Housing Problem Raised By
New Construction
Program

Regents of the University, meeting in Austin January 5, will hear a report from Beauford H. Jester, chairman, on the successful negotiation of the grant and loan from the Federal Public Works Administration for the construction of the Main Building-Library. They will consider the status of the University's application for allotment of funds for construction of two dormitories. This matter has been somewhat delayed because of technicalities.

The Regents are expected to consider what steps are to be taken to solve the problem of housing temporarily the large number of offices and classrooms now contained in the Main Building, B. Hall, part of the old Library, and the shack formerly occupied by the department of home economics are about the only available places for these temporary offices, and it is feared by the University administration that this space will not be sufficient.

Bids for plants to be set out on the University campus will be received at the January meeting. The University is now preparing the beds for these plants.

Progress of work on the McDonald Observatory will be reported by President H. Y. Benedict.

Macht Discusses Religious Topics

History of Religion Heard
By Group Wednesday

That religion has changed in its relationship with our everyday lives was stressed by Rabbi Wolfe Macht of Waco in a talk before an assembled group of students and townspeople at the Hillel Foundation Wednesday night.

The rabbi continued to give a history of religion by saying that it held a predominating place in the life of primitive peoples and the history of the human race up to very modern times. However, of late years this position has altered and there are other interests which have forced religion back, until now it is only one of many other interests with which we are concerned.

The speaker described theology as being dogmatic and reactionary whereas religion is living and dynamic. In this relationship, he dwelt upon the questions of why people indulge in religion and what it means to be religious.

Rabbi Sam H. Baron, director of the Hillel Foundation, said he hopes to make the talks of the "Psychology of Religion" by Rabbi Macht a regular feature of the Foundation.

Rabbi Macht is rabbi of Congregation Rodf Shalom in Waco.

Varied Christmas Customs Observed in Foreign Lands

Christmas is perhaps the only holiday that is celebrated in all the countries of the world. Whether in China, Egypt, India, Africa, Scandinavia, among the Magi, the Brahmins, or the Druids, the same leading features may be traced, and many are the strange celebrations and rituals that are found in these various countries.

In Mexico one of the queerest celebrations of Christmas is found. It is called La Pinata, and a pinata is a large jar made of clay with extremely thin sides. These jars are filled with candy, nuts, and fruit and hung in either the patio or the main room of the house. The pinatas are suspended from the middle of the room. Each member of the family and each guest is in turn blindfolded and given a stick with which to break the pinata, if he can find it. When the jar is broken there is a wild scramble to obtain the contents.

There is no Santa Claus in Spain or Mexico; his place is taken by the Three Wise Men. The parents tell the children that the camels of the wise men will be hungry; so each child fills his shoes with grass to feed the camels and to receive the presents in, then sets them in the window.

In France and Germany years ago, the Twelfth Cake was celebrated as one of the feasts of Christmas. Christmas lasted for twelve days which represented the twelve days that it took the wise men to follow the star to its destination. On the twelfth night the students of the colleges, and the people would prepare a cake and put a bean in it. The cake was then cut up and the person to whom the piece with the bean fell was king for the evening.

The practice of decorating churches and houses with evergreen trees and branches is of very early date. The Jews used them in their Feast of Tabernacles. Some of the early councils, however, decided that this practice savored of paganism, and in 610 the practice was abolished. Later the custom was revived by the ancient Teutons who celebrated the season by decking a fir tree. The fir tree symbolized to them the rising of the sun. A star was usually hung at the top, and apples, nuts, and balls, symbolizing the sun, moon, and stars around the sides.

Retail Sales For Last Month Show Increase in State

Bureau Reports 14 Per Cent
Increase Over 1932
Statistics

An increase of 14 per cent in retail dollar sales occurred in November, 1933, over November, 1932, according to reports to the University Bureau of Business Research from 91 retail stores located in all sections of Texas.

The decline in sales from October to November was about equal to the average drop between these two months for the past seven years, the bureau's report said. Total sales for the year to December 1 were still below those of the corresponding period last year, but the discrepancy has now dwindled to only 2.8 per cent. During the early months of the year sales were more than 20 per cent below those of the corresponding month of the previous year.

All cities from which reports are received show a gain over November, 1932, but only Austin, Galveston, Port Arthur and San Antonio registered an increase over October. Abilene, Houston, Port Arthur, San Angelo and Wichita Falls are the only cities to report larger sales for the first eleven months of the year than in the corresponding period in 1932.

Department stores having annual sales of $500,000 or more each showed an increase of 31 per cent over November, 1932, while those with an annual volume of less than $500,000 had sales 31 per cent greater than those of last year. Increases in women's specialty shops and men's clothing stores were 14 and 20 per cent respectively above sales in these stores during November, 1932. The only group to show a drop from last year was dry goods and apparel stores, and the decline in this group was only 2.6 per cent below that of the corresponding month last year. The ratio of collections to outstanding accounts was 34 per cent, compared with 30 per cent in November, 1932.

Organization Is Connected With Guild At Washington

Paul J. Thompson, chairman of the department of journalism, and Granville Price, adjunct professor of journalism, members of the editorial staffs of the three local newspapers, wire service writers, and capitol correspondents here have formed an Austin Newspaper Guild. It is believed that this association is the first to be formed of editorial workers in Texas.

The first meeting was held Sunday, December 17, when temporary officers were elected. The next meeting will be Sunday, December 31, at which time a constitution which is now being formed will be adopted, Mr. Thompson said.

The Austin Guild is connected with the National Newspaper Guild formed last week at Washington, D. C. The purpose of the Austin association is to improve the conditions under which newspaper men and women work and to protect their rights by collective action. At the same time the guild intends to cooperate with newspapers and the government under the approved newspaper codes. The members are attempting to devise measures for testing the qualifications of candidates for membership and to promote any objectives which may tend to elevate the status and improve the qualifications of all members of the journalistic profession.

Other aims of the society are to ascertain the law and practice relating to all things connected with the journalistic profession and to watch any legislation affecting the discharge by newspaper workers of their professional duties. The association will try to secure the advancement of journalism in all its branches to the end of obtaining for journalists definite and recognized professional standing.

