

University Budget Facing
Decreased Appropriations
And Enrollment Increases

Problems of budget-making for the University in the face of decreasing revenues and increasing enrollment were discussed by President H. Y. Benedict in a communication sent recently to members of the general faculty. In tabulating the available revenue and the estimated expenses for the current biennium, the President showed that the Main University will receive for residence instruction $1,351,000 from legislative appropriations this year and $1,271,000 next year (assuming no 1933 summer school), compared to appropriations of $1,444,000 last year. The total estimated revenues for the current year are $1,576,000 and for next year $1,471,000, compared with actual revenues of $1,691,000 in 1930-31.

No Reserve Fund
Expenditures for this year are estimated at $1,625,000 for 1931-32 and $1,500,000 for 1932-33. The expenditure budget for the past year was $1,725,000. The Main University has no reserve fund in its general budget, the balance at the end of any fiscal year being merely the small residue that exists because care must be exercised when making the budget to avoid being "in the red" at the end of the year. (If the estimate could be made with perfect accuracy this residue would be zero.)

The President pointed out that "when, and if, a legislative appropriation is made for the 1933 summer school, the 1932-33 budget will be increased by this appropriation plus estimated summer school fees but that expenditures will be increased by a like amount, leaving the 1932-33 long session budget substantially as indicated."

"With or without the 1933 summer school, the 1932-33 long session budget must be some two per cent smaller than the 1931-32 edition," he said.

Equal Division of Budget
In discussing the problems involved in adjusting the budget to the present conditions, the President said that "economies must first be sought in those portions of the budget that are non-departmental, after which the amount that remains for the departments of instruction must be divided out fairly between the departments, after which each department must consider how best to expend the amount allocated to it."

"The first two of these problems are giving me much concern," the President said. "Any expenditure that we are now making is quite defensible. Some costs, such as heat and light and janitor service, cannot be reduced beyond certain amounts. Allocation of money to departments is a grievous problem because questions of opinion are so mingled with questions of fact."

Jitney Players
To Stage Duenna
This Afternoon

'Bourgeois Gentleman' Is
Final Performance
Tonight

By VIOLET RICHARDSON
"The Duenna" will be played by the Jitney Players beginning at 3:45 o'clock this afternoon. The production is under the auspices of the Faculty Women's Club.

Back in 1840 when poor Maria Marten was murdered in a red barn and John Latimer made her tragedy into a play, the "Murder in the Red Barn" was probably a very moving story. For many seasons audiences all over the English countryside wept over poor Maria's awful fate through three acts and seventeen scenes. Today in the hands of the Jitney Players this old melodrama is three times as funny as it ever was tragic.

Last night the audience gave way freely to its emotions, and hissed probably the most delightful villain who has stalked across a stage since the original production. He was "William Corder, son of the squire (heavy lead)," played by Douglas Rowland.

A between-the-acts quartet net named entitled "Come, Birdie, Come" drew encore after encore. The only tragic thing about "The Murder in the Red Barn" is that the performance will not be repeated; but "The Duenna," to be presented at a matinee this afternoon, and "The Bourgeois Gentleman," billed for tonight at the Austin High School auditorium, sound like worthy successors.

Benedict Speaks

Pollard, instructor in Germanic languages and sponsor of the club, gave a short talk on the value of the German language and individual participation in club work.

A cello solo by Jean Best, a song by Edmund King, and an accordion solo by Thomas McCall made up the musical part of the program.

The executive council of the club will meet in Garrison Hall 100 at 7 o'clock Tuesday night, October 20, Monroe Krieger, president, announced.

Krieger also announced that the club is giving a prize for the best name suggested for it. All names must be turned in not later than Tuesday night at 9 o'clock.

Chess Players
Organize Friday

Harvard's challenge has been met—well, almost, anyway. Five days ago, Dr. R. C. Stephenson, instructor in Romance languages, received a letter from the Harvard Chess Club, challenging the University chess team.

