Critic Declares Mrs. Starnes As Best Performer

'Pygmalion' Given Again
Tonight and Thursday Night

Parke Directs

George Bernard Shaw Play
Offered by Little Theater

By ALEX N. MURPHREE

TEXAN THEATER STAFF
Had it been given before an audience that knew "Pygmalion" is not pronounced "pill-gam-mion" and that knew "bloody" was a strong English cuss-word, the Austin Little Theater could have been credited with scoring a splendid hit with "Pygmalion" instead of only having given a well-nigh perfect performance of a play which, regrettably enough, the audience didn't understand. The play will be presented tonight and Thursday night at 8:15 o'clock at the Austin Labor Temple, Tenth and Brazos Streets.

Praises J. H. Parke

If you feel yourself the sort of person who can stomach and enjoy a play by George Bernard Shaw, who runs to intellectual comedy, then you shouldn't miss the show which is the first sterling performance the Austin Little Theater has done recently and for which James H. Parke, the director, deserves much credit.

Mrs. D. T. Starnes, for whose particular gifts of characterization the play was quite obviously selected, was a joy and an inspiration as the cockney flower-girl who is turned into a duchess in six months by a professor of speech. The hopelessness of her situation after her station in life has been so abruptly boosted is suggested in every line of her characterization throughout the last scenes. All this serves to contrast with the splendid vulgarity of her opening scenes as the slum-grown English cucumber.

Slover Supports Lead

The high lights of her performance were set off by the splendid support which she received from Dr. Clark Slover of the department of English of the University, who will be remembered for his splendid work in the Experimental Theater performance of Gorki's "The Lower Depths." Dr. Slover plays the part of the temperamental professor of speech who essays the "noble experiment."

Dr. Francis Cook of the School of Education, gave a sincere performance marred only at times by a habit of speaking too low to be heard distinctly. In the character of a professor of speech he should have seen after that.

Elliott, Their Good

Josephine Theis and Mrs. Martyn Elliott, for whom paens have been sung before their work in the Little Theater, continued in the same tradition by creating two splendid characterizations, as did Mrs. Annie Bray.

Claude Voyles, who took a part in the play which remained to be filled until one week before the opening night, deserves a great deal of credit for what he was able to do. He strove against an imperfect knowledge of his lines and was wise in not attempting a dialect which, with such slight preparation, he would have been unable to have made convincing.

Winona Glascock, William Frees, Denton Dinsmoor, Eugene Chimene, and Ila Mae Stephens gave careful performances in minor roles.

Waits Mar Play

Possibility for enjoyment of the play was hindered by the interruption to Page 6, Col. 2

Joseph Lectures On French Types Of Architecture

Examples Cited of Peculiar Stone Used Near Toulouse

"Romanesque Architecture in Toulouse, Southern France" was the subject of a lecture which Dr. Donald L. Joseph, adjunct professor of Romance languages, made to the Romanesque architecture class Tuesday morning. Dr. Joseph has spent several summers in Toulouse and is familiar with life in that place.

He cited several examples of exquisite Romanesque architecture, commenting particularly on a peculiar type of building stone that is found in Southern France. "This stone, after weathering, takes on a unique, rose-gray tone which is highly desirable in the types of buildings for which it is used," Dr. Joseph said.

Several intimate glimpses of present-day student life in Toulouse were given by the speaker.

October Royalties Total $175,493

The University benefitted by $175,493 during the month of October from payments of royalties for oil produced on University lands in West Texas, bringing the grand total of the University permanent building fund to $1,319,404, figures announced from the General Land Office.

Remittances received through Monday include those of the Magnolia Petroleum Corporation of $3,615 and the Prairie Oil and Gas Company of $12,786. Royalties received during September totaled $157,000. Increased production was given as the cause for the increase in the October royalties.

Funds received from this source are invested immediately on receipt in bonds and other substantial securities by W. R. Long, auditor of the University.

Racquet Club Will Attend P. T. Talk

Members of Racquet Club have been requested to attend a talk for all physical training women given in Main Building 105 at 5 o'clock today. Miss Helen McKinstry of New York City will address the women.

Texas-S.M.U. Game Will Be Broadcast

The University Co-Op. will broadcast the Texas-S.M.U. football game play-by-play from Dallas Saturday afternoon for the benefit of those who are unable to go to Dallas, said Ed Rathner, manager of the Co-Op, Tuesday. Results of other Southwest Conference games also will be given.

