

Dr. Townsend Defies Investigators to Drag Him to Washington

WASHINGTON, May 22.—(INS)—Facing contempt charges that may send him to the District of Columbia jail, Dr. Francis E. Townsend today defied new defiance at the congressional committee investigating his $200-a-month old-age pension plan.

From Baltimore, where he sought refuge late yesterday after refusing further to testify in the House investigation, Townsend issued orders directing five of his lieutenants to decline to give any information to the inquisitors.

HE LEFT PAJAMAS TO AVERT SOLONS

BALTIMORE, May 22.—(INS)—Lolling back comfortably in a barber's chair, Dr. Francis E. Townsend told International News Service today that he would not return to Washington to face contempt proceedings "until they drag me."

The doctor made a hurried motor trip to Baltimore yesterday afternoon after he had walked out on a House committee investigating his $200 a month old age pension movement. He was accompanied here by Gerald L. K. Smith, successor to the late Huey P. Long as head of the "share-the-wealth movement."

"I left Washington because I was being persecuted," said Townsend. "And I was in such a hurry to leave that I left with no pajamas. I'll go back only when I'm arrested."

"And when they arrest you they arrest 20,000,000 people," interjected Smith.

"That's right," said Townsend.

Final Ranger Due Next Week

Light Opera Elects New Officers

A constitutional amendment which will permit the election of the director in late spring instead of early fall was adopted by the University Light Opera Company at a spaghetti banquet Thursday night. Officers were also elected.

Walter Kerr, tentative president, opened the nominations. Those elected are Kerr, president; Charles Barden, vice-president; Edwin Merriman, business manager; Gertrude Kuehne, secretary; C. O. Patterson, treasurer; and Richard Blake, reporter.

Herbert Wall was re-elected director, and after staging the Gilbert and Sullivan opera "H. M. S. Pinafore" in July, he will resume his activities next fall, during which time the presentation of Balfe's "Bohemian Girl" is planned.

Democrats Elect Holloway President

William Holloway was re-elected president of the Travis County Young Democrats Thursday night. Other officers elected were Mrs. J. J. Hinrichs, vice-president; A. L. Mabry, treasurer; and Alex Louis, secretary.

An executive committee to prepare the political policies for the coming campaign year was chosen. It consists of H. F. Robertson, T. C. McCorkle, Gerald M. Porter, Dr. J. L. Love, Baker Mallett, Hiram Brown, and Syd Holloman.

Jerry Penix, student in the Department of Journalism from Vernon, was injured in a friendly scuffle in his room Thursday night. An X-ray Friday showed that his skull was fractured. Penix is in St. David's Hospital. Reports late Friday night were to the effect that he is resting fairly well.

Band Council Will Confer With Regents

New Director May Be Chosen Monday Night; Dhossche To Come Here

Several Longhorn Band members, comprising the executive council, will meet with the Board of Regents today in "just a little friendly get-together" to talk things over. It is expected that the "get-together" will turn into a real business session.

Regents have asked for suggestions from Band members on what they can do to help next year's program. It is expected that new equipment will be asked of the Regents this afternoon.

The Band will meet Monday night to pass on its new director. A possibility exists that the director will not be chosen that night, but if present plans materialize, the Longhorn Band will again have a leader Tuesday morning.

R. A. Dhossche, director of the high school band at Beaumont, will come here Monday to interview Regents. Mr. Dhossche, a graduate of the Royal Conservatory of Music at Ghent, Belgium, won the music theory and flute playing awards of his graduating class.

He is a former director of the Twelfth United States Cavalry band. As director of the Beaumont band he has won the state Class A title seven times. He is a member of the American Bandmasters' Association and the Texas Bandmasters' Association.

Among others who have been named as possibilities are Joe "Red" Sheppard, who has been an assistant director of the Longhorn Band; George Hurt, Dallas Tech high school band director; and Arthur Covington, Austin high school band director.

Electrical Engineers Elect New Officers

Lawrence Caldwell was elected chairman of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers Friday morning at a meeting in the Engineering Building. Jerry Zavorka was presiding chairman at the meeting.

Other officers elected are Dan Hickey, vice-chairman; Lonnie Wilson, secretary-treasurer; G. W. Henderson, reporter; R. C. Green, sergeant-at-arms; Robert Swinney, parliamentarian; James Cornell, professor of electrical engineering, was re-elected counselor.

MISS DIMMITT TO RETURN

Miss LeNoir Dimmitt, chief of the Package Loan Library, who is attending a meeting of the American Library Association in Richmond, Va., is expected to return to Austin Monday. Miss Dimmitt is president of the Texas State Library Association.

Exposition Dioramas Will Depict Indians Before Time of Palefaces

How the many tribes of Indians lived before the arrival of white man in Texas will be shown by small model groups of Indians and their villages at the University Centennial Exposition. The exposition opens on the campus of the University June 1.