Unfortunately, Texas has no chess team, and could not accept the challenge. To prevent any similar occurrence in the future, a chess club will be formed Friday night at the Y. M. C. A. at 8 o'clock. Bill Welty, acting manager, urges everyone interested to attend; experience is not necessary, he said. Tentative matches are being considered.

Leon Discusses
Recent Findings

Discoveries in Greece
Interest Students

The recent discovery of the main street and two cemeteries of the ancient Greek city of Olynthus is of vital interest to students of ancient history, Dr. H. J. Leon, professor of classical languages at the University, and student of ancient history, said Thursday.

Discussing the findings of Dr. David M. Robinson, professor of ancient history and archaeology at Johns Hopkins University, Dr. Leon said that the uncovering of Olynthus should, since there are very few well-preserved ruins in Greece, throw much light on ancient Greek civilization.

Olynthus was the chief city of the Chalcidic peninsula, and was destroyed in 348 by Philip Macedon, father of Alexander the Great. The houses, twenty-seven in number, have a history that reaches back to 400 B. C. Dr. Leon believes that the uncovering of Olynthus will rival the finding of Pompeii.

Erwin Announces Final
Plans for 'College Day'
Exhibition at Dallas

Final plans for "College Day" in Dallas were announced Thursday by Ed Erwin, head yell leader. Band concerts, parades, luncheons, the Texas-Oklahoma football game, and the Texas-Oklahoma Football Dance are Saturday's big features in Dallas. The following letter was received by President H. Y. Benedict from T. L. Bradford, Mayor of Dallas:

"The City Council of the City of Dallas is very much pleased by the impending visit of your football team to our city Saturday, October 17.

"It will be a source of additional gratification to the council if the entire student body of the University would attend the game en masse, combining the support of their University with a visit to the State Fair of Texas."

Fraternity Case
To Be Tried By Officials Today

Outcome of Infraction Of Pledging Rule May Prove Serious

Trial of a case of a fraternity charged with the pledging of an apparently ineligible man will take place at a meeting of the fraternity committee on discipline Friday, October 16, Dean V. I. Moore, dean of student life, said Thursday.

The name of the fraternity against whom the charge of ineligible pledging has been filed was not divulged.

"The outcome in this case will probably be serious since all fraternities were sufficiently warned with regard to infractions of the pledging rule last week," Dean Moore said.

"I also wish to state," he said "that there has been no change in the policy with regard to drinking."

Two students have been suspended already this year for this offense, another has been refused admission to the University because he was so careless as to sell as a second hand book a volume belonging to some one else.

"It is not our wish to give these facts for publication with the intention of humiliating those involved, but rather to save someone else the same experience," Dean Moore stated in conclusion.

Alecs to Select Funds Director

Donors of Library Fees
Eligible for Place

All engineering students who have contributed their library deposits to the Engineers' Loan Fund are to meet this month to elect a director of this fund to serve two years, Dean T. U. Taylor announced Thursday. Only those students who have given their library deposits to this fund may become members. They are eligible to borrow from the fund and to become directors if their scholastic standing is satisfactory.

Llewellyn Powell of Dallas is the student member from the senior class.

The board of trustees consists of Dean Taylor, Professor Joseph W. Ramsey, and Professor Banks McLaurin, all elected to serve for life. In case of the death of one of the trustees the vacancy is filled by the remaining members.

All assets of the fund are invested in Liberty Bonds. Only the interest is used for loans. Thus far the interest has been sufficient to care for all legitimate demands.

At the present time the loan fund is assisting some ten or twelve students through the University.

Publication to Be Issued Quarterly

"Play Safe"

In cooperation with the University Traffic Committee, The Daily Texan presents a series of suggestions designed to improve traffic conditions in the University Community, and to prevent serious accidents.

SUGGESTION
NO. 2

Parking of cars adjacent to the original forty-acre campus is prohibited by law.

This law was passed several years ago after a University co-ed had been killed and another seriously injured on Guadalupe Street. This accident resulted from cars being parked on the east side of that street.

Do not park on any side of the forty-acre campus.

