

4.2.47.

13 Canterbury Road, Oxford.

Dear D. Kober,

Thanks for your letter of the 30th - I am sorry you will be so pressed for time; but by careful planning I think we may cover a good deal of ground. My only fear is that, in March, most if not all of my text will be in the hands of the printer. But I have duplicates of the transcripts of tablets, and I may be able to arrange access to the text, in relays, at the Press.

Term ends here on March 15th. Cook will be able to reserve accommodation for you. I sincerely recommend visitors to go to the Eastgate Hotel or the King's Arms: bed & breakfast 10/6<sup>0</sup>; other meals in proportion: and then are many small restaurants. The Ashmolean library is open 10-7 and 2-4. The Bodleian 9-3 (7 Thurs) and the Radcliffe Reading Room till 10 pm: books can be transferred from Bodleian to Radcliffe. But you will find nearly all you need at the Ashmolean, where I can reserve a table for you.

I have been much delayed by a bad cold, & the severe weather which (with fresh 'cuts') prevents me from using my library. I hope things will be easier when you come.

I expect a wet & stormy spring: so bring winter clothing.

With all good wishes. Yours sincerely

John Addington
