

SORORITIES AND HOUSES NAME 42 CACTUS BEAUTIES

Nominees Will Have Pictures Made This Week at University Studio

LORE SELECTS BELLES

Photographs Will Be Sent to Fort Worth Artist for Selection When Finished

The list of candidates for the Bluebonnet Belle section of the Cactus is complete, according to information from the office of the editor-in-chief Saturday. Selection of the candidates has been made through the various dormitories, sororities, and boarding houses.

Pictures Made.

Dan E. McCaskill of the University Studio will make the pictures of these young ladies sometime in the early part of the coming week. As soon as possible the pictures will be sent Bruno J. Lore of Fort Worth, who has done the art work for the Cactus for the past two years and is also doing the work for the 1926 Cactus.

The following is the list of entries for the Cactus Beauty Contest.

Cattle Brands to Be Placed on Garrison Hall Monday Morning

The thirty-two cattle brands which have been prepared for the decoration of Garrison hall are now on the campus and work on the placing of them will be started Monday morning, according to the superintendent architect.

These brands have been selected from those of families who have been prominent in cattle raising in the different sections of the State. The selections have been divided into five different divisions chronologically, beginning with the early Spanish period and extending up to the present period.

University Officials Object to Capping of Wells From Oil Drilling

At a recent meeting with the gas and oil officials of the Railroad Commission Co., University officials in the persons of W. M. W. Splawn, president, Luther Stark, chairman of the regents, and Edward Howard, regent, discussed capping holes left from recent oil drilling on University land.

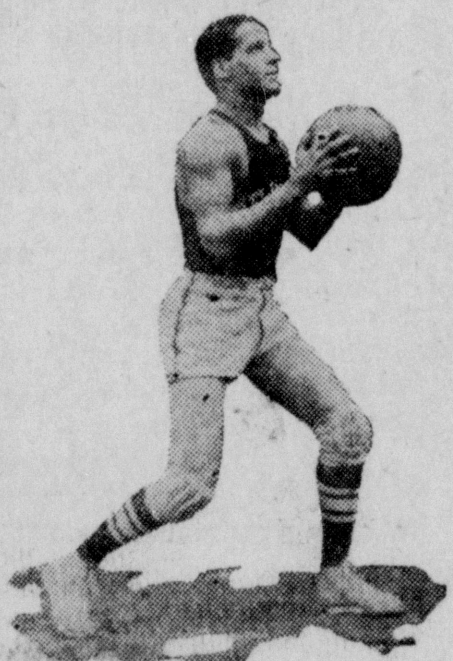

In some holes water of a good quality and quantity had collected. The University officials objected to these being plugged or to the casings being removed. It was their belief that the water could be profitably used by the farmers for watering the land, and for the cattle.

ESQUIVEL MAKES ALL-CONFERENCE MYTHICAL TEAM

Positions	First Team	Second Team	Third Team
Forward	Adams, Ark.	King, Tex.	Parrish, T.C.U.
Forward	Strickland, Ark.	Cantelmi, T.C.U.	Walker, Baylor.
Center	Pickel, Ark.	Slade, Bay.	Baldwin, Tex.
Guard	Rose, Ark.	Woolridge, S.M.U.	Estes, Tex.
Guard	Esquivel, Tex.	Baker, A.M.	Nevinger, Rice

Captain Esquivel, brilliant leader of the Texas University basketball team of 1926, is the Daily Texan's selection for all-conference guard and is the only Longhorn to place on the first team. Joe King, the hard-working steer forward, is placed at forward on the second team and only his lack of experience kept him off the "big five" list. Leo Baldwin and Johnny Estes are Orange and White warriors who won places on the third quintet.

BOWERS DEFEATS SIGMA CHI, 17-9

Independent Champs Meet B. A.'s Wednesday at Gym in Finals

Bowers' basketball team, independent champions of the intramural league, pulled one of the biggest surprises of the season last night, defeating the Sigma Chi's, fraternity champs, 17-9 at the Men's Gym in the semi-finals of the intramural race. The team will play the B. A.'s Wednesday at the gym for the championship.

The absence of Franklin Dornak, Sigma Chi's best scoring bet, probably cost that team the game. Dornak was sick and unable to play, and his teammates were not able to cope with the good defensive work of the Bowers team, the underdogs at the beginning of the game.

Redford, Bowers' fast center, was star for the winners. He turned in three field goals during the evening, and was a big factor in holding down the score of the first champs. His teammate, Suehs, was high point man, with seven points, two field goals and three fouls. Smith, Sigma Chi's high point man, accounted for four points, two field goals, while Lawhon and King each got a field goal and Reynolds a foul goal.

Line-ups were as follows:

Line-Ups.
Sigma Chi: Lawhon, Smith, King, Reynolds, Young.

Bowers: Farris, Murrough, Redford, Whittelsey, Suehs.

Following the playing of the final game at the gym Wednesday night, six silver footballs will be presented to the members of the winning team. The awards are made and donated by the Atco Jewelry Company, manufacturing jewelers of Austin.

VIOLIN MUSIC WILL FEATURE MONDAY VESPER SERVICES

Vesper service for Monday at 5 o'clock in the Girls' Study Hall will be an hour of music. The entire meeting has been turned over to violin music, and Miss Eugenia Limburg, accompanied by Mrs. Wm. K. Limburg, will render the following program:

"Adagio G minor Concerto," by Bruch.
"Minuet" by Mozart.
"Air on G String" by Bach.
"Caprice" by Edgar.
"Midnight Bell" by Kreisler.
"Poem," by Fibshi.

These teams are the composite selections of Referees Roger Busfield and Ziggy Sears, who officiated in practically every conference game this year, and a Texan basketball scribe.

To three members of the Arkansas aggregation go the lion's share of the honors of the campaign, which closed last night. This trio put the Porkers in a class by themselves. Coach Francis Schmidt's five enjoyed one of the most remarkable seasons in the history of conference basketball. Captain Rolla Adams, curly-haired luminary of the Hogs, is given a forward berth, while Elbert Pickel, a teammate, is placed at star, and Big Glenn Rose, another star, gets a guard position on the mythical five.

Kiefer Strickland of Baylor, is a forward on the first team. Many fans will be surprised at this selection, but he is the choice of Busfield, capable conference referee, who has seen Baylor play several times this year. Busfield is considered one of the best authorities on basketball in this section of the country and his word is law as far as the choosing of Strickland for all-star honors is concerned.

Wealth of Guards

There was a wealth of guards in the organization this past season, but it is hard to beat such a combination as that of The Texan's team. Rose is a physical giant and one of the finest basketball guards ever to play in the Southwest. With Esquivel as his guardmate, an opposing team would have a tough time getting anywhere near the basket. Sandy has played a beautiful game as a running guard and has been a great factor in the man-for-man defensive system of the Steers. Not only has his guarding been of quality, but he has roamed the court nicely and has accounted for many of the Longhorns' points.

With King of the Longhorns at forward, on the second team, is Frankie Cantelmi, the scintillating little Latin, who has performed nobly for the Texas Christian University.

Hogg Debating Club Elects Spring Term Officers Tuesday

Officers for the spring term will be elected Tuesday evening at the regular meeting of the Hogg Debating Club, according to Morris C. Hanks, president. At the same meeting the most valuable member of the club will be selected and the honor of Immortal Hogg conferred upon him.

The Tuesday meeting will be the first regular meeting for the last two weeks, the meetings being suspended because of the intersociety debates.

Plans for the spring term will be taken up at the meeting, and it is probable that the date for the open house will be set. It has been proposed to entertain the Freshman Forensic Society at some time during the term, and some action will be taken relative to inviting the first-year men to be the guests of the club.

Miss Limburg, although very young, has already the reputation of a violinist of remarkable ability, and she has been constantly in demand for varied audiences. Miss Augsbury, the musical chairman of Y. W. C. A., will also have charge of the devotional, reading portions from "The Prophet." The meeting will conclude with "Follow the Glean," and silent prayer. As this is to be the last Vesper service of this term, an unusually large crowd is expected, according to Ruth Allred.

SOPHS-FROSH END YEAR'S STRIFE IN TUESDAY BATTLE

Sack Rush Planned as Best Organized Fight in University History

BEGINS AT 9:30 A. M.

