Spaceship Difficulties Noted

Kremlin leaders and ordinary Russians paid tribute to the memory of cosmonaut Vladimir M. Komarov Tuesday while indications mounted that the new spaceship he was testing was troublesome throughout the flight.

Reports persisted here that Komarov had faced a hard struggle throughout the flight of his Soyuz-union-1 spacecraft launched early Sunday. They said these difficulties forced the Soviets to cancel plans for launching a second manned spacecraft Monday, to link up with Soyuz 1. Official announcements tended to support these reports.

Picked up by the DPS were George Vizard, David Ledbetter, and Jim Lyons.

Actually the DPS had come to serve a warrant on Vizard, who had been charged with using abusive language at a rally held Monday at the Capitol. The rally was a demonstration against Vice-President Hubert Humphrey.

CHARGED with "interfering with the arrest of another" were Jim Lyons, 22, and David Ledbetter, 20. The joint complaint was filed with Justice of the Peace Bob Kuhn. The two students were also charged with using abusive lan-

Supporters, sympathizers, and the curious, an estimated 250 students. non-students, and faculty members, attended an outdoor meeting at Nueces College House Tuesday night to discuss free speech and its relationship to the recent arrest of three SDS members and disciplinary action being taken against six others.

Under the leadership of Jeff Shero, a non-student and SDS member, the group set out to organize a plan to handle, and hopefully resolve, the conflict between SDS and the University administration resulting from the unauthorized distribution of a handbill and subsequent rally Sunday night.

Joining in the efforts of SDS to fight the administration's ruling and the action taken against six students Monday and the three nonstudents Tuesday, were The University of Texas Veterans' Association, and the Negro Association for Progress. Support was also expected from the Graduate Students' Association, Young Democrats, Young Republicans, and possibly the Law Students' Association.

TO COORDINATE future activities, a plan was proposed and accepted to organize a central office to distribute information by telephone 24 hours a day to all interested persons. This central office will be headed by a steering committee. Members of the committee voted upon by those present at the meeting, included: Mike McKinlay, student Religious Liberals; Richard Moore, NAP; Stan Sechler, Rio Grande College House; Bobby Minkoff, SDS; and Larry Froelich, a law student.

Under the supervision of the steering committee will be eight committees to handle each segment of the movement. They are: • Grievance committee—to draw THIHER is a current candidate for President of the Students' Association. Miss Embree is running for the vice-presidential seat, and Reavis is campaigning for assemblyman-at-large. If the students go on disciplinary probation, they will not be allowed to run for office.

Although the hearing was closed, members of the press corps and radio media attempted to cover the proceeding by inserting their tape recorder microphones through the mail slot of the hearing room. Pictures were also taken through the slot until it was closed by the committee.

Earlier Tuesday morning, SDS had distributed a leaslet urging students to attend the demonstra-

ACCORDING to the leaflet, "the 200 people who attended the St day meeting are expressing their concern over the arbitrary nature of the administration's actions by appearing before the disciplinary board, claiming equal responsibility, demanding that SDS be reinstated as a campus organization, and that the charges against the six individuals be dropped."

It was SDS who sponsored Sunday's rally to plan a demonstration against Vice-President Hubert Humphrey.

The main question on some of the minds of the demonstrators. the minority of them being official SDS members, was whether the administration action impinged upon academic freedom.

AFTER THE HEARING, the group moved to the South Mall in front of the George Washington monument. A campus official estimated the crowd to be about 350 (See RALLY, Page 8.)

The new council members had not intended to disclose their decision this early, "but since there has been quite a bit of speculation and interest, we decided it was desirable to give the facts now and avoid further speculation," Akin said.

Akin said his name was the only one put in nomination for the mayor's office. Mrs. Long's selection was also unanimous.

Also discussed at the meeting was the role of City Manager W. T. Williams Jr. Akin said that since there are three new councilmen who do not have first hand information "it would be unfair to make up our minds on the basis of other people's experience."

"It is the intention at this time for the council to work toget

Distortions Cloud Issue of Procedure

This campus knows full well that established rules and procedures were willfully and knowingly violated by the Students for a Democratic Society (SDS) and certain individuals.