The white man's reconstruction of the Indian mode of life will be shown visitors not only by dioramas, but also by copies of scenes painted by the cave-shelter dwellers of the Big Bend region of Texas. A diorama is a three-dimensional scene, and seven of these are now being prepared by skilled preparators in the division of anthropology for the exposition. Two murals or pictographs, six by eighteen feet, reproduced from Indian drawings found on the walls of Painted Canyon and Rattlesnake Canyon in Val Verde County, have been copied by Ben Bailey, preparator for the Division of Anthropology.

Pictographs, it is believed, are records of past events, Mr. Bailey explained. The symbolism used by the various tribes differs so much that translation of various pictographs has been difficult. Since an alphabet was unknown among any of the Texas Indians, an agreement as to the meaning of a certain symbol may have existed. The meaning of some of these symbols never will be known, Mr. Bailey said.

May Get Award

DR. E. H. SELLARDS

Sellards Awaits Research Post Confirmation

Unless objection is filed in the office of the President or Dean of the Graduate School within five days, Dr. Elias Howard Sellards, professor of geology, will become research professor for 1936-1937.

Dr. Sellards refused Thursday to comment on his nomination by the Research Professorship Committee May 18.

"I have not been elected yet," he stated.

His appointment now awaits confirmation by the circulation-of-no-protest method. Under this procedure, Dr. Sellards will become research professor if a protest is not filed within ten days after the circulation of his nomination.

If objection is filed before May 28, his nomination will be presented to the Graduate faculty at its next meeting. Dr. H. W. Harper, dean of the Graduate School, rather than calling a meeting of the Graduate faculty to approve Dr. Sellards' nomination, is resorting to this way of securing it.

The University research professorship is given annually to a member of the faculty of the Main University who is chosen because of important achievement in research or for distinguished work in the arts. The one to whom the research professorship is given is relieved of one semester's teaching work. During this time a series of lectures is delivered and the work published in some form. Dr. Sellards will deliver from three to five lectures next spring if no protest is filed.

Director of the Bureau of Economic Geology and chairman of the division of conservation and development of the natural resources of Texas, Dr. Sellards is the geologist who established the boundary of the state in the Oklahoma-Texas state boundary suit in 1921. While doing graduate work in the University of Kansas, he found for the first time fossil insects in the Permian formation in Central Kansas.

Born in Kentucky, where his people were early settlers after the time of Daniel Boone, Dr. Sellards took his bachelor of arts degree from the University of Kentucky.

Journalists Play Rough At Picnic

Skit and Paper Hit Faculty and Staff; Anti-R.O.T.C. Team Hits Van Damm

By PAUL CRUME

Journalism faculty and Texas staff editors got rough treatment in skit and Tiny Texan at The Daily Texan staff picnic yesterday at Barton Springs. The sports staff baseball team got rough handling from the anti-R.O.T.C. maulers, and the ham got rough treatment from everybody but Nathan Safir, Jewish radio editor.

The impromptu ball game was played in a mist. Players changed occasionally so that fielders could get some rest. The sports staff was ingloriously defeated. Having batted all over the lot of the offerings of the sports staff pitcher, George Dennis, of Rip Van Damm tennis fame, the anti-R.O.T.C. maulers sewed up the game in the third inning by knocking the ball into the swimming pool. Notable was the work of blond, lanky Frank Morrow, present night supervisor, for his ability to take all the shrubbery in stride in covering the outfield that sloped away to the swimming pool.

"It was a gruelling game," said Van Damm, in a prepared statement after the game, "especially for the spectators. They had to chase entirely too many wild throws."

Bill McGill, University Centennial publicity director, slipped into the picnic supper on the veranda of the pavilion late; but he was in time to laugh resoundingly at the Tiny Texan—first college picnic daily in the South—which was distributed.

The readers read of Juanita Whittlesey, associate society editor, whose pensive, bespectacled face belies her romantic heart. They read that Bernard Brister, self-confident short-story prize winner, had come away with lower lip and hands trembling from a

Student Choice Of Beverages Seldom Varies

University students like their drinks straight—that is, their choice of beverages seldom varies. On an average of 425 times daily, the fountain attendants in the Texas Union canteen colored and flavored liquids and solids to satisfy the thirst and hunger of fagged-out University students. "Shoot one," "Waco," "shortie," "400," and "choce dust" are served up as cokes, Dr. Pepper, short limes, small milk chocolates, and chocolate malts.

The fountain does its most rushing business between 10 and 1 o'clock. An average of 700 customers are served on dance nights, Ollie Copeland, manager, said.

Student taste seldom varies—no one has yet been individual enough to order an egg flip.

Faculty Queried On Attendance Of Exercise

So that workmen can build a stage large enough to accommodate all the faculty members who will attend the graduation exercises, E. C. H. Bantel, chairman of the faculty committee on commencement, has asked all faculty members to notify him if they plan to attend the exercises.

