

Dr. Dolley Will Talk
At Allred Banquet

Dr. J. C. Dolley, professor of business administration, will talk on "James V. Allred, the Friend of The University of Texas," at the Allred appreciation banquet Friday night, January 6.

Selection of Dr. Dolley as one of the chief speakers completes the program which has been arranged for the banquet, which will be held in the Crystal Ballroom of the Driskill Hotel at 7 o'clock. L. Theo Belmont, chairman of the committee on arrangements, announced Wednesday.

Tickets for the banquet, limited to 350 in number, are on sale at the Driskill Hotel, Ellison's, Eldridge Moore No. 2, University Co-Op, and the Austin Chamber of Commerce.

Ticket sales will close Thursday, Mr. Belmont said. Two hundred thirty-one tickets have been sold. "This banquet is the first of its kind ever held in Austin," Mr. Belmont declared. "We often honor incoming governors and we honor them during their terms of office, but in this case we are giving the banquet in honor of Governor and Mrs. Allred to let them know how much we think of them and to show them that we are sorry to lose them as citizens of Austin."

Governor and Mrs. Allred will move to Houston on January 17, where the governor will be federal district judge for the Southern District of Texas.

The banquet is being sponsored by the Capital City Post of the American Legion and the Travis County Post.

Mayor Tom Miller will be toastmaster. The Rev. M. E. Sadler of the Central Christian Church will deliver the invocation.

Former Governor Dan Moody will speak on "The Public Career of James V. Allred," and W. H. Richardson Jr., chairman of the Department of Public Safety, will talk on "James V. Allred, the Citizen of Austin."

John H. Sharp, associate justice of the Texas Supreme Court, will talk on "James V. Allred, the Federal District Judge."

Governor Allred himself will be introduced at the banquet by former Attorney General W. A. Keeling.

"We invite all friends of Governor Allred, whether they live in Austin or not, to attend this banquet as a means of showing their appreciation for his work as Governor," Mr. Belmont said. "A number of out-of-town friends of Governor Allred have already made reservations."

Stressing that the dinner had no political significance, Mr. Belmont said, "The whole spirit of the affair is one of good will. It is non-partisan and no pressure is being brought to bear. This is the end, not the beginning, of an administration."

Also representing the University on the committee, besides Mr. Belmont, are President Calhoun, W. L. McGill, S. N. Ekdahl, John A. McCurdy, T. U. Taylor, and D. X. Bible.

Sanitation Body
Wants Funds

Will Seek Aid
From Legislature

To assist Governor-elect W. Lee O'Daniel's "industrialization program," the year-old Texas Building Sanitation Council will seek legislative approval of a $50,000 to $100,000 annual program for sanitation research, W. R. Woolrich, vice-chairman, has announced.

The council will seek its funds from legislative appropriations and "personal gifts." Engineering heads of the state schools are co-operating in the project independent of their schools and strictly as members of the council, Mr. Woolrich, dean of the College of Engineering, said.

Included in the research program would be studies of water sterilization, chlorination, filtration, and softening; utilization and sanitary disposal of sewage and industrial waste; expansion and control of industrial housing; and study of refrigeration and air conditioning.

The program was mapped by the deans of Texas engineering colleges and the sanitary engineer of the State Health Department acting jointly as a research committee for the council.

Stockholders Meet
Saturday to Pass
On New President

Pat O'Daniel, 20, University freshman and son of Governor-elect W. Lee O'Daniel, may become president of his father's Fort Worth flour mill company before the week is over. Disabilities of being a minor were removed in favor of a majority status Wednesday by District Judge A. J. Power of Fort Worth.

With the governor-elect resigning his presidency of the "family controlled" company, a stockholders' meeting will be held probably Saturday to make plans for the company's reorganization.

"We're going to have a stockholders' meeting," the governor-elect said Wednesday in Fort Worth, "and I wanted Pat to be able to accept an executive position if the stockholders and directors want to vote him one."

In Austin, Pat stated upon being informed of the court's actions, "in case I am elected by the stockholders as president of the company, I shall, of course, be glad to accept the honor. I shall not, however, let it interfere with my school work."