MONTGOMERY TO TALK

Dr. R. H. Montgomery will lecture next Monday night in the auditorium of the Law Building to his class in "Public Finance" concerning the importance of the O'Fallon decision as handed down by the Supreme Court of the United States. The decision concerns the evaluation of property in the hands of transportation companies, and was indirectly responsible for the recent breaks in the stock market, Mr. Montgomery believes.

Benedict and Gregory Praise Response of Students to Campaign

New students in the University, by their response to the new student campaign for the University Union, have brought forth favorable comment from both the President of the University and T. W. Gregory, chairman of the Union executive committee. Mr. Gregory, former Regent of the University, said:

"I never have been disappointed in the spirit of the University of Texas students when they were called to support a movement for the welfare of the school and the state. I am more than gratified, then, to see the present freshmen and transfers, the new students, come to the support of the University Union. I knew they would; I was confident when I asked them to have a part that they would respond in the true Texas spirit."

"The Union will be an inspiring monument to this Texas spirit. It will be the concrete expression of the unanimous desire of thousands of people for better student surroundings where the young folks of Texas can meet and know each other better in the real Texas manner. It will be the physical plant built by public spirited Texas men and women of all ages for the teaching of fair play, regard for the other fellow, and a consistent attitude of group welfare rather than self-interests."

"I appreciate the work of the new students, and, at the same time, I congratulate them upon becoming part of the great University of Texas family so soon after their entrance into the University."

"If all former subscribers to the Union fund will now pay up their pledges to date, the success of the whole campaign this fall will be complete. Let's make this a pay-up as well as a new student drive."

President H. Y. Benedict of the University said:

"If you do not give now what is for each of you a generous sum, you will lose during the rest of your lives an amount of satisfaction scarcely to be measured in many hundreds of dollars. Contrariwise, if you give now up to the limit of your capacity, you will be able to radiate hundred dollar smiles when you come back to future campus gathering and renew your youth in the buildings you helped to make possible."

Continuing in their organization, the entire force of new students engaged in the campaign are to meet at the University Y. M. C. A. auditorium Thursday afternoon at 5 o'clock, when final plans for the active canvassing will be made.

Marine Band Leader Enlisted When 17

Captain Taylor Branson, director of the United States Marine Band, which played here Monday, enlisted with the band when only 17 years old. He was born in Washington and is the first leader of the band whose parents were both native Americans, his father having been born in Maryland and his mother in Virginia.

Captain Branson has served many seasons as violin soloist with the band and has been second leader for some time.

Captain Branson is the composer of a number of military marches which he has dedicated to the Marine Corps.

The Ex-Students' Association will have a registration table in the lobby of the Adolphus Hotel in Dallas where they will dispense information to University students attending the S.M.U. game.

Travel Article By Mrs. Bagby Receives Favor

Is Passed to Final Judging
In $1,200 Prize Story
Contest

Mrs. Jeanette King Bagby, journalism student in the University, has been notified that her article, "Touring Prehistoric America," has been accepted and passed to the committee on awards for final judging in the $1,200 travel story contest of the Normal Instructor and Primary Plans Magazine published at Dansville, N. Y. The final award is to be announced within the next few weeks. The contest closed October 15.

Mrs. Bagby wrote an article describing a tour of the national parks and national monuments, giving particular attention to the prehistoric cave, cliff, and pueblo dwelling areas in the Southwest. The contest was limited to stories on "Travel at Home," and "Travel Abroad," describing journeys made during the 1929 summer vacation.

In the party of which Mrs. Bagby was a member during the trip were her husband, Nathe P. Bagby, graduate student and assistant in the University department of journalism, and DeWitt Reddick, instructor in the department of journalism. Mr. Reddick wrote a number of articles which he sold to the New York Times, Christian Science Monitor, Popular Science, the Southwest Magazine, and other periodicals.

Mr. Bagby, who is in the University on leave of absence from the editorial staff of the Dallas News, made the trip as a correspondent of that paper, writing a series of signed articles on the national parks and monuments.

The trio traveled 9,000 miles by automobile, visiting Canada and thirteen Southwestern and Rocky Mountain states. They left early in June and were gone three months. Mrs. Bagby collected material for trade paper and newspaper articles in addition to writing the article which she submitted in the contest.

Heads of all schools of departments of home economics in Texas and Louisiana colleges will convene for a two-day conference on the campus of the University November 1 and 2, Miss Mary E. Gearing, chairman of the department of home economics, announced Tuesday. The conference is to be conducted under the auspices of the American Home Economics Association, and a representative of that organization, Miss Anna E. Richardson, will be one of the leaders of the meeting.