The baccalaureate sermon will be held in Texas Memorial Stadium at 7 o'clock in the evening, June 7. Commencement exercises will be held Monday, June 8, at 7 o'clock in the evening at the stadium, after the academic procession, which begins at 6:30.

"All members of the general faculty are invited to attend the baccalaureate sermon and Commencement exercises, to march in the academic procession and sit on the stage," Professor Bantel announced. "Both occasions are to be formal," he said.

Delta Sigma Pi Elects Officers

Ray Martin was re-elected headmaster of Delta Sigma Pi, honorary commercial fraternity, Monday night at the last meeting of the year. Other officers elected were J. C. Suttles, senior warden, D. J. Dial, junior warden; Jack Collier, treasurer; Louis Williams, scribe; William Arlitt, chancellor; Sydney Reagan, historian; and Robert Kuldell, master of ceremonies.

Martin was nominated delegate to attend the national convention at Atlanta, Ga., from September 14 to 19. Williams was chosen as first alternate and Suttles as second alternate.

25 Orders Taken For Texas Plates

Approximately twenty-five orders of a dozen each have been taken during the week for Texas plates decorated with the seal of the state, two Texas stars, cacti, bluebonnets, barbed wire fences, and rolling prairies. The plates, of bone china, are designed by Wedgwood.

This movement is being sponsored by the Texas Commemorative Plate Association, and orders are being taken at the office of the Ex-Students' Association in the Texas Union.

Woman's Building Seniors Veto New Plan

Latest returns Friday on The Daily Texan Commencement poll indicate a preponderant majority for individual presentation of degrees.

Voting was light Friday, with only 91 more ballots being cast—17 for the new plan and 74 against.

The outstanding feature of the poll so far has been the revelation that approximately 50 per cent of those voting against the new plan of group presentation of diplomas would take their degrees in absentia, if the new method were followed. Thirty of the 91 voted that way yesterday.

To date there have been only 233 votes cast, about three hundred short of the number necessary to bring about a change in the Commencement arrangements.

Part of the lightness of Friday's vote in The Daily Texan poll can be attributed to the fact that a ballot, through error, was left out of Friday's paper. There is a ballot in this issue, to be signed and checked by degree candidates only, and placed in a faculty mail box or brought to Journalism Building 108.

E. C. H. Bantel said Thursday that arrangements for Commencement would be changed only if a good majority of at least 50 per cent of the seniors voted accordingly. He regards indifference as favorable to the proposed new plan of presentation by proclamation.

Eighteen of the twenty-one seniors residing in the Woman's Building stood against the new Commencement plan (see "The Student Pulse" on the last page) in a statement to the Texan, Friday.

Maugham's Play Offered June 5

Somerset Maugham's "The Sacred Flame" is to be presented at Hogg Memorial Auditorium Friday, June 5, by the Little Theater of Austin. The play, which has as its theme the subject of the right of an incurable invalid to live, is the last offering of the Little Theater for the current season.

Miss Josephine Theis has the principal role; that of Mrs. Tabret, wife of Mr. Tabret, played by Calvin Starnes, Maurice, son of the Tabrets, is played by life when he goes away to war. The young son, portrayed by Girard Kinney, is married to Stella, whose part is taken by Mrs. Dan Grielder, but later falls in love with Alice, the character seen in Mrs. Aldon Weeks.

Spiced from then on with romantic intrigue and even a death shrouded in mystery, "The Sacred Flame" unravels with typical Maugham treatment the problems built up.

Others in the cast are: Frank Gallagher as Major Laconda and Gibson Randall as Dr. Harvester. Two remaining roles have not yet been assigned, it was announced.

Jewish Relief Drive Gets Gideon Picture

Dr. H. J. Ettlinger, professor of pure mathematics, announced Thursday the gift of a painting depicting a patio in Monterrey, Mexico, to the local organization in charge of the drive for the relief of suffering Jewry in Europe. Dr. Ettlinger, chairman of the local relief campaign, stated that the picture was to be sold and the proceeds placed in the Jewish fund.

The painting, done by Samuel E. Gideon, is on display in the store of Joe Koen & Sons. Offers for it are now being received, William Koen said. The picture will be sold to the highest bidder. Bids will be closed at 8 o'clock tonight.

Clipped Comments

Two well-known college coaches are having their respective word battles with national organiza- tions, one being S. U. Madigan, mentor of St. Mary's U. of Cali- fornia and the other Phog Allen of Kansas.

Slip is charging the New York Yankee scouts the new "cradle snatching" when they signed up Francis Kelleher on the Guelph cam- pus.

Phog refers to the A. A. U. as being composed of "quadrennial Olympic oceanic hitch-hikers, who chisel their way across every four years on the other fellows' money."

