vs. Tigers.

FRIDAY, JUNE 15

Playground Ball

5:15—Hawks vs. Czechs.

5:15—Swank House vs. Short-horns.

Handball

June Graduates Tell Of Summer Plans

If, perchance, you read last week's Summer Texan, you might have noticed a little story 'way down at the bottom of the page, telling of the results of a little questionnaire that the Texan sent out, asking the June graduates what they were going to do with themselves during the summer.

Since that was printed, more answered questionnaires have come in, and therefore, here they are given to you:

FAY GILCHRIST: I will be in summer school six weeks, and will probably attend the World's Fair in Chicago later.

EDGAR STULKEN: I have no definite plans for the summer. I plan to do work toward an M.A. next year.

E. O. WILEY: I will continue in my position as Director of Teacher Training at Southwest Texas State Teachers' College.

WILSON NEIL: I will spend June in camp at Mineral Wells and will probably be located in San Antonio next year.

FRED B. JONES: I will spend the summer in Mexico City as the guest of Jose Garza. I will drive through via the Pan-American Highway.

FRED N. SMITH: I plan to spend about a month in Dallas before going to the World's Fair, after which I hope to find a job.

OCTAVINE COOPER: I shall remain in Austin for six weeks to take vocational work in The University of Texas. During the next six weeks, I will visit home folks in Baton Rouge, La., and will teach next winter in Texas.

ELWOOD HAMMETT: I left Austin for New York by automobile with Lawrence Gibson Monday, June 4, on a business trip.

RUTH ANN MARSACK: I shall spend the summer at home. Next year I shall teach.

SAMUEL C. ANTHONY: I shall continue in the University this summer and next year I will work on an M.A. in government.

MAURICE WILSON ACERS: I will vacation in Harpswell, Maine and Long Beach, California. I will enter the practice of law in Dallas, Texas, next year.

PATTY TREADWELL: I will spend part of the summer on my grandmother's ranch, located near Menard, Texas.

Hogg Debating Club Arranges Activities

Plans for the summer activities of the Hogg Debating Club have been made with consideration to the teachers who expect to coach students for the Interscholastic League debating teams next year. Rex Fortenberry, reporter, announced.

At the first meeting of the club Wednesday night, in room 315 of the Union Building, definite arrangements for the summer were made. The club is anxious to build a permanent membership among the teachers in Texas who are interested in forensic activities.

All students are invited to attend the club meetings each Wednesday night at 7:30 in the Union.

Melba Farmer of Paris is attending summer school.

CHINESE ACTRESS FOUND

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's three-week search for a glistening Chinese beauty was rewarded when Helen Chan, lovely young Chinese actress was discovered by Monta Bell, producer, and signed for a featured comedy role in "Student Tour," forthcoming musical of modern college life.

BOLES-DUNN PAIRED

John Boles has recently been signed to play the leading male role opposite Irene Dunne in "Age of Innocence." This will be the first time Boles and Miss Dunne have appeared together in a picture since their work in "Street." Boles recently finished his work in "The Life of Vergie Winters," in which he appeared with Ann Harding.

Opening Today

THE HOUSE ON 56TH STREET, starring Kay Francis with Ricardo Cortez, Gene Raymond, Margaret Lindsay, and William Boyd, opens today to play through Friday at the Texas. It is the story of a showgirl who marries into a respectable family and gets entangled in a scandal when a man commits suicide.

She runs away to Europe and gets into a partnership with a gambler on board ship when he discovers how good she is at cards. Then she returns to America and finds that the old home of her husband has been converted into a gambling resort. She plays at the gaming tables, and succeeds in preventing her daughter, who has been taken over by her mother, from the same ruin she had known by taking the blame for a murder she did not commit.

THE DOUBLE DOOR

with Mary Morris, Evelyn Venable, and Kent Taylor, opens today to play through Friday at the Hancock. It is the first horror mystery to be screened in which the leading "disher-out" of terror is a woman. This is Miss Morris' first starring role in pictures, and critics have praised her splendid portrayal wherever the picture has appeared. Evelyn Venable and Kent Taylor will be remembered for the romantic interest they injected into "David Harum" with Will Rogers, and they will furnish sentiment and romance in "The Double Door" to lighten the elements of mystery and horror.

Today Only

AT THE HANCOCK is "Hold That Girl" co-starring James Dunn and Claire Trevor, who have become famous for their romantic rollicking partnership roles this year, their first being "Jimmy and Sally." This time Jimmy is a policeman and Claire is an enterprising, star reporter who usually manages to outwit the wary cop and get a scoop for her paper. "It Happened One Night" with Clark Gable and Claudette Colbert opens Friday at the Hancock.

Truly, to Ann Harding has come a role as beautiful as herself, and a picture as beautiful as her role with the production of "Gallant Lady." In this picture the beautiful and talented actress has a role typically suited to the sweep and power of her acting abilities.