Pat, with his brother, Mike, also a University freshman, were members of the hillbilly orchestra which played during the governor-elect's campaign.

Dr. Payne To Speak
On English Poet

Dr. L. W. Payne Jr., professor of English in the University, will discuss the poetry of the English poet, Walter de la Mare, and his visit to the home of the poet in his talk Thursday afternoon before Ashbel, Sidney Lanier, Pierian, and Reagan Literary societies.

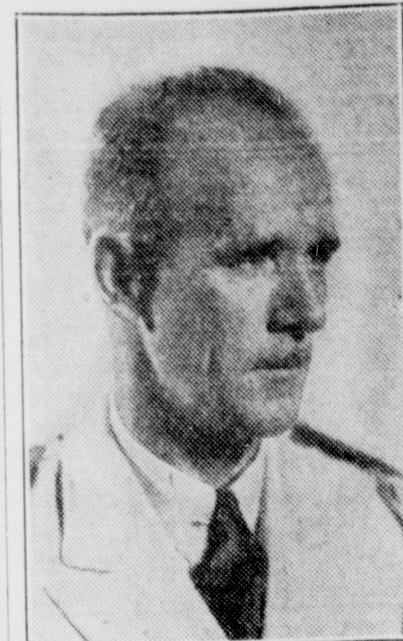

Dr. Payne visited de la Mare twice last summer at the poet's home near London, and became acquainted with him and his family.

Walter de la Mare belongs to the old school of poets, and his works are known to many. Dr. Payne will discuss the poet himself and will interpret some poems.

Politicians Promised Bad
Night at 'Time Stagers'

Among seat-squirmers at "Time Stagers On" next Tuesday night will be campus politicians as they watch satirical skits picturing their activities written by Bob Eckhardt and Mark Solomon.

The skits will picture campus elections, the clean-up campaign, the presidential selection, the manner in which Southwest Conference schools choose their football players, and other happenings peculiar to the campus.

Walter Kerr, former president of the University Light Opera Company, will play Father Time and present the skits.

Eckhardt and Solomon have written numerous satires on campus life in previous years. Eckhardt is a former editor of the Texas Ranger. The pair recently organized the Young Gents Excelsior Coffee Colloquium and Yacht Club, of which they are, respectively, equerry and boat-swain.

"Our purpose," Eckhardt said, "is to discuss in stimulating surroundings the aim of art in the company of the social elite of the campus."

George E. Hurt and the Longhorn Band will give a serenade on the campus on opening night, and several numbers from the band will be presented at the show, including some swing specialties.

A cornet trio by John Sullivan, Ernest Ludwig, and Van Kirkpatrick, a tubino duo by Dave Bartlett and John Dunlap, a trombone trio with Drexel Carr for the third trombone, and a trombone solo by Randle Tankersley will be presented.

The show's score will be played by Jimmy Watson's orchestra and includes music written by several University students.

Admission for the show will be 50 cents for lower floor seats and 35 cents for balcony seats.

U. T. Freshman Killed

Uncle Billy Said 'Pitch'
And Rainey Went Pro

By LOIS SAGER

HOMER PRICE RAINEY, tall, thin blond pitcher, playing with an injured left hand, almost kept the University baseball team from winning a 6-3 victory over Austin College of Sherman in 1919. The boy who stood on the pitcher's mound that day in Clark Field, with his heart set on beating Billy Ditch's team, is now President of the University.

Soon after that game Rainey, a 1920 June graduate of Austin College, came to Billy Ditch, baseball coach of the University, for aid in solving a crucial problem. Was he good enough to take up professional baseball as his future, should he enter the University's School of Law?

The outcome of the conference was a middle-course decision. Rainey would try to break into the Texas League, and if highly successful would continue with his athletics. However, he retained the idea that after a time with this work he would use the money to continue his education. For at Austin College the boy had proven himself a star pitcher, and at the same time a distinguished honor student.

During his four years at Sherman, where he lived in the Y.M.C.A. dormitory and worked his way through school, Rainey systematically divided his days between classwork in the mornings, baseball practice in the afternoons until 6 o'clock and study every week night after 8, according to the strict rules of the college.

