

Work Progresses On University's Building Program

Concrete Pouring on Two Structures to Start Wednesday

Rains Slow Work Roof Will be Razed From 'North Wing' Latter Part of Week

Advance information on the University's building program for the current week reveals that pouring of concrete will be started for pier footings both on the Architecture Building and the Men's Dormitory and that excavations will begin the middle of the week on the Student Union and Physics buildings. Progress will be noted toward the construction of the Library Building when the razing of the roof of the north wing of the Main Building will begin Wednesday or Thursday.

Friday night's rain slowed up progress on all construction over the week-end, but work on the dormitory steam tunnel continued yesterday, pier footings were still being dug on the Architecture Building, fences were being erected around sites of the Student Union Building, Library, and Physics Building, and the deeper pier footings near that part of the dormitory steam tunnel in the building proper were being drilled.

Rain Stops Excavation
Excavating for the Auditorium was stopped entirely yesterday, but the rain will be a serious hindrance toward progress on this building since the nature of the site is such that little rock will be encountered during excavation work.

Excavating for the Home Economics Building is steadily progressing. Dirt which is removed from the east side of the location by a "skimmer" excavator is being placed on the sloped terrain between Waggener Hall and Garrison Hall for landscape purposes.

Gutting of the interior of the north wing of the Main Building is rapidly being carried on, and at present trestles in the auditorium are being removed, as are also floors in the rooms and partitions between rooms in the wing. It is expected that razing of the roof of the wing will start Wednesday or Thursday.

Progress was noted on construction of the Geology Building as work began Friday in taking up water pipes which would hinder excavating for the building. Not until work is more advanced on the dormitory steam tunnel will excavating start for the Geology Building.

Summary of work done on each building during the past week is as follows:

Men's Dormitory—Completion of general excavation; digging of pier footings, not yet complete; beginning of excavation for steam tunnel.

Architecture Building—Completion of general excavation; digging of pier footings, not yet complete.

Auditorium—Beginning of general excavation.

Library—Removal of auditorium trestles, partitions between rooms, and floors of rooms from north wing of Main Building, which will be razed.

Geology Building—Taking up of water pipes that will interfere with excavations.

Student Union Building—Taking up and relaying of water pipes.

Home Economics Building—Beginning of general excavations. Physics Building—Taking up and relaying of water pipes.

Engineering Building—Nothing.

Seven Petitions Filed For Positions on Spring Ballot

Seven petitions had been filed with Helen Donovan, secretary of the Students' Association, by 12:45 o'clock last night by candidates seeking offices in the annual spring election which will be held April 5. The earliest time that petitions could be filed by candidates was 12:01 this morning, since this is the thirtieth day preceding the election. The following students had filed petitions with the secretary last night:

Petitions for office may be filed until ten days before the election. Each petition must be signed by at least fifty University students asserting that the candidate is a bona fide student in the University and must bear the signature of the Registrar attesting to the candidate's scholastic eligibility.

Eighteen positions will be filled in the spring election. They are as follows: president, vice president, and secretary-treasurer of the Student's Association; chairman of the Judiciary Council, three men and three women councilmen; editor-in-chief and associate editor of The Daily Texan; editor-in-chief of the Cactus; editor-in-chief and associate editor of the Longhorn-Ranger; athlete for the Norris trophy; and a head yell leader.

Any Texan reporter may submit not more than two of his stories at the end of each month, Cook said. Stories will be judged by number and not by name so that the judges will not know whose work they are considering. News stories only and not feature articles may be entered. Stories of news events, such as meetings, speeches, interviews, advance notices of meetings, and programs, reports of athletic events, and anything else in the nature of timely news may be entered.

Some of the things that the judges will consider in making their decisions are news value, reader interest, construction of the lead and organization of the following parts of the story, English and diction, newspaper style, ingenuity used by the reporter in handling the material, Cook advised. He especially urged that the reporters make special efforts to get good unassigned stories.

Stories written any time since the first of March may be entered in this month's contest. Stories rewritten by anyone other than the reporter who obtained the first-hand material can not be considered. However, slight changes made by the copyreaders in editing will not disqualify a story, the editor-in-chief ruled.

Klotz Appointed Campus Physician

Doctor to Take Position Left by O'Banion

Announcement has been made by Dr. Joe Gilbert, director of the University Health Service, of the appointment of Dr. Harry Klotz to the position of physician for men, which was recently made vacant by the resignation of Dr. John Turner O'Banion, who will take up general practice in Lockhart.

Dr. Klotz is a graduate of the School of Medicine of The University of Texas. His internship of two years was served in the St. Vincent Charity Hospital at Cleveland, Ohio.

Upon the completion of his internship, Dr. Klotz returned to the Medical School at Galveston to become an instructor in pathology and anatomy there. Since resigning that position, he has been engaged in general practice at Brownsville.

Pittenger Suggests That Language Exams Be Partly Oral

With seven major problems facing the general faculty, the fifth regular meeting has been called for 4 o'clock Tuesday in Garrison Hall 1 by Dr. M. R. Gutsch, secretary. The chief business that will be brought up deals with fire prevention regulations in University non-fireproof buildings, separate listing and accrediting of parts of laboratory courses, a general sophomore test, a new plan for admission of students in the University, eligibility for law courses, changes as to major examinations as proposed by the School of Education, and changes in the regulations governing student social organizations.

The committee on admission requirements, with E. J. Mathews, registrar, as chairman, will report on the paragraphs in the current catalogue applying to the College of Arts and Sciences, College of Pharmacy, and College of Engineering; and on recommendations concerning freshman courses for lower quarters dealing with quality provisions and elective units. Applicants for admission ranking in the upper half of the graduating class in an accredited secondary school and in the upper half of the freshman class in the aptitude tests given in the University in September may enter without condition. Every candidate not admitted under the above conditions, including college transfers and freshmen, not taking the test, must present fifteen admission units with 3 courses in English and two units in each of the following: foreign language, mathematics, natural sciences, and social sciences. A proposed amendment states the advisability of accepting credits that have previously been accepted by the accredited secondary school for its diploma excepting drill subjects.