Speaker Discusses Journalistic Field

Mrs. E. L. Steck, formerly connected with The Houston Chronicle, spoke to Theta Sigma Phi, honorary journalism fraternity for women, Wednesday. Mrs. Steck discussed the advantages and handicaps of women in the newspaper field. Pledge services for Adelina Bubella, Isabel Wofford, Norma Collard, Grace McSpadden, Ruth Bownds, and Mabel Shelby were held.

Election to Theta Sigma Phi is by invitation, based on scholarship, leadership, and journalistic ability. Juniors who have a "B" record in journalism and a "C" record in other subjects are eligible. Twenty members are allowed with elections in the fall and spring.

Time Gets Short, Shorter, Shortest

Old man sun was visible only 10.2 hours Thursday, December 21—the shortest day of the year.

The winter solstice, the point in the ecliptic at which the sun is farthest south from the equator, will occur at 12:15 today, December 22. The winter solstice is so called because the sun then apparently stands still in its southward motion and then starts moving in the other direction.

The longest day of the year, about June 21, is called the summer solstice. At this time fourteen and one-fourth hours of sunlight are recorded.

Plans Completed For Recreation Program in Gym

Carol Singing and Tableaux
Featured in Annual Celebration

Plans have been completed for the annual Christmas pageant and choral program to be held at Gregory Gymnasium tonight at 7:30 o'clock under the auspices of the city recreation department, James A. Garrison, city recreation superintendent, announced recently.

The tableaux will be composed of the following Austin men and women: Mrs. Dan Greider, Mrs. Martin Elliott, Frank Calvert, B. P. Pilcher, Victor Kormeier, M. L. Beggen, John McCurdy, Dr. J. M. Kuehne, and Frank Gallagher.

After a musical prelude by the civic orchestra under the direction of Carl Edward Boch, the Rev. H. C. Garrison of the Central Christian Church will give the invocation, followed by a Scriptural reading by the Rev. Leon Latimer of the First Baptist Church.

The two choral clubs, assisted by musicians from all local churches, will lead the audience in the singing of Christmas carols, and will conclude the program by singing "Lo, How a Rose E'er Blooming" by Praetorius.

Stayton Releases Law Resolutions Passed in Dallas

Bar Association Requests
Examinations For State Lawyers

Make 6 Changes

Proposals to Be Taken Up
In El Paso Meeting
January 6

Resolutions and definite recommendations made by the committee on legal education and admission to the bar and adopted by the State Bar Association at its meeting in Dallas, have been announced by Judge Robert W. Stayton, professor of law, who attended the session. Judge Stayton, a member of the committee, makes the following announcement:

(1) That Article 307 of the Revised Statutes which is the law requiring the Supreme Court to exempt graduates of certain law schools from the requirement of examination for license to practice law, was recommended to be repealed, and that all applicants for admission to the bar be required to take an examination, under the supervision of the Supreme Court; said repeal to be effective three years after passage by the Legislature.

(2) That the Supreme Court immediately revoke its present rule exempting graduates from certain out-of-the-State schools from taking the examination as a prerequisite to the issuance of a license to practice law in Texas.

(3) That it is the sense of the committee that we endorse educational standards for admission to the bar promulgated by the American Bar Association and recommend that the Supreme Court raise the present educational requirements for applicants for law license, with a view of attaining the requirements of the American Bar Association as soon as conditions will permit.

(4) That the standards of admission to the bar of Texas should be raised with respect to immigrant attorneys and applicants for license from other states. The committee, however, did not formulate at this meeting detailed recommendations, as they desired to complete the study that they are now making of this problem before doing so.

(5) The committee unanimously recommended that the Supreme Court revoke its present rule permitting partial examinations of applicants for the bar, and requiring that each applicant pass at one examination all the subjects before receiving his license.

(6) We recommend that the Supreme Court require each applicant for a law license to take and pass an examination on legal and judicial ethics in addition to the subjects now required.

The resolutions will be presented and voted on at the meeting of the State Bar Association of Texas in El Paso in January at which Judge John C. Townes of Houston will preside.

Ayer Appointed Consultant For Course Revision

Plans for Carrying Out
Curriculum Changes
Approved

Dr. Fred C. Ayer, professor of educational administration, has been appointed general curriculum consultant by the executive committee of the Texas State Curriculum Revision Program.

Plans for carrying out the program of curriculum revision as submitted by this committee have been unanimously approved by the Texas State Teachers Association, the Section on Superintendence of the Association, and the State Board of Education. The University of Texas, together with all other senior colleges of Texas, is co-operating with the committee, said Dr. Ayer.

A meeting of the heads of all senior colleges, both State and denominational, was called Tuesday morning by L. A. Woods, State superintendent of public instruction, to consider program and plans for a conference on curriculum revision. This conference, sponsored by The University of Texas, is to be held in Austin during the first week of the second term of the summer session of 1934, Dr. Ayer said. The conference is the result of the development of a program to train teachers, supervisors, and administrative officers to participate properly in curriculum revision.

Other problems confronting the committee on curriculum revision are the setting up of proper subordinate committees, the development of a permanent curriculum division with a special staff in the State Department of Education, the financing of the program, and the integration of the various organizations and committees in the State of Texas now working on problems of curriculum revision.

University and City Officials Extend Greetings

Deans Follow President and Mayor in Wishing 'Merry Christmas'

With students and faculty members leaving for all parts of Texas and the United States, the deans of the various schools and colleges of the University together with the President of the University and the mayor of Austin extend holiday greetings, wishing those students and teachers a merry Christmas and a happy New Year.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Y. Benedict Christmas greetings were extended Thursday by President and Mrs. H. Y. Benedict to the students of the University.

Their message for Christmas and the New Year was as follows: "The gloom that everywhere engulfs the world

Is not by nature made but by man's acts:

Our grief is not caused by a fading sun,

Our hunger is not caused by lack of coal or wood,

Nor jobless men by lack of tasks to do.