Directors of the state extension work and child care specialists will attend the conference, and a number of representatives of the University faculty, including Dr. Helen Koch, professor of educational psychology, Dr. Caroline Crowell, physician for women, and others, will have parts on the program. Miss Lillian Peek of the State Department of Education will assist.

Miss Thurston formerly taught home economics at Cornell University and she organized and supervised the nursery school at Vassar College.

The meeting will be the first of this kind held in the South, Miss Gearing said. Similar programs have been carried out in Minnesota, Wisconsin, and other northern states, and it is expected that the movement will spread until practically all states will be holding such conferences periodically.

TREASURES FROM BRAZIL SHOWN IN ARCHIVES ROOM

Treasures from Brazil collected by Thomas R. Day, who is now with the State Department of Agriculture, are on exhibit in the Texas archives room of the Main Library, Mrs. Mattie Hatcher, archivist, announced Tuesday.

Of especial interest in the collection, Miss Hatcher said, is an Indian tomahawk which belonged to an extinct race of Indian giants in Brazil. The large tool is still well polished and tapers to a keen edge. Mr. Day discovered the tomahawk in the bed of the Aracaju River in 1921 while he was serving as director general of the cotton service of Brazil.

While in Brazil, Mr. Day made lantern slides of cities, agricultural products, animals and country scenes. The slides include Sao Paulo and the Sao Paulo snake farms, Rio de Janeiro, Campos and Petropolis.

Mr. Day has loaned the pictures to the University and will use them soon in an illustrated lecture on Brazil and its products.

Mr. Day went to Brazil in 1914 and spent fourteen years there. During that time, he made four round trips from the United States to Brazil. He was editor of the American page in "Cultura e Frabalho" and contributed many articles to magazines in Brazil. He has written several books and owns

A special examination will be held for the seniors who failed to pass the examination, Professor Swanson stated. The second examination will be held in February. A third examination will be given in May.

Lorentz and Mrs. Will Clack of Pasadena, Cal., all of whom were in Austin.

Officials and faculty members of the University who attended the funeral and burial were Professor Paul J. # LONGHORNS PERFECT PLAYS FOR PONY GAME

NORTHWESTERN, IOWA, ADDED TO 1929 BASEBALL SCHEDULE

A. & M.	2	0	2	0	.000

Ticket sales indicate that there will be no seats left empty at Ownby Stadium next Saturday, for they are going faster than the proverbial hot cakes. Students would do well to buy their tickets today, for the duets go off sale in Austin Thursday, and those left over will be sent to Dallas to be offered to the public. It might be well also for students who desire good seats to buy their A. & M. tickets within the next few days, for "the early man gets the best seat." Very possibly there will be a sell-out for both the Mustang and Aggie games.

Color Stunts

Head yell leader Tennant has decided upon a color stunt that should be pretty effective at the Dallas game. Each student is requested to take a white handkerchief along, and orange tissue paper will be given out at the game. Several stunts that will bring out the combination of color will be explained at the final rally Thursday night. Shorty will have an enthusiastic crowd to work with at Dallas, and the Steers will not lose from lack of support.

A paragraph clipped from a rally story in The Semi-Weekly Campus, Southern Methodist student paper, follows:

"Colorful red and blue rockets will be used at the rally. A Texas pennant will be tied to the top of the bonfire and consumed in the flames..."

Drum Major Allen Steere had his band charges out for a drill on the football field yesterday afternoon, and with the assistance of Captain Hahn, was putting them through some snappy work. The Longhorn Band is an organization to be proud of, and those men will look mighty good strutting on the field at S. M. U. next week.

There is one thing that has begun to detract from the appearance of the band, however, and that is the worn and faded condition of their uniforms. When they went to Arkansas, they had to compete with a band that was attired in some of the snappiest-looking new uniforms that the writer has seen; and when they went to Dallas to play at the Oklahoma-Texas game, they had to compete against the same thing. Even the Rice band, which had worn its "second best" uniforms, was better attired last Saturday than the Longhorns are on dress parade. A spectator at the O. U. game hit the nail squarely on the head when he said, "The Longhorn Band is making some mighty good music, and they have the best drum major that I have ever seen, but their uniforms look as if they have been slept in."

Surely there must be some manner of raising money to buy the necessary uniforms all at one time, and not carry on the policy of buying a few at a time that has been in effect. The writer of this column, for one, would like to see the band come out in shin-

Squad Works With Spirit To Beat S. M. U.

Warming up to a heavy schedule of work for the rest of the week, the Longhorns looked over S. M. U. plays as depicted by the frosh in dummy scrimmage yesterday afternoon, entirely devoid of the listless and lifeless attitude which characterized their practice in the early part of the week before the Oklahoma and Rice games. The Varsity line and backs were all looking over the plays and calling out the name of the man carrying the ball.