The proposal for the College of Engineering is that applicants for admission satisfy the same requirements as for College of Arts (Continued on Page Five)

Holland Tests Deaf And Blind Children
A comparison of the performances of blind, deaf, and normal children on the same intelligence test is being made by Dr. B. F. Holland, instructor of educational psychology.

The Otis intelligence tests, which are being used in the experiment, were adapted to the use of the blind by Ruth F. Scott of the Philadelphia Association for the Blind. From the results of the tests, Dr. Holland proposes to determine whether there are any fundamental differences in reaction to abstract situations between blind or deaf and normal children.

Dr. W. E. Allen of the Texas School for Blind, and Mr. Scott and Mr. Buchanan, superintendent and principal of the Texas School for the Deaf, are co-operating with Dr. Holland in his investigations.

Lee Davenport, graduate student, is assisting Dr. Holland in a study of the eye movements of deaf pupils in reading. Photographs taken of the deaf pupils' eye movements are expected to determine whether there are any fundamental differences between deaf and normal students in their reading methods.

Mangelsdorf Makes Study For Improvement

Dr. P. C. Mangelsdorf, of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, will speak to the University Science Club Monday night at 8 o'clock at the University Club.

Dr. Mangelsdorf is an authority in the study of Texas grains. He is a graduate of both Kansas Agricultural College and Harvard University. Since graduation he has been connected with the agricultural experiment stations in Connecticut and Texas. In the research work done at the Connecticut Agricultural Station, Dr. Mangelsdorf aided in the improvement of corn development.

For the past five years Dr. Mangelsdorf has been attempting to improve the productivity of the Texas varieties of corn, wheat and oats in co-operation with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station. His reason for research in this field is to increase the vitamin content of Texas corn by converting it to the yellow variety and to produce new sweet corn varieties adapted to Texas soil. He is also interested in the study of the relation of corn to other species. Recently he published an article on the hybridization of corn and Iriopisum, a grass that grows wild in Texas and is related to corn.

Graduate School Faculty Changes Language Credit

Entrants From Teachers' Colleges Affected In Catalogue

Exam Plans Made

Requirements for Doctor's Degree Candidates Explained

Two changes in the catalogue of the Graduate School were adopted at a meeting of its faculty Friday afternoon in Garrison Hall auditorium, Dr. F. B. Marsh, secretary, announced Saturday. The first will allow any graduate of a Texas state teachers' college with the degree of bachelor of science to enter the Graduate School of the University as an candidate for the degree of master of education without additional foreign language courses. The second change affects paragraph 4, page 436 of the catalogue of the Graduate School, which deals with foreign language requirements for the doctor of philosophy degree. This section of the 1931-1932 catalogue was changed to read as follows:

Change Language Work
"(4) A reading knowledge of French and German and any other language required by the candidate's supervisory committee, except in the case of one majoring in American history or in Latin-American history, in which case Spanish may be substituted for either French or German (but not for both) on recommendation of the candidate's supervisory committee, approved by the department of history and by the Dean of the Graduate School. To test this knowledge the candidate must pass examinations, preferably during the second year and in no case later than six months before coming up for the degree. The examination will be given by the foreign language departments concerned and certified by the departmental chairmen to the dean. As to the scope of these examinations, the candidate is advised to consult with his supervisory committee and with the language departments concerned. In general, he will be expected to read in the required languages certain writings in his major field of study."

The catalogue change affecting the admission of students with the bachelor of science degree from Texas state teachers' colleges as unconditional candidates for the master of education degree is as follows: "Unconditional admission to the Graduate School of the University of Texas, for pursuit of the master of education degree, shall be granted to graduates of Texas state teachers' colleges with a bachelor of arts or a bachelor of science degree, provided that they have satisfied college entrance requirements at The University of Texas, and provided that they present the equivalent of 30 semester hours of work of junior rank or above at The University of Texas, twelve of which shall be in education, and at least twelve of the remainder in one academic field."

At the February meeting of the faculty a resolution was passed prohibiting smoking in non-fireproof administrative and instructional buildings. The Main Building, the Law Building, the Engineering Building, R. Hall, K Hall, and the Little Campus Building are non-fireproof.

Dr. W. T. Mather, professor of physics, called attention to the fact that $60,000 worth of the equipment of the department of physics was in the Main Building. Dr. F. W. Simonds, professor of geology, favored strict enforcement of the non-smoking ordinance, because, as he pointed out, much of the geology collection on the upper floor of the Main Building could not be replaced if destroyed.

Temple Beats Houston Team by 30-23 to Win Basketball Tournament

By D. B. HARDEMAN, JR.

Playing consistent and fighting basketball, George Forehand's Temple Wildcats scored a crashing upset to win the State basketball title from the San Jacinto Golden Bears 30-23 in Gregory Gym Saturday night in the finals of the two-day cage tourney. Doped to leave the tournament in the quarter-finals when they met the

Temple Beats Houston Team by 30-23 to Win Basketball Tournament

By D. B. HARDEMAN, JR.

Brackenridge five, the Temple cagers fought and played their way to a victory over the strong Dallas Tech entrant Saturday morning, and then being doped to lose to the more spectacular Bear five by fifteen points, they went into the final game with a determination and zest that was not to be denied.

Leading the Wildcats on to their glorious and unexpected victory was Willie Lange, diminutive forward, who looped goal after goal to score eleven points and flash a brilliant all-around game. He was ably aided by Wilbert Harrison who played a beautiful game at guard, holding down the high scoring San Jacinto forwards, and helping to render Lee Tynes, brilliant scorer, rather ineffective throughout the game.