"He was easily recognized as a boy of fine character and good scholarship," said Dr. T. W. Currie, instructor in Bible, who met Rainey as a student when in Sherman to give an address in chapel service.

IN ATHLETICS, scholarship, and other phases of college life, his school friends express a vivid impression of his characteristic "of doing the best he could in every situation, then not letting the outcome bother him."

Following his graduation in June, Rainey set out, as Ditch had advised, to get a contract with the Houston Buffaloes. This he won, but during the first season, he did not get a chance to pitch for the team. Still anxious to determine his ability as a professional baseball player, he managed a release from his contract with the Buffaloes, and signed with the Galveston Sandcrabs that same season.

With this team, he had his opportunity to prove his ability. In the deciding game of the league, he pitched against Houston to win the League championship that year for Galveston. Despite his success, he deserted professional baseball, to continue his education.

"The personality and ability of this man, with whom I have had several contacts," said Billy Ditch, "makes me certain that he is the best qualified man in the See PITCHER, Page 3

Dancer Brings Color of Spain
To Hogg Auditorium Feb. 2

The joy and color of old Spain is to be brought to life by the famous dancer, Sarita, who will appear at Hogg Memorial Auditorium Thursday night, February 2, at 8:15 o'clock under the auspices of the Cultural Entertainment Committee.

Tickets for the program, third on the committee's series, will go on sale January 15 at the Texas Union and the Reed Music Company. Students will be admitted on their blanket tax. General admission will be 50 cents and reserved seats will be 75 cents.

Sarita and company revive the romantic Spain of the serenade beneath a lady's balcony, the strumming of a guitar, the gay fiesta, the matador fighting for fame and glory. Sarita, it is said, is an artist of unusual ability, possessing an excellent technique, and has been acclaimed by the critics.

At one moment she is the gay gypsy of Flamenco, at another the shy Indian girl at the Fiesta, and again the stately Spanish aristocrat in the "balle de presentation." Bright coloring is added to the program by the authentic costumes designed by Sarita herself.

SARITA

Sarita is assisted by a young caballero named Velazco who is a native of Madrid, and by Ricardo Romero at the piano. Mr. Romero ranks high as a composer of Spanish music and has originated many of the numbers for which Sarita has created the dances.

Harold Boney
Dies; Driver
Not Charged

By CY LONG

Harold Leo Boney of Iola, 17-year-old freshman student in the College of Arts and Sciences, died Wednesday night at St. David's Hospital from internal injuries received in an automobile accident at Twentieth and Guadalupe Streets at 6:27 o'clock.

Going out on foot from between two parked cars in front of his rooming house at 1906 Guadalupe, Boney ran into an automobile being driven south on Guadalupe by Max Flatow, engineering student from Fort Worth. Boney's head hit the top of the car just above the windshield, his body striking across the fender. The death was the first of the year for both Austin and the University.

He was taken to St. David's by Flatow. No charges were filed against Flatow, the police accepting his statement pending interview today of several witnesses. Police investigating included Officers Garrison, Ludwig, and Wallace.

No funeral arrangements had been made last night, but Boney's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Boney of Iola, were expected to arrive in Austin sometime during the night. A brother, Stewart, is a student in the School of Business Administration. Others surviving include two brothers and four sisters.

The Name of the Day

Today's Sportograph

His first name is Park, and he is such a big, fast fellow that they call him "Poundin' Park." His last name is Myers. Park starred for the Longhorn football team at tackle in 1937 and 1938 and at the end of this season his teammates rewarded his fine play by electing him co-captain with Ned McDonald for 1939. Myers is the type of lineman that would gladden Dutch Meyer's heart: big, fast, aggressive, and lots of fighting spirit. Slowed by injuries in his sophomore and junior years, Park should hit his stride in 1939 and end his collegiate career as an "All-Conference."

