The population of Austin, gained 36 people to complain Mary Esther Haskell was included about the weather Sunday with the arrival of foreign students on tour of the United States.

Monday afternoon 27 men, sweltering in long-sleeve shirts, and nine girls, some carrying parasols and many with fans, were given a tour of the University and the Drag. Although the weather was very warm, the group stuck to their guide and listened to everything mentioned.

While walking along the Drag, they fired questions at the guides concerning prices of movie tickets, locations of good book stores. the financial plan of the Univer- be so fair complected under the sity Co-Op, and a place to go swimming.

It has often been said that women are more curious than men. but the students reversed that decision. One of the students in his window shopping spree found a lawn sprinkler that interested him more than the rest of the tour. Many of the men in suits took great interest in one of the Drag clotihng stores, which was conducting a sale on summer

The chief question asked but left unanswered was, "If this street is named Guadalupe then why is it called the Drag?"

Their main comment on the stores along the Drag was that prices are cheaper than at any other place they have been.

One Japanese girl, Sumiko Tamura, said she couldn't see how the girls at the University could hot Austin sun.

Ana Landaeta, a Venezuelan student, received a nick-name from her group. They began to call her "water fountain" because she stopped at every one to

They toured the Rare Books collection and then went to the top of the Tower. Many compared the Tower with the Washington Monument through which they had toured in Washington.

In the Main Building rotunda, prices again became the topic of conversation. They compared everything from Cokes to magazines. Parting words to the guides were "Everything is so beautiful, but it has been so hot."

Guess What? Still Hot!

The United States Weather Bureau reports continued hot and fair Tuesday and Wednesday. Sunday's temperature ranged from a low of 76 to 100. By 3:45 Monday afternoon the thermometer had climbed to 101.

19th Annual Coach Clini Underway in San Antoni

By JOE MOSBY Texan Sports Staff

Largest such institution in the world, the 19th annual Texas Coaching School is now in high gear following opening day activities Monday in San Antonio.

Lectures are occupying the mentors' time during the first of the week, but climaxing the clinic will be the North-South All-star football contest on Friday night, with its cage counterpart slated for Saturday evening.

A survey was taken of the members of the South grid crew, with the result showing that the Longhorns are due to latch on to the largest number of the highschoolers.

Of the 28 players, nine have picked the University, while SMU is slated for five, Rice and Texas A&M three each, North Texas members of the Southwest Conference have failed to land any of the stars so far.

Choosing to begin their collegiate careers on the Forty Acres have been end Bob Flinn, Taft; tackles Weldon Ritchie, Cle-"Seven Day's Till Noon," the burne, and Glendon Bushong, Mexia, and Don Miller, Port Neches; Center Leighton Younger, Austin; and backs Larry Graham, Houston, Billy Charles Jones, Longview, and Billy Quinn, San Antonio. Miller and Quinn were all-state last fall.

Wever Joo Late

Unless a late start makes a fall program unfeasible, the once-successful Great Issues Course as presently set up almost certainly will outdo last fall's inaugural lecture series.

A number of changes have been made, some experimentally and others as a result of apparent flaws in the 1950 system. At any rate, this fall's program bids to become a broader and better show with a more tangible purpose.

Despite its obvious growing pains, Great Issues should prove within a few years to be one of the greatest things that has ever happened in Texas education. Why? Simply because the course demonstrates student push and student willingness to seek knowledge outside the beaten paths.

Slightly more than a month remains of the time allotted for finishing course plans, since the opening lecture has tentatively been scheduled for early October. It would be very desirable if the program could be again held in the fall, the season of fewer conflicts and student activities.

were to collapse, which is a disturbing yet very evident possibility, it is hoped that student initiative will not slacken but will strive for an even better program in the spring.

Great Issues must remain non-accredited for at least two more years, but it should not be shunted aside because of any temporary setback. It's too good to lose.

University summer entertainment has never been, is not now, and probably never will be on a par with that offered in the

Yet people complain because the bigname speakers, name bands, and theater performers are virtually all brought here during the long session at the exclusion of the summer. True, but considering low enrollment, intensified classroom work, and above all a very bare budget, summer school students are fortunate to have a program as good as the current one.

The Texan has heard of no Unisified IIA immediately eligible for the draft when the blanket college-student deferment is over August 30. The only kicks come from guys who failed to take the draft classification quiz, and thereby left themselves wide open.

Incidentally, Selective Service headquarters in Washington has released data on the draft exams showing that only 380,000 of the eligible 1,059,000 male college students enrolled in the spring took the test.

Student indignation and ex-student agitation is very high.

It is the belief of the Copyright Committee that if these facts were brought to the attention of MGM executives they would be willing to take steps necessary to remedy the situation in every respect. This misuse of the "Eyes of Texas" if allowed to go unchallenged will no doubt open the door to other abuses. The "Eyes of Texas" Copyright Committee of the Students' Association is prepared to take any and all necessary steps to insure proper respect for the "Eyes of Texas," to rectify the misuse in "Go for Broke," and generally to prevent the recurrence of any infringement of this

Ed Olle, business manager and assistant athletic director of intercollegiate athletics, looks very happy for a man who has just lost his office.

When the University decided to install a vault to keep tickets to Longhorn football games, Mr. Olle's office in Gregory Gym was chosen as the spot. Now the vault is completed, even to the air conditioning, and Mr. Olle is out in the ticket office. But he isn't irked. In fact, the vault so facilitates the sales that in seconds available tickets may be found to any game.