As to the merits of the conten- tions of the coaches, we are in no position to say, but from what we know about such things, person- ally, we are inclined to string along with the two mentors.

No Baseball Grabbing
First of all, it would be a bad thing for college baseball if scouts made a practice of going on the campus and grabbing off baseball talent.

It strikes us Judge K. M. Lan- dis, who claims Madigan is seek- ing publicity by his protest, could have been a bit more diplomatic in his reply to Madigan. At least, the Coast coach is entitled to a hearing on the matter.

Allen's bitterness is an out- croppings of his being dropped as coach of the Olympic baseball team. The A. A. U. claims he was never hired.

Some of the acts of the A. A. U. have caused considerable criti- cism of that body. Their arbitrary rulings concerning amateurism, etc., have caused many to turn away from that organization.

What Allen Says
There is uncontrovertible truth in Allen's statement via an A.P. dispatch:

"Were it not for the fact this organization (the A.A.U.) has the political control of American Olympic affairs, it would soon pass out of the picture entirely. These athletic politicians levy tribu- tes on cities and civic organiza- tions which conduct A.A.U. cham- pionships while colleges and uni- versities own and furnish stadia, gymnasiums, track and field and all equipment necessary for success of these meets. A.A.U. takes the profits."

"What does A.A.U. own? No- thing but the bare squatter's right of belonging to an international Olympic body, which is both indi- vidual and combined voting power necessary for control of this politi- cal athletic anastomosis with its fibriated tentacles reaching out for self-perpetuating power."

"When will these athletic polit- icians, these A.A.U. 'big-wigs,' read the handwriting on the wall and abdicate?"

—JACK O'BRIEN, in the San Antonio Evening News.

Best Waterman To Be Decided At Pool Today

The winner of the "best water- man trophy" presented each year to the best all around swimmer will be decided today when the 200-yard race and the plunge for distance are finished in Gregory Gym pool, Tex Robertson, varsity swimming coach, said last night.

The field has been narrowed to five men, Fernando Gonzales, who won the diving contest; Arnold Travis, fastest in the 100-yard breast stroke event; John Hondo Crouch, who is leading in the sprint racing; Bill Decherd, and Jack Mendell.

Events counting for points in the competition are as follows:

Fifty-yard free style, 100-yard free style, 200-yard free style, 100-yard backstroke, 100-yard breast stroke, plunge for distance, front, back, and front jackknife dives. Other dives were optional; dives were judged on form and difficulty of performance.

The Texas Book Store is donor of the trophy.

France to Augment International Police

PARIS, May 22.—(INS)—Foreign office circles said today that France could be expected to sup- port the plan for an international police force to prevent aggression in the Mediterranean.

Authorities pointed out that an alliance to keep Italy in check would benefit France, whose chief naval rival is Italy. Italy has been demanding naval equality with France, although the French stress there are two domestic French fleets to protect, while Italy has only one.

TOURNEY UNDER WAY

FORT WORTH, May 22.—(INS)—The first annual Colonial Golf Club tournament here was off to a good start today. R. H. Davis took medalist honors in the qualifying round with a 73, three over bogey. Right behind came Jimmy Wilson, Jr., and Ruben Berry, also of Fort Worth, with 74's. First round of match play begins today.

'35 Frosh Must Share Part Of Minnesota Grid Burden

Special to The Daily Texan

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., May 22.—The freshman football class of 1935 that must share a part of the burden of the 1936 University of Minnesota schedule "still has a long way to go" in the words of Coach Bernie Bierman, but the daily spring practice sessions have reflected the ability of a few of the yearlings who may make their names synonymous with the Lunds, Larsons, and Beises of other years.

With six weeks of intensive spring training behind them, some twenty-five of the inexperienced varsity candidates are showing definite signs of ability. Although the freshmen are no match for the veterans as yet, Coach Bierman and his staff hope to polish off the rough spots before the annual spring inter-squad game in Memorial Stadium on May 23. The University of Texas Longhorns have Minnesota on the 1936 schedule for November 14.

Good Line Prospects

On the line in particular, new candidates have shown plenty of potential power and a willingness to learn. At center, John Kulbitski of Virginia has placed him- self in the thick of the competi- tion for the position vacated by Dale Rennebohm. The 200-pound Range athlete must show him- self to be better than Earl Svendsen and Stan Hanson, lettermen, and Dan Elmer, a reserve, before he gets the assignment, however.

Four yearling guards have ad- vanced themselves to the point where they may give the eight holdovers from last season a bat- tle. Francis Twedell of Austin, Allen Rank of Eau Claire, and Horace Bell of Akron, Ohio, have all been seeing varsity service in the Saturday games. Last week, they were joined by Stan Stanz of Minneapolis, a comparative "unknown" who was promoted be- cause of his fine work on Coach Sig Harris's reserve squad.