The early part of the afternoon had been devoted by the Longhorns to perfecting a few of their own plays and to snagging passes. With every backfield candidate taking a hand at the passing, and all the ends and backs, with the exception of Elkins, getting his fill of snagging passes, Littlefield worked the men for nearly half an hour in this department of the game. The coach declared himself fairly well satisfied with the afternoon, but warned the backs that they would have to start getting their passes away faster and would have to be a bit more accurate in their heaves.

After all preliminaries had been placed on the shelf, Littlefield, James and Karow took turns telling the members of the squad all they knew about the various members of the Pony squad, their peculiarities, weaknesses and strong points along with the type of plays the Ponies were likely to use.

For the first time in several years, it appears as though the Steers will enter the game in the proper state of mind, as the majority of the team members are looking upon the S. M. U. clash as just another football game. In the past, they have entered the game over anxious, and were bested. This Saturday, every member of the squad will be in first class physical shape and in the proper mental condition.

The Longhorns will not have the idea of stopping any one man, but will be after the entire Pony eleven—stopping all plays which the Mustangs may hurl against their forward wall. On the other hand, the Ponies are yelling, "Stop Shelley"—a very good idea, but one which may bring them sorrow. The Texas attack is not centered around any one back or play, and the Steers will be able to present one of the most versatile attacks ever witnessed in Dallas if they open the old trick bag to its limit Saturday.

Swimming Club Plans Meeting Thursday

The Texas Swimming Club will hold a meeting Thursday night at 7:30 o'clock in the Y. M. C. A., Panama Fields, president of the club, announced Tuesday.

The meeting is important, Fields said, and all men who plan to become members should try to be present at the meeting. A new constitution will be drawn up by the members present, and a definite schedule for the club activities will be decided upon. Arrangements are being made for a combined meet of all the Southwest Conference schools next spring.

By CAL HUFFMAN
TEXAS SPORTS STAFF
Coach "Shorty" Alderson said to his grid men: "Don your mole-skins, the one-half of those with the blue jerseys and other half with the red jerseys, and get you down to Freshman Field, where the rank grasses grow and where the cricket chirps cheerily in the pecan tree by the creek; there to practice the S. M. U. plays and maul one another fearfully; and when you have grasped the fundamentals, you shall assault the Varsity line again and again until they weary of you, taking meekly such punishment and rough treatment as they shall see fit to mete out to you."

"Do this faithfully during the entire week, likewise with the Baylor plays next week, and for your reward, I will deliver up to you on Stadium Field at 3:30 o'clock, Friday, November 8, the Houston Junior College team, that Turn to Page 6, Col. 7

Trip East in June Still Pending; Play Yanks April 1

Northwestern University, and the University of Iowa are the latest additions to the Texas baseball schedule, while negotiations are under way to schedule Illinois, should the team of that school make a trip south this year. Dr. H. J. Ettlinger, director of athletics, said Tuesday that the proposed trip East in the spring to play Yale, Harvard, and Princeton was still under consideration, and that it was likely that the trip would be made.

The Iowa team will be played here April 16 and 17, with the Northwestern series coming either immediately before or after. The conference schedule calls for games with A. & M. April 18 and 19, so it is likely that the two games with Northwestern will be April 14 and 15. That would give the Longhorns six games in as many days.

Should the trip east be made, it will come during the early part of June, and be timed so that the team will play before the commencement crowds of the eastern colleges. Negotiations were started for the game immediately following the trip east by Dr. Ettlinger to schedule the Texas-Harvard football game of 1931.

The Longhorns open their baseball season here against the New York Yankees April 1. The New York team will be the Yankee first team, and Babe Ruth will be present in the line-up.

Te-WAA-Hiss Girls Served Camp Supper

Te-WAA-Hiss council members and staff entertained Monday afternoon at 6 o'clock with a camp supper in the hills west of Austin in honor of Miss Helen McKinstry of New York City, guest of Miss Leah Gregg.

After supper was served, a program was given during which the ideals and purposes of Te-WAA-Hiss were explained. Miss McKinstry gave a talk concerning her work in the Russell Sage College in New York City. Favors were the programs. Autographs of all present were placed on Miss McKinstry's program.

The man who used to say "I can't smoke until after lunch... my throat is sensitive in the morning" now finds that he can "light up" whenever he pleases. For his morning OLD GOLD has no more throat-scratch than his breakfast omelet.