Low Cost of Education

According to a table included in the report of the Board of Regents of the University, the cost of education was the lowest in 1930-31 since 1925-26. This report of the Regents also brings out the fact that the average cost of a student in the University was only $244, a figure that is all the more significant when general economic conditions and other related facts are taken into consideration.

When a comparison is made between the cost in the University for 1927-28, when the amount was $275, and the average cost for running expenses of each long session student in 226 other colleges and universities in the United States, for the same fiscal period, it is found that the University cost is approximately $75 below the general average, which means a saving of literally thousands of dollars yearly.

The fact that the cost of education at Texas is relatively so much lower, while the standard of education is not only being kept at the same level but is being continually raised each year, serves as proof of both the educational and executive ability of the University administrative officials. When any college or university which has the academic standing which Texas has can bring about that standing and at the same time greatly reduce the cost of educating each student, that college or university has practically solved its administrative problems.

There seems to be no doubt but that the entrance fees and other fees attendant with institutions of higher learning have been reduced to an absolute minimum at the University, so that at the present time the students themselves are actually receiving directly the benefits of the efficiencies of the administrative system. Everyone connected with the University in any way should take some pride in the manner in which such problems have been handled, and realize that the economies which have been brought about have in no way reduced the standards of the school, and have in fact been passed on to those who will benefit from them ultimately—the students.

The Brown Math Prize

Saturday afternoon the special examinations for freshmen competing for the entrance prizes offered by the Brown University Mathematical Prize Fund, will be held. Established by an alumnus of Brown University, the interest realized from this fund is awarded annually by the staff of the department of pure mathematics on the basis of competitive examinations.

These entrance examinations, which are held each year on the second Saturday in October, are open to all regular freshmen, and will cover the minimum entrance requirements in mathematics—namely, elementary algebra and plane geometry. The prizes which will be awarded to those making the highest grades on the examination will consist of a fractional part of the interest from the prize fund placed aside for this particular purpose.

Such action on the part of any alumnus is to be highly commended, and the former student of Brown University who established this prize fund has done much more than he probably ever hoped to do for the advancement of mathematics. All freshmen who are at all proficient in mathematics should make it a point to take these examinations which are to be given on Saturday afternoon, and in so doing they will not only place themselves in line for one of the three prizes offered, but will really be helping in the furtherance of a praise-worthy project. It is an honor to be able to take part in such a contest, and even if there were no practical side to it at all, merely the academic value which it has would justify its existence.

Never seem wiser or more learned than your company.—Chesterfield.

Almost everybody is capable of thinking he has done more than another deserves, while the other thinks he has received less than he deserves.—Pope.

Poverty is not disgrace to a man, but it is confoundedly inconvenient.—Smith.

But to forgive our enemies their virtues—that is a greater miracle, and one which no longer happens.—Voltaire.

College Press

BULL SESSIONS

The stream of editorial comment that has deluged the collegiate presses has awakened in us the consciousness of the importance of the so-called "bull session." The Daily Tar Heel of the University of North Carolina seems to be impressed with the fact that the bull sessions are being rapidly supplanted by bridge and the talks. Apparently, this matter of the vanishing bull session is more important than we had hitherto supposed, otherwise why would our worthy editor write an editorial on the topic that demonstrates that he regrets the circumstances that are eliminating the sessions?

The Daily Illini seems to attach a doubtful value to the bull sessions and claim that it would be very difficult to eliminate them, anyhow. This may sound suspiciously like a current weekly that invariably expresses all opinions but its own. We hasten to add that we, however, have every serious intention of expressing ourself on the topic.

The value of the bull session is ephemeral to say the least. In some cases they give men—and women—an opportunity to express themselves that is occasionally lacking in the classroom. In the past, the sessions involved themselves in the most abstruse topics. They became volubly interested in religion, philosophy, and ethics. Now the topics which are approached with considerable eclat are the opposite sex, athletics, and recreation. We may be wrong in considering these the most frequent, but we submit that they are the ones we usually encounter.