So easily and swiftly did Miss Harding win her way to stardom in films that audiences tend to take her beauty and talent for a splendid and real personality and amazing beauty, a new and unique method of portrayal—a combination of a number of mannerisms has brought to the screen, besides granted, without realizing that she that make her presence on the screen infinitely close and real. An outstanding trick of hers is that of an intriguing breathlessness of speech. But her main virtue is that there is no sham about her—she is all real and alive and natural, from her severe hairdress and eyes unladen with artificial lashes, to her plainly shod feet. But one could go on forever describing her.

The story concerns a girl whose lover is killed when he tries to take off on a Trans-Atlantic hop just when she is about to have a baby. She is rescued in the park by a gallant down-and-out doctor (Clive Brook) who takes her to his rooms, stays by her when the baby is born, finds suitable parents to adopt it, and gets her a job in an interior decorating shop, owned by a most practical and amusing woman, played excellently and delightfully by Janet Beecher, noted star of the Broadway stage. Then the doctor disappears for five years, returning just as the "gallant lady" starts for Europe on business and brings back with her an Italian count (Tullio Carminati) who is persistently devoted to her. While in Paris, she encounters her small son by accident and plays with him on board ship on the way back to America. On her return she is made a partner in the firm and gets a contract to decorate the house of the adopted father of her son, who is about to remarry. She sets about to break up the engagement so she can marry the man and be the mother of her son. She is finally successful, but has to keep silent forever in regard to her relationship to the boy.

The adorable Dickie Moore plays the part of the son, and Otto Krueger is charming and fine as the adopted father. Carminati as the Italian count in his unsophisticated, boyish role, and he has a really splendid voice. Splendid, human, real—all these things can be said of "Gallant Lady." It falls just short, in some undefinable way of being a "great" picture. Estimate: B plus.

Dr. Thaddeus L. Bolton of Temple University Discloses Startling Facts

Keeping Energy Supply Constant the Secret of Keeping Workers Efficient

Twenty average typists and stenographers were "subjects" of this energy and efficiency test. Some were given no food between meals. Others were given small amounts of quick-energy food. Accurate records were kept daily over a period of two weeks. Findings of Dr. Bolton and staff were reported in a bulletin, from which we quote:

"The girls who had a 'pick-me-up' kept pounding away under full steam, with increasing and steady efficiency until the whistle blew, while the others slumped in output near the end of the day."

"Foods of high sugar content were selected, because sugar is not only a highly concentrated energy food, but one which is quickly assimilated by the system."

"Drinks, being more readily absorbed, may, according to content, affect working capacity almost immediately."

"Sufficient data was uncovered to prove that in the average case the intake of a small amount of easily assimilated food reduces fatigue and increases ability to work."

Dr. Bolton was not speaking of Dr. Pepper specifically, but what he said could hardly apply more accurately. Years before these tests, Dr. Pepper said: "Drink-a-bite-to-eat at 10, 2 and 4 o'clock." Dr. Bolton's tests prove the soundness of that advice.

What other place besides the radio do you get acquainted with everyone of great importance or of world interest? Where else can you comfortably sit with your shoes off and listen to the finest educational speeches or the most entrancing music? Radio has all these advantages and many more.

In case you are interested and didn't know: Amos 'n' Andy have not yet had a vacation since they started their broadcasts under the toothpaste sign. They will take off on the first one July 15 and will be gone eight weeks. . . Morton Downey has turned author. No, not for good, but for a day at least. His account of his personal gleanings about the World's Fair appeared recently in a morning newspaper and critics have termed it a work of a "finished reporter". . . Al Jolson and Ruby Keeler are traveling eastward. . . The Boswell sisters are doing vaudeville in Chicago, Detroit, and St. Louis.

Tony Wons first thought of his scrapbook idea when he was in the hospital at the time that the doctors had given up hope for his life. When he was thirteen Tony started scrappping for his life. Odd jobs were synonymous with his early years; then he went to the War. He came home, wounded and gassed. But Tony Wons didn't give up. It was eight years ago that Tony was given a trial broadcast, immediately after he recovered from his severe illness. Then he gave the radio audience his program, "Are You Listenin'?", and it boomed over in a big way. Since that time Tony has been keeping up his broadcasts and also working on his scrapbook which comes out in print each year. "I will never cease battling as long as I have breath in my body," Tony says, "and a worthy cause goes unchampioned." Tony can be heard every Monday and Wednesday over a CBS-WABC network at 9:30 in the morning.

Some people are just funny that way: There's Marjorie Anderson, the heroine of the Fairfax heart dramas on the NBC-WEAF network Saturdays, who will not broadcast without her great grandmother's wedding-ring on the little finger of her right hand. . . Cal York of "Forty-five Minutes in Hollywood" doesn't mind letting his friends and acquaintances borrow his airplane or his large auto, but there is no one—not even the closest of pals—who can get to use Cal's typewriter. . . Albert Spalding, one of the great American violinists, doesn't mind letting a total stranger handle his $35,000 Guarnerius violin. But just try to touch his pet tennis racket—even a member of his family can't do that.