Remember When

... the T.C.U. Horned Frogs stopped a mighty title-bound Longhorn basketball team the night of February 20, 1933. The Toad victory snapped a twenty-game winning streak for the Steers. Jack Gray, a sophomore at the time, was high point man for Texas with 9 points; Stubby Allison was high point man with 25. Also on the Texas Christian team at guard was Buster Brannon, present Rice Owl cage mentor. An omen to the Steers' loss was an assertion written by Jinx Tucker, Waco scribe, that same day when he said the U. T. cagers had been playing in luck, even though they had a fine team.

Budge Defeats Vines In Opening Pro Match

By LAWTON CARVER
International News Service Sports Editor
NEW YORK, Jan. 4—(INS)—J. Donald Budge, California's long-legged, freckle-faced red-head, was launched today on a professional tennis career that threatens to become both an artistic and a financial success, surpassing the wildest dreams of the son of a none too prosperous laundry man.

Artistically he was somewhat better than all right at Madison Square Garden last night as he made his debut as a touring trouper, defeating Ellsworth (Slim) Vines by 6-3, 6-4, 6-2, and from a financial standpoint he started, to put in a few words, toward a fortune. The capacity crowd was counted at 16,725 and the gross receipts totaled $47,120.

Thus was another star inducted into the ranks of the professionals with Vines again playing stooge, a role he embraced when he left the amateurs to meet Tilden in 1934 and still was playing as late as two years ago when he was the foil for Fred Perry in the latter's defection. Promoter Jack Harris, who also is a little amazed by it all, expected Budge and Vines to go over, but envisioned no such assemblage as the complete sell-out which greeted the spectacle on green canvas under lights.

That canvas covering over a composition floor hard as marble and the trickery of the lights so strange to him, were expected to contribute to the downfall of Budge.

But instead it was he who played good—not great but good—tennis and beat the admitted monarch of the professionals. In fact, Budge didn't have to be great. Vines was pretty terrible at times, caught as he was repeatedly by his own errors. In a few words, Vines had all the pace on the ball for which he is famous, but was sadly lacking in control and, under the circumstances, the outcome was inevitable. His volleying and his forehand—next to his serve most important factors in his game—simply bogged down and left him stranded.

To get downright technical, Budge's superb backhand, his serves, his sporadically good forehand, and his adequate volleying won the match against an opponent who was either badly off his game or extremely lazy. Vines did not look very good, especially when he repeatedly blew leads and was overhauled.

Finally, in the last set, Vines actually seemed subdued as he went on to a one-sided 6-2 loss that ended the match and everything for the time being. While two of the greatest sluggers of all time slugged through a good part of the match it lacked appeal because of Vines' wildness and was quite unsatisfactory as a spectacle. Some of the customers went so far as to emit a jeer by way of giving vent to their disappointment.

By the middle of March all this may be changed. Vines lost opening matches at the Garden against both Tilden and Perry and went on to handy victories before the thing was over. However, if he is going to wind up ahead of Budge in the series, he will have to play a lot better tennis than he displayed last night.

rules. Following the recommendation of the coaches in Chicago last week, the committee lightened the penalty when a forward pass strikes an ineligible receiver (any lineman between the ends). Instead of losing the ball, the offending team will be penalized 15 yards and a down. The ineligible players, however, must remain in the line of scrimmage until the pass is thrown.

The latter feature is expected to open up backfield play with more shovel passes behind the line and increase yardage gained when passes over the line are intercepted.

Undeclared Frosh Prepare To Meet Slimes Saturday

By DUKE SUTHERLAND
Texas Sports Staff
When a team that has not been defeated in two years is about to meet a strong opponent, there is likely to be a great deal of strenuous practicing for the approaching game. That is why the Texas Freshman basketball team is working overtime for its game Saturday night with the Rice Freshmen at Houston. The Texas Freshmen have not been defeated since Rice turned them back in a game played two years ago at Austin.

On top of all this, the Rice apprentice cagers are stronger than they have been for several seasons.

Ed Price, Freshman basketball coach, is drilling his boys to meet any tactics which the Slimes might use. Most of Wednesday afternoon's practice session was devoted to the development of an offense which Price thinks will give the Owlets a great deal of trouble. And he is not neglecting defensive play. The squad will probably put in a large part of Thursday afternoon on defensive practice.