Likewise all those who have to guard their throats... salesmen, singers, actors, and the like... no longer have to stint their smokes, for OLD GOLD is as free of throat irritants as a glass of spring water.

Better tobaccos did it... naturally good tobaccos... extra-prime leaf made irritation-free by the violet rays of sunshine... not by "artificial treatment."

If you like food that is naturally good, instead of food made good by "artificial treatment"... you're sure to prefer OLD GOLD'S natural tobacco smoothness. Try a package... and get a vote of thanks from both your throat and taste.

Mother Nature makes them smoother and better... with "not a cough in a carload"

Criticism

IT is human nature for us to like to do what we can do well. All of us can do some things well, but there is one thing we all like to do and only few of us can do well, namely, criticism. In the University law students are liberal in their criticisms of the opinions of judges; journalism students enjoy criticising the policies of Arthur Brisbane, Horace Greeley, and Joseph Pulitzer; English students get a thrill out of criticising Shakespeare and Oscar Wilde; economics students lambast socialism; students of history criticise severely Napoleon and Benedict Arnold; sophomores criticise freshmen, and freshmen criticise high school students when they go home at Christmas time.

It is very easy to find fault with anything or anybody. We are all so full of faults ourselves, that it is no trouble to pick out the faults in other people. In fact, it requires more ability to find the good in people and in organizations than the bad. It is also human nature for us to criticise other people for things we are guilty of ourselves.

Someone has said that there are two classes of people in the world: those who do things, and those who ask, "Why wasn't it done the other way?" Every group that was ever organized has made mistakes, and the leader of every organization has made mistakes. However, we probably would have made the same mistake or mistakes that were even worse.

Criticism of the right kind is all right. It does us good to find out occasionally what our neighbors think of us. The ravages of destructive criticism are worse than those of war, black, heinous war; while constructive criticism is very beneficial to us all. We have Holy Writ for this statement: "Faithful are the wounds of a friend, but the kisses of an enemy are deceitful."

Tact and diplomacy always pay, but they pay the most in regard to criticism. When we criticise other people and organizations, we should preface our criticism with something good about the individual or organization. When we preface our criticism with a kind remark, the sting is taken out. In fact, the recipients of criticism are pleased and appreciate the remarks under these conditions.

It is well to offer criticism, but let's remember to first say something good and make our criticisms constructive. Our criticisms then will do good to others.

1. New Orleans Violence.
2. Paper Cargo.
3. President in Command.
4. Bingham's Defense.
5. Speedier Planes.

STREET car strike violence broke out again Monday in New Orleans when a street car and two homes were bombed. Police say the homes were occupied by non-union motormen and conductors.

Angered because their wages had not been paid, the crew of the Greek ship Albania seized the cargo and broke open what was supposed to be bales of Oriental rugs. They found only paper and coal dust. Officials confessed that they intended sinking the ship and claiming $100,000 insurance.

President Kai-Shek of the nationalist government departed from Nanking Monday night in order to assume command against the Kuomintang.

Senator Bingham, in defending himself Monday in his employment of Charles L. Evanson as his secretary, said: "I was advised by friends not to appear before the committee because it had been framed against me as a friend of the administration."

A. H. Driebler, commander of the British Schneider cup team, has been detailed by the air ministry to continue his research for the building of still speedier planes. He hopes to attain the speed of 400 miles per hour.

An attempt was made Monday to kill Japan's premier when a man, apparently weak-minded, swung to the running board of the premier's car with a drawn dagger. The car swerved and he was thrown to the ground.

A bottle containing a message from the car ferry Milwaukee, which sank in last week's storm on Lake Michigan, was found in the lake Sunday. The message read: "Making water fast in slicker. Pumps working good. Have turned back to Milwaukee. Might make it, might not. All crew same as last payroll."

A safe, its lock still fast and containing valuable papers, was found in the Tehouticabouf River Sunday, two years after it had been stolen from a Mississippi company.

Cuyler Selected Science Chairman

Robert H. Cuyler, instructor in geology at the University, has been named chairman of the publicity committee for the meeting of the Texas Academy of Science, ending a two-day session today at College Station. The society, organized in 1892, was re-established as an active organization one year ago, with Clyde T. Reed of Kingsville as president. H. B. Parks of San Antonio was elected secretary-treasurer.

Only one local chapter of the academy has been granted a charter as yet, but two other chapters are petitioning for charters. Cuyler said, East Texas State Teachers' College at Commerce has formed the first local organization. The state organization will have its charter by the time of the meeting at Thanksgiving.

AUSTIN SUNSETS
By H. E. S.

