College Station, Texas.

Dear Doctor Stenzel:

In making the final copy of the new Texas map the very much narrowed outcrop of the Weches in Leon County is one of the most important corrections. The outcrop as it stands on the corrected map is much narrower in Leon County than it is in the counties to the eastward. Can you tell us whether or not this is due to a more restricted Weches in the Mount Selman section, or merely to the more detailed work that has been done in Leon County.

Does the mapping of the Weches in Houston County on our preliminary map seem correct to you?

Very sincerely yours,

Julia Gardner,
Geologist.