Lange Starts Scoring
Unheralded and the decided underdogs, the Wildcats immediately took the lead with two goals by Lange and two by Delma Clark, rangy center, to lead at the end of the first quarter, 8-5.

The second quarter opened up with heavy scoring from Lange, Harrison, Captain Kenneth Clark, and Bonner to run up the score to Temple 18, San Jacinto 12, with Lee Tynes scoring all seven points.

Each team scored four points in the third quarter to bring the game total up to Temple 22, San Jacinto 16. Captain Kenneth Clark, flashy Temple guard, and Harrison, guard, scored the markers for the winners, while Tynes and Hensch scored for San Jacinto.

Both teams went back into the fourth period with a dogged zip and exhibition of grit and fight. Lange looped a long basket to place the winners eight points ahead, but Lee Tynes, sank a basket and free throw to liven up the scrap. However, Captain Kenneth Clark of Temple, the boy who so consistently held up the spirit and fight of the State champions throughout the meet, came to the rescue with a free shot and a field goal. Lee Tynes scored another two points, but the lanky D. Clark brought the total up to twenty-nine points, and before the final gun, Eaton, Tigert, and Hensch scored free throws for San Jacinto, while Richardson scored the last point for Temple on a free toss.

Tynes Well Covered
Lee Tynes, brilliant basketball star from San Jacinto, was well covered throughout the night, but broke loose often enough to score 16 points. However, for the Golden Bears it was W. T. Eaton, hard-fighting guard, who was the king-pin of the second place team. He handled the ball with beautiful precision, and his floor-work was the best witnessed in the entire tournament. He played a brilliant game throughout, but he did not add much in the scoring, and to win the State championship scoring was necessary.

The first half of the game did not appear to be a crucial conflict, because both teams played rather slow and uneventful games, but with the final gun drawing into view, the two fives got down to work and flashed fine games, but the lead of the Temple Wildcats was too much for the favorites. Smoking Report To Be Presented

Faculty Will Give Study To Proposal Tuesday

LONGHORNS LOSE LAST GAME TO AGGIES, 14-9

Sparkle in the air sets blood racing. Track men don shoes to do pacing. Baseball players are on the wing—Golly, methinks it must be spring!

THE AGGIE-STEER clash last night peaked out the dying notes of the 1931-32 basketball scramble, and thus another child prodigy of King Sport has been laid away to its resting haven, with a snarling Baylor Bear hovering zealously over the ruins.

Post mortems are in order, but the Reeler has none to offer, fair readers! The Steers are to be heartily commended for their wind-up in fourth position. Our paws are extended to Ed Olle and he should, and probably will, be framing another year's contract in his parlor. And while we're endorsing this, the Reeler suggests that he receive a few extra shekels so he may junk his Ford and invest in an auto. We proudly throw out our chest for the dashing play of those seniors, Captain "Bull" Elkins, Johnny "Bones" Tullis, and Wyatt Taylor. May their children become Longhorn cagers of 1960!

These high school cagers evidently have never heard of a crisp shot. While we gazed on the gala proceedings in the Gym, 99 shots were made from the basketball fifty-yard line! The Reeler believes one try was attempted within two yards of the bucket.

NOW WHEN the Reeler arrived on the scene of the fireworks late in the afternoon, thirty other Texan staff members had parked their bodies within the portals and our first gate crashing was futile. After rounding up Bill Dozier, rosy-faced assistant quintet manager, and Ray Bonta, promoter of the current successful "Scoop" Queenie scramble, we pulled a fast one on the squeaky-gate collectors. Yes, children, we go on record as being the only ones to gain admission to a basketball tourney via a baseball score book!

EDDIE PRICE lettered as end in football in 1930 and '31... won a reserve letter as baseball infielder in '31... lettered as forward in basketball in '31 and will do so again as guard this year... intends to go out for baseball tomorrow and fight for the second base position... 22 years of age... weighs 172 pounds... 5 feet, 11 inches tall... attended Corsicana High School during the years 1926-29... played on the school football, baseball, track, and basketball teams... always had a liking for sports... came to the University in '29 because he wished to play baseball under the tutelage of that grand old man of intercollegiate baseball, Uncle Billy Dusch... junior student... strawberry shortcake his favorite dish... pet hobby is going to the shows... Eddie's one of those pleasant, unassuming fellows who does not let his athletic prowess cause an enlargement of his hat size.

And now there is the one about the handsome but dumb athlete who busting out of school, complained to one of his professors: "I don't see why you flunked me in your course, professor, I know it backwards."

Prof: "That's just the reason."

Longhorn Five Fail To Cope With Cadet Offense

Special to The Daily Texan. COLLEGE STATION, March 5.—"The Eyes of Texas" were anywhere save on the basket here tonight, and as a result Coach Ed Olle's University of Texas Longhorn cagers lost a 14 to 9 count to a fighting Texas Aggie quintet. It was a tight defense battle. The Longhorns made only one field goal in each half.

The game ended the Southwest Conference season and found the Longhorns in fourth place and the Aggies in a tie for fifth place with the Rice Owls.

Joe Moody, Aggie guard, led the scoring pack with ten points garnered from four field goals and two free throws. Captain Bull Elkins, Longhorn forward, scored four points to lead his mates in counting. Elkins, incidentally, staged a merry individual battle with Squawak Veltman, Aggie guard, with Veltman having a slight edge. Captain Charlie Beard, Aggie forward who had been confined to the college hospital for the past two days with a mild case of flu, finished his collegiate athletic career by playing a fine court game. Kubricht, Longhorn center, was out-jumped by Merka, Aggie pivot man.