205-Pound Average

No less than seven of the prom- ising first year athletes are tackles. The group, which aver- ages better than 205 pounds in weight includes Howard Parkin- son, Fred Grewing, and Warren Kilbourne of St. Paul, Eldred Miller of Hutchinson, Burton

Longhorns Close Season Tonight With Nu-Icy Game at House Park

Rained-Out Aggie Game Canceled

The Southwest Conference Champion Longhorn baseball team will wind up its season to- night at 8 o'clock at House Park in a game with the strongest local semi-pro nine, the Nu-Icys, Billy Disch, baseball coach, said Fri- day. Students with blanket taxes will be admitted free. Tickets are 50 cents.

The scheduled game with the A.&M. Cadets which was rained out yesterday will not be played, Mr. Disch said. Texas won the game Thursday, 6-5, by halting a serious Aggie threat in the ninth inning after four runs had come in.

E. C. Rather of the University Co-Op will make his customary annual presentation of fountain pens to the members of the con- ference winning team. An extra fountain pen will go to the Longhorn who is leading his team in home runs for the season.

Olympic Tryouts Begin in Ohio

COLUMBUS, O., May 22.—(INS)—With eyes glued to the finish-line tape in the hope that victory will lead to Olympic recognition, 234 picked athletes from the Big Ten colleges today faced the starting gun in the thirty-sixth annual Western Con- ference track and field meet at Ohio State University stadium.

Today's schedule calls for trials in the sprints, hurdles, and field events, with the finals to be run off tomorrow afternoon.

Trial events to be run off to- day include 120-yard high hur- dles, 220-yard low hurdles, 100- and 220-yard dashes, 440-yard run, javelin throw, shot put, broad jump, discus throw, and the half-mile run.

Storm of Willmar, Marvin Le- Voir, and Win Pederson of Minne- apolis. LeVoir, a brother of the Gopher's varsity quarterback last season, is playing his first foot- ball, but is rated among the best on the squad.

With eight ends from the 1935 squad back, six of them letter- men, several freshman aspirants for this position have been shifted elsewhere. Clarence Lilevjen of Appleton and Charles Brown of Olivia continue to compete for end position, however, and Mike Milosevich of South St. Paul was recently promoted from the 'B' squad to help the freshman cause along.

At quarterback, where there is wide open competition for the vacancy created by the graduation of Glenn Seidel and Babe LeVoir, the freshmen are represented by George Faust and Harvey Struth- ers of Minneapolis and George Gould of St. Paul. All three are being considered.

Five for Backfield

Five backfields who will be eligi- ble for varsity competition next fall have seen frequent action in the varsity backfields during the practice sessions to date. They are Ray Bates of Minneapolis, Lawrence Buhler of Wadena, Dick Land Johnson of Wadena, Dick Myers of White Bear Lake, and Wilbur Moore of Austin. The lat- ter saw his first competition last week after being out of action with an injury.

Martin Christanson joined the ranks of the competitors for the fullback position last week after first being given a trial at end. Other first year candidates for the position include Phil Belfiori of Buhl, Woodrow Olson of Man- kato, and Ray Strate of Minne- apolis.

Depression Bad For Old Maids Registrar Shows

The good old-fashioned saying that two can live as cheaply as one must not be true, judging by the decline in the number of marriages during the depression. And at the same time, the num- ber of graduate women students in the University increased.

Statistics furnished by the Reg- istrar show that when business reached its lowest, the number of graduate women students reached its peak. In the school year 1931-32 the registration was 262. From 1933 to last year the registration dropped to 201.

The girls just had to have something to do.

Coney Explains Photo Advances In Library Work

Apparatus for photographing books on cinema film and paper strips, as well as machines for reading such micro-photography, are approaching a stage of development which will make them available for general library use soon, Donald Coney, University librarian, believes.

"Micro-photography is rapidly becoming a highly important technological development in the field of library administration," Mr. Coney said.

The use of micro-photography on cinema film as a means of recording valuable research materials was one of the leading discussion topics at the conference of the American Library Association last week, at which Mr. Coney represented the University.

"It is inevitable," he said, "that research libraries like the University Library should be equipped not only to make available, through suitable projectors, films of rare materials for their readers, but also to be able to make micro-photographs of other libraries and for individuals."

He pointed out that this means would minimize the need to mail out many valuable books and periodicals on inter-library loans, since an inexpensive film strip can be substituted for the actual book.

"Already," said Mr. Coney, "the Department of Agriculture library in Washington is employing film strips as a substitute for the actual lending of periodicals."

Mr. Coney returned early this week from Richmond where he also represented the University at a meeting of the Association of Research Libraries. He also attended a meeting of the committee on Resources of American Libraries, of which he is a member.