An SDS marked handbill announcing an unauthorized campus meeting was passed out illegally on campus in violation of Article V. A. L. (b.) of the regulations of the Committee of General Student Organizations. This section, which came out of the Free Sex League movement on campus last spring, states: "All materials posted, displayed, or distributed on campus by a committee-approved general student organization shall show clearly the name of the sponsor group. A committee-approved general student organization which plans to distribute literature on campus shall register such literature with the Student Activities Office and provide a copy with the material."

The SDS also violated a discipline statement in the current General Information Catalog (page 85, point 8) by ignoring a policy statement from Dr. Harry Ransom, chancellor of the University. This discipline statement reads: 'All students are expected to show respect for properly constituted authority to observe correct standards of conduct."

Dr. Ransom is about as properly constituted an authority as will be found on this campus. His statement set down certain standards of conduct which were well-known to members of the Students for a Democratic Society; yet, the group held their unauthorized meeting and passed out an unauthorized handbill.

Since the SDS has been removed from the list of General Student Organizations, there has been a great deal of loose talk and rumor on this campus. Some have stated that students from other campuses will come to the University to demonstrate. Some partisans in the current circumstances have had the gleeful hope that this campus will have a Berkeley-type blow-up. Such attitudes lack maturity; they certainly lack an academic approach to problem-solving.

Disagreements may exist, but distortions certainly are prevalent. The University community has in the past been able to talk over their differences and reason out justiciable solutions-and this is the way it should be. This is presently a time for understanding and reasoning for all sides; it is not one for hasty and regrettable actions.

It is ironic and pathetic that those who have deliberately clouded the situation are those who assert that thoughts, and not unauthorized actions, have been punished, but some find it easier to stand behind a false shield of free speech violation. Regrettably, instigated frenzy in some quarters in the University community has skirted the fundamental and paramount issue: rule violation.

Students Few Law Utilize Texas Union

A recent Campus Survey Committee poll shows that 63 per cent of law students polled who attended the University as undergraduates never use the Texas Union now that they are in the School of Law. This poll included 230 law students in the survey, and it can be assumed to be fairly representative of all students in Townes Hall.

Law students have not used the Texas Union for a number of reasons-geographic ones being the main one. Yet, law students still must pay a required Union fee each semester. The poll merely re-emphasizes that law students should either receive better services from the Union, or have their required fee lowered.

The Black Challenge

By Hugh Hinton Graduate Student in Government (First of two columns)

Almost all societies at some time dur- tain needs which can only be fulfilled ing their existence are subjected to a by unified group activity, that the group direct frontal attack by some internal group on their institutions and ideological tenets. These internal disorders Drummonds, who refused to apply for societies, but in the United States have followed a consistent, almost predict- sarily follow: able pattern.

Survive by adapting

We have survived by adapting to this changing internal environment and absorbing the dissident groups into an ever-expanding political and ideological structure, which in turn, over a period of time, creates other dissidents who must, ultimately, also be absorbed.

The black power movement is, to a great extent, this kind of an inevitable phenomenon, a group-rebellion against the society which produced it, focusing on the discrepency between our ideology and existential reality. It appeals to those who are most aware that our ideological belief that each individual is emonomic position is simply not true wa in their real world Hugh Hinton situation.

The civil rights movement, in contrast, began as an attempt to work within the system, to realize certain goals by extending the system according to its own pre-determined rules.

Correctness irrelevant

Whether these advocates are correct in the evaluation of their position is, I feel, irrelevant; reality is how one perceives it. Whether this is the preferred method of solving the problem of the excluded Negro is also immaterial, for it is not with our preferences, but with the reality of this movement, that the American system must ultimately come Black power implies certain important consequences for the external and internal relationships of the white and Negro community and for the American system as a whole. What exactly these consequences are can only become fully apparent with time. However, there are several tentative hypotheses which I would like to suggest as a possible basis of an empirical evaluation of this movement.

Black power is apparently based on the proposition that Negroes have cerfor its own values, or as Carmichael says, "It must define itself, rather than be defined."

• Therefore, it must assure itself of equality relative to the previously dominant group. With black power, this assertion of equality has taken the form of turning the tables on the whites, and flouting the "defining" community's ability to continue its domination.