Three 20-Minute Periods, With Intermissions, Feature Contest

What is hoped will be the best organized March 2 fight ever held in the University will begin Tuesday morning at 9:30. At that time members of both classes will rush in from sides of the field and start the struggle for possession of the sacks. At the end of twenty minutes all fighting must stop and both parties will rest for ten minutes. After the end of the ten-minute period, fighting will be resumed.

Three twenty-minute periods will be used, ten minutes for rest intervening between each period. The class having the most sacks in their possession at the end of any two periods will be adjudged the winner. After the sacks have been carried back of the goal line they must be protected.

No fighting, under penalty of expulsion from school, will be allowed either before or after the hours of 9:30-11:30. Clubs, rocks, fist fights and the like will not be tolerated.

T MEN ASKED TO REFEREE.

All T men of the University of Texas are requested by Richard W. Blalock, president of the Students' Association, to wear their T sweaters and be present at 9:30 o'clock at the north end of the stadium Tuesday morning, March 2, to referee the annual class contest between the freshmen and the sophomores.

The sack fight between the two classes will start at 9:30 o'clock. Rules of the annual contest require those participating to wear tennis shoes and for the freshmen to black their faces with charcoal in order for the combatants to distinguish their opponents.

Amidst fiery speeches, ice cream, a woman, and song, the freshmen class last night completed all details for the March 2 fight against the sophomores which will be held north of the Stadium. About 350 freshmen were at hand to hear such fiery requests from class members as, "Give them—," "We may be small but there's a lot to the square inch," "A freshman who does not come out is yellow and should be hazed," and "A black eye and skinned face make a hero."

It was decided to separate the class into seven divisions, each headed by a captain. Six of the captains will start the fighting while the other captain and his men will be used as a reserve to distribute his men where they will be needed most. However, according to Jap Arnold, president, there may be some alternation made in the plans. Some of the members of the class were so enthusiastic about expressing their enthusiasm that the president called on Spurgeon Bell, Zeke Handler, Hubert Blair, Cecil Tolbert, and Gordon Greenwood to say a few words concerning the fight.

After the official business had been disposed of, Evelyn Farrell entertained the students with several songs. At the end of each song, the students went into hysterics and yelled for more. Miss Farrell was forced to sing more than ten songs to satisfy the students.

As a conclusion to the peppiest and best meeting held by the freshmen this year, according to those who attended, ice cream was served. The cream was donated by the Violet Crown Ice Cream Company and the cones by the Horn Drug Store, McFadden's Drug Company, and Charlie Wukaseh's Confectionary.

TALKS ON MIRACLES.

The subject of Mrs. A. L. Audick's talk for her Sunday school class today will be "Can We Believe in Miracles?"

SUNDAY CLUB MEETING.

Dr. J. B. Wharey will be the speaker of the Sunday Club meeting tonight. The special music will be a vocal solo by Josephine Casey, accompanied by Bertha Casey. A discussion will follow the program.

SCHUCHERT BEGINS GEOLOGY LECTURES MONDAY NIGHT AT 8

Freshmen Rally to Aid of Ice Cream at Cry of Alarm

"Help! Help! The sophomores have stolen part of the cream," reverberated through the Law Building as a freshman heralded the bad news.

Immediately 350 freshmen strong answered the appeal by leaping out of their seats, ready to protect their rights. However, they were calmed by president who asked them to postpone the action until the end of the meeting.

It was later found out that the cream had been stolen by freshmen masquerading as sophomores.

SWIFT TO SPEAK HERE WEDNESDAY

California Educator Talks on Finance in Education Building, Room 312, at 4

Professor Fletcher Harner Swift, member of the faculty of the School of Education at the University of California, will give a lecture on some phase of State Educational Finance on Wednesday afternoon, March 3, at 4 o'clock in Education Building 312.

Professor Swift is stopping in Austin on his way from Washington, where he has been attending a meeting of the National Education Association.

He was formerly with the University of Minnesota but recently joined the faculty of the University of California.

Professor Swift is an authority on school finance and his lecture should be of special interest as he will illustrate his lecture by streptococcus, stated Dr. H. T. Manuel, associate professor of the Psychology of Education here. He will arrive in Austin late Tuesday afternoon and will continue his journey to the western State on Wednesday evening.

The public is cordially invited to hear Professor Swift.

A joint meeting of Phi Delta Kappa and the Educational Association will be held at the University Cafeteria Wednesday evening March 3, at 6 o'clock, honoring Dr. F. H. Swift, of the University of California. A banquet will be served, after which Dr. Swift will speak. Persons desiring to attend should notify B. F. Holland, 308 Educational building.

Texas Debate Team Loses to Colorado by Decision of 2-1

Texas University lost the debate with Colorado University at Boulder, Friday night by a judges' decision of 2 to 1. It was learned Saturday morning by a wire from the Texas representatives. The Texas team was composed of Theo Weiss and Edward O. Mather.

"Resolved, That Congress Should Adopt Colonel Mitchell's Plan for National Defense With Equal Departments of Army, Navy, and Air," was used. Texas had the negative side of the question.

Weiss and Mather will arrive in Austin Monday morning.

SPECIAL NUMBERS FOR GIRLS' GLEE CLUB CONCERT WEDNESDAY

Constance Zirjacks, Beulah Sweetman and Iva Hall have been chosen to give the special numbers at the Girls' Glee Club concert to be given at the Men's Gymnasium Wednesday evening, March 3. Miss Zirjacks will play a piano solo and Miss Hall will give a vocal solo and Miss Sweetman will sing several compositions of Oscar J. Fox, director of the Glee Club.

The regular program will consist of three groups of songs including folk songs, compositions by Elgar, and various other numbers both classical and semi-classical. Sentimental, sweet and comical songs will be listed on the program.

SPEAKER TRACES EARTH'S HISTORY

Yale Curator Is Giving Course at University in Winter and Spring

Dr. Charles Schuchert of Yale University, noted geologist who is conducting classes in geology in the University during the winter term, will give a series of lectures, beginning Monday, March 1, on the history of the earth, according to Dr. E. H. Sellards, associate director of the Bureau of Economic Geology. The lectures will be in K Hall 5, beginning at 8 p. m.

Noted for Research.

Dr. Schuchert is curator of the Peabody Museum at Yale, and was formerly associated with the National Museum at Washington, Dr. Sellards said. He is known principally for his researches on the geology of past ages (paleogeography), and on fossil research. Dr. Schuchert visited the University two years ago, lecturing to the student body during his short stay at that time.

On Monday, Dr. Schuchert will lecture on "Sculpturing the Earth's Surface by Air and Water"; March 3 he will speak on the "Coming and Going of Seas and Mountains"; March 4, the "Great Age of the Earth and Its Earlier Life and Mountains"; March 5, the "Peopling of the Lands and Giant Reptiles of the Medieval World"; March 8, the "Dawning of Present Scenery and Life." The lectures will be of general interest and not technical in nature, Dr. Sellards stated.

Semi-Finals in Wroe Contest Monday Night; Finals Held Friday

Six speakers will be chosen at the Wroe prize contest in oratory semi-finals Monday night at 7:30 in the Law Building auditorium to compete for the $100 in cash prizes to be offered to the winner of the contest finals which will be held Friday night.

Besides the cash prize, the winner of first prize in the contest will represent the University of Texas at the Missouri Valley Oratorical contest to be held at Lawrence, Kansas, March 19.

Dan Moody Broadcasts Texas-Exes Banquet Celebration Tuesday

Attorney-General Dan Moody, toastmaster for the Texas-Exes banquet, will broadcast the program of the celebration of the Texas-Exes on March 2 over University station KUT. It was announced Saturday afternoon.

The entire program will be sent out over the air. The banquet will be held at the University Cafeteria.

GYM DANCE MONDAY

A special all-University dance will be held at the Woman's Gymnasium Monday night in honor of Texas Independence day Tuesday. Harold Caldwell and his orchestra under the management of Finis Sewell will furnish the music. This dance will be given at the usual price of fifty cents.

BAYLOR STUDENTS HERE.

K. O. Fugate and J. J. F. Thorp, students of Baylor University, were visitors on the campus Saturday afternoon. Both expressed themselves as favorably impressed over the progress being made on the new building.