FACULTY PICNIC TODAY

Approximately one hundred members and their friends are expected to attend the University Club picnic at 6 o'clock today at Barton Springs. Dancing on the pavilion will follow the supper. Reservations are being taken by Mesdames L. T. Belmont, H. E. Degler, and T. W. Riker.

Claudette (Chic) Colbert and Ronald (Voila) Colman are shown here as they appear in "Under Two Flags." At times it seems as though two banners are almost too much for them, but you know these two. They can take it. Their picture at the Paramount is preceded by a Silly Symphony.

Many exciting things have been brought to the talking screen in the past. Many teams of lovers have flashed momentarily in the celluloid heavens. Each time screen history has been made. Occasionally the producers have been forced to supply a great amount of publicity in order to make them click, but give credit to the producers for the clicking.

Now they have thrown another natural. Those of you who saw "The Thin Man" probably harbored a doubt or two as to the possibility of anyone taking the place of Myrna Loy in a scene with William Powell. Well, you're wrong. Jean Arthur has stepped into her shoes (they're not so tiny) and scored a direct hit. Armed only with a voice that would turn a lemon into a honey-the part of a butler with such success he will probably be a butler when he retires from the screen. James Gleason is also present. He is a cop, and is as good a cop as his light weight will allow. His part is not as strong as some he has been cast in.

Robert Armstrong now has a moustache to lend credence to his usual brusque manner. As a book-maker, he is a first class suspect, and well cast in the part.

The movie is good. The new team of Arthur and Powell clicks. The action is fast, the laughs numerous, and the story good. Here is a mystery for you to unravel, if you can, and a good picture to enjoy while you are attempting the solution.

More Seniors Must Vote To Make the Poll Decisive

The Texan poll of degree candidate sentiment regarding the manner of presentation of diplomas at the June Commencement has so far failed to justify faith in democratic procedure. Not enough of the seniors have voted.

It must be understood that unless a majority of the degree candidates (not just those voting) register their feeling on this matter, diplomas will be presented a la steam-shovel regardless of the lop-sidedness of the votes that are cast.

As we have said before, it costs nothing to vote; and most everybody has a pencil with which to check a ballot. There is a faculty mail box in every building, and the ballots need not be put in an envelope.

The poll has already brought out a significant point: i.e., whether a good sign or bad, the number of persons who take their degrees in absentia would be increased, not only considerably, but a great deal. Almost half of those voting against the new plan would rather stay away than bear it.

We don't want anything rail-roaded, but it would be a shame if, given, as they are, the opportunity to arrange the presentation of the degrees to their liking, not enough of the candidates took enough initiative to register their choice. So far it is quite clear how the new plan is being looked upon, but it is a bit discouraging the way it is not being acted upon.

A Solemn Occasion

And so it came to pass that the white-bearded, ailing "Dead Week" finally gained the right to its name, and was laid to rest in a grave dug by students with the faculty lowering the coffin. It will forever remain under the sod!

Which means that today we reverently remove our hats and bow our heads, for today what is hoped will be the last "Dead Week" begins. The faculty has agreed to bury it; and if it doesn't return to haunt us in future years, there will be no resurrection.

Recently a freshman at Williams College, under the intense mental pressure of studying for finals, became temporarily insane and shot and killed a classmate, wounded another, and committed suicide. That may have been how "Dead Week" was named, but the use of "Dead Week" here allegedly for reviewing for finals does not affect us that way. Here the week before exams is a time to see those last few shows, have those last few dates, make the last trip out of town, cut those last few classes, and take those last few swims at Bartons. The week set aside for studying here is generally utilized to good advantage.

If professors would only cooperate this week by not assigning any new outside work, or maybe just by giving "halkers," we could inter our last "Dead Week" in a much happier frame of mind. But there really isn't much kicking to be done, for when the next two weeks are over, the faculty is just about as relieved as the suffering students.

Stimulant.

Doctors at the University of Minnesota have developed an "anti-fatigue" pill which they say will speed up the mental processes and eliminate sleepiness for several hours. The pill is also said to cause talkativeness and hilarity. They should be a big success for teachers and students both in some classes.

Graduates.

Reports from the University of Oregon show that only 20 per cent of the freshmen who enter school ever graduate.

Women.

A toss of shoulders,
A swish of hips,
A mop of hair,
Two bright red lips;
A pleading voice,
A silly laugh,
All kinds of shapes:

Centennial.

The Hardin-Simmons Cowboy Band has been designated as the official Texas Centennial band. The band has leased a fraternity house to live in while in Dallas. It will also serve as headquarters for the Hardin-Simmons alumni.

More peace.

The University of Oklahoma

has approved the organization of the new national honorary peace fraternity on the campus. It is known as Sigma Iota Sigma . . . S.I.S., which should come in for its share of razzing.