Both teams played a great defensive game throughout, but even so, a little luck would have boosted the tally of both teams. With ten minutes of the first half gone and the score two to one in favor of the Aggies things began to pick up a bit with Moody and Elkins holding the scoring spotlight. The Cadets led 7 to 5 at the half. With the packed Aggie stands pleading for more points, the Aggies began to crawl away slowly in the second period until Kubricht sank a field goal with two minutes to play to end scoring for the night.

Six Teams Place Men On All-State Quintets

By JACKSON COX
Texan Sports Staff

Teams at the twelfth Interscholastic League basketball tournament this year did not show as much cage brilliance as the squads competing last year and there were not as many outstanding players. Lee Tynes, San Jacinto forward, who was on many all-state teams last year at center, was perhaps the most outstanding player of the tournament. He was the key man in most of the San Jacinto plays and was stopped only when Temple put three men to guard him every time he was tossed the ball.

Lange Stars

Willie Lange, forward on the new champion Temple crew, seemed to improve with every game in which he played, as did the entire Temple team.

Thelston Carroll, Bryan center, although he played in only one game before his team was eliminated, displayed an all-round ability that won him center position on the first team. His ability to hit the basket, take tip-off and handle himself generally marked him as a good player; and his team, Bryan, was eliminated by San Jacinto, the runner-up of the tourney, 32-31, only after an extra period had been played.

Harold Barrett, guard for Dallas Tech, made the first team on his ability to handle the ball and score frequently while competently holding down opposing men. Carl Abbe of Brackenridge, (San Antonio) while not so much of a scorer, handled the ball well, was expert at taking the ball off the back-board and played a steady game of guarding.

Payne Places

Herman Payne, forward for Ropesville, was the king-pin of his team. He did practically all the scoring for his squad and rarely ever failed to connect with the basket when he shot at it. However, San Jacinto stopped Payne almost completely in the second half of the game in which Ropesville was eliminated.

Clarence Sledge, of Dallas Tech, played a steady game at forward and was a good scorer, ex-Rundell, g

Mustangs Credited With Greatest Of Upsets

Two days ago every sport critic in the Southwest was willing to assert that there would be a playoff for the Southwest Conference basketball championship.

The Texas Christians were a 100 to 1 shot to win their last game against the Mustangs Thursday night. So sure were the members of the two groups that there would be a playoff, representatives from the two schools had completed plans for the title series. So the series could begin Saturday night, the Christians moved their "easy" game with the Mustangs up to Thursday night.

The Mustangs fought on even terms with the last year champions for a full game. The score at regular time was 26-all. Then, in the extra period the lowly Ponies pulled the outstanding upset that has ever been recorded in Southwest Conference basketball season.

The Mustangs up to the Horned Frog tilt had won but one game—that from A. & M. The Ponies were classed even below a fair team before that game; but now the Mustangs can shake their manes and boast that they have gone through a successful season.

Jack Light and Macon Boddy have gone to San Antonio for the week-end.

players were few; and if those who were almost but not quite good enough to make the second team were mentioned, practically every man would be eligible.

Polo Team In Second Fray Of Series

Playing their second game of the B. L. Cabaniss Trophy Series, Vernon Cook's University Polo team meets the One Hundred and Twenty-fourth Cavalry Yellow Jackets this afternoon at 3 o'clock on Camp Mabry Field.

The game originally scheduled for last Wednesday was called off because of rain, and it would have been the second game of the series for the University team.

The B. L. Cabaniss Trophy is offered to the crew having the highest percentage after each team has played two games with each of the other teams. The three crews composing the local polo league are the University team, Dean Smith's Cowboys, and the Cavalry Yellow Jackets. Following the termination of the series, eight men will be selected to represent Austin against such teams as that of Bill Kuykendall of Wichita Falls and Carwell's crew from Southwestern University.

The probable starting line-up for the University team as given out by Cook is as follows: Butler, number 1; Cook, number 2; Allen, number 3; and, Burr, number 4. Cheatham and Adams will probably see action during the game.

Cinema Technique Triumphs.

JOSEPH VON STERNBERG'S distinguished skill in cinema technique is the deus ex machina which makes an excellent film out of Marlene Dietrich's "Shanghai Express," now at the Paramount. The play concerns a gallant woman who sacrifices to the villain the honor of her flesh in order to save the man she loves. This plot has been kicked around the halls of Hollywood ever since the year Zero, and is become more a negative quantity than a positive one. It is therefore all the more remarkable with what a verve the story is brought to life in this picture. The dialogue, though comprehending and concise, sounds studied and mechanical, as if the characters had thought too long about what they wished to say before they said it. There remains to the picture, then, only the superb performances of its cast. Chief of these is Miss Dietrich, but any number of others, including Clive Brook, Warner Oland, Eugene Pallette, Anna May Wong, Lawrence Grant, Louise Closser Hale, Gustav von Seyffertitz, and Emil Chautard, are also inescapably effective. Always above and with all, Director Von Sternberg's brilliant use of photography and sound leads to a persuasive reality which makes the picture what it is.

Aboard a trape of Pullmans bound from Peiping to Shanghai are Miss Dietrich, "Shanghai Lily," a "coaster" of the Chinese shoreline; a British army surgeon whom she had known five years before; a sour-tongued missionary; an old lady with a lap dog; an American gambler; a German opium dealer who suffers from chills; an Oriental trollop; a French officer retired in disgrace; and a Chinese halfbreed named Henry Chang. The last proves to be a brigand, commandeers the train, and is a general menace until a dagger is planted in his back. This resolution of affairs leaves Shanghai Lily and her Doctor free to resume their acquaintance, rebuild faith in each other, and lay plans for the future. Faith is as necessary to love as to religion, says the picture. "Shanghai Express," though dated 1932, has nothing to do with the prevailing Japanese-Chinese war-clouds. The news reel takes care of that.