Joe Penner is leading so far in a recent radio star's contest. He has to date 82,584 votes. Bing Crosby, 20,000 votes behind, is second among the stars. Eddie Cantor, Jack Benny, and Rudy Vallee take third, fourth, and fifth place. Among the votes for the best program, Fleischmann, Show Boat, and Chase and Sanborn have the greatest number of votes in the race at the present. The three leading orchestras include Wayne King, Guy Lombardo, and Ben Bernie. Burns and Allen are only a few thousand ahead of Amos and Andy for highest rank among the teams. But the count is not over! They will be more and more. Who will come out in the lead in the final?

And don't forget—every Sunday at 5:30 o'clock there is Joe

Eventful Year Passes Leaving Many Changes on University Campus

The events of the year of 1933-34 have marked it as one of the most outstanding in the history of the University. Nine new buildings have been erected, old ones have been torn down, and others have been planned for the "Forty Acres" of the future.

The chief incident of the fall term was the beginning of construction on the McDonald Observatory. Other buildings which were completed in the last year are the Hogg Memorial Auditorium, the Engineering Building, Geology Building, Home Economics Building, University Junior High School, Architecture Building, and Texas Union.

During the Thanksgiving holiday period the University was host for 6,000 teachers at the fifty-fifth annual meeting of the State Teachers Association.

Changes in Leaders

Changes in athletic leadership were made with Jack Chevigny of St. Edward's University taking the place of Clyde Littlefield, resigned, as football coach and the latter's being retained as track coach.

January 1 saw the removal to the new Library Building. The University obtained the federal building loan of $1,633,000 for the completion of the Library-Main Building. During the month C.W.A. Relief for students was obtained for the remainder of the school year.

In the month of February, M. E. Yount of the Board of Regents died with H. H. Weinert being named as successor. The federal tax which had been levied on All-University dances was lifted and students began paying only the usual dollar. Another change was made in athletics with the resignation of Ed Olle as basketball coach; and Tim Moynihan was made football line coach.

Hosts to Debaters

In March all-year pledging was approved by the faculty. Debaters in the Missouri Valley were guests of the University for forensic and speaking contests. Dance control was given the Board of Directors of the Texas Union by vote of the Students' Assembly.

In April came the spring elections with a new group of student officers and leaders. The financing plan for the new Main Building was approved by the Federal P.W.A. board. Professors F. W. Simonds, T. U. Taylor, Morgan Callaway, J. R. Bailey and Dean H. W. Harper were honored for their forty years of service to the University.

In May the Curtain Club celebrated its silver anniversary. Inter-scholastic Leaguers came to another state meeting sponsored by the University. Athletes carried off championships in track, tennis, and golf.

And then came final examinations and summer school.

HIGHER SALARIES ASKED

DENTON, June 13.—A resolution requesting the 44th Legislature to restore salaries of employees of Texas State College for Women (C.I.A.) to the 1931-33 level was passed at a recent meeting of the Board of Regents.

The present inadequate legislative salary scale has worked hardships of the employees, and the Board believes it is to the best interests of the State to more adequately remunerate those persons connected with the educational system of the State.

Penner and Suzabella followed by the Jimmy Durante program. Every Tuesday at 7 o'clock there's Ben Bernie and all his lads and the Blue Ribbon Malt, "the bestah in de landah." Yowsuh!

Observatory Open Every Tuesday Night

The Physics Building observatory will be open to visitors from 9 to 12 o'clock every Tuesday night during the first six weeks of the summer session. All summer students interested in the study of the sky may take advantage of this opportunity to star-gaze with Dr. E. G. Keller, associate professor of applied mathematics and astronomy.

Among the most interesting groups no visible are: The great star clouds in Sagittarius, Preecepe (cluster in Cancer), the great star cluster in Hercules, great star cluster in Centaurus, galactic cluster in Scorpius and Sagittarius, ring nebula in Tyra, Epsilon in Tyra, Mizar in Ursa Major, Jupiter, Albireo in Cyngns, nebulae in Virgo, and the Moon when it is visible.

C. I. A. Recreational Program Announced

DENTON, June 13.—With the opening of the twenty-ninth summer session at Texas State College for Women (C.I.A.), a recreational program featuring play hours, talkies, band concerts, dances, and music or dramatic recitals, has been announced by President L. H. Hubbard.

Each night during the week, the college provides one hour of entertainment and relaxation in which the students are invited to participate. Play hour, featuring tennis, swimming, baseball, skating and bicycling, initiates the week's activities, and is followed each night by other entertainment features. All activities offered on the recreational program come to the student without charge.

Peak Enrollment Passed at C. I. A.

DENTON, June 13.—Establishing a record-breaking attendance, 752 students, ten over the greatest number enrolled in the history of the college summer school, registered for work at Texas State College for Women (C.I.A.) at the end of the second day for the 29th summer session. In the 1931 session 742 students matriculated in the college, the greatest number enrolled in the summer term up to this time. This number included registration for both the first and second terms, as compared with the incomplete number now enrolled for the first six weeks. Last year at the end of the second day 364 students had enrolled for the first term with a total of 406 students registered at close of the nine weeks. Registration will continue through June