TWELVE SURVIVE SEMI-FINALS IN EXTEMPORE TALKS

Cobb, Barksdale, Davis, Olson, Wise, and Gerhardt Win Men's

FINALS THURSDAY NIGHT

Young, Presnall, Jones, Rehm, Shirley and Ardrey Take Women's

Six men and six women survived the semi-finals of the University extempore speaking contest held Saturday afternoon, thereby entitling themselves to enter the finals which will be held Thursday night at 8 o'clock in the Law Building auditorium.

Order of Speakers.

Marion Olson of Chico will be first speaker at the finals, and will be followed by the following five men, survivors in the semi-finals, in the order named: E. C. Barksdale of Bessmay, second; Edwin Davis of Hubbard, third; Ty Cobb of Cameron, fourth; Raymond Gerhardt of San Antonio, fifth, and Morris Wise of San Antonio, sixth.

Tillie Frances Young of Corsicana will be the first speaker in the girls' division at the final contest, and will be followed by Mary Frances Young of Robstown, Dorothy Rehm of Colorado Springs will speak third, followed by Mrs. E. M. Shirley of Austin. Alice Presnall of Alice will speak next, and the contest will be closed by Helen Ardrey of Dallas.

$25 Checks Given.

A check of $25 will be given to the winners of first places in both the men's and women's divisions. The boy and girl placing second will each receive $15, and third places will bring checks of $10.

Five minute speeches with fifteen minutes of preparation. There were about twenty entrants in each division. The boys had been selected as the best in the various literary societies.

Dr. Handman Speaks at Congregational Church This Evening

"The New World of Labor" will be the subject of the lecture by Dr. M. S. Handman at the First Congregational church, Sunday evening, February 28. Dr. Handman stated that he would discuss the differences between the labor movement as it developed up to the war, the middle class attitude towards work, wages and the employer, and the effects of the war upon the creation of a definite labor point of view. He will also discuss the attempt of the new labor movement to turn the capitalist system to its advantage.

This is the third lecture in a series being given on modern social problems each Sunday evening at the Congregational Church, former of Twenty-seventh and Guadalupe.

Ettlinger Talks at Dallas on Astronomy

Dr. H. J. Ettlinger, associate professor of pure mathematics, addressed the Dallas Astronomical Society Saturday night in Dallas. In his lecture, Dr. Ettlinger dealt with the Einstein theory, explaining it in terms that the average person could understand.

Interest in astronomy has been greatly increased by the recent donation of $1,380,000 by the late W. J. McDonald for the establishment of an astronomical observatory at the University.

Longhorns Close Season in Most Courageous Fight in Varsity History

RECOVER FROM POOR START LATE

Divide With Every Team but Arkansas and Aggies;
End With .500 Average

The 1926 fight of the Longhorn basketball team to win a place in the Southwestern Conference spotlight, after a disheartening start, will go down in athletic history as one of the most courageous battles in the annals of the game.

Late Rally

Playing through half their schedule with only one victory to their credit, the Orange-clad warriors rallied in their eighth championship struggle, that with the Aggies on the home court February 12. This victory marked the start of a streak of five straight triumphs and the defeat of the Farmers at College Station Friday night gave the Steers a record of six wins and six losses for the entire campaign.

After conquering the hated Aggies here, the Longhorns went to Waco February 16 and trimmed Frank Bridges' Baylor quintet. Then they journeyed to Fort Worth and on February 19 downed the strong T. C. U. team. Coming back home, they beat Rice here last Tuesday night and closed the season with the Friday night win over the Farmers.

The Longhorns split even on the season's schedule with every team but Arkansas and A. & M. They lost two games to the Porkers on the Fayetteville court, but the Hogs went through the season with little competition offered by any rival five. It was no disgrace to bow before the Razorbacks, for they had one of the greatest teams ever entered in a conference titular struggle. The championship won by Arkansas in basketball is the first Southwestern Conference title ever annexed by a Razorback team.

Owls Get Booby

To the Rice Owls goes the "booby" championship for the season. Coach Ashcraft's Houston quintet won but one of twelve championship games. Strangely, the Owls scored their lone victory over the Longhorns, who showed so much improvement late in the season.

With the 1926 fight brought to an end, the prospects for the next basketball season are bright for several members of the conference. The Longhorns are certain to be powerful in 1927. Although the great Captain Sandy Esquivel, peerless leader and guard of this year's quint, will be gone, Coach Stewart will have the majority of his lettermen back. Joe King, who promises to develop into one of the most remarkable performers in the organization before he receives his diploma here, will be the outstanding bet of the Steers next year. Despite his lack of experience, this season being his first in conference cage circles, he played a sensational game and his work was one of the features of the Orange and White's team play.

Johnny Estes, stellar Steer forward, who was out of the line-up early in the campaign, having sprained his ankle in a pre-conference tilt, will return. Leo Baldwin, the giant center, whose improved play late in the race was little short of miraculous, also will return to fight for a berth on the 1927 Texas team.

Wealth of Material

There will be a wealth of material from the freshman ranks on hand when Varsity training starts next December. Holly Brock, Dutch Krueger, Red Wray and several other Frosh luminaries are to go up to the "big boy" rank next year. Baylor will have a fine team in 1927, according to present indications. Bridges had a strictly sophomore quintet during the race just closed. The entire first team was composed of second-year men. Strickland, Walker, Slade, Hannah and Dillow, all splendid athletes, will return for next year's five.

T. C. U. also will offer a strong contender for conference honors. Parrish, Matthews, Acker and several other Frog stars will be back.

Arkansas' great team, which stayed together for three years, will be broken up by graduation and it is doubtful that Coach Francis Schmidt will have much to offer next year.

The 1925 season proved one thing conclusively and that is the growing popularity of basketball in the Southwest. Great crowds witnessed every game and the interest in the game is picking up wonderfully. It promises to be one of the big drawing cards of Southwestern intercollegiate sports within a few years.

"Steers Best in Conference," Texas Car from A & M 10 Hours Late Doc Stewart Admits on Return

"I am now ready to break down and confess that we have the best basketball team in the Southwestern Conference," Doc Stewart declared upon his return from College Station with his Longhorn cage team yesterday.

"The way the boys played in their last five games of the season was a revelation to conference fans. They deserve much credit for their late season performances. Sandy Esquivel undoubtedly deserves all conference honors."

The Steers reached Austin at 2 p. m. Saturday, ten hours late. They were delayed at Valley Junction from 2:40 a. m. yesterday until noon. The train, scheduled to pick up their car at the Junction early in the morning, did not show up until almost 12 o'clock.

"We spent the long hours at the Junction listening to the funny stories told by Leo Baldwin and Ox Higgins," Captain Sandy Esquivel jokingly remarked.

STATE INTERSCHOLASTIC CAGE TOURNAMENT HERE FRIDAY AND SATURDAY

Thirteen high school basketball teams will be here Friday and Saturday, March 5 and 6, to take part in the state championship basketball tournament staged under the auspices of the University of Texas Interscholastic League, according to Roy B. Henderson, athletic director.

Tickets Selling.

Tickets are now on sale at the athletic offices in Z Hall. A special offer has been made to University students by selling a tournament ticket for $1. These tickets will be placed on sale Monday and cannot be purchased after Thursday evening at 6 o'clock, Director Henderson said.

The winners of the following games will take part in the basketball tournament:

Canyon defeated Lorenzo; Canton defeated Gilmore; Stephenville defeated Abilene; Pilot Point defeated Denison; Corsicana defeated Gatesville; Nacogdoches defeated Trinity; Sanderson defeated Eden; Brownwood defeated Fredericksburg; Austin defeated Tabor.

Four high school games are scheduled for Saturday night with the four winners coming here to take part in the Interscholastic League tournament March 5 and 6. Brackenridge of San Antonio plays Yancey; Galveston plays Beaumont; Port Lavaca plays Taft; and Herold plays Throckmorton. According to the dope bucket, which is frequently upset, Brackenridge, Beaumont, Port Lavaca, and Throckmorton will be victorious in the various games and eligible to participate in the state tournament.

A breakfast will be given for the high school athletes Friday morning at 7:30 o'clock, at which time President W. M. W. Splawn will deliver an address of welcome. The banquet will be held at the University Cafeteria. The high school athletes will stay at the various fraternity houses.