The Rice freshmen are supposed to have a very strong team which is capable of sinking the ball from all corners of the court. The team is a well-balanced one on which no one player is very far above his mates.

The Rice freshmen and the A.M. varsity have both played an amateur basketball team from Houston and it is reported that, though both teams lost their game with the amateurs, the Rice boys made a better showing in their game than the Aggie varsity did in its tilt. Thus, by comparison of scores against a mutual opponent, the Owlets are stronger than the Aggie varsity and are stronger than any varsity in the same conference is a very strong team. So, the Texas freshman basketball team is practicing with more than usual care.

Coach Price has narrowed his choice of a starting lineup down to eight men. They are: Lesley Croucher, Malcolm Kutner, Elton Hailey, Jack Hinds, Jimmy McCarthy, Frank Brahaney, and Curtiss Klaerner. Twenty-one men will make the trip for the freshmen. They will leave here at noon Saturday and they will play the Rice freshmen just before the varsity game to be played Saturday night.

The Texas boys will be making their debut in Southwest Conference basketball and the Rice team will be playing its second game, their first game to be an opener played against the A.M. "Fish" Friday.

Steers Practice For Opener

With only three days separating them from their Southwest Conference season's opener with Rice at Houston Saturday, the Longhorn basketball team went through a hard but ragged drill Wednesday afternoon.

The appearance of the squad Wednesday was in direct contrast with the Tuesday practice session, when the Steers were almost unable to miss a shot.

Coach Jack Gray changed the make-up of his offensive team many times during the practice, but none of the combinations clicked.

'Grand Illusion' Plea for Peace

French Film Offers Novel Slant on War

By BERNARD SEIGLE

Mr. Hitler objected to "Grand Illusion" when it spread its pacifistic plea over Austria, possibly because what the film symbolized was not an illusion but a hard, bitter fact. The shocking futility of war, although the film exhibits not a single battle scene, has been magnificently realized, resulting in a rich, rewarding experience. Its stark subject matter is dedicated, I supposed, to humanity, a term in no way synonymous to the present Weltanschauung. And its impassioned entreaty that somewhere in this chaotic world there may exist such a phenomenon as burned during the heat of the World War among the soldiers, known as the brotherhood of man, is subtly addressed to civilization. Seldom has a drama been presented with such sympathy and understanding for each nation that participated in the struggle, for in "Grand Illusion" there is no enemy. There is, instead, a curious friendship among a group of homogeneous soldiers imprisoned in a German camp, and a reverent respect for rank and race, overcome only by an iron-clad duty and the success of one country's bloody victory at the expense of another.

Jean Renoir has directed this profound document with superb restraint, balancing a brisk narrative with understatement and skill, and what he achieves is a war film to make a martyr of men rather than munitions. Each scene is so adroitly handled, the undercurrent of battle so strikingly suggested, the barbed cynicism of the poilus so discreetly implied, that the study makes most of Hollywood's war operas resemble pre-emptive sham battles.

I am unable to include a synopsis of the plot due to a strange typographical condition in today's press, but the excellent acting of Pierre Fresnay, Jean Gabin and Dario is enough to justify their existence.

'Say It in French' Comedy Rolls Audiences in Aisles

By PAT HOLT

Jacques Deval's delightful comedy, "Say It in French," dressed up for the screen by Frederick Jackson, Adolph Zukor, et al, kept the audience rolling in the aisles at the Paramount yesterday; and well it might.

To be brief, "Say It in French" is the funniest picture we have seen since "Vivacious Lady"; and, like the latter movie, "Say It in French" depends for its humor not so much on witty dialogue (although it has plenty), but on situations which are hilarious enough without any lines at all.

"SAY IT IN FRENCH"—At the Paramount. Based on a play by Jacques Deval. Screen play by Frederick Jackson. Photographed by Victor Milner. Directed by Andrew Stone. Produced by Adolph Zukor. Released by Paramount. The cast follows: Richard Carrington Jr. Ray Milland, Julie, Olive Brada, Juliet Marden, Irene Hervey, Mrs. Carrington, Janet Beecher, Phyllis Carrington, Mary Carlisle, Richard Carrington Sr., Holmes Herbert, Lady Westover, Erik Rhodes, Mena Barrie.