Why should one go away to find beauty when we have so much of her splendor all about us? One would have to travel far and wide to find more beauty than exists in Austin. With her sunsets alone she could captivate the attention of any real artist.

The glow of the Sun as she lowers herself into the canny purple that shrouds the elephantine hills tends to rest a fatigued mind and body and to confirm anyone of a more beautiful world.

To those whom were reared on plains are able to appreciate the hills that lend background to the firmaments. Most cities are noted for something. New Orleans is noted for antiques, Crowley for its rice, Beaumont for its oil, Orange for its millionaires, but, Austin can well be remembered for her marvelous sunsets.

Theater Calendar

HANCOCK—"The Delightful Rogue"—Rod La Rocque, Rita La Roy. Thursday: Vaudeville; feature production: "The Very Idea"—stage and screen cast, all talking.

MAJESTIC—"Three Live Ghosts"—Joan Bennett, Jocelyn Lee, Robert Montgomery. Saturday: "Sweetie"—Nancy Carroll, Helen Kane, Jack Oakie.

QUEEN—"The Hollywood Revue"—everybody and everything.

TEXAS—"Behind That Curtain"—Lois Moran, Warner Baxter.

Opening Today

"Three Live Ghosts"—fast and furious old stage play transposed word for word to the talking screen. In fact, it has even been rumored around from mouth to mouth that regulation stage settings were used in this one. However, seeing is believing. Joan Bennett, Jocelyn Lee, Robert Montgomery, Claude Allister, and Charles MacNaughton compose a cast which should be capable of getting the most out of their lines.

"Behind That Curtain"—Saturday Evening Post serial mystery by Earl Derr Biggers acted out rather superbly by Warner Baxter and Lois Moran, with the part of Charlie Chan, the Chinese detective who is really the backbone of the original series of mystery yarns, reduced to a rapid minimum for love-story and box office purposes. Some good acting, fair mystery, and a few heavy romantic moments. Recommended. At the Texas today and Thursday.

Still Here

"The Hollywood Revue"—The picture offers, among other things, William Haines who doesn't have much to do but does it nicely, thank you! He's not one of the best spots in the show. However, there are plenty of other superb acts to make up for this one. This is all-round pictures which has played here this year. At the Queen for the remainder of the week.

"The Delightful Rogue"—This looks like an abortion in the movie family, but it is really comedy very carefully and cleverly done.

NOW SHOWING AT THE MAJESTIC

by Rod La Rocque and Rita La Roy and recorded as an all-talkie so very well that it's almost too well recorded. The theme song, "Gay Love," sung only once, is pretty good. The picture is entertaining and should be seen. At the Hancock, last times today.

Coming

Vaudeville—Five acts, here they are: 1) the Armstrong Brothers, athletes; 2) the Two Bloesoms, sisters in song and dance; 3) Charles Althoff, a relie of the farm, with comedy gags; 4) "Journey's End," comedy skit with cast of six, one of whom is a tenor; 5) "The Man Said"—another comedy skit, featuring Grace Dunbar Nile. The interpolated movie will be an all-talkie called "The Very Idea." Sounds interesting. Thursday and Friday, at the Hancock.

Baptiste Adoue of the Phi Delta Theta house will drive to Dallas for the S. M. U. game.

Maya Ruins Attract Archaeologists To Yucatan Peninsula

Engerrand Has Pictures Of Country

By WELDON B. SCHEEL

Recent news items lauded the fact that an aerial exploratory expedition with Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh down in Yucatan "found" the ruins of several old Maya cities. Mention was made also of their flight over tracts of unknown, unexplored jungle.

George Charles Marius Engerrand, licentiate in botany and geology, professor of anthropology in the University, headed several expeditions into the Yucatan peninsula while he was chief geologist for the Mexican government (1907-1916). Incidentally, he was director of the International School of American Archaeology (1912-1913). Professor Engerrand has in his possession a varied and comprehensive collection of pictures which he took of the ruins explored during his expeditions.

Includes Three Provinces

The Yucatan peninsula, the promontory which juts into the Gulf of Mexico from Central America, is divided into three provinces: Two states, Yucatan and Campeche, and one territory, Quintana Roo. The latter, primarily, is the district over which Lindbergh explored the jungles. Quintana Roo, it is true, is largely jungle, and uncultivated, but Yucatan and Campeche, well cultivated and rather progressive, produce vast quantities of the famous sisal hemp.

The Mayas, the Indian tribe which now, as well as of old, occupied the Yucatan peninsula, including portions of what is now Spanish Honduras and Guatemala, were more highly civilized in a way than the Spanish invaders who came after the discovery of America, but such was the extent of their decline that they fell before the Spaniards.