Defects in man have brought defeat to man:

He's plumed the seas and flown above the clouds, Made glorious music and great literatures;

He's traced the atom's course and weighed the stars, And in ten thousand ways done noble deeds,

But yet has failed his crowning deed to do.

He's failed to keep alive throughout the year

The precious spirit of the Christmastide,

And joy will not be his until he puts

Good will to men in more complete control

Of human actions on this turning world

And so obeys the teachings of the Christ.

MR. AND MRS. H. Y. BENEDICT.

Tom Miller

To those students who return home to spend Christmas week, we hope you will find your families enjoying the best of health and that you may safely go to them and return as safely.

To the faculty of the University, whom we consider among our highest type of citizen, we express at this time our cordial appreciation of your efforts to make a great cultural center.

is not only of great value to the students and the faculty of the University, but it will also occupy some of our citizens in work towards its completion and add much to our already beautiful city. Always first in our hearts is the University as an institution, and our city is striving to match step in its progress.

We hope you will feel free at all times, both students and faculty, to call upon us for whatever help we can render.

Wishing you a prosperous New Year in scholastics, athletics, and social activities, I am,

Sincerely yours,

Ollemen Defeat Brown Paper Mill Quintet by 53-48 Score

Speaking of Sports With Highlights of '33, A Few Quick Peeks at '34, Then a Very Merry Xmas

By RICHARD M. MOREHEAD

Nineteen thirty-three—the most hectic year in the history of the Southwest Conference. With the greatest upsets on the football field in the memory of any going to school now. The year of Ed Olle's basketball masterpiece. A year of Texas supremacy in all but two conference sports. A year of turmoil over a losing football team that resulted in Clyde Littlefield's resignation from the post of football coach after seven years of outstanding service.

Nineteen thirty-three—the year sophomore Jack Gray set a new scoring record in basketball with 82 points in a single game against Texas A. & M., 154 points in conference play, and a grand total of 293 for the season.

Nineteen thirty-three—Cotton-topped Ed Meyers carried the conference track meet for Texas with brilliant victories in the 100 and 220-yard dashes on the Memorial Stadium paths.

Nineteen thirty-three—Herschel (Slim) Kinzy pitched Francis Schmidt's Purple baseball team into a victory over Texas and the title.

Nineteen thirty-three—The Steers took a pair of sparkling victories from the touted University of Arkansas cagers in Gregory Gymnasium the nights of January 14 and 15. The first time they had won both games in five years.

Nineteen thirty-three—The Porkers won their first grid victory in history from Texas to finish the season with the best record in the conference.

Nineteen thirty-three—Ernie Koy's long home run over the Clark Field wall—the longest on record.

Nineteen thirty-three—Little Pat Ankenman combed Detroit Tiger pitchers for a single, double, and triple in their appearance here.

Nineteen thirty-three—The roar of the crowd on Fite Nite.

Nineteen thirty-three—Uncle Billy Disch's great infield, Price, McDowell, Ankenman, and Viebig.

Nineteen thirty-three—Hillard vs. Southern Methodist University.

Nineteen thirty-three—Harry Mayne's last minute field goal to bring a 10-all tie for Texas in that game-of-games at College Station Thanksgiving Day.

Nineteen thirty-three—Aubrey Stringer's field goal that gave his Baylor mates victory in the final seconds of the game.

Look back over these and you can still get a glow from that feeling that comes only when champions perform. The march of time has removed many of the heroes from the sports rolls in the conference, but there will be other youngsters eager-eyed and vibrant—champions in 1934.

If this writer were awarding a prize for the most thrilling single event of the year, it would end in duplicate prizes being given to Harry Mayne and Aubrey Stringer whose field goals won immortality for them against Texas and A. & M. respectively. They were the kind who brought the crowd to its feet screaming—not just their supporters, but the rooters for both teams. A great pair of kicks that stood above any other event in a thrill-filled football game.

A New Year is looking us in the face now. It will bring new thrills, and new champions. Our team—The University of Texas Longhorns—will be in the middle of every fight in the conference.

It is expecting too much, perhaps, for the basketball five now in Louisiana to repeat their championship performance of last year, but we do have a chance.

Coach Littlefield has bright prospects for his 1934 track team, with a great bunch of sophomores and several outstanding lettermen back to carry on. One of the greatest of the new men is George Wilson, a distance runner who has beaten everything he opposed thus far. Wilson took Simmons, undefeated A. C. C. runner, handily this past fall. Littlefield expects great things of him this year, as he does of Alex Cox, team captain and conference record holder in the 440-yard dash, and of "Chick" Wallender, great sophomore dash artist.

Uncle Billy Disch says the Steers will have another good baseball team, second only on pre-season dope to the Horned Frogs. With some new material on hand, he may turn out another championship nine.

C. J. (Shorty) Alderson has a large bunch of tankmen from which to mold another championship crew in swimming.

The greatest interest in minor sports and intramurals in years is predicted for the 1934 calendar.

Stanley Gunn, fellow scribe on this sheet, spoke a parable when he said that what Texas needed more than a $20,000 per year coach was interest in the teams that our coaching staff develops. It is not the coaches' teams—IT IS OUR TEAM, A PART OF THE UNIVERSITY OF TEXAS.

"Put first on your New Year's resolutions," says Gunn, "to support the team, win or lose . . . and they won't lose so much."

School spirit may be old-fashioned, but we can't help believing down here in the sports department that it is as valuable in college life as the acquiring of a fraternity pin, or even a degree.

The Texas spirit that you hear about even in remote sections of the State. The spirit of 1933 will never bring students to this great school. Personally, it is nothing at all to boast about—but let's start out together in the New Year and be part of the University athletics. Not just the part that criticizes when the team loses.

With that, Speaking of Sport and Sports Editor Owen Englis! join voices with the rest of the staff, Bruce Collier, Stanley Gunn, Warren Cooper, Gordon Strachan, Joe Storm, and Ted Turner. "Looking Over the 'T' Men," in wishing you that old fashioned wish—MERRY CHRISTMAS AND A HAPPY NEW YEAR!