Another Will Rogers Picture.

AN AMUSING TALE of bourgeois people, the Hancock's "Business and Pleasure" does well by itself at the beginning in adopting as its chief character Will Rogers. It wanders amiably about in a series of standard Will Rogers incidents and commentaries while he enacts an American razor blade manufacturer on his way to purchase the secret of Damascus steel for his company. The comedy reaches its best level as Mr. Rogers entertains himself and others aboard ship. Then its foot slips, precipitating the play into lesser farce while he hides behind a set of whiskers, poses as an Oriental crystal gazer, and tells both his jealous wife (Dorothy Peterson) and a dangerous female adventurer (Jetta Goudal) what

Passing of Landmarks

Numerous objects revered in the past are giving way to newer ones that are most useful. Old structures that have served their day of usefulness to the University and are now crumbling with age are being torn away to make room for the long needed improvements and additions on the campus.

Beck's Lake, which was constructed years ago as a place to grow water specimens for the department of botany, was turned into a campus beauty spot several years ago. It was the traditional parking place for students to use between classes. But two years ago the creator of the lake died, and it lost much of its traditional charm. Now it has been drained to make room for the new Architecture Building.

Another landmark to be removed for this new building is the small crumpled mesquite tree that stood just north of Sutton Hall. Tradition has it that two men were scalped by the Indians while camping at that spot, long before there was a dream of a University.

The north wing of the Main Building will soon be razed so that the new library can be built on that site. There is some sentiment in this portion of the first building on the campus, but it was really nothing more than an annex to the first building. It will be replaced by a five story stone building, far exceeding it in magnificence.

Other landmarks will also fall before the hand of the constructor. But they are only sentiment. That feeling has its beauties, but with the newer and more valuable replacements there will arise sentiments and traditions just as beautiful. The University will gain in the exchange.

Petition for Peace

The Sino-Japanese conflict is brought closed to American college life with the nation-wide circulation among faculty members of a memorial asking that the United States concur with the League of Nations in economic measures it may take to restore peace. More than a hundred signatures have been obtained on this campus.

Knowing the present policy of the national government, it is hard to imagine that any action looking toward economic boycott of Japan will be taken. However futile the petition may be, its very circulation shows that American college faculties are internationally conscious. It is a hopeful sign for the future peace of the world that the educational leaders of the most influential nation are seeking to outlaw war.

The world will have little right to call itself civilized if it very much longer permits the use of war as an instrument of state. Whatever the solution may be and whatever tedious diplomacy will be necessary, it behooves the United States to take the lead in banishing war to the dark ages whence it came.

Extra-Curricular Activities

Each year in college extra-curricular activities hold more attention and interest for the student. Not only does general interest in these activities grow with the years but as a student has been longer and longer in college his interest and participation grows.

Freshmen are so little familiar with campus activities that few of them take a very large part in anything except class work. It takes in most cases a year for the student to orientate himself in the main business of getting his curricular work moving in proper channels and to make up his mind just what outside work he will do. As students are advanced to the higher rankings they do more and more things that definitely identify them with student life, thus making college life richer and fuller.

Students take various attitudes toward extra-curricular activities. Some enter for the honors of participation and the opportunities, as in the case of sports, of excelling in any particular line; others enter for the purpose of furnishing an avocation; and still others enter those activities like publications work which lead to a definite vocation. While extra-curricular activities have their disadvantages in detracting often from the main tenor of the student's work, their efficacy when well chosen in making a richer and more profitable college career can hardly be underestimated.

THE UNIVERSITY OF TEXAS, 1881
The Election to Locate the University, 1881

The vote for division of the University was as follows: Austin, 18,340; for, 28,279; total, 46,619.

The vote for location may be tabulated as follows:

Location	Entire	Main	Medical	Entire	Main	Medical
Austin	14,997	16,306	994	30,913	15,601	15,312
Galveston	0	0	29,741	0	29,741	0
Houston	0	0	12,556	0	12,556	0
Tyler	7,167	18,429	41	18,974	595	595
Waco	656	2,632	199	9,799	7,366	7,366
Scattering	0	0	119	6,916	795	795
Totals	22,984	45,688	43,631

II. Controversy over the Method of Counting the votes:

As has been already described, the possibility of a separate location of the Medical Department arose as an amendment to Section 1 of the original bill and, as was natural and so often happens in similar cases, the other relevant sections were not rewritten so as to interlock properly with the amendment section. As a consequence, the precise form of the ballot and the method of counting the votes were not fixed and, of course, differences of opinion immediately arose. In the canvassing of the Governor, Attorney General and Secretary of State, Governor Roberts and Attorney General McCleary disagreed and on August 19, wrote rather lengthy conflicting opinions in reply to questions coming from the Committee representing the towns that were seeking to locate all or part of the University in their midst. This disagreement led to some discussions in the papers during the canvass and to proposals to contest the election when the votes were counted according to the opinion of Governor Roberts and who prevailed over the Attorney General through the support of Secretary of State Bowman.

Section 2 of the Act to Establish fixed September 6 as the day of the election and Section 3 required that the name of any competing locality must reach the Governor forty days before in order to be named in his proclamation. Any voter could write in the name of any towns he pleased. As it happened, two constitutional amendments, one affecting the judiciary and the other lengthening legislative sessions, were to be voted on the same day and a very light vote was expected and polled. These sections caused no quarrels; it was Section 4 that produced trouble because it was not sufficiently explicit. "The locality receiving the largest number of votes shall be declared selected and the university shall be established at such locality; provided that the vote cast for said locality shall amount to one-third of the entire vote cast . . ."

Commenting on the general resultant confusion, the Houston Post on July 24 said: "We have had an uneasy feeling for some time that some hitch would occur. It is extremely disgusting and shows the effects of ill-considered and bungling legislation." Even the word "locality" in Section 4 was not changed to "localities" so as to interlock properly when Section 1 was amended.