Richard Carrington Jr., a Park Avenue playboy-golfer, returns from a European golfing tour with a French bride as his only trophy. While he is preparing his family for the shock, the butler mistakes Mrs. Carrington Jr. (Olympie Brada) as the new maid from the employment agency and Richard finds himself engaged to one of the four hundred because: (1) his father wants her father's money; (2) her father wants to get her mind off the self-styled lawyer she's engaged to.

That's where the fun begins, and it doesn't stop until Richard finds himself sailing off to merrie old England aboard the Queen Mary and waving good-bye to his bride on the dock.

Tactful direction by Andrew Stone saves the picture from becoming absurd and also helps it by the Hayes office. Mr. Milland could not be asked for a better performance, and Miss Brada's French accent is effective. Also quite up to standard are Janet Beecher as Richard's mother, Mary Carlisle as his sister, and Irene Hervey as his socialite fiancée.

The picture is four-plus all the way through.

THE CHARACTERISTICS OF

Homer Rainey, which were very evident in his athletics, are qualities that will also make him a good President, Billy Ditch believes. Although popular and undeniably the star athlete at Austin College for four years, he was unassuming almost to the point of timidity when praised for his ability, a schoolmate of the President's said. Under stress in a game, he never lost his temper or became excited. Whether ahead or behind he was the same energetic, determined player, and whether victor or loser, he was the same good-natured, likable person.

Little Theater Issues Call For Actors

University students may try out for roles in "The Ghost of Yankee Doodle" tonight at 7:30 o'clock in the auditorium of the Austin Public Library. The play, by Sidney Howard, will be given by the Austin Little Theater. Casting is yet to be completed for the twenty parts in the play. Allen Wheelis, director, said Wednesday.

Where to hold rehearsals is the chief problem confronting Mr. Wheelis and Little Theater officers at present, for the hall previously used for rehearsals has been rented. Mr. Wheelis is soliciting help in solving the problem, a pressing one since the large cast must begin rehearsal soon if the play is to be presented on schedule, February 21 and 22.

National Praise For A.P.O.

NATIONAL RECOGNITION was given the University chapter of Alpha Phi Omega, honorary service fraternity, at the annual convention of the organization during the Christmas holidays at St. Louis. The Alpha Phi chapter, the University group, ranked second among the sixty-two chapters in the United States.

Since it was a struggling organization on the campus only two years ago, Alpha Phi Omega's recognition is a double honor: first, it fought for and won an important name on its own campus; and secondly, it became renowned nationally for the fine service which it has done here.

The active interest which one of the faculty advisers has shown in the chapter was recognized by the national organization when Dean Arno Nowotny was selected as a member of the board of directors. Also of significance was the fact that Bob Kniffin, Alpha Phi chapter, was named chairman of the nominating committee for national officers and directors.

An expansion bulletin of Alpha Phi Omega which the Alpha Phi chapter prepared and is sending to colleges throughout Texas was recognized as the most outstanding expansion work for the fraternity in the United States.

Briefly, these seem to be some of the finer services, only a portion of a list of twenty-two, which Alpha Phi Omega has performed on the campus this year: maintaining a guide service; conducting student elections; taking a major part in orientation; collecting more than eight thousand toys for poor children's Christmas gifts; conducting a Boy Scout rally for the Capitol Area Council.

The University of Texas, as a whole, often forgets to praise those who deserve it. The work of Alpha Phi Omega, however, is well-recognized, and the campus joins H. Roe Bartle, national president of the service organization, in congratulating this group of boys.

Freddie Takes a Holiday

FRED SOMEBODY or other (his last name doesn't make much difference because you don't know him anyway) has made quite an impression upon the mind of this department. From what we hear this Fred is a very interesting person and has lived quite an intriguing life. We just wish we knew him better.

'Way back in the early part of this young man's life he got in the bad habit of suddenly leaving home to be gone for some time without hesitating to tell people where he was going. As he grew older he got accustomed to staying longer and longer. About seven years ago Fred left home for parts unknown and the family didn't worry much about him until some land Fred owned panned out to be oil land. Then, of course, the family became vitally interested in the wayward son. They had no idea where he was but they searched high and low but no Freddie was to be found.