Jean Francis Stars With Accurate Shooting

Last night the University Longhorns cagers defeated the Brown Mills team composed of former college stars 53 to 48 in the first of a two game series.

Spectacular shooting and vicious guarding on the part of the University hardwood aces featured the hard-fought contest. Jean Francis was high point man scoring eleven field goals and one free shot for a total of 23 points and playing a stellar defensive game for the Texas basketweavers.

Second to Francis on the Texas team was Jack Gray who looped the bucket for six field goals and one free shot scoring thirteen points before being removed from the game on four personal fouls.

Thompson, speedy and accurate forward, scored nine of the Steer points with four field goals and one free shot and played a bang up game all the time that he was in the contest. Fagan, captain and guard of Ed Olle's 1934 quintet, played one of the best defensive games of his career and managed to drop one field goal and two free throws through the net.

Pennington, promising forward from last year's freshman team, and Taylor, his running mate, each played bang up games and shared final scoring honors with a field goal each for a total of four points which wound up the Longhorn scoring spree.

Phillips, forward, was high point man for the Brown Paper Mills cage team, hitting the iron ring with six perfect tosses and two free throws for fourteen points. Phillips was the star of the Paper crew and dashed through the Longhorn defense on long court runs several times to make his shots under the bucket.

Stone, forward, scored eight of his team's points with four field goals and played a beautiful game throughout. Roden, guard, also made eight points for the Mills by sinking four field goals. ## New Year Begins With Tennis Meet

Among the group of six players leaving today for the Mexico-Texas tennis tournament will be four Longhorn netmen, and one each from Dallas and San Antonio. The matches will be staged in Mexico City January 1 and 2, at the expense of the Mexican players. Next year Texas will finance a return engagement.

Dr. D. A. Penick, president of the Texas Tennis Association and varsity coach of the Steer squad, chose the following six to represent the Lone Star State: Martin Buxby, Sterling Williams, Bert Weltens, and Leo Brady, University of Texas members, "Doc" Barr of Southern Methodist, and Jessie Pfeiffer, star performer from San Antonio. Practice will begin December 29 and will last for three days before the schedule begins which will include twelve single matches and five doubles.

Martin Buxby and Bert Weltens, Longhorn aces, are expected to furnish the doubles competition. Buxby will also lead in singles along with "Doc" Barr. Last season Buxby won first place in the Southwest Conference and Barr was in second place for the S. M. U. team.

The trophy for the international contest will be a cup donated by President Rodriguez of Mexico. The Mexicans included the requirement that no player for the invaders could be among the first ten in the American national ranking. This will be the first of what is hoped will be an annual affair. The tournament will be held in Mexico and Texas on alternate years and the host city will bear the expenses.

Dr. Penick announced that, due to the difference in altitude, the Texans will be playing under a severe handicap since the light air makes balls carry further and causes difficulty in breathing.

SPRINGER WINS

Lester Springer (Athletics) won the University intramural handball singles championship from A. E. Sheppard (Engineers) last year's champion, in two of the fastest games of the year, 22-20, 21-18. Springer led the first match until the score became knotted at 20-all. Sheppard's defense broke and Springer scored the winning two points to win the first game 22-20.

player on the Paper team, with two field goals and one free shot; each made a total of five points on the same shots. Frickie, first team guard, made six points with three bucket loopers and Parham, substitute forward, made two points with one field goal.

Francis was easily the most spectacular player of the game and more than fulfilled Coach Olle's pre-season hopes with his game at center, where he held his own against the elongated Phillips.

Metzenthin, Penick And Brace Appointed to Make Trip to Chicago Meeting

W. E. Metzenthin, chairman of the Intercollegiate Athletic Council, announced Thursday that he had received permission from the State Board of Control to go to the National Collegiate Athletic Association meeting that will be held in Chicago December 29 and 30.

Other members of the University faculty that will attend the meeting are Dr. D. A. Penick, president of the Southwest Conference, and Dr. D. K. Brace, professor of physical education. Although no definite date has been set for the departure, Mr. Metzenthin and Dr. Brace will probably leave Austin December 26, and Dr. Penick will leave the following day. They will return immediately after the meeting is consummated.

Nothing definitely will be decided regarding the University football coaching situation until the Board of Regents convene January 5, but with these representatives at the meeting to meet and talk to the prospective coaches they will be in a much better position to make their recommendations to the Regents.

Nearly fifty coaches have applied for the position or have been recommended, and all of these are being given consideration. The coaches in the list come from the sunny shores of California to the rocky coast of Maine and from the South and far Southwest to the middle-west, and range from high school coaches, and coaches of small schools to some of the best known coaches in the largest institutions in the country.

University Poloists to Cross Mallets With Mexican Team

Captain Vernon Cook and his University Polo Team will span the Rio Grande during the holidays to cross mallets with the Mexican army team of Reynosa, Tamaulipas, for a three-game series December 30, 31 and January 1.

The two squads met last spring and the Collegians dropped both games to the invaders. The Mexican officers are good poloists, and have a great propensity for hitting the willow ball accurately with plenty of distance. The men rarely ever miss a shot, and their riding is almost flawless.

This is one of the three teams which Cook's malletteers have never defeated. Cecil Smith and the Austin Polo Club and the Georgetown team have been conquered by the University men. The boys have improved so greatly, however, that at least one victory is almost assured. The horses of the Mexican cavalry will be used.

All the games will be played in Reynosa, just across the border from McAllen. J. E. Pate, manager of the Mexican bordermen and of the Valley Bridge Company, has promised free bridge toll to every holder of a polo ticket.

Cook said that they were very eager to be matched against the officers again. Their sportsmanship and skill are greatly admired by the University poloists.

Cecil Smith and the Austin Polo Club will also be in Mexico during the holidays. They took a string of ponies to Mexico City for sale and will no doubt engage in several exhibition games.

Five men will make the Reynosa trip—Captain Cook, Irby Cook, Mike Butler, Jack Adams, and Tommy Leyendecker. They will arrive in McAllen December 29 and return to Austin January 2 in time for Monday classes.