The games will start Friday morning at 9 o'clock. Three games will be played Friday morning, three Friday afternoon, and three Friday night.

Silver Loving Cup.

The semi-finals will be played Saturday morning and the finals Saturday night. The team winning the state championship will be presented with a silver loving cup. First, second, and third place winners will be given individual trophies of miniature basketball watch charms, gold ones going to the winners, silver to the second place winners, and bronze to the team winning third place.

The semi-finalist will stage a game to determine the second place winners and the runners-up will fight it out for third place honors. Dr. Splawn has been asked to present the trophies.

ESQUIVEL MAKES ALL-CONFERENCE

quintet. This pair is about the speediest that could be put together and would net many markers for their team.

Slade Gets Place

Louis Slade, the flashing Baylor center, wins the second team position at the tip-off ring. He practically beat the Longhorns here early in the season single-handed and played a remarkable game, considering the fact that he is a sophomore playing his first season of intercollegiate basketball.

Weldon Woolridge, the deadly-shooting S. M. U. Mustang, and Punk Baker, Aggie star, are given the second team guards, because of their steady work throughout the race.

Parrish of T. C. U., one of the best prospects in the conference, hitting his stride late in the season, and Jimmy Walker of Baylor, are the third team forwards; Leo Baldwin is placed at center because of his sensational work in the closing Longhorn games, and Johnny Estes of the Steers, and Ralph Nevinger of Rice, are at guards. Estes played a wonderful game against T. C. U. last week and his work in that contest alone stamped him as one of the most valuable men in the conference.

HARRY BAUMGARTNER IS STILL LEADING DISCH'S BATTERS

RETAINS LEAD WITH .508 SCORE

Six Members of Longhorn Baseball Squad Maintain Average Over .300

Harry Baumgartner is again leading his teammates on Uncle Billy Disch's baseball squad, with an astounding batting average through last week of .508. His average this week was .583, and that of last week was .491.

Howard Williamson climbed from fourth place to second, with a season average of .406. His average last week was .392, but he brought this up by batting at .462 during the week. Six members of the squad are batting above .300 this week. They are Baumgartner, Williamson, Pratt, Thompson, Williams, and Baker.

Batting averages for the entire team follow:

Player	AB	R	H	BA
Baumgartner	61	24	31	.508
Williamson	64	22	26	.406
Pratt	65	23	26	.400
Thompson	46	14	17	.396
Williams	62	14	21	.388
Baker	27	6	9	.333
McGlasen	52	9	15	.288
Saxon	42	9	12	.285
Redfern	53	7	15	.283

STEERS-DUMMIES CLASH TUESDAY

Game Scheduled for 3 o'Clock at Clark Field; Baker and Cox to Pitch

Uncle Billy Disch's Longhorns will play the Dummies Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock on Clark Field. This will be the second game of the year, the Steers having whipped Bib Falk's All-Stars last Monday, 7 to 4.

Either Baker or Cox will pitch, and Ramsey will catch. The remainder of the Texas line-up will probably be Falk, first base; Thompson, second base; Radford, short; Redfern, third; Williams or Baumgartner, left field; Pratt, center field, and Williamson, right. This combination has been showing up well in practice.

Not much is known about the Dummies. Last year they were easy victims of the Orange and White crew, but they may have developed a good pitcher this season. Weakness of the hurling staff hurt them last year.

SIX CO-EDS IN 50-MILE HIKE

Mules and Wagon Carry Luggage for Second Trip of Winter Term

The second 50-mile hike this year began Saturday afternoon when six girls started on a gypsy trip, to go out the Oak Hill road, around the Scenic Loop, to a place called the Swiss Alps on the Marble Falls road, and back home by the Bee Cave road Monday afternoon.

At 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon, Elizabeth Whitesides, Loreen Mursund, Bertha Black, Marjorie Vogan, Miss Thelma Dillingham, and Ed Sweatt, hiking manager, started on the trip, with two white mules and on an old wagon to carry the luggage. There was nothing modern about the group as it left the gym in Gypsy fashion, the six girls walking beside the wagon, differing from real Gypsies only in that they walked instead of riding in the wagon.

The hikers who went on the 50-mile hike last week were so enthusiastic over the hike that Miss Dillingham and Ed Sweatt arranged for this second 50-mile hike for the benefit of those who could not go last time and also for those who wanted to go again. Hikers must go on a 50-mile hike before they can make the 100-point hiking team.

JUNIORS LEADING IN VOLLEY BALL

Forge Ahead in Interclass Race by Defeating Seniors Twice

By winning from the seniors by scores of 15-11 and 15-7 in games played Thursday in the interclass girls' volley ball, the juniors forged ahead in the race and are now leading the series. The sophomores, by taking two games from the freshmen, 15-7 and 15-2, boosted their average and are now tied with the seniors for second place.

The next games will be played Wednesday night at 7 o'clock and Thursday at 4 o'clock.

Good team-work by the juniors was the outstanding feature of the contests, the work of every player being calm and consistent. Hilda Anderson played the best game for the juniors, while Dorothy Heacock was the star for the seniors.

Line-up for the seniors: Sarah Penn (captain), May Hander, Mildred Gaff, Dorothy Heacock, Onata Klossner, Cora Mae Beck. Line-up for juniors: Floy Wooley, Eula Gill, Bertha Bohn, Hilda Anderson, Helen Long, John E. Butler.

The freshmen had only three players on the floor and their squad was filled with others to make a team of six. The result was a very one-sided victory for the sophomores.

Line-up of sophomores: Jimmie Crozier, Olga Reichenan, Irene Rander, Jane Bowrs, Mollie Johnson (captain), Julia Shanblum, Ruth Reed, and Minnie Armer. Freshman line-up: Margie Hudson (captain), Rae Logsdon, and Elsie Kesper.

ODOM LEAVES.

Heinie Odom, stellar shortstop of the Longhorns until signed by the New York Yankees, left Austin Friday for his home in Rusk. He will spend a few days there before reporting at the St. Paul training camp in Waco for spring practice. He had been working out with the Longhorns.

OPENING

A Fashion Review of Authoritative Spring Styles for Women & Misses

Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday,
March the 1st, the 2nd, the 3rd

You Are Cordially Invited

You need go no further than this store, to know the many originalities of the new fashion season. At every turn of the head, new tendencies will reveal themselves, everywhere you will see modes expressly designed for the bright, joyful season of springtime. And you will find them in that wide variety which makes choice so keen a pleasure.

Features You Will Note
When Viewing the Fashions

Frocks Have Capes

Street frocks, afternoon frocks and evening gowns for dinner and dance boast little short matching capes. You will see them here in various youthful versions, as you will other tendencies in frocks all decidedly new and refreshing in silhouette, fabric and color tone.

Separate Capes
Are Favored

The cape, a recognized style in the new mode, is seen developed in cloth and silk fabrics. A stunning cape is double tiered of satin or silk crepe with fox fur collars. Satin crepe with bead embroidered overcape is another smart example of the mode to be seen in our fashion review.

Scallops Are Noted

Scallops as a trimming detail is important. They are used to outline the collar, pocket and sleeves of frocks. Scallops are also employed to edge the capes of ensembles.

Coats Take Various Steps to Smartness

The utility coat, the sports model, the coat of silk, or the coat with a capelet all gain smartness through their own ways of originality, aided by new treatment in sleeves, necklines, and artful touches of embroidery. Fabrics and shades help considerably in their fashion importance.

Hats Outshine
Rainbow's Colors

There are hats draped or moulded; high rolled effects and small brimless skull caps. Fabrics, too, plays its important role, together with colors decreed smartest for spring.

See Austin American-Statesman for Our Silk Sale News.

RIP ON THE CAMPUS.

Much instruction, combined with a goodly measure of humor and pathos, would result if the device used by Washington Irving in "Rip Van Winkle" were applied to the situation presented by the changes that have transpired on the American college campus during the last quarter-century.