These legal minutiae and practical issues led the Post two days later to print an article attacking the legality of the entire Act of 1881 on the ground that the Act of 1858 was still in force and the administrators appointed still in office, their successors not having been appointed. As a corollary it was urged that Governor Roberts and Treasurer Lubbock must at that moment be ex-officio members of the Board of Regents.

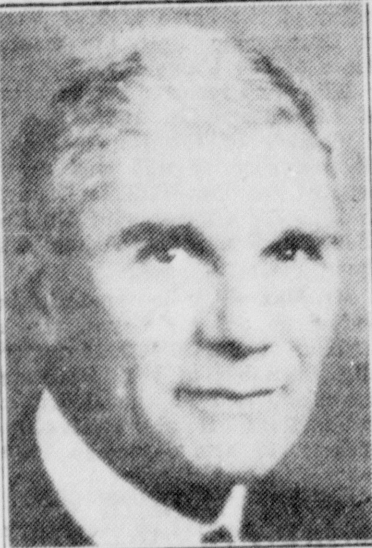

On October 19, two days after the results of the voting had been officially announced, a Houston Post editorial said, "since division has prevailed no place can obtain the location of the entire university, and the handsome vote given to Austin on this point, 14,621, is nugatory. So common sense and common law would rule. But the Old Alcalde is above common sense and common law, in the estimation of some, and these votes, killed as dead as Dutch herrings by the failure of the antecedent qualifying condition, are to be counted as if cast for the main university at Austin. The blank contradiction of this is seen at a glance from the fact that every vote cast for the entire University is antagonistic to the votes that locate the medical department at Galveston . . . division carried unquestionably, and, therefore, all votes for the entire university were nugatory. Galveston is to be credited . . . with every vote cast for her and has to contend against not a single vote but those cast for Houston, her competitor. If this be allowed, with what show of justice can these same dead votes, which have been treated as nothing, against Galveston, be counted as live votes for Austin? What is sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander."

The Governor and the Attorney General did not disagree so much on the form of ballot as on the method of arriving at a decision when the vote was counted. The Attorney General thought that if severance won, all votes recorded in Column 2 in the accompanying table which gives the vote subsequently counted, the entire University should be disregarded and the decision rest alone on the votes recorded in Columns 3 and 4; if severance lost, on the other hand, columns 3 and 4 ought to be disregarded and column 2 alone considered. The Governor, however, held that even if severance won, columns 2 and 3 should be combined and the results used to determine the location of the Main University.

The Attorney General, supporting his opinion wrote: "Some voter may entertain the view that the entire university should be located at A and be opposed to severance of the Medical Department, but think that in the event of severance being carried the medical department shall be located at B and the Main University without the medical department at C. If such voters there be they should not be wholly or partially disfranchised. . . . It might be urged that I give each voter the right to vote twice but . . . it will be seen that such is not the case. His vote for Dallas for the entire University would not count unless severance was defeated and his vote for Gainesville for the main university alone and for Sabine Pass for the Medical Department alone would not count unless severance was carried."

The gist of the Governor's argument he thus expressed, ". . . separation is contingent upon a majority vote on that question . . . whereas the location of the university proper, either with or without the medical department is a certainty . . . if he casts his vote for the University entire at that place, his vote certainly indicated a preference for that place for the university proper although the contingency of a separation of the Medical department may succeed and his vote should be counted for that place for the main university without the medical department . . .

We have here a standard situation! A poorly written law competently, even correctly, interpreted by two good lawyers in two different ways. Our decision, provided we rush in where angels fear to tread, must be based on common sense and equity, not on an ambiguous law. Assuming a competent electorate, the Attorney General's opinion gave it a greater freedom in expressing itself, assuming a number of rather careless and uninformed voters, the Governor's opinion came nearer to hitting the center of gravity of their wishes; one was the more nearly correct in theory, the other in practice; one, as the event proved, would have located the Main University at Tyler, the

(Editor's Note: Under the sponsorship of Mortar Board, honorary senior women's fraternity, there will appear each Sunday in the Texan a column of vocational information for women. This article, written by Dr. Charlotte Easley Grave, is taken from the Mortar Board Quarterly for March, 1931.)

CONSULTING PSYCHOLOGIST

Many people believe that women are peculiarly well adapted to the field of clinical work in psychology because of their so-called intuition, their sympathy, their interest in people, and their relationships. There is less prejudice against women in this than in many other lines of scientific endeavor. If one is satisfied to be a "psychometrist" confined to routine mental testing—good undergraduate training in clinical psychology is sufficient. But if one wants to include not only the diagnosis of mental status but also an attempt to help the individual to a successful adjustment in his home, school, business or social situation, graduate work which leads to a higher degree is a necessity.

The opportunities for clinical psychological work are increasing. Many public school systems have psychological departments with large staffs. Juvenile courts, child guidance clinics, neuro-psychiatric departments in hospitals, social service agencies, private schools, institutions—many of them now require the services of a psychologist or a clinical psychometrist. A new field of increasing opportunities is that of personnel work in business and industrial establishments. This includes the selection and training of employees, adjustment of employer-employee relationships, and employee welfare work. In New York, there are already, I believe, a number of women consulting psychologists who are successful in private practice. This is, however, a comparatively new field, and as in the case of a physician it takes time to build up a practice.

A wide range of salaries is to be found. The majority of positions open to recent graduates do not pay over $1,200 per year. For the more experienced worker, it is probable that psychological work in schools or in business and industry offer the largest financial return. Opportunities for advancement depend entirely on the individual situation.