After their encounter with the world-famous Cecil Smith last Sunday, the University malletmen are rapidly gaining recognition all over Texas and the South. Their team is but three years old, but veterans of the sport say in another two or three years they will be deservedly be called "the greatest college polo team in the world."

BROWNIES IN FINALS
Adolph Marks struck out 19 men and held the Engineers to one hit and no runs to pitch the Brownies, Independent division champions, to a win in the University semi-finals in intramural baseball, 17-0. L. C. Carter, the only Engineer to hit, made a double on a slow ball. The Brownies hitting attack was led by Holt, Peck, Witherspoon, and Childress, each man hitting on four out of five trips to the plate. Tau Delta Phi advanced to the University semi-finals Wednesday night by winning from the Dekes, 5-1. Hochman, Barron, Lipshitz, and Levy led the Tau Delta hitters.

BROWN VISITS CAMPUS

University Musical Groups Give Varied Program Friday

The moods of music varying from the dramatic to the frivolous were interpreted by the three music organizations of the University in a joint program given last night in Hogg Memorial Auditorium. The Longhorn Band and the girls' and men's glee clubs each rendered music appealing to all listeners and the two glee clubs combined to present a finale of both romance and of drama and exaltation in the selections, "A Gypsy Night" by Ganne, and "The Glorious Morn" from Cavalleria Rusticana by Mascagni. Especially commendable for all the groups is their clear combination of harmony and their ability to shade tones from crescendo to pianissimo.

The Longhorn Band under the directorship of Burnett Pharr, opened the program with selections from Victor Herbert's melodious and sprightly compositions, and with the sublime Largo from the New World's Symphony.

The airy and pleasing voices of the members of the Girls' Glee Club were reflected in the singing of the "Scarf Dance" by Chaminade and "Giannina Mia" by Friml. The numbers given by the Men's Glee Club included "Bedouin" by Foote and "The Sea Gypsy" by O'Hara and "Love Could You Know" by Gertrude Cady. The latter selection was especially versatile in interpretation.

Morton Downey and his glee club would look to their laurels if they had heard the harmony of the University Co-Ed Trio in their interpretation of the encore, "My Galveston Gal."

Bruce Collier will visit his parents in Plainview during the holidays, later spending part of the time in Denton and Fort Worth visiting friends.

Pete Blewitt and Willis Miller will spend the holidays in Denton.

Eliminating the Unqualified

The recent recommendations made by the committee on legal education and admission to the bar that all graduates of law schools in the Satté be required to take bar examinations from which they have been exempted for the past several years is causing no little discussion in the University School of Law these days.

The reason for these recommendations is quite obvious. A graduate of every little school in the State which has any connection with the studying of law, it seems, is excepted from the bar examinations. Included on the exemption list is the South School of Law at Houston, Jefferson University, the San Antonio Public School of Law, the Dallas Y. M. C. A., Baylor and Southern Methodist. University law graduates are also exempted.

There should be no doubt that several of these schools are not deserving enough to be given exemption to their inexperienced graduates.

An elimination of the unqualified schools should be highly desirable. But should the University be included on the list? Surely the Texas School of Law is far above any other law schools in the State. A change, indeed, is needed nearly all will admit, but in making the change should the good be cast in the same hole with the bad?

Valuable Gift Added

Again the University benefits through the generosity of its friends. Many times in the past these friends have made valuable gifts to the institution, and now one more worthy family is added to the increasing list. It is due to the generosity of F. S. Filson and Miss Ann Gilmer, grandchildren of Alexander Gilmer, that the latest addition to the library is acquired.

These heirs of the pioneer Texas lumberman have placed the University Library in possession of the business records of the Alex Gilmer Lumber Company covering the period of 1872 to 1905. Undoubtedly this gift is one of the most significant donations received by the University in some time. Its chief value lies in the information the records are able to give in regard to the history and development of the lumber industry in Texas. The collection is almost a complete record of this industry, and its possession will add to the Library as a whole since the acquisition is the first data available.

In size and importance the Gilmer records rival the Bexar Archives, now being copied. The material weighs in excess of two tons and contains several hundred thousand items. All the material is in original manuscript form and shows the complete operation of the original lumber company. Now these records are the property of the University and through its archives they will be preserved for future generations.

Current Comment

THE 'NEW DEAL'

Joseph A. Lee, president of the commission for the re-organization of student government at Temple University, says that American colleges and universities have indicated their willingness to fall in line with the Rooseveltian "new deal" through their own eradication of corruption in campus politics. He states, in part:

"For many years there hardly was a week when some startling exposure of graft and corruption in students' governments in colleges and universities all over the country was not made. All this was the counterpart of the larger-scale practices of government leaders. It was traditionally thought that our colleges ought to be the training ground for future political leaders—and that student governments provided the opportunity for the learning and practice of civic duty. But colleges had but a poor chance to serve in this way—having before them, as their constant model, the governments we have known in the past years. And so our colleges were training grounds for small-time politicians whose sense of honesty and ethics was as lacking as their sense of service and citizenship."

Members and advisers of the university Union board have an excellent opportunity to prove that they are willing to join the "new deal." One of the ten student directors last week tendered his resignation, having withdrawn from school to join the diplomatic service in Washington, D. C. In his position should be placed, not merely a student of the same social fraternity or political faith and order, but one who has proved himself a capable worker. This is mandatory if the board wishes to continue to have a personnel that is able to maintain the fine work it has been doing this year.

—Indiana Student Daily.

WITHOUT BIG TEN

Michigan State received much publicity earlier this week as a possible candidate for Western Conference membership should the combination of the University of Chicago and Northwestern University cause a vacancy in the Big Ten.

It now appears, however, that the Spartans have but a slim chance to enter the conference within the near future inasmuch as it is doubtful that either institution will withdraw from athletic relations.

Campus comment came to the fore very favorable to such a move as being one that would greatly improve the position of Michigan State in the nation's sport and scholastic circles. It is well-known that the Spartans have for many years been victorious in many instances over Big Ten teams, and thus would take no back-seat in the league standings.

It has been cited by many townspeople and alumni, as well as students, that State might achieve more recognition for their athletic conquests if they were a member of some league. The validity of this argument cannot be questioned.