Rejection of values

• This in turn leads to a rejection of the source of values which have been imposed from the outside, and a conscious break with what is called in international politics "cultural imperial-

· An attempt must be made to establish a power base independent of the dominant group, giving the Negro community an effective bargaining position with the dominant group. Whether these goals are attained will depend on various factors, some of which are beyond the control of the black power advocates themselves.

Irrespective of this, it is inconceivable that it not have some impact. To the white man, it portends the inevitability of the destruction of his defined image of the Negro, for the Negro is no When, to certain of the Negro lead- longer behaving as white culture has predetermined that he should act.

Obviously, large portions of the white community are violently opposed to black power and see it as a threat to them and to the system they have largely created. The interesting question is:

Why should he care whether the Negro controls his own community and become an independent bargaining agent within the American system? The answer to this question is quite complex, but immediately several tentative explanations are apparent.

Important reason

One very important reason for this reaction is that, within the American ideology, minority groups just do not behave as the black power movement is behaving. Any group which attempts this internalization of its own values will receive this same kind of reaction from the dominant community; the fact they happen to be Negro only intensifies it by converting it from a group to a racial conflict.

An understanding of this reaction must consider, further, the kind of Negrowhite relationship that black power is reacting against. Such factors as economic exploitation and the psychological need of the poor white to justify his own low socio-economic position visa-vis the "inherently inferior" Negro are obvious.

The not-so-obvious relationship is that which exists within the realm of politics, and may partly explain the negative reaction of the white liberal and moderate. It is these relationships which black power seeks to destroy.

The banishment of SDS by University officials is best described by Mark Twain when he said:

"There has never been a just war. never an honorable war-on the part of the instigator of the war, I can see a million years ahead and this rule will never change in so many as a half dozen instances. The loud little handful -as usual-will shout for the war. The pulpit will-warily and cautiously-obect-at first; the great, big, dull bulk of the nation will rub its sleepy eyes and try to make out why there should be a war and will say, earnestly and indignantly, 'It is unjust and dishonorable and there is no necessity for it."

Then the handful will shout louder. A few fair men on the other side will argue and reason against the war with speech and pen, and at first will have a hearing and be applauded, but it will not last long; those others will outshout them, and presently the anti-war audiences will thin out and lose popularity. Before long you will see this curious thing: the speakers stoned from the platform, and free speech strangled by hordes of furious men who in their secret hearts are still at one with those stoned speakers - as earlier - but do not dare to say so. And now the whole nation - pulpit and all - will take up the war cry and shout itself hoarse, and mob any honest man who dares to open rally his mouth, and presently such mouths will cease to open.

Basis Known?

Mr. Stoll's criticism of my article on the potential of ground water in this State points up the important fact that little is really known about the development of ground water on a regional basis. The problem of depletion is on a local level, except in the High Plains where the lack of effective management in producing an unrecharged supply of water, at a rate equal to all the rest of the ground water produced in the state, has caused a serious problem for the near future.

I wonder why Mr. Stoll did not point out the fact that the aquifers of East Texas are overflowing, and they are not developed widely except in Houstom. I am afraid that I have to disagree strongly with the position that the ground water resources of this state cannot be developed further because of depletion. One should look into this problem more carefully before writing aquifers off as a bad investment. Aquifers can be used for the storage and improvement of surface water as well as the production of naturally stored water, which is usually in a better condition than surface water. Their potential is too great for us not to thoroughly research their possibilities.

If Dean Holland's press statement of Tuesday, that is, if all students are treated equally in this matter, then I should have received an order to report for action by the Discipline Committee, as six others did. To the best of my knowledge, no one other than these six have received a letter or anything else.

Communications Expert Says Speaking Like Transportation

By MARGARET GLOVER

Dr. Paul D. Holtzman, speech professor at Pennsylvania State University, said that the basic analogy of the communication process is "transporting goods from one place to another" at a communication seminar Monday

In this analogy, the "transmission model" begins with the source, who wants to engage in communication, "encoding" his message into language. The message passes through a direct channel, is "decoded," and then

"War is the great consumer," that is, the capitalistic system existent in the United States today relies upon war spending or armament necessary for the Cold War situation. This was the essence of a talk given Monday night by Ross Gandy, graduate student at the University, as part of a series on Socialism sponsored by the University Socialist

The prosperity and employment brought about by World War II after the depression of the 1930's is perhaps the best example of the United States' dependence on war spending to keep the economy sound, Gandy noted. Even after the demilitarization following World War II, the Korean War acted as a catalyst for the increased military spending of the present, he

The speaker and the listener, however, are not in direct contact. Holtzman said the two are not "wired together but are insulated. There is mutual influencing going on."