WOMEN'S BUILDING SENIORS TAKE STAND IN COMMENCEMENT SQUABBLE

In the face of the changes in Commencement procedure, we as seniors wish to state our opposition. Briefly, our stand is this:

1. The University has standardized requirements for degrees as far as possible. Therefore, we maintain that if all candidates do not deserve to be presented on the stage, no one does. Scholastic excellence has already been rewarded by "honors" mentions. It would be grossly unfair to select one representative from any school, college, or department who deserves so much more recognition than the next below him that he should be given his degree on the stage. We think it is impossible to select such persons, since, for example, there will be one B. A. candidate, and three such candidates admitted to Phi Beta Kappa in the spring had all A records.

We also remind the committee that scholastic excellence may not be the only test of achievement. There are members of the graduating class who have undergone all kinds of hardship and privation to earn their expenses and perhaps to support dependents at the same time. We believe in democratic recognition.

2. We feel that $1.50 to rent a cap and gown (and $6 for M. A.'s counting $4.50 for the master's hood) is too much to expect candidates to spend, when they will only march in twice (at the baccalaureate sermon and at Commencement services), take their seats, listen, and march out again. We are confident that only a few susceptible seniors will so invest their money, and that the procession in ordinary dress will be far from impressive. We believe furthermore that few except Austin seniors will see fit to stay in town four extra days for these mass services.

3. We must only feel that the candidates themselves will come (or at least dress in cap and gown) unwillingly, but that out-of-town parents will not come at all. Every parent who has a son or daughter march across the stage will be reasonably willing, we feel sure, to sit while other parents' sons and daughters are granted the same attention. Few people have ever come across the country to hear the baccalaureate sermon, and Commencement, under the new plan, will be just as much personal attention to the candidates as that.

4. We would suggest that, if the old plan cannot be re-adopted, degrees be granted by schools in separate ceremonies, at successive hours throughout Commencement Day. In this way whoever wants to, can see all his friends graduate, and the candidates, for whom the show is, after all, will get their deserts.

THE BAND SHOULD MAKE THE BEST OF OPPORTUNITY

I have seen the fifteen years of Burnett Pharr's directorship of the Longhorn Band of The University of Texas come to an end with no small degree of regret, but I cannot help being conscious of the wonderful opportunity which now presents itself to the membership of the current band.

I played in the Longhorn Band for two years, and later was privileged to play in the band of Northwestern University, but I am not ashamed to admit that my loyalty to the Orange and White of the Texas band exceeded the enthusiasm I felt for the purple and white of the northern aggregation.

The needs of the Longhorn Band, however, and those of The University of Texas, were not obscured by this devotion. It has been apparent for some time that classes in music should be offered by the University. Not only should they be given for their cultural value, but another very real need for them exists.

The Legislature has laid down certain prescribed musical courses which must be passed before certificates to teach band and orchestra can be issued. These courses are not offered by the University, and there is no one connected with the present band who can give them.

Should these courses be given, the advantages to the University and to the Longhorn Band would be many. In the first place, a fine type of musicians, anxious to become band directors, would be attracted here. Then, after graduation and securing jobs directing bands, they in turn would head other good band prospects to The University of Texas, and in the course of years this school should have one of the finest bands in the country. In addition, the University would be turning out well-prepared directors to build up better bands in high schools.

While I was not in school during the first semester, I understand there was a lot of agitation for a symphony orchestra, and that there is still a demand for such an organization. It seems to me that now is a good time for the band to make this orchestra possible by the proper selection of their problem of selecting a director.

It is common gossip on the campus that several highly qualified directors have applied for the job as head of the Longhorn Band, among them being graduates from the New England Conservatory of Music, from the Royal Conservatory of Ghent, Belgium, and from the German Conservatory.

One gentleman, holding his Ph.D. degree, and with years of experience in teaching various branches of music, besides directing bands, has made his application.

I know none of them personally, and it makes no difference to me whom is selected, but I do hope that the boys in the band will pick for their director one of these well qualified and experienced men.

The Regents, according to the Texan, are willing to pay a good salary to a well qualified man. If the boys in the band are wise enough to make such a selection, they will be helping the advocates of the Fine Arts School secure an instructor in music, will make possible a good symphony orchestra, and best of all will be providing themselves with a constant supply of talented musicians to help build a greater Longhorn Band.

I suppose politics are as frenzied in the band as they were back in 1921-22-23, and that some are hurt because they didn't make this trip—or that, and that there is the usual amount of "back-biting," and ambitious but untrained youngsters still aspire to be the director. Let us hope that the boys will drop politics for the present and vote for the selection of a well-qualified and properly trained instructor. The boys owe it to themselves, to the band, and to the University.

The opportunity is there. Let's don't miss it.

JOHN HART.