There are, however, many details to be considered before State should rush into a league of any type. The strictness of league regulations, the added financial burden it would place on the athletic department, and the necessity for maintaining many expensive minor sports are items to bear in mind.

State should feel honored for having its name mentioned as a nominee for the Western Conference, but should still maintain a clear head. It is still possible for the Spartan teams to gain national rankings without the aid of Big Ten or any other league reputations. The cross-country squad proved that.

—Michigan State Daily.

JUSTIFYING A FAITH

There are many advantages to be had here at Chapel Hill which are often overlooked by the students. One of the most desirable of these features is the honor system. At many colleges a peculiarly strained and odious relationship between instructor and student is generated by the former being forced to remain with the class during tests and examinations. Here, however, such a classroom atmosphere of hospitality and furtiveness is almost never found.

The finer student-professor rapport is not the only good result of the honor system. With the knowledge that he is put "on his own," the student tends to reach a mature attitude in regard to his studies as well as towards other affairs involving individual responsibility. In considering his own present and future welfare—especially in regard to the better training of his moral sense—the student should appreciate the existence of such a system that is employed here; further than that, he should conduct himself in a manner that will do credit to himself as well as to the system.

This fall there has been a great increase in the amount of interest displayed by the student body in this part of our educational system. The intelligent student is awake to the operations of the system and realizes more and more what its violation—and ultimately its success or failure—means to him. The honor system was instituted because the men at the head of the school were confident of the integrity and honor of young men and women. Now that examinations are coming up let us, as members of the often reviled "younger generation," justify the faith placed in us.

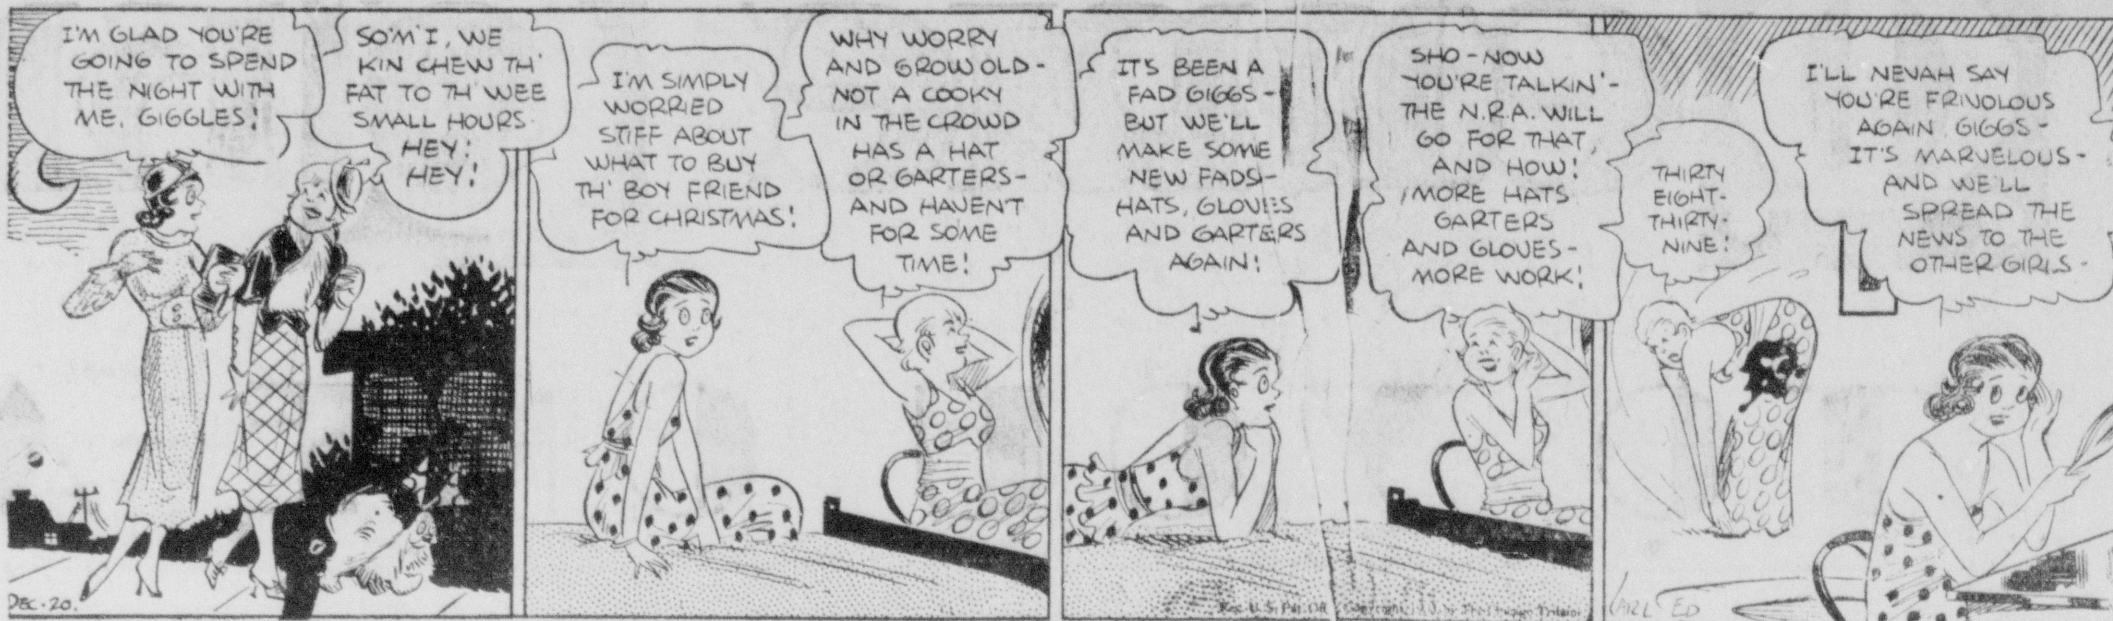

—Daily Tar Heel.