Suppose, for instance, a typical collegian of a generation ago, who, having inhaled the fumes from some mysterious chemical, had gone off and lain himself away and fallen into a slumber that defied the lapse of twenty-five years. Then rousing himself one fine morning, he hastens to make an 8 o'clock class. True to his day and age he would be of that two-fisted breed possessed of an excessive masculine scorn of the niceties of dress and deportment. His trousers are innocent of a crease, and his face, which rarely submitted to the razor's edge, supports a five days' growth of thatch. He is a senior. Hence he wears a crushed and mutilated plug hat. Gathering his faculties out of the somewhat foggy state he attributes to one of his habitual spreeds, his feet unconsciously take the familiar way to the way where he was wont to brace himself under such circumstances by a deep draught from a foaming pot of beer. At the old haunt he is confronted by a dapper youth behind a curious looking breastwork of marble. When our erstwhile collegian attempts to assume a leaning posture, he is mystified by the discovery that the bar is more than a foot below the regulation height. With a pathetic effort he stamps in vain for the footrail. An incoherent exchange of ideas with the youth across the counter results in a proffered glass of coke.

If we would realize the full possibilities in such a situation, we should localize the scene. So, the man out of the past must be placed on the walk from Guadalupe to the Main Building. Although mystified and bewildered by his previous experiences, he is yet to receive his first real shock. Down the walk come a sheik and a co-ed. In utter disregard of true masculine sentiment the youth holds the girl's hand, and, as if he would flaunt his effeminacy in the face of all the world, he swings it freely as they saunter along. Effeminate conduct is only accentuated in his attire: a baby-blue sweater with a V-shaped neck, and loose, flapping trousers of a delicate shade of gray. His hair is smooth and slick and shines with an unnatural brilliance in the bright morning light. But the girl! The ancient senior is startled by the version of short hair and scarlet lips. "Good God!" he gasped, "can this sort get in the University?"

Abashed by the frank, impertinent stares the girl fixed upon him as she approached, he dropped his eyes. They fairly bulged from their sockets as they beheld a pair of legs in flesh-colored hose. With each step the tantalizing flounce of the short skirt promised to reveal a knee, but, as though endowed with true feminine guile, it always reneged at the crucial instant.

Doubting the evidence of his senses, the befogged collegian gaped as one bewitched. Into his fuddled brain came the words: "Oh, probably a drunken hobo." There was a ripple of laughter, and the couple sauntered on, hand in hand.

"My drink must have been doped with a knock-out drop last night," he mused as he collapsed on an iron bench.

But the balmy morning air soon revived him. He bestirred himself and looked about. Wearily he picked up a newspaper on the turf near his bench and without noting either title head or date line, he began reading the Daily Texan of Saturday, February 27, 1926. A headline announcing something in connection with a "sack rush" attracted his eye.

A careless perusal of the story conveyed the information that the freshmen were planning some kind of a rush, a "sack rush" as it was called. "A sack rush," muttered the man, with a note of contempt as he recalled the effeminate youth in the baby-blue sweater and the flappy gray trousers. "A sack rush. Can they mean a cane rush? But I never heard of publishing plans for a cane rush. The fellows turn and have a wallop good fight. But what's this about refreshments?"

He reads for a minute with a greater show of interest; then threw the paper down with an angry exclamation. "Ice cream!" he gasped, falling into a faint.

At last he was disturbed by the sound of footfalls on the walk. He opened his eyes and beheld whole troops of flapping trousers and flimsy flounces flirting with feminine knees. "Has all the world changed styles over night?" he asked himself as he reviewed the parade with awakening interest.

Musing over this problem, his eye strayed to the paper he had thrown down and caught the headline: "Girls' Rifle Club Scores 847-826 Win Over Austin Group."

"Humph," he mused, "natural enough to imagine these girls handling a gun. Wouldn't wonder but what they carry a dirk concealed in their short skirts."

He picked up the paper and read on. "The Girls' Rifle Club scored a success over the Austin Rifle Club Friday night, the score standing 847 to 826. The meeting was very exciting and close, but the girls with their sitting position, emerged victors over the men, who shot at an off-hand position, both at 50 feet."

It would take a consummate master to narrate the adventures of this senior of a bygone generation during the course of the day and tell how, out of his confusion of mind, there emerged the realization that he was a sort of mesmerized holdover from a quarter-century ago. At any rate, the afternoon finds him in Z Hall waiting for the beginning of the intramural bouts. Incited by a mixture of curiosity and contempt, he had come to the ring-side to see how these girlish striplings measured up with the stalwarts of his day. Then he would shake the dirt of the Forty Acres from his boots forever.

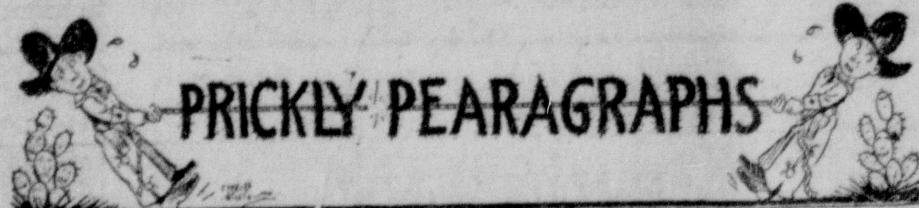

A group of officials and contestants entered. Among the boxers he recognized the young fop of his encounter on the walk. His tall, willow-like form was enveloped in the folds of a many-colored dressing gown.

Preliminary arrangements were speedily made. At the sound of the bell the fop leaped into the ring. He was a thing of life and action now, moving to and fro with the grace and spring of an antelope. His long arms shot out, dealing hammer blows with lightning rapidity, and recovering as quickly to the guard. His streaming locks flew about his head in wild disorder.

As the ancient senior watched the spectacle, his education began anew. Out of his memory came a phrase: "Never despise a dandy." Never despise a dandy. Where had he read that? Somewhere, it had some connection, he thought, with the guileless youths of Rome who laid down their lives for Pompey at Pharsalia.

It is said—for it is a legend now—that the senior went over on Guadalupe and had a shave. And it is also said that he is still on the campus.

"The Enchanted Hill" to Be Screened at Queen Tomorrow

"The Enchanted Hill" is said to be an up to the minute story of adventure, conflict, mystery, and intrigue, mellowed by wholesome romance and rich in comedy, that establishes a new standard in outdoor productions. It marks a radical departure from the old, stereotyped western movie because it develops along brand new and wholly modern lines.

The plot is built around an up-to-date cattle ranch war. Jack Holt is cast in the leading role and Florence Vidor brings her talent and loveliness to the feminine support. Noah Beery, of course, is the villain, and Mary Brian is seen as Holt's younger sister.

The supporting players include George Bancroft, Richard Arlen, Ray Thompson, and the famous Paramount cowboys.

"The Enchanted Hill" will be featured at the Queen on tomorrow and Tuesday.

Elinor Glyn Comedy Will Open Monday at Majestic Theater

"Soul Mates" which opens at the Majestic tomorrow is the first comedy that Elinor Glyn has ever written. While possessing all of that author's penchant for romance, it is first and foremost a comedy drama.

The theme deals with a woman who believes that the man she loves wishes to marry her for her money only, and learns only after the ceremony that her affection is reciprocated.

Aileen Pringle and Edmund Lowe play the leading roles in this Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture which was directed by Carey Wilson.

Pouring Concrete for Tennis Court Drainage

Construction of additional tennis courts on the grounds adjoining the Memorial Stadium of the University of Texas will start as soon as the concrete culvert, which is necessary to keep the courts properly drained, can be finished, according to athletic authorities. Pouring of the concrete is going forward steadily, and the courts may be ready for use by summer.

Although there are a number of good courts at the University, the increasing popularity of tennis as an intramural sport and as physical training makes necessary the construction of additional playing grounds. At a recent meeting the Board of Regents appropriated $10,000 for this purpose.

Lucille Ballentine Headlines Current Vaudeville Program

Lucille Ballentine, one of the prettiest and shapeliest dancing damsels, heads the vaudeville bill which will play at the Hancock tomorrow and Tuesday. She and her four fast-stepping boy friends who also sing present a whirlwind dancing act that can well occupy the top position on the bill.

Eccentric comedy comes onto the bill with Jimmie Lucas, author-comedian. Lucas is said to do almost everything in the nonsense line and is ably assisted by pretty Geraldine Herbert. Jean Libonati, an old favorite of vaudeville, appears on the program with xylophone. His repertoire runs from operatic selections to the present day popular hits.