The Spaniards found an astonishing civilization. The Mayas had their own system of writing, and had also developed a calendar year of 365 days, without outside influence, of course, and had constructed many interesting tribal monuments, which are seen by modern explorers as crumbling ruins—last vestiges of a disintegrated civilization and culture.

Dotted with Ruins

Practically the entire Yucatan peninsula is dotted with ruins of cities such as those which Lindbergh saw. And most of them are but a few hours' drive from Merida, capital of the northern province of the peninsula, Yucatan.

Oh, yes, there are roads in Yucatan. The ruins comprise crumbling cities, ancient stone roads overgrown by encroaching forests, relics of sculpture—all interesting scenes. Pictures which Professor Engerrand took on his expedition are of absorbing interest.

While the Egyptian pyramids are solid and substantial, being built of gigantic stones and containing royal tombs, the old Maya temples, on the other hand, are elevated above the earth to moderate heights on truncated pyramids built of large stones, rocks, and cement.

The temple walls are usually carved in intricate designs, or decorated with pictures of gods and goddesses. Almost without exception, the temple doorways are in ruin, for the science of keystone arches was evidently not understood by even the highly civilized Mayas.

One of the pictures shows a striking contrast between the large, elaborate, imposing Maya temples, and the small, unpretentious native grass huts near it, depicting vividly the difference between ancient and modern Maya civilizations.

At present, several archaeological expeditions are exploring parts of the interesting Yucatan peninsula. One of the parties, under Sylvanus Griswold Morley, has almost discovered the key to the old Maya hieroglyphics. Mr. Morley is connected with the Carnegie institution.

Only a few weeks ago, Professor Engerrand was visited by Dr. J. Alden Mason of the University Museum of Philadelphia. Dr. Mason stopped in Austin en route to Guatemala City. He is making preparations for an expedition to study the ruins of Piedras Negras.

Castaneda Takes Active Part In Institute Forum

Director Lauds Fairness And Ability of Latin Delegate

The report of the second session of the Institute of Public Affairs held under the auspices of the University of Virginia at Charlottesville, Va., each summer to advance the popular understanding of current public questions will be ready soon for distribution.

Carlos E. Castaneda, Latin-American librarian of the University, attended as the representative of the National University of Mexico.

The institute was composed of eleven round tables for open discussion, one of which took up Latin-American relations. The meeting was held in August.

Mr. Castaneda read two papers at the institute dealing with Latin-American questions, one was on "The Good Faith of the United States," and the other on "Mexico Dilemma." He also took an active part in the discussions.

In a letter to the National University of Mexico from Charles G. Maphis, director of the Institute of Public Affairs, it was stated that, "Mr. Castaneda participated in all the sessions of the round table on 'Our Latin-American Relations,' and in the open forum August 8 on the question, 'Does the policy of the Department of State of refusing to recognize Latin-American governments set up by force work to the best advantage of the United States and of the Latin-American countries concerned?' Mr. Castaneda's powers of clear thinking and forceful expression greatly impressed the members of the round table, and those in attendance upon the open forum meeting. His frankness in expressing his viewpoint was of the greatest value in bringing to the North Americans a Latin-American opinion upon many difficult questions. His fairness, his temperate expression of his point of view, and his ever present readiness to admit the reasonableness of opposing opinions won for him the open admiration of the audiences. In my opinion, Mr. Castaneda was one of the ablest members of the round table on 'Our Latin-American Relations.'"

Critic Declares—

erably long waits between acts. Since this was a five-act play and there is a change of scene between each act, such waits are excusable but in no sense condoned. The interest aroused by one act was nearly always gone by the time the curtain had been drawn on the following act.

The audience at the Wednesday and Thursday performances probably will be spared one of the handicaps under which both the audience and the cast labored last night. Perhaps, the regular inhabitants of the Labor Temple will not be having a dance downstairs.

For courage in making such a brave effort, for giving such splendid entertainment to those in the audience to whom Shaw's situation was something more than meaningless, for the superb performances of Mrs. Starnes and Dr. Slover, for the painstaking and intelligent direction of Mr. Parke, the Austin Little Theater is to be congratulated.

In Northern Guatemala on the Yucatan peninsula, which will probably be made in January.

With such active work in progress on the scene, a new discovery may be made among the ruins of the peninsula at any time.