Holtzman's alternative model, the inductive model, is like a transformer. It induces desired behavior in the other person just as the transformer changes the character of electricity that comes through.

Houston Astro Fuel Misfires For Ninth Time Versus Cards

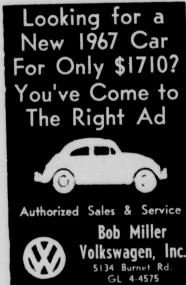

HOUSTON

Left-hander Al Jackson pitched seven hitless innings and wound up with the third one-hitter in the majors this season as the St. Louis Cardinals blanked Houston's skidding Astros 4-0 Tuesday night.

Bob Aspromonte led off the eighth inning with a line single to left, ending Jackson's no-hit bid. The little southpaw then set down the last six batters he faced, completing the shutout and joining Boston rookie Bill Rohr and Baltimore's Steve Barber on the one-hit roll.

The loss was the ninth in a row for the Astros.

Steer Linksters Blank Mustangs

By LARRY UPSHAW Texan Sports Editor

Texas Longhorn golfers started a late run for second place in the Southwest Conference with a resounding 6-0 crunching of the SMU Mustangs Tuesday at Morris Williams Golf Course.

The Steer linksmen, pre-season league favorite, blanked the Ponies and climbed out of their fourth place slump. But they found that championship bells were not pealing Orange, because league-leader Texas A&M smashed Rice,  $5\frac{1}{2}$ - $\frac{1}{2}$ , to widen their lead.

"WE JUST STARTED too late," Texas coach George Hannon said. "The best we can do now is second."

Looking toward next season, Hannon started a foursome of three sophomores and one junior. The one upperclassman, junior college transfer Jerry Smith, clobbered Pony Bobby Abbott by a lop-sided 8 and 6 in the Number

Chip Stewart defeated Mustang Bill Manor in the Number 1 contest, 3 and 2, while Rik Massengale of Texas downed Mike DeLarios 7 and 6.

In the Number 4 singles match, 'Horn Buddy Hamilton buzzed by Charles Emery 3 and 2. The Hamilton-Smith duo took the best ball of four over the Abbott-Emory team, 4 and 3. Stewart and Messengale smashed the Manor-DeLarios team 6 and 5.

THIS WAS THE SIXTH leg of the seven-contest round-robin SWC competition. Texas began the race by downing Arkansas, then tied Texas Tech 3-3, beat A&M, 4-2, took their lumps from TCU, 31/2-21/2, and crushed Baylor, 5-1, in Waco last Friday.

"We haven't had any particularly bad problems this season," Hannon noted. "We never have played really bad, but just not good enough to win the conference."

Texas holds a 20-16 record for the season, but the Aggies stand 30-6 with only one match to play. The Longhorns play Rice in Houston Friday and A&M plays Baylor Saturday in College Station.

With the SWC crown all but wrapped up by the Farmers, Hannon can only look to the conference individual meet in Dallas May 5-6.

AGGIE LEE McDOWELL, who won medalist honors against Rice Tuesday, could be considered the favorite, Hannon admitted.

Water accidents in Austin are many and varied according to Dr. Paul L. White, director of the Student Health Center, To reinforce his statement, Dr. White took a stack of accident reports for the month of April from his desk. Among these cases were more than 12 water accidents.

The majority of the reports were for "minor" accidents. Most numerous were accidents involving feet being cut on rocks, glass bottles, and cans while swimmers walked either in or along lakes

Dr. White thinks that many of these accidents could have been prevented. To do this he suggested that the University employ a safety engineer. "We need a safety engineer on our staff whose sole responsibility would be to follow up all accidents and

"ANY ATTEMPT to bring cam pus politics into this will not be tolerated," Dave Chappell, chief justice of the Student Court, said.