Stephens and Hollister present a conversive skit embracing a little song and dance. They call it "Back in Beverly Hills." Little Pipifax, the "Funny Little Sailor" opens the bill with a routine of pantomimic comedy.

Showing on the screen between the vaudeville performances is the William Fox picture, "The First Year" which was adapted from John Goldens great stage play.

Barthelmess Film Opens Week at Texas

"Shore Leave," the Richard Barthelmess production playing at the Texas Monday was a big hit on Broadway when produced by David Belasco with Frances Starr in the stellar role.

Barthelmess saw striking possibilities in the role of "Bilge" Smith. The play was purchased by the producers of Barthelmess pictures, Inspiration Pictures Inc., and the comedy was adapted to fit the young star's needs by Josephine Lovett.

In support of Barthelmess in this production are Dorothy Mackaill, Ted MacNamara, Nick Long, Marie Shotwell, Arthur Metcalfe, and others.

From Stowaway to M. A. in Three Years Is Robins' Record

European Colleges Superior, Belgian Student Declares

By Vivian Richardson.

From out war-ridden Belgium, through school days in foggy England, and by stowaway to America came Alphonse Robins seeking adventure. And he found it.

But he, who came from a well-to-do Belgian family, wiped oil from the machinery in the engine room of a transport boat and picked apples from hill-side trees in California before he arrived at the University of Texas to form his opinions of America.

"American schools? They are ineffective and far from thorough, compared to the old established schools of England, where hard work is hard work and no student has finished his courses until he has done his share of it," Robins said after three years in the United States, during which time he has received his B. A. degree. "Perhaps this is true because the English schools have a better background and an older foundation—a fact partly true even of little Belgium."

But Robins only arrived at these beliefs after many experiences and adventures in this country. Reared in the quaint old city of Antwerp, where he went to school until he was eleven years old, and afterwards a growing boy in Leeds, England, he has had many experiences upon which to base his judgment of America. He was but a child when the Germans were bombing Antwerp and rejoiced that, since the school buildings had been converted into hospitals, he did not have to attend classes.

"It was all a holiday to me," he laughed. "I volunteered as a dispatch boy and thought it interesting that I was allowed to go from department to department carrying letters. At night we slept in cellars, for cellars were safer than houses and less likely to be the target for shells from enemy airplanes. The front was only twelve or fifteen miles away, and I can remember riding on a street car when the car stopped suddenly. As a great whistle blew all cars would stop, unload their passengers, and proceed back to the railroad station to transport wounded soldiers to the hospitals. It was pitiful to see the wounded and bleeding soldiers, some of them delirious from pain."

Robins' father and mother left Antwerp only twelve hours before the German army took the town. With them went the small boy who thought of shrapnel and shell only as objects of interest and complained at being taken away from the excitement.

In England, at Leeds, Robins entered school and was surprised at the many differences between Belgium and England.

"Three classes of schools are best known in Belgium," he explained. "These are the government or public schools, where the children of the working classes go, the private or paid schools where the children of the upper classes and aristocracy attend, and the purely religious schools. I attended the private schools where the classes were conducted in French, all the upper classes speak French, while the lower classes speak Flemish. So it is that in the government or public schools, most of the teaching is done in Flemish, although all students are required to study French, while the students in the private schools, taught in French, are required to learn Flemish. Belgium is essentially a bi-lingual country, although 'wallon,' a dialect and a deterioration of French, is spoken by the people of two or three provinces in the eastern part of Belgium. Just as Flemish is low-grade Dutch, so is 'wallon' low-grade French."

Robins himself speaks five languages: Dutch, French, German, English, and Flemish, and has as well a working knowledge of Spanish.

"In England the systems are different in that elementary schools, corresponding to America's public schools, provide the earliest education where this education is not given by a tutor," he went on. Eton, St. Paul's and others come next and these, called the great public schools of England, are really private schools giving preparatory work. It is at these schools that the English lad gets his thorough preparation for Oxford, and Cambridge; the monthly examinations are what you call 'stiff,' very 'stiff.'"

But all during these school days in the British Isles, Robins had been reading Upton Sinclair's stories of Chicago; so the day he was 18, having asked permission of his parents and been refused, he stowed away on an American boat.

"I hid under the bunk of a burly seaman, and when they found me! They put me to cleaning sooty pipes in the boiler room—and I had never done a day's work in my life! I was sick—seasick and soulsick, but determined not to give up."

In the meantime the elder Robins, a wool merchant of Leeds, ascertained Alphonse's whereabouts and wired the captain to put him off the boat and send him home. But the captain would not do it, and a little more than five months later, after having worked his way up in the engine room so that he received $150 a month and ate with the petty officers, Robins landed in San Francisco.

With part of his savings he bought a Ford car and started out to see the United States. His first adventure was to run into a man, knock him down, and escape from prosecution only after an argument. Over the California mountains, through the dangerous roads of Yosemite National Park, and out into the plains of New Mexico Robins drove his car.

"I had wreck after wreck," he said. "The worst one ended my touring. It happened at Seguin, Texas, and when I got to San Antonio, a friend of Senator Wurzbach introduced me to him. He suggested that I come to the University of Texas and here I finally came, although I had thought I would go to Harvard. Swede Swenson, then a prominent football star, and other boys at the Chi Phi house took an interest in me and showed me the ropes. Now I am here to stay until I get my M. A. degree in June."

Robins completed his work on a B. A. degree in two and one-half years, almost an unheard-of accomplishment, and made his expenses in the meantime. He has coached, acted as assistant in history, and is now holder of a scholarship in history, his major subject. After he completes his work here next June, he expects to teach a year, then go to Harvard where he will work on a Ph.D. degree. For Harvard is really comparable, he says, with the great schools and universities of England.

"But after all I like America better than Europe. It is much more democratic, a friendliness is found in this country that has no equal in the countries of Europe, including Belgium, my homeland. Because of my love for the United States I intend to live here, returning to Belgium only for occasional visits," Robins said.

MENORAH MEETING.

There will be a meeting of the Menorah Society this afternoon at 3 o'clock, at which time Louis J. Hexter of Dallas will address the society on the subject, "The University Man in Business." The entire membership is urged to attend.

BOB PAYNE HERE.

"This year's Texan is more representative of the school than during any previous year," said Bob Payne, Varsity yell leader of last year, who visited on the campus Saturday. Payne is teaching in Ballinger this year.

UNIVERSITY NEEDS MILLION DOLLAR MUSEUM—SCHUCHERT

In the preliminary steps which have been taken toward the establishment of a museum at the University of Texas consideration has been given of the great service that it would render not only to the students of the University, but people generally of Texas. Men of science are especially interested in the accomplishment of the project.

Dr. Charles Schuchert, professor emeritus of paleontology at Yale University, who is conducting a special course of lectures at the University, is regarded as an authority on museums. He was formerly administrative officer of the Peabody Museum of Natural History at that school, and he has direct personal knowledge of benefits which are to be obtained from such an institution. He has evidenced much interest in the movement to bring about the establishment of a museum at the University of Texas.

Vast Treasures.

"The people of this state need at the University of Texas a first class museum to show the vast natural resources of the state," he said. "Not only its mineral and agricultural resources, but as well to show the animals common to the region and the archaeology of the peoples who once lived in Texas. It should not be merely a place where these things are shown visitors, but above all to also be an educational center for the students at the University studying natural history. It should also be the place from which are loaned collections and books to the high schools of the state, and even something of this same sort may be sent out to the public schools. This last has been done by museums of some states. Its doors should be open to the public every day in the year, including Sunday afternoons."

"The Natural History Museum of Harvard University has cost more than $1,250,000, has an endowment of about $900,000, and its floor space covers about two acres. It is primarily for research. The Peabody Museum at Yale University, starting out with a gift of $150,000, now has a new building costing over $900,000, with a floor space of about 75,000 feet. It is also primarily a research museum, but is now co-operating with the schools of New Haven and of Connecticut, and soon is to have another building wholly devoted to a children's museum.

"The University of Texas needs a natural history museum building costing about one million dollars, and so designed that additions can be built to it as time requires. A museum, like a library, constantly grows through new accessions and but little of its materials can be thrown away or is lost through the years of time. Let us hope that the people of the great state of Texas will see to it that such a building will be forthcoming. On the other hand, the history of other museums has demon-

HANCOCK.