TOO MANY GRADUATES

The McGill Daily, student publication of McGill University in Montreal, comments that 1,500,000 graduates were turned out by American colleges and universities in 1933, only 15 per cent of which have so far succeeded in finding jobs, and goes on to show how Canada puts out college graduates in the ratio of one in one thousand, while its neighbor to the south graduates twenty. The Canadian editor is slightly skeptical concerning extreme liberality of American education, and suggests that the more conservative view on education on his side of the line is perhaps the safer course.

All too true is the fact that American colleges are turning out trained men at a far greater rate than industry and the professions can absorb them. The situation promises to become as serious as any since the industrial revolution. It's too fundamental to be settled by the N. R. A., the C. W. A., the C. C. C. or other temporary measures. It transcends entirely the present depression.

Anyway, that's this generation's biggest problem.

Young Insull Indicted Another Blow Hits Kingfish

CHARGES—In Indiana Wednesday indictments charging Samuel Insull Jr. and six others with looting the formerly Insull-controlled Northern Indiana Public Service Company in order to bolster up the finances of certain holding companies in the Insull system were given to deputy sheriffs for service.

Young Insull was formerly vice president and chairman of the board of directors of the company, but resigned both positions a year ago.

Authorities did not disclose the amount of the alleged embezzlements.

COMMODITIES—Wednesday the Department of Labor questioned the validity of Acting Secretary Morgenthau's recent statement that commodity prices had risen 5½ per cent since October 21, by reporting that November prices were lower than those of October.

Morgenthau's compilation was based on quotations on 30 leading commodities, while the Labor Department's index contained several hundred items.

KINGFISH—Huey Long's political machine lost a few bolts and cogs Wednesday when New Orleans Mayor, T. S. Walmsley, broke definitely with the Kingfish and his Louisiana Democratic association over the approaching city elections.

"We will have a new deal," Mayor Walmsley said, and "would rather go in with a few less votes and have a clean background."

The break, coming after a disagreement over the selection of a minor candidate, is expected to further decrease Long's fast waning political prestige. New Orleans has been a Kingfish stronghold for several years, and the large city vote has been sufficient to overcome any shortage in the country vote.

TREATMENT—The latest proposed treatment for tuberculosis sufferers consists of injecting a solution of gold into the veins of the patients.

Medical authorities differ, however, as to the value of the treatment. The Chicago Municipal Tuberculosis Clinic reports that the gold stimulates formation of cells and in some cases promotes healing by building a thick cell capsule around the tubercle.

One physician, however, reported that he injected gold solution in some patients and distilled water in others with no difference in effect.

Dr. S. A. Knopf, who was recently sent to France by the United States government to discover what is being accomplished in Paris with the treatment, has recommended a thorough study of the suggested cure.

SAFE MONEY—In less than two weeks, the government's experiment in guaranteeing bank deposits will start.

On January 1 almost 14,000 banks all over the country will insure the funds of each of their depositors with the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation. All deposits up to $2,500 will receive full protection.

Banks which are members of the Federal Reserve System are automatically members of the corporation, but non-member banks must first pass inspection before they are eligible to insure their deposits.

Nearly 7,260 of these non-member banks have applied for admittance, and 6,629 have been examined. A short time ago corporation officials announced that approximately 12 per cent of the banks examined had been tentatively rejected.

LEPROSY—Recently the Public Health Service reported that the number of leprosy patients in the United States is declining every year.

At present there are about 800 lepers in this country, about 400 being in the leprosy colony at Carville, La. Although the other patients are scattered throughout the country, all are registered with

An exciting experience which you cannot afford to miss is seeing this most marvelous of all theater productions of 1933 that have so far been shown in Austin.

If you enjoy perfect acting, you will never have a chance to see a more finished and brilliant performance than is given by Leslie Howard and a splendid supporting cast in "Berkeley Square." In the matter of poetic charm nothing like it has emerged from Hollywood. It is an example of delicacy and restraint, a picture filled with gentle humor and appealing paths. It is a strangely lovely film, clever, charming, and tenderly romantic.

Leslie Howard is cast in the role of a young American who has inherited a grand old Eighteenth Century house in London which was owned before him by an ancestor who bore his identical name, and with the house come all the documents and diaries of this ancestor. He becomes so steeped in all the lore of those distant years that he becomes obsessed with a desire to get away from this stupid and boring life of the present. After a period of time when his associates think him to be acting extremely queer, he gets his wish, and lives with the people of that former day. He falls in love with a similar soul who lived in that time, one who understands him completely, and their romance is such a strange and beautiful thing as the world has never seen, a romance which spans time. Eventually he has to return to the present, but only after he has enjoyed experiences never before had by mortal man.

The setting of this film has been done most exactly and is wonderfully enlightening.

The costumes and the furniture, the customs and the personalities of the period are authentic. Fifty thousand dollars worth of antiques are used. The whole exhibits that perfection which comes as the result of extreme care and knowledge.

The production technique of this picture is absolutely flawless; every camera-angle, every sequence is as perfect as the Holbein masterpieces which play an important part in the play.

The "sensitive" lead in this feature is admirably suited to the talents of Mr. Howard, who played this part in the stage original; it is easy to see that he enjoys the part immensely. His acting is the greatest thing among a whole galaxy of great things. Heather Angel, who has a most difficult role, proves that she is one of the very ablest of the younger stars, and gains the greatest of renown in so doing. Alan Mowbray, among other supporting stars too numerous to mention, is superb in his characterization of the sophisticated friend of Peter Standish, and gentleman of the times.

GROUP HAS PIONEER CHRISTMAS PARTY

A Christmas party, fashioned after a typical pioneer Christmas was given Tuesday night by Omicron Nu, honorary home economics sorority, and by the Home Economics Club, in the new Home Economics Building.

The guests assembled near the front door and sang carols as they went into the room where a huge pioneer Christmas tree stood, decorated with gingerbread men, popcorn paper dolls, toys, and inexpensive gifts for the needy children.

The group gathered around the large open fireplace where they sang carols to the accompaniment of a melodion, one of the earliest to be used in an Austin church.

In the library a program was given by members of the club.