In the first place, these topics do not require any deep thinking—or in many instances any thinking at all. The mental effort to express an opinion on the topic of any of the aforementioned matters would not cause the most feather-brained to suffer from fallen arches in the region of the cerebrum. Furthermore, there are no longer any attempts made to express oneself with that fine choice of rhetoric that prevailed in the past. Bull sessions are no longer preparatory schools for debating teams and politics. Colloquialisms and even slang are taking the place of the carefully selected vocabulary of the past.

Consequently, we cannot become lachrymose when we visualize the passing of the bull session. In fact, we doubt if it has anything like the value it had formerly. And we wish to put ourselves on record by saying that the bull session is desirable . . . if it can be put upon a higher plane. Newspapers, magazines, and radio broadcasts put their impress upon us by invidiously cultivating our theories on the most vital matters of life and the pursuit of happiness. Surely, in this age when advertising is ubiquitous and even dictates the use of articles that in the past would have brought a blush of shame to the cheeks of the unfortunate person who felt the necessity for elaboration on the topic, we should welcome any phase of public discussion that would tend toward the formulation of individual opinions.

But, inasmuch as nobody can possibly raise the standard of the topics that are now discussed in the sacred atmosphere of the bull session, we are willing to watch its passing without any pathetic sentimentality. The bull session is obviously waning in influence for good or evil and we say that we are willing to watch it deteriorate into the same position now held by the cousin to the "bull" session, the vanishing buffalo.—Ohio State Lantern.

PEACE VS. WAR

What could this nation do to restore peace if a war should break out between foreign powers, with the United States not a member of the League of Nations? Those in favor of the United States joining the League of Nations have said that it would be impossible for America to do anything if she were not united with the other powers of the world in the League; but those opposed to her joining it have advanced the argument that she could do more to restore peace in being on the outside than if she were on the inside.

The answer to this question, in part at least, will be made within the next few days. The struggle between Japan and China in the Manchurian district has not only led the League to intervene and see that these two powers do not engage in a great war, but it has also made it necessary for the United States to define its stand on the Japanese-Chinese controversy.

In a message to the League of Nations, President Hoover and Secretary of State Stimson set forth the following statement: "On our part the American government, acting independently through its diplomatic representatives, will endeavor to reinforce what the League does and will make clear that it has a keen interest in the matter and is not oblivious to the obligations which the disputants have assumed to their fellow signatories in the pact of Paris (Kellogg-Briand treaty) as well as the nine-power Pacific treaty of 1922, should a time arise when it would seem advisable to bring forward these obligations."

Although the United States is not a member of the League of Nations, it has shown its willingness to help the other nations of the world to enforce peace. It is the time of a crisis in which the selfish interests of one nation or another may bring another disaster to the world, this time in the Pacific Ocean. Close co-operation of the different powers in and out of the League is absolutely necessary if the Manchurian controversy is to be settled without a war.

The United States has responded to the call for co-operation, and it has done so in such a manner that one might well argue the point that this country can do more to enforce peace by staying out of the League of Nations than by becoming an active member; that is, providing its present stand on the Oriental controversy is taken seriously by all nations concerned.—Daily Kansan.

It may make a difference to all eternity whether we do right or wrong today.—Clarke.

Men and nations can only be reformed in their youth; they become incorrigible as they grow old.—Rousseau.

Of all superstitions, is not the most dangerous that of hating your neighbor for his opinion?—Voltaire.

Some people are so painfully good that they would rather be right than be good.—Ball.

TWELVE SEEK ENGINEER ASSEMBLY

Four Students To Be Elected On October 20

WORTH COTTINGHAM

Friends of Worth Cottingham announce his candidacy for the office of engineering assemblyman knowing that he is capable of serving and representing them in all matters which come before the assembly. Cottingham, now president of the senior class of the College of Engineering, has faithfully served in several official capacities during his three years in the College of Engineering, and, having had broad experience with the problems and activities of the student body, is well qualified for the office of engineering assemblyman. His assistantship in Engineering drawing for the past two years has helped to make him familiar with the problems of the freshman as well as with those of the upperclassmen.

He led his freshman class scholastically and has since been on the honor roll every semester. He was elected to Tau Beta Pi in his junior year.