Chappell denied a request for a temporary injunction to prevent Drummond from serving as presi dent until further action is taken. "I felt there would be more irreparable harm from keeping Clif from executing laws of the Students' Association than the "harm" of letting him continue in office even if he were dis qualified," Chappell said.

"It's been my practice not b comment on a case before we go to court," Drummond said. "As an aside, this is the tenth time that the Student Court has me this year.

. . . the LEADER in its field!

Why can HEFLIN MANOR be considered as FIRST among the dormitories for girls at the University of Texas?

Because it was FIRST to operate its own bus to and from the campus -and at no additional charge to its residents.

Because it was the FIRST to serve 21 meals a week on a regular basis.

Because it was FIRST to offer a large parking lot to its residents for off-street parking of their cars—and at no additional charge.

Because it continues to offer programs and activities for voluntary participation by its residents—such as • student tutors. • intramural teams, • visiting faculty and guest speakers. • Open House parties. · Heflin Singers, etc.

AND NOW, HEFLIN MANOR is FIRST to provide a controlled system whereby its older residents (Sophomores and above) may come and go as they please.

We call this new program "UPPERCLASS PRIVILEGE." Are you interested? Come see us and let us tell you about it.

Gilbert, a native of Healdsburg, Calif., came to the University Press from Atlanta, Ga., where for the past year he managed the college department of the publisher's southeast division.

It is with great regret that I feel compelled to write this letter: I have always had the highest respect for you because you have frequently defended the University against blindly mistrustful opponents. Yet, now, you strike at the very heart of the University by your action against the Students for a Democratic Society. While I strongly disagree with the views of the SDS, I firmly defend its right and duty to speak and demonstrate its views. Indeed, I fear that without this rather radical group, the campus will sink into the same non-controversial oblivion that has en-mit this, or any institution, to pre-package my mind in popularly acceptable colors. Though you may attempt, for political reasons, to limit fields of inquiry and expression, you cannot. I stand with those of our student body and faculty who I believe are being persecuted for their beliefs and attempts at inquiry by your Administration. And, sir, I challenge you to treat me as you are treating these so-called "irresponsible radicals." I can only stand with those who seek truth, and by that very search, hope to become free men.

New Orleans Swinging, Fun

You may not meet many "Creole babies with flashing eyes," but the atmosphere is authentic "way down yonder" at the New Orleans Club in East Austin.

The New Orleans Club has been a bastion of good times for 20 years. Belying the sedate exterior, the N.O.C.'s interior really swings. Inside it's like a darkly shadowed veranda. Red and green lanterns give the darkness a musky, party glow.

Brick floors, fountains, and ferns adorn the multi-level terrace that slopes to the dance floor. The slope causes some pleasant predicaments as one guest related, "all the drinks roll into my lap."

Adjacent to the dance floor is a red-canopied band stand holding on occasion The Article IV's, The Blades of Grass, The Wigs, The Babycakes, and other popular combos. It is here that the swinging starts, for the bands are in possession of The "Beat" and many amplifiers.

Guests at the club enter by way of the piano bar, which sports a wall mural 20 years old. Here every Sunday from 4 to 7 p.m. the Fred Smith Jazz Quartet plays. Student talent is enthusiastically invited to these sessions. Tuesday through Saturday the N.O.C. opens at 7:30 p.m. On the weekends the smartly cramped dance floor is crowded with exes, collegiates, and tourists . . . all Bug-a-looing to their hearts content. Such exertion forces each and all back to their tables for what owner Reuben Kogut calls the club's most unique feature, a rainbow offering of 29 mixers.

Starting next week, the N.O.C. will offer "New Orleans Club" souvenir glasses. The idea is part of the N.O.C. authentic take off on night club life in New Orleans. The N.O.C. will be available for smokers and rush parties next fall.

Dearth of talent in the Ameri- it, and so few who can act it." can musical theater has created a need for drama school training in the medium, Tom Jones, author of "The Fantasticks." said Tuesday.

Jones, a University graduate, spoke to approximately 500 drama students on problems of the musical theater, which he termed "one of the few things I know anything about, and, strangely, one of the few things very few people know anything

The playwright, who is also the author of "I Do, I Do" and "110 in the Shade." wore a white suit to the lecture. "I was not a speech major, but I can be dramatic," he said.