A breath-taking jump from the peaceful wilds of an Australian sheep ranch to the mad frivolities of the gay Riviera—swept out and over the mad pleasures and luxuries of an advanced civilization by the smile of a beautiful princess—face to face with death and disaster for the love of this princess who designed to smile while others laughed—and you have Rod LaRocque as "Amos" in "The Coming of Amos."

"The Coming of Amos" was made from the novel "William J. Locke," by Paul Sloane under the personal supervision of Cecil B. DeMille. It will be featured at the Hancock beginning Wednesday for the remainder of the week.

Jetta Goudal, Noah Beery, Richard Carle, Arthur Hoyt, Trixie Friganza, Clarence Burton, Ruby Lafayette and others are seen in the supporting cast.

From Stowaway to M. A. in Three Years Is Robins' Record

European Colleges Superior, Belgian Student Declares

By Vivian Richardson.

From out war-ridden Belgium, through school days in foggy England, and by stowaway to America came Alphonse Robins seeking adventure. And he found it.

But he, who came from a well-to-do Belgian family, wiped oil from the machinery in the engine room of a transport boat and picked apples from hill-side trees in California before he arrived at the University of Texas to form his opinions of America.

"American schools? They are ineffective and far from thorough, compared to the old established schools of England, where hard work is hard work and no student has finished his courses until he has done his share of it," Robbins said after three years in the United States, during which time he has received his B. A. degree. "Perhaps this is true because the English schools have a better background and an older foundation—a fact partly true even of little Belgium."

But Robbins only arrived at these beliefs after many experiences and adventures in this country. Reared in the quaint old city of Antwerp, where he went to school until he was eleven years old, and afterwards a growing boy in Leeds, England, he has had many experiences upon which to base his judgment of America. He was but a child when the Germans were bombing Antwerp and rejoiced that, since the school buildings had been converted into hospitals, he did not have to attend classes.

"It was all a holiday to me," he laughed. "I volunteered as a dispatch boy and thought it interesting that I was allowed to go from department to department carrying letters. At night we slept in cellars, for cellars were safer than houses and less likely to be the target for shells from enemy airplanes. The front was only twelve or fifteen miles away, and I can remember riding on a street car when the car stopped suddenly. As a great whistle blew all cars would stop, unload their passengers, and proceed back to the railroad station to transport wounded soldiers to the hospitals. It was pitiful to see the wounded and bleeding soldiers, some of them delicious from pain."

Robins' father and mother left Antwerp only twelve hours before the German army took the town. With them went the small boy who thought of shrapnel and shell only as objects of interest and complained at being taken away from the excitement.

In England, at Leeds, Robins entered school and was surprised at the many differences between Belgium and England.

"Three classes of schools are best known in Belgium," he explained. "These are the government or public schools, where the children of the working classes go, the private or paid schools where the children of the upper classes and aristocracy attend, and the purely religious schools. I attended the private schools where the classes were conducted in French, all the upper classes speak French, while the lower classes speak Flemish. So it is that in the government or public schools, most of the teaching is done in Flemish, although all students are required to study French, while the students in the private schools, taught in French, are required to learn Flemish. Belgium is essentially a bi-lingual country, although 'wallon,' a dialect and a deterioration of French, is spoken by the people of two or three provinces in the eastern part of Belgium. Just as Flemish is low-grade Dutch, so is 'wallon' low-grade French."

Robins himself speaks five languages: Dutch, French, German, English, and Flemish, and has as well a working knowledge of Spanish.

"In England the systems are different in that elementary schools, corresponding to America's public schools, provide the earliest education where this education is not given by a tutor," he went on. "Eton, St. Paul's and others come next and these, called the great public schools of England, are really private schools giving preparatory work. It is at these schools that the English lad gets his thorough preparation for Oxford, and Cambridge; the monthly examinations are what you call 'stiff,' very 'stiff.'"

But all during these school days in the British Isles, Robins had been reading Upton Sinclair's stories of Chicago; so the day he was 18, har-

ing asked permission of his parents and been refused, he stowed away on an American boat.

"I hid under the bunk of a burly seaman, and when they found me! They put me to cleaning sooty pipes in the boiler room—and I had never done a day's work in my life! I was sick—seasick and soulsick, but determined not to give up."

In the meantime the elder Robins, a wool merchant of Leeds, ascertained Alphonse's whereabouts and wired the captain to put him off the boat and send him home. But the captain would not do it, and a little more than five months later, after having worked his way up in the engine room so that he received $150 a month and ate with the petty officers, Robins landed in San Francisco. With part of his savings he bought a Ford car and started out to see the United States. His first adventure was to run into a man, knock him down, and escape from prosecution only after an argument. Over the California mountains, through the dangerous roads of Yosemite National Park, and out into the plains of New Mexico Robins drove his car.

"I had wreck after wreck," he said. "The worst one ended my touring. It happened at Seguin, Texas, and when I got to San Antonio, a friend of Senator Wurzbach introduced me to him. He suggested that I come to the University of Texas and here I finally came, although I had thought I would go to Harvard. Swede Swenson, then a prominent football star, and other boys at the Chi Phi house took an interest in me and showed me the ropes. Now I am here to stay until I get my M. A. degree in June."

Robins completed his work on a B. A. degree in two and one-half years, almost an unheard-of accomplishment, and made his expenses in the meantime. He has coached, acted as assistant in history, and is now holder of a scholarship in history, his major subject. After he completes his work here next June, he expects to teach a year, then go to Harvard where he will work on a Ph.D. degree. For Harvard is really comparable, he says, with the great schools and universities of England.

"But after all I like America better than Europe. It is much more democratic, a friendliness is found in this country that has no equal in the countries of Europe, including Belgium, my homeland. Because of my love for the United States I intend to live here, returning to Belgium only for occasional visits," Robins said.

MENORAH MEETING.

There will be a meeting of the Menorah Society this afternoon at 3 o'clock, at which time Louis J. Hexter of Dallas will address the society on the subject, "The University Man in Business." The entire membership is urged to attend.

BOB PAYNE HERE.

"This year's Texan is more representative of the school than during any previous year," said Bob Payne, Varsity yell leader of last year, who visited on the campus Saturday. Payne is teaching in Ballinger this year.

Scandinavian Society Broadcasts Songs and Music Wednesday Eve

The University Scandinavian Society will broadcast a program of Scandinavian songs and music from station KUT on Wednesday evening, March 3 at 8 o'clock. According to Bertil Thorgren, president, the program committee has arranged a varied and interesting program, outstanding among the numbers being selections from "Glutarnet", well-known students by Gunnar Wennerberg.

Swedish and Danish folk-songs and also modern compositions of Thrane, Kjerulf, Ole Bull, Grieg, and Lassen will be sung by Hilma Karlson, Adair Mauritz, Hilda Widen, Mrs. S. N. Eckdahl, Norman Emerson, Francis Nilsson and A. H. Berkman. There will be instrumental numbers by Edith Nelson, pianist; Carl Widen, cellist; Dartha Davis, violinist, and Verner Stohl, cornetist. Accompaniments will be played by Misses Nelson and Widen, Mesdames F. O. Linder and Lee M. Hollander.

UNIVERSITY NEEDS MILLION DOLLAR MUSEUM—SCHUCHERT

In the preliminary steps which have been taken toward the establishment of a museum at the University of Texas consideration has been given of the great service that it would render not only to the students of the University, but people generally of Texas. Men of science are especially interested in the accomplishment of the project.

Dr. Charles Schuchert, professor emeritus of paleontology at Yale University, who is conducting a special course of lectures at the University, is regarded as an authority on museums. He was formerly administrative officer of the Peabody Museum of Natural History at that school, and he has direct personal knowledge of benefits which are to be obtained from such an institution. He has evidenced much interest in the movement to bring about the establishment of a museum at the University of Texas.

Vast Treasures.