A second diorama will depict the life of the Central Texas Indians, the Tonkawas, who were also cannibalistic. On a burnt-rock mound is a woman tending a fire while a man nearby is engaged in chipping arrowpoints of flint.

will be shown in a third diorama group. In the background of the shelter stands an Indian painting pictographs in colors of black and red on the cave wall. In the foreground is a woman starting a fire by means of a friction drill while another woman is grinding seed in a mortar hole. A third woman is making a basket.

The Department of Anthropology has many such baskets, much cordage, and other perishable artifacts from these dry shelters of the Big Bend region. A string of beads in the collection is still on the original string as found.

A diorama of the Comanches will be exhibited because they were the most typical plains Indians living in Texas. "The Texas Indians people think of first are the Comanches," Bailey said. "Certainly they were the most picturesque Texas Indians after they had obtained horses from the whites."

In the Comanche diorama will be two pinto ponies with their riders returning to camp after a buffalo chase. In the foreground is a model flintlock gun, evidence of contact with the white man. In the scene are women fleshing a hide, and a skin stretched on the drying frame. It represents a typical scene in the life of the buffalo-hunting and warlike Comanche. Other dioramas showing a primitive flint quarry, a Caddo village, and a group of Assinai Indians building a large thatched, wattle-work house, are being prepared.

The murals and the dioramas will become the property of the Texas Memorial Museum when the University Centennial Exposition closes.

A LITTLE IDEALISM NEEDED IN COLLEGE SPORTS

Yesterday's announcement of a clash in policy between alumni and faculty member of the Board of Athletic Control vividly brought home the old battles of idealism vs. practicalism, commercialism vs. amateurism in college athletics.

The alumni representatives on the board rationalize their insistence on added control over the Stanford coaching staff by asserting that "since the public and the alumni support athletics, whereas students and endowment finance the other departments," they have a right to determine whether or not the coach is doing his job.

They believe, apparently sincerely, that the gripe letters, sometimes numbering over 100, which they receive after each football game, are an adequate cross-section of alumni opinion. Most of these letters, in reality, are from those comparatively few alumni who have personal reasons for being interested in the rather meager satisfaction that "victory at any cost" affords.

It is this determination on the part of alumni minorities to run college athletics—not merely at Stanford, but all over the country—that forms the greatest danger for amateurism. It was the forerunner of flagrant proselytizing, favoritism in selecting teams, the "win or else" philosophy, and nearly everything that has made college athletics so incompatible with the fundamental things that great universities stand for.

To permit this to go on will eventually bring complete shreds of the already slim thread that hold college athletics and colleges themselves together. More idealism, less practicalism are essential if amateur sports hope to withstand the lure of professionalism and remain amateur.

CHANGES FOR EDUCATION

Speaking last week before the pre-conference meeting of the Progressive Education Association, Frederick L. Redefor, executive secretary, discussed changes in the American educational system.

Said Secretary Redefor: "Text-books as such are disappearing and more research books are being used."

"Second, we have increased participation in school affairs by different groups, teachers, pupils, and parents."

"Third, there is increased concern about using the resources of the community such as trips to zoos, factories, department stores, etc."

Also speaking last week before the Institute for Education by Radio, Harry A. Carpenter of the Rochester, N. Y., schools, said: "When teaching is kept within the walls of the school house, parents are unable to become familiar with modern trends in education. When the pupil comes home for help in his studies his parents are dependent on the methods of the previous generation. With education on the air, parents become real factors in the education of the child."

Schools and colleges might do well to follow more closely some of those trends to the best advantage of the pupil. For instance there is the matter of textbooks. Most of us can remember when we sat in class and practically memorized textbooks. The best "parrot" got the highest grade of course, but ask him a practical question about what he had recited and he was lost.

More important is the second thought; the bringing of school children and their work into closer relation with their parents and with the practical problems of life.

Too often parents have lost interest in the work of the school because their methods, used in helping children with their homework, have been at odds with the school's methods with the result that both parent and child have given up in confusion.

The child finding that his parents do not know all about education begins to doubt their knowledge on other subjects as well, thus beginning the breaking down of parental respect and authority.

The trend toward using community resources as a practical laboratory also merits attention from colleges as well as secondary schools. Too often we find students leaving school with a rather visionary or too scholastic view of their life work.

SENIORS GRADUATE ONLY ONCE, SAYS 'EX'

Perhaps you think we're sentimental, we who sympathize with those protesting against the suggested mass graduation. Having just got my degree last year, I can well remember the degree of heat in Gregory Gym. True, the endless lines of graduates was a little tiresome. But the feeling of receiving individual reward for individual work was gratification enough. There is something in walking across the stage and receiving the much talked of diploma, in swinging the tassel from one side of the mortarboard to the other.

I know it was a pleasure to my mother. She came 230 miles to see me take the long journey up the aisle and across the stage. I know of others who came as many as 400 miles. If our families can stand it, I believe we can too. Naturally the faculty has gone through the ordeal many times. It's an old story to them. But here's something to remember, we just do it once.