"THE CURIOUS THING about musical theater." he said, "is why there are so few people who can do it, so few who can write it, so few who can direct

There are only 12 people in the whole country who know anything about it, he said. "There are only two directors alive, that I know of, who know how to put together a musical." He auditioned about 10,000 actors for his first two plays, out of which, he said, "there are only a handful who can do what you want them to do."

Jones attributed this shortage of talent in his field to the fact that there is no training in musical theater anywhere in the country. There will be a school for musical theater in New York. he said, but it is "doomed to be a disaster because it is going to be run by opera people.

"I AM ETERNALLY grateful for the education I got here. It was a wonderful practical education," he said. But he added that he never learned to solve the problems of making a musical while in school, "During the six vears I was here the department never did a musical, still, never for a minute would I change my education for somebody else's.'

Jones gave two reasons why he thought that musical theater should be taught in drama schools. The first is practical. There are many more jobs available for actors in musicals and there is more income for the author of musicals. There are "enormous subsidiary returns from records and songs," he said. The other reason, he said, "is that musicals have the potential of great drama. The form offers this possibility. The form of the conventional drama does not prevent the same opportunity for greatness." Jones criticized many of the plays now appearing on Broadway. Of his own play, "I Do, I Do," he said it was "not quite good enough."

Musical theater, he said, is in "primary colors. "I'm afraid of a world that is turning gray. I like the primitive world, a world of primary colors."

Bill OK's Gun Carrying For Campus Officers

The House rushed to passage Tuesday a bill designating campus policemen as "peace officers" with authority to carry firearms, make arrests, and detain individuals.

Provisions of the proposed law would take effect at the University if and when the Board of Regents should exercise its option to put them into effect.

The bill, which had already been approved by the Senate, was sent to Gov. John Connally for approval.

The bill was hurriedly approved in a called meeting of the House Education Committee Tuesday morning while the Legislature was in session.

The bill, S.B. 162 by Sen. A. M. Aikin of Paris, was a companion measure to one introduced in the House by Rep. Gus

REP. JACK OGG of Houston asked Armstrong if this bill would allow campus policemen to break up demonstrations such as occurred in front of the Capitol during Vice-President Hubert Humphrey's visit Monday,

Liquor by Drink Bill Removed From Ice

By The Associated Press

Gov. John Connally's liquor by the drink bill, with a "positive local option" feature allowing public sale of mixed drinks only where voters approve, was passed by the House Tax Committee Tuesday for floor debate.

The surprise action came on a 10-7 record vote of the Revenue and Taxation Committee, only hours after one of the sponsors said he was afraid the measure was dead.

A subcommittee substitute, plus an amendment by Rep. Jim Nugent of Kerrville, removed some of the objections of the bill's opponents. THE MAJOR CHANGE allows legalized sale of mixed drinks only where voters of any presently wet area vote after the effective date of the bill in favor of liquor by the drink.

Rep. J. E. Johnson of Houston presented the committee substitute, which made seven changes in the governor's bill.

Opponents had criticized the feature of Connally's original bill that made liquor by the drink take effect automatically in precincts where sales of distilled tion and beer and wine for onpremise consumption are legal.

Another major change, designed to soften criticism from might get retail drink permits, allows the Liquor Control Board

sion of a license for serving to a minor. A LICENSEE could retain his permit after proving he had shown "due diligence" in checking on minors. The permit fee for private clubs would be $100, instead of $1,000 for veterans and fraternal clubs chartered for at least five

Another change would allow holders of a beer or beer and wine permit to also hold a retail drink permit so he could operate two separate establishments, one limited to beer and wine and the other serving liquor by the drink

Nugent tacked on a "dram shop amendment," making owners of liquor by the drink establishments liable for injury, death or damage caused by the intoxication of their customers.

THE MEASURE imposes a tax of five cents per ounce on drinks, collected at the wholesale level.

Retail drink permits would cost $1,000 a year, and counties and cities also could assess fees of $500 for retail drink licenses.

Minors would be subject to spirits for off-premise consump- fines of $10 to $100 if they lied about their age to buy a drink. Minimum fines for selling liquor to a minor would be raised from $100 to $500, with the maximum owners of establishments that penalty on first offense remaining a $1,000 fine and a year in