"The people of this state need at the University of Texas a first class museum to show the vast natural resources of the state," he said. "Not only its mineral and agricultural resources, but as well to show the animals common to the region and the archaeology of the peoples who once lived in Texas. It should not be merely a place where these things are shown visitors, but above all to also be an educational center for the students at the University studying natural history. It should also be the place from which are loaned collections and books to the high schools of the state, and even something of this same sort may be sent out to the public schools. This last has been done by museums of some states. Its doors should be open to the public every day in the year, including Sunday afternoons."

"The Natural History Museum of Harvard University has cost more than $1,250,000, has an endowment of about $900,000, and its floor space covers about two acres. It is primarily for research. The Peabody Museum at Yale University, starting out with a gift of $150,000, now has a new building costing over $900,000, with a floor space of about 75,000 feet. It is also primarily a research museum, but is now co-operating with the schools of New Haven and of Connecticut, and soon is to have another building wholly devoted to a children's museum.

"The University of Texas needs a natural history museum building costing about one million dollars, and so designed that additions can be built to it as time requires. A museum, like a library, constantly grows through new accessions and but little of its materials can be thrown away or is lost through the years of time. Let us hope that the people of the great state of Texas will see to it that such a building will be forthcoming. On the other hand, the history of other museums has demon-

Royal Pageant Friday Night, March 5th

HISTORY OF SPAIN WILL BE PORTRAYED BY CLUB IN PAGEANT NEXT TERM

An historical pageant presenting life in the various periods in the history of Spain and her colonies, beginning with Spain in the eighth century and leading through early Texas colonization will be staged by the University Spanish Dramatic Club in the early part of May, according to announcement by Lincoln Canfield, president of the club.

Expulsion of Goths

The pageant will first picture early Spanish history with the expulsion of the Goths by the Moors during the eighth century, Canfield said. The adventures of such heroes as Bernardo de Corpio and the mythical Cid will be traced by the pageant performers.

The story will continue with the picturesque court life of the Catholic kings, including the grant of Columbus' request for royal aid from Isabella and Fernando. His subsequent discovery of America is included in this scene of the pageant.

Phases of the early Spanish theater showing the development of the drama in Spain will feature the succeeding act.

From Spain the thread of the story will be picked up with the history of the Spanish American colonies. The conquest of Cortez in Mexico and Pizarro in Peru, the civilization of the grotesque Incas in South America, and the fantastic Aztecs in North America are chapters of history depicted in the latter part of the pageant.

Much Local Color

The concluding scenes of the pageant reach a climax in elaborateness of color. Local color will predominate the sketches from folk lore of Texas, New Mexico and Arizona colonization periods.

The members of the club are gathering material relating to the story of the pageant, as well as collecting the many types of costumes and decorations to be used in the production.

Much Material Now Used for Teaching Health in Schools

Teaching health to school children is far from a dreary matter with the abundance of attractive and interesting material now available on the subject, according to Miss LeNoir Dammitt of the package loan library of the University of Texas. Delightful fairy stories, plays, games, and the like make willing pupils of the children, she said. A great deal of supplementary material has been collected to be used in connection with the lesson plans of the health and happiness league for the first seven grades, which is sponsored in the public schools by the bureau of nutrition and health education of the University.

'TINY' GOOCH WEARS MAN'S SIZED SHOES

Clyde Littlefield, track coach of the University of Texas, has one man on his team this year who cannot wear shoes of an ordinary size. It is necessary to order a special pair of track shoes every time this one man needs a pair.

John Aubrey "Tiny" Gooch of Ennis is the man who comes in for the special attention, for Gooch wears a size 12 shoe. For the past four years, since Gooch was a freshman, Littlefield has had to get special footwear for this man, who also tips the scales at 218 pounds, and is 6 feet, 6 inches in height.

Texas' largest athlete is a shot put.

Bod Sprague of Dallas, an athlete in Texas several years ago, was a freshman with Gooch, and he also had to have shoes of size 12. Although Sprague is not quite as large as the other giant, he tipped the scales around 209 pounds. Sprague was a football player at the University before he left school and entered West Point. In 1925 Sprague was a regular tackle in his first year on the Army eleven, and his playing was rated as excellent at the close of the season.

Helen White, Betty Green, Edwina Barnes, Captain Hockey Teams

Friendly rivalry between the women students of the University of Texas is being evidenced in the interclass hockey games which are now being played to decide the championship, according to Miss Virginia Rath, physical training instructor who coaches the teams. Miss Helen White of Dallas is captain of the sophomores, Miss Betty

Miss Edwina Barnes of Austin of the seniors.

The line-up in hockey is a great deal like in football, Miss Rath explained. There are eleven on each team, five in the forward line, three half-backs, two full-backs, and one goal-keeper. The rules are also somewhat like those of football. Each side attempts to get the ball between the goal posts of the opponent. Sticks that are used much like golf sticks and English cricket balls, which are covered with leather and a little larger than a baseball, are employed in the game.

"Hockey is a fast game," said Miss Rath, "and excellent teamwork can be worked up. English coaches have been in the United States coaching and trying to teach it as they play it. Next year, however, America is going on her own in this sport and American coaches will be used. It is played more in the East than in any other part of this country, but it is gradually spreading. Not only do colleges and universities have teams, but there are a number of city and club teams."

"Field hockey is a woman's game. Ice hockey, played more often by men, is more strenuous and has fewer rules."

PRACTICE MAKES BUSINESS MAN, BELIEVE TEN STUDENTS OF VARSITY B. B. A. SCHOOL

It takes a lot of practice to make a business man, believe the faculty of the School of Business Administration who have recently instituted a ruling which requires that every student must complete at least six months' outside work before he receives his degree.

And now ten students are employed in business houses throughout the state, keeping books, learning the wholesale business, working in banks or as public accountants and in general putting the theory they have learned into practice.

"It is only thus that they learn the true value of courses offered at the University, that they acquire a serious conception of life, and that they understand the true relation of business to their studies," Acting Dean E. K. McGinnis of the school states.

Although the new ruling requiring at least six months of coordination work has not yet been put into effect, this work has always been recommended but has been optional with two years' study of a foreign language. Last year about fifteen students preferred to do coordination work in the place of taking the foreign language courses, and this year more than thirty are expected to do the work. Next year, of course, the numbers will increase considerably since the work will be compulsory and there are 300 students enrolled in the school this year.

This school does not leave the students to find their own positions, however. Traveling about the state all the time and thus keeping in touch with the big business houses and their needs is Professor A. H. Ribbink of the B. B. B. School. When a student is ready to go out for three months' coordination work, Professor Ribbink knows where to send him.

Often the business houses, needing extra help for a certain period, write in and request that a man be sent from the University. Such houses have been known to turn down outsiders with the answer that they needed no new employees, yet writing the next day to Professor Ribbink or Dean McGinnis asking for a man.

The department has placed more men in public accounting than in any other business, according to Dean McGinnis. As a seasonal business, reaching its peak about the first of the year, public accounting offers many opportunities to the student who is free to do three months' work and return to school as soon as the rush is over. Of course, another three months' work is required before the student may receive his degree, and in some courses nine months' outside work is required.

Often the school has more calls for men than they can fill; this was the case last year when a San Antonio firm asked for two students and Dean McGinnis persuaded two men, who had not intended to do their co-ordination work at that time, to go.

Banking, next to public accounting, takes the second largest number of students for the practice work. Many other businesses employ the students, however, for men are now engaged with numerous firms throughout the State.

"The University of Texas is the only school in the South requiring this work," Dean McGinnis said. "We expect much good to come from the practice."

Among the students now engaged in this capacity by various Texas firms are O. C. Turner in Dallas, Chas. Sparenberg in San Antonio, John Surber in Austin, Erwin Heinen in Dallas, W. C. Dunk in Houston, Noel Parsons in Dallas, B. G. Tyler in San Antonio, Valtin Scholemyer in Dallas, Sidney Jackson in San Antonio, and Sam Gardner in San Antonio.

WILMA WITTER HERE.

Among the out-of-town guests here for the Sigma Nu dance was Wilma Witter of Belton. Miss Witter was a student here for three years until a few weeks ago, when she withdrew from the University. She was one of the University's most popular co-eds, and a member of Zeta Tau Alpha sorority.

MEN

Select that Spring suit from authentic patterns and styles. "SCARBROUGH 45"

These suits reflect a certainty of correctness—a knowledge that you are dressed faultlessly.