There was only one thing left to do and that was to declare Fred legally dead. After about a month of court procedure Fred was declared dead and buried and his brother was appointed administrator of his estate. The oil lands were then leased and the family lived happily ever after for about a month for at that time they received a letter from Fred after not having heard from him in seven years.

Fred wrote in a very friendly tone just the same as if he had written the day before. He was in Kingsville, Texas, and he was enjoying life except for one thing. He was worried. It was cold as hell in Kingsville, he said, and he was afraid that the long underwear he had stored at Aunt Minnie's seven years ago had been lost.

Dept. of Vital Information

THIS DEPARTMENT has just come into the most astounding bit of information, a bit of knowledge that we know the waiting world is clamoring for. A woman who is a candidate for a Ph.D. degree has just solved all the pressing problems of the world and written the solutions down in a doctor's dissertation entitled "The Amount That Ham Shrinks When Boiled."

By a Waterfall

AN AUSTIN MOTHER, whom we have mentioned here before, has turned out another little gem that we just can't keep from the public. It seems she was listening to the radio the other night when Shep Fields, who is famous for rippling rhythm, came on. She paused, looked up from her bridge hand, and said:

"Now isn't that the most amazing thing? Why, that music sounds just like a waterfall doesn't it? You know, people invent something new every day, don't they? I wonder what they'll think up next?"

Department of Definition

HERE IS A LITTLE treasure gleaned from an examination paper:

"The cow is a domestic animal all covered with leather. Her tail hangs at the end, has a brush in order to shoo off flies, or else they would fall in the milk. The head is in front, and has horns growing on each side and allows room for the mouth. The horns are used for fighting and the mouth to roar with. When the food is good she gives good milk, but when it thunders she goes sour."

A Little Relief, Finally

A CERTAIN relief office has donated the following excerpts from relief letters:

"I am glad to say that my husband, who was reported missing, is now dead."

"I am writing to say that my baby was born two years old. When will I get my money?"

"In answer to your letter, I have given birth to a boy weighing six pounds. I hope this is satisfactory."

"Unless I get husband money soon I will be forced to lead an immortal life."

"You have changed my little boy to a girl. Will this make any difference?"

And if you like that sample you ought to see the real good ones.

New Year's Resolution

WE HAVE JUST received a set of New Year's resolutions, not for us, understand, but for someone else. They are the resolutions of a boy from Tyler and, it is understood, he has been sending out a form letter to all of his friends with the following on it:

"New Year Resolutions of Blank Blank:

"1. I will not drink alcohol in any form during the year 1939.

"2. I will lose 25 pounds of weight.

"Please co-operate with me in this matter and do not put the stuff before me because you know how I am."

The Poet's Release

THE POET IS INVITED TO A BOHEMIAN PARTY

Your hostess is a drab demitune; she is mental; she is metallic; she has a cluster of wine-eyed friends.

Tonight, she selects to talk to you: together you explore the seductive smell of a cigarette and languish in the wine...

guffaws and ribbing... the raw flesh is well seared by fiery talk...

over in the corner, two sprawls from your stance, someone is loudly adlibbing... you can smell the scorching of a sterile tale told in a virile way...

across the room is the fireplace... and broken champagne glasses... listen well... you can hear the crackling flames lick up the death-rattle of stilted speech tonight is a night of bad imitation. There is dry conservative lecture roast and communistic wine and a loud conglomerate noise of spanishfrenchrussianamerican.

Then you leave... somehow you muddle home... the night was damnedly boring and to amuse yourself before retiring you read a book on the debauchees of Rome.

The early use of the advertising columns of the Classified Ad Section will give you an unusual opportunity to rent all of your vacant rooms. In order to aid Housemothers, the Texan makes these special rates to those who want roomers for the second semester.

All ads will be classified under "WHERE TO ROOM NEXT SEMESTER" unless otherwise specified. Courteous messengers will call for your ad. This service is as near as your telephone.