If one is at all fitted for psychological work, the return in interest and the stimulation of contacts with different types of people and situations will be high, no matter what particular field one enters.

other did locate it at Austin. Most of the 14,607 votes cast for Austin ought to have been counted for Austin, as was done, most of them, but not all because there was some overlapping. The totals given in the table indicate pretty clearly that most of those who voted for the entire University would have voted also had they carefully attended to the matter, for the same locality for the Main University separately, and the Medical Department separately. In other words, Governor Roberts was right practically, and the desires of the people are more nearly discovered by adding the entire University vote both to the separate Main University vote and the Medical Department vote than in any other way.

Whatever the merits of the case, Roberts and Bowman declared on October 17 that Austin had won the Main University, and Galveston the Medical Department, and their decision was not seriously questioned despite the constitutional objections raised against separation by Waco and Austin despite the "angry" objections of Tyler to Roberts' decision when the result was announced. Singularly enough but judge-like, he does not allude to this aspect of the episode or seek to justify his legal opinion officially given, in his personal references to the Tyler matter in his History in the Quarterly.

"During the canvass of the location I was personally placed under what might be considered a serious embarrassment by the nomination of Tyler, which was the place of my home, that I had prepared as a residence for the balance of my life, surrounded by many much valued friends, and where I had lived for forty years. I believed that the capital of the State was the proper place for the University entire, except the Agricultural and Mechanical College, already established, and the branch for colored youths not then located, and had repeatedly so declared officially and otherwise. It would have been unworthy of me, and of the public position occupied by me, to have changed my course either on account of my own pecuniary interest, or of my feeling of friendship personally for my fellow-citizens in Tyler and throughout eastern Texas, to whom I had long been under obligations for their generous public support. Therefore, I continued to support the capital, as announced in my first inaugural, and yet believe that it would have been to the interest of the State for the whole University, with the exceptions above stated, to have been located at Austin, the seat of government of Texas. Still, I as one cheerfully abide the result of the vote of the people in that election."

HIGHWAYS and BYWAYS

A LOST DAY

A weary lassitude had characterized the last few days of my work, and I determined to exile myself from the temptations that created it—to wander off to some secluded spot and there gather my thoughts about me for a new foray.

One of those still afternoons of the early spring found me wandering idly upon a pebbly little miniature peninsula shaded by willows on the Colorado—still striving desperately for a clear thought unclouded by the thousand little trivialities of one's everyday existence.

The noon activities of the many creatures about me became quiescent, and I at length found myself possessor of a hoard of muscle-shells and vari-colored pebbles and not a single thought.

The long golden hours stretched themselves luxuriously through the remainder of the afternoon, and I nestled my cheek forgetfully against the carpet of dead leaves on the sand—smilingly picturing to myself as the ragged vesture which Winter had let fall in her hurried departure from this land of warmth and sunshine.

I think I must have dozed, for when I at last was conscious again, the eerie sound of the whip-poor-will met my startled ears, and toward the west the last reluctant rays of the setting sun were dipping drunkenly in a darkening sea of velvet mayve . . . And then with impatience I realized how wasted this day had been—that I had accomplished nothing—had only felt this intoxicating, drowsy completeness, this fellowship with hidden, obscure things. Half-vexed, half-pleased, I snatched my hat from an obliging willow-stump and departed homeward muttering to myself, "Fool! fool,—wise fool."

Commitment Service Scheduled for Today

The commitment service will be held in the First Presbyterian Church this morning at 11 o'clock, the Rev. Daniel E. Griener, pastor, said Friday.

An effort is being made to have every member of the church present at this service, Mr. Griener said, and group leaders have been appointed to issue special invita-

Press Freedom Is Object of Paper

Publication Staff Resigns At Hunter College

(By College News Service)
NEW YORK, March 5.—Freedom of the press—from faculty control—this week again was an issue at Hunter College, following the resignation of the entire staff of the Hunter College Bulletin.

The immediate cause of the walk-out, however, was the decision of the Student Council that the publication should be reduced from six pages to four. This action, necessitated as an economy measure, was directly attributed to a faculty order banning cigaret advertising.

Meanwhile, editors of the Barnard College Bulletin at Columbia University sympathized with the Hunter girls by condemning the "assumption of dictatorial powers on the part of Hunter College authorities."

The Bulletin pointed out that its own staff has "enjoyed for years the privileges and benefits of complete and untrammelled freedom."

and Sciences except three units in mathematics are required instead of two. The requirements to the College of Pharmacy are to remain the same as for the College of Arts and Sciences.

The committee on separate numbers and credits for laboratory parts of a course, with Dean T. U. Taylor as chairman, has made the recommendations that no changes be made in the numbering of courses and in cases involving laboratory work, the student must pay the fee, but if a refund is to be made for previous completion of the work, refund is to be made by the chairman of the department.

Dean B. F. Pittenger, of the School of Education, made recommendations that, because of the desirability of having identical major examinations with the College of Arts and Sciences, changes be made in the catalogue giving the chairman of the department the right to designate the location for the examination and the right to supervise it. Recommendations providing for the modern foreign language group that have been suggested by Dean Pittenger require part of the examination to be oral in order to test candidate's command of the spoken language.

Upon recommendations from Dean J. B. Johnston of the University of Minnesota and chairman of the national committee on the requirements for a sophomore test, a University committee with Dr. C. T. Gray as chairman has made an unanimous decision that no attempts should be made by the school at the present to conduct tests for sophomores.

"Get It Now So You Will Have It Then"

College days cannot last forever

The activities, the pleasures, the associations, the joys of a University career occupy but a brief space in the life of each of us. But these things—these achievements, and friendships, and experiences—are too valuable to be forgotten, to be lost forever. They must endure; they must grow increasingly important to us as the years go by. Take it from the old-timers, the students of the days that used to be—the memories of the University life are things of great value, to be cared for and cherished and preserved forever.