Lagoon Chichankhanab in Yucatan

This view of Lagoon Chichankhanab was photographed by Professor Engerrand in 1910 when he headed an expedition into the Yucatan peninsula. The peninsula is made up of three states, Yucatan, Campeche and Quintana Roo, and the lagoon lies in both Quintana Roo and Yucatan. The report that Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh flew over an undiscovered jungle was made, but Professor Engerrand stated that many people had seen the lagoon and the jungle in which it is situated even before he visited the place.

Market Bureau Studies Retail Credit in Texas

Hert Visits Texas Cities Gathering Data For Survey

What the fundamental factors are in determining retail credit risks and whether or not they can be measured are questions that are being answered by the Bureau of Business Research at the University of Texas in one of its most recent commercial surveys. These questions, put to the Bureau by Leopold L. Meyer of Houston, retail trade representative on the Bureau's advisory board of business men, are being solved on a factual basis by measurements of credit risks according to occupational groups, according to Arthur Hert, market research specialist in the Bureau, who is undertaking the study.

Hert Visits Cities

"The information to serve as a basis for the study is to be obtained from the accounts in credit ledgers of department stores in Dallas, Fort Worth, Houston, San Antonio, Austin, Waco, El Paso and other large cities in the state," Hert said.

"It is possible that the data gathered can be used by credit managers in retail stores in the evaluation of present, past and potential credit risks based on past experience within the occupational groups.

"Within the past few years there has been an increasing amount of attention given to the scientific study of the basis for the granting of retail credit. Credit men throughout the United States have become vitally interested in any information that will help them diagnose their credit conditions as well as any information that will even in part explain these conditions. The state of Texas has lately taken its place among leading states in gathering this information which is so essential in reducing the costs of credit extension.

ing the costs of credit extension.

"The outstanding need for this kind of information was emphasized in 1928 by the National Retail Credit Association, of which Mr. Meyer was then president, when it was requested of the Department of Commerce to undertake a nation-wide survey of retail credit. The preliminary report of this study was released in June, 1929.

Bureau Recognized

"One factor which has handicapped the gathering of information in the retail credit field is that much of the desired information is more or less confidential in its nature. For this reason the work of gathering these data must usually be done by some impartial public service institution in which all businesses of the state have confidence. Here, in Texas, the gathering of this confidential information, on a state-wide basis, is made possible by the department of marketing of the Bureau of Business Research at the University. This department is now fortunately in a position to begin work on this study for the collective benefit of the retail stores of Texas.

"Leaders in the retail credit field have been quick to grasp the significance of this new study undertaken by the Bureau and they have been enthusiastic in their endorsements. L. M. Jahn, president, and J. R. Clark, chairman of the committee on statistics of the Associated Retail Credit Men of Texas, officially endorsed the program of study. Other association leaders have pledged their unqualified support."

Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Moody of Saratoga visited their daughter, Marietta, at S. R. D. over the week-end.

Miss Ima Payne of San Antonio visited her sister, Ivy Payne, at S. R. D. last week-end.

Eleanor Carr spent the week-end in San Antonio with her mother.

Salome McAllen, Pi Beta Phi, will attend the S. M. U. game in Dallas Saturday.

CLUB PLANS COMPLETE

Special to The Daily Texan

DENTON, Oct. 29.—The club program for the year at the College of Industrial Arts has been scheduled by the Round Table, a group composed of club presidents and the president of the student body.

Twenty-five clubs have opened the year's program during the past few weeks.

Three scholarship clubs, nine literary, thirteen departmental, and an international relations club have planned two meetings monthly, a social meeting and a business meeting.

Margaret Allerton of Rice Institute spent the week-end with Linda Allison.

Lane McAfee spent the week-end in Galveston.

Alderson—

you may vent your accumulated wrath upon them and confound them with your knowledge. This visiting contingent will be worthy of your best plays, for it has twice marched to victory over good teams—once in the fracas with the Sam Houston College reserves, and again in an affair with Ball High School of Galveston.

But be not dismayed by this sparkling record, for only last fortnight they suffered defeat at the hands of the Baylor frosh, doughty men from Waco, even such as you."

While not the exact words, that is the gist of Coach Alderson's statement to his freshman proteges at the outset of their practice sessions last week. No admission charge will be made to see the game.

If most of the freshman players get favorable reports for their first half-term of scholastic work so that very few of them are eliminated from play, they will maintain the division into two teams, the Blues and the Reds, and in the game, the Blues will play two quarters and the Reds two quarters, alternating in each half.

The object in playing the game with an outside team, the coach asserted, was not to score a victory, but to give every freshman player to do his best in a real competitive affair, so that he may be rated according to his ability before the frosh encounter heavier teams.