A reading was given by Kathleen Smith. Mary Winfrey sang a solo and other music was furnished by a chorus of eight girls, a violin duet by Benilou Watkins and Eunice Luckenbach. Helen Everhard gave a musical reading. The Yule Log ceremony took place in the room also. Each year the Yule Log is to be partially burned and returned to a chest especially designed for it by Margaret Goins.

play through Saturday at the Hancock. The picture is based on the original story by Horace McCoy and has its locale in Malango, a village deep in the South American jungle region of Matto Grosso. To this desolate town have come escaped criminals from all over the world. There they live a desperate existence undisturbed by law or justice. Terrific drama ensues when Peggy Shannon is forced to take refuge there because her brother, an explorer, is stricken with jungle fever.

Supporting Cook and Miss Shannon are Alan Dinehart, Dudley Digges, Toshia Mori, and Harold Huber.

Opening Saturday

"ONLY YESTERDAY" with Margaret Sullivan, John Boles, Edna May Oliver, Billie Burke, Benita Hume, and Reginald Denny, the complete cast including 93 feature players, opens Saturday to play through Tuesday at the Paramount. The picture was suggested by the book "Only Yesterday" by Frederick Lewis Allen.

Margaret Sullivan is new to the screen, but is famous for her stage work on Broadway. She appeared in the stage version of "Dinner at Eight." John Boles, her teammate in the picture, will be remembered for his performances in "Seed" and "Back Street."

Alaskans Have Real Santa Claus and Trees

Dried Fish Is Most Treasured Gift Of Indian Children

Midnight of December 24, with the darkness of the night broken by the hundreds of tiny, yellow flames revealing joyous faces of villagers on the way to the candle-mass, with the winter stillness shattered by the songs heard through the open church door, and with the chilling bleakness of the air warmed by the excitement and religious fervor of those whose feet crunch the frozen snow—that is Christmas Eve in Alaska, as Mrs. L. W. Storm of Austin witnessed it during the several years she made her home there.

The Christmas celebration, though extremely elaborate, is chiefly religious in nature, due to the influence of the Greek Catholic Church, introduced by the Russians and still remaining. It is a joyous occasion. The people prepare for weeks in advance, baking cakes, cookies, and communion biscuits and making toys, but these pastoral people reach the happiest point in the Christmas season when each, his candle in his hand, attends the candle-mass. This service, anciently confused by these devout people with the Epiphany because of the use of the candles, is entirely composed of the chanting of the priest and the answering songs of the people.

The Christianized Aliut Indians all attend some Greek Catholic Church in a small neighboring village. Sometimes they travel as much as a hundred miles by sled in order not to miss the Christmas celebration. The pure Indians, so that they may not be outdone, also choose the same time for a festival period in which they construct a totem pole and in a special ceremony execute the totem pole dance.

To the children living in Alaska, Santa Claus is a real person, not our vague St. Nicholas, just as their tree is the real Christmas tree—the fir. Besides the tree at home, a huge Christmas tree is set up in the church. Decorations are made by hand, but the results are both elaborate and artistic. Wooden dolls are beautifully carved, candy bells are strung, and red berries, wild cranberries and holly, are gathered; but the finest decoration for the tree is the multitude of white candles the people have made in their homes for this day. Even in the mining towns where electricity is available, the candles are still used on the tree. Perhaps this love of candles may be attributed to the supposed appetite of the Eskimos for tallow candles.

Travel Hundreds Of Miles to Attend Mass Services

Give Individual Presents

The natives are very individual in their gifts to each other. Because they can not go to a store and select a present, great artistic talent has been developed in their manufacture of Christmas decorations and gifts. Illustrations appropriate to the season are made and exchanged, as are also hand-made toys and highly decorated cookies in human shapes, similar to our gingerbread man. Toys are sometimes shipped from the United States and brought inland by mushes, sometimes at as large a freighting rate as $4 a pound. The most treasured gift of the Indian children is a piece of dried fish, which they will carry around for weeks after Christmas.

The significance of the earnest celebration of the religious aspect of Christmas is better understood, if it is realized that few amusements throughout the year are possible. Christmas is truly a holiday season.

that your Christmas may be merry because of what you have given, and that your New Year and all future years may be happy because of the service you have rendered.

V. I. MOORE,
dean of men and student life.

Ruby R. Terrill
May the Christmas spirit of good-will toward men carry into the New Year an impetus toward that peace on earth which we all desire.

RUBY R. TERRILL,

J. A. Fitzgerald
I wish you and your loved ones a happy and healthful holiday season followed by a bright, profitable and useful 1934.

JAMES ANDERSON
FITZGERALD,
dean of the School of Business Administration.

T. H. Shelby
My wish for every student, for every ex-student, and for my co-workers of the University is that each recurring Christmas may find you further along the road to culture, refinement, and well-rounded character.

May this Christmas remind us all that life does not consist in the abundance of the things which we possess, but that life consists rather in what we give of ourselves and of our means unselfishly to others.

In the words of the poet:
"It is not what we give, but what we share,
For the gift without the giver is bare.
Who giveth himself with his gift feeds three,
Himself, his hungry neighbor, and Thee."

DEAN T. H. SHELBY.

I. P. Hildebrand
I wish for the students of the University a very merry Christmas, especially those of the School of Law. I hope they enjoy their holidays and come back with the determination to do better work next semester.

IRA POLK HILDEBRAND,
dean of the School of Law.

W. F. Gidley
On the behalf of the staff of the College of Pharmacy, I extend to the students in general the greetings and good wishes of the Christmas season with the wish for more health to you and fewer prescriptions to us.

W. F. GIDLEY,
dean of the College of Pharmacy.

D. A. Penick
A merry Christmas and a happy New Year.

The greatest happiness is in giving, not in getting. Try to make others happy, especially your home folks and the needy, and you will be happier than you ever dreamed was possible.

D. A. PENICK,
assistant dean of the College of Arts and Sciences.

T. U. Taylor
To the engineering students, present and former, I hope each and every one of you is keeping the wolf from the door. Do not get scared if you hear him howl. A bright day is coming, and Alec still reigns.