And that is the fine function and purpose of the Cactus, the permanent yearbook of The University of Texas—a volume of more than 500 pages, produced annually at a cost of $25,000—to preserve in word and picture the story of the year at "Texas" and the records of those who made that story possible. Tremendously useful and entrancingly interesting now, it grows in value as the years go by and comes to be one of the most cherished possessions of the college man and woman.

The Cactus is proud of the duty which it is privileged to perform; it thrills to the task of preserving for all time to come the current events of this great and increasingly great campus. It wants every student and faculty member to have the benefit of this labor and of this effort, and that is why the staff respectfully suggests that everyone who desires a copy of this significant souvenir of the University take steps at this time to reserve their book. The size and production cost of the book obviously prohibits the ordering of copies that are not reserved before the closing date—March 12.

Kiwanians Hear Professor Ayer

Keep Your Eyes on Texas Subject of Speech

"Consider men and women who are used to big business and who are well-rounded in civic pride when you fill the vacancies in your school system," advised Dr. F. C. Ayer, professor of educational administration in the University, in an address to the San Antonio Kiwanians at the Gunter Hotel, Friday noon.

The school, he suggested, is the last place where we should attempt to economize without serious consideration, and the safest way to accomplish economy is to weed out the weak teachers, supervisors and principals, substituting more efficient ones.

Time for Services Changed By Church

Due to the lengthening of the days, the night services at the First Presbyterian Church will be changed from 5 o'clock to 7:30 o'clock beginning Sunday night, the Rev. Daniel E. Grieder, pastor, announced Saturday.

The 5 o'clock vesper services have been held every Sunday afternoon since last November, and in the fall another series of services may be undertaken, Mr. Grieder said.

At the Sunday night service the pastor will speak on the subject "The Soul Winner's Gospel." A special solo will be sung by Mrs. Ethel Landon entitled "Send Down Thy Blessing" by Millard, and the choir will sing "His Way with Thee."

Frank Rilling, Alpha Rho Chi, is spending the week-end in San Antonio.

Little Theater's 'Let Us Be Gay' Opens March 9

Rachel Crothers' "Let Us Be Gay" will be ready for presentation Wednesday by the Little Theater under direction of Miss Morella Morrow. The play will be staged at Saengerhunde Hall three nights this week, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, March 9, 10, 11. Tickets will be at 8:15 o'clock. Tickets will be put on sale at places convenient to Austin and University play-goers, to be announced early this week.

The play, a comedy of marriage and divorce which received notice on both the stage and screen with Francine Larrimore and Norma Shearer respectively in the leading roles, is noted for its use of crisp and clever dialogue as an instrument with which to etch out a narrative centering on Kitty and Bob, a divorced couple. After years of married life, she discovers he is conducting an affair with another woman and leaves him. Roucault, called Bouci for short and fond of house parties, inadvertently brings them together again when he invites Kitty to be her guest for the purpose of charming an unwanted admirer away from her young protegee, Dierdre. Bouci wants the latter to marry Bruce, a young fellow in love with her. Who should the unwelcome suitor turn out to be?

Miss Katherine Wheatley, adjunct professor of Romance languages, will play Bouci, and, according to reports from rehearsals which have been in progress for some time, creates a new character, much different from that portrayed by Marie Dressler in the same role of the motion picture. Dierdre, played by Ted Lewis Moody, is not the flapper girl of the film, but a dark, exotic young thing. Both are said to be closely in accord with the author's specifications. Mrs. Moody, an ex-student, has played in Curtain Club productions.

Kitty is the role of Bernice Grieder, who played in "Torchbearers" last year. Mrs. Grieder is the wife of Daniel E. Grieder, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church. Bob is played by Alvin Newbury, University student, who was one of the "Silver Cord" cast. Robert Baldwin, as Bruce, is making his first appearance here. Baldwin is also a student.

Bernice Kraus, playing Madge, recently appeared in the Little Theater's "Trial of Mary Dugan," as did also Harry Sinclair, Jr., here playing Wallace, the poet. Claude Voyles, an ex-student, who has the role of Townley, has appeared in numerous plays. Edward G. Fletcher, adjunct professor of English, will have the part of the butler, Dorothy Shelby enacts Perkins, the maid, and Martin Casey, William the chauffeur.

With a minute and a half to play and his team one point behind Arthur Kliefoth, Eagle forward, sank a field goal from just behind the foul line to give the Brackenridge High School five a 24-23 victory over Dallas Tech Saturday night in Gregory Gym.

The win gave the San Antonio quintet third place in the Inter-scholastic League high school race. The steady goal tossing of Clarence Sledge and Martin Lindsey gave the Dallas Club a small lead during the greater part of the tilt. Wesley Seale, tall Alamo City center, capped high point honors by scoring four floor goals and six charity contests for fourteen markers.

The score at half time stood 14-10 in favor of the San Antonio five.

Adam Labruzzo and Barret played their usual smooth game at guards for the Tech team.

Temple 30, Dallas Tech 22

In the first game of the semifinals, Temple defeated Dallas Tech 30-22. Tech jumped into a quick lead and was ahead by 8 points but a Temple rally brought the Tech crew down and Temple was leading by one point at the half, 15-14.

Temple continued to build up its lead and successfully stopped a Tech rally to win the game. Both K. Clark of Temple and Barnett of Tech were injured but remained in the game. The game was noticeable because of the large amount of personal fouls committed by both sides.

San Jacinto lead by a slim margin almost the entire game. The Houston crew had the lead at 8-6 at the half but Brackenridge tied the score for a brief moment at the end of the third quarter at 8-8. However San Jacinto slowly drew away from the San Antonio squad in the last quarter winning the game 19-12. Lee Tynes, sensational San Jacinto forward, failed to scintillate as brilliantly as he did in the Friday games, although he was tied with his teammate, Hensch, for high score honors with 7 points to his credit.