If elected, Cottingham pledges his most earnest and sincere co-operation with the students to provide for the best interests of the student body as a whole.

CHRIS MAIWALD

The announcement of the candidacy of Chris Maiwald for assemblyman from the College of Engineering is the expression of the confidence of his classmates in his ability to meet the requirements of a capable assemblyman. His active participation in campus affairs and his reputation as a conscientious leader qualify him to represent the College of Engineering in the solution of current problems which confront the Students' Assembly. The executive ability of Maiwald is attested by the confidence placed in him by his classmates in twice electing him president of his class.

Maiwald is an honor student in the department of architecture, having four times in the past year received national recognition for his work in competition with the leading universities and colleges of the United States. He is a member of Sphinx, honorary architectural society, and president of the Texas chapter of Alpha Rho Chi, national architectural fraternity.

Basing his candidacy upon past experience, scholastic standing, and general interest in campus affairs, the friends of Chris Maiwald heartily endorse him as an enthusiastic and sincere representative of the College of Engineering in their selection of a capable assemblyman.

CHAS. (SONNY) BANKHEAD

To the students of the College of Engineering who wish to see their interests put before the student body in a clear-headed and far-sighted manner is presented Charles (Sonny) Bankhead, a man who for three years has upheld all the traditions and honor of the engineers both on the athletic field, in the classroom, and on the campus.

Besides successfully representing the sons of Alec in intramural baseball, track and swimming, Bankhead has served on varsity football and tennis squads. In order to represent thoroughly the school in its legislative assembly, however, this man brings with his sports an enviable record in classroom work, having maintained a A average throughout his five semesters in the University.

Those who wish a representative capable in every respect, a man who is sound-thinking and straight-shooting and fair-dealing should support Sonny Bankhead for engineering assemblyman.

CLARENCE GRIFFITH

Clarence Griffith, student president of the College of Engineering, has announced his candidacy for the office of engineering representative to the Students' Assembly in the election to be held next Tuesday.

Griffith in his three years as a student in the College of Engineering has been an outstanding student as well as an active member of campus organizations. Besides holding the office of president of the school, he is president of Pi Tau Sigma, scholastic engineering organization, and an active member of Beta Tau Upsilon, honorary engineering fraternity, and A. S. M. E. Last year he was president of the junior class.

Basing his candidacy on his active interest in student affairs, his executive training, and his proven ability, Griffith's friends are soliciting the support of engineering students in electing him to the assembly.

George H. Nichols, Jr., a senior electrical engineering student, announces his candidacy for assemblyman from the College of Engineering. He believes that his four years on the campus, all of which have been spent in the College of Engineering, and his deep interest in all student activities qualifies him for the position.

Nichols does not and, if elected, will not represent one clique or faction but pledges to devote himself wholeheartedly to the interests and representation of the entire body of engineering students with the view in mind to the advancement of The University of Texas. Friends who know him personally will vouch for his honesty, integrity, and ability.

The vote and support of his friends and his friends' friends will be more than appreciated.

HOWARD BARR

Possessing a personal understanding of student affairs and problems, and impressed with the notion of equitable execution to our present problems, Howard Barr announces his candidacy for the position of assemblyman from the College of Engineering.

Inasmuch as Howard Barr is a third year architectural student who has seen fit to work his way through school, he feels that he has had the singular opportunity to observe and understand the nature and duties of a representative of the students, and an equal understanding of the trend of student body thought. He promises to further the interests of the students with this knowledge.

With a due regard for judicial authority, and at the same time a recognition of the principle that a judicial body cannot shut its eyes to the fact that for successful operation there must be mutual understanding and an intrinsic desire for fair play, Howard Barr believes that he is fully qualified to submit his name to the students of the College of Engineering with the practical result that if he is elected consideration for the students will not be an illusion. With these qualifications, it is submitted that the statement "representative of the students" may properly be applied to performances involving operative fitness as well as those involving personal taste.

Reviewed Today

"HONEYMOON LANE," attracting easily pleased audiences to the Queen Theater, stars Eddie Dowling in a story of his own fashioning about a young man who makes good as manager of an inn owned by "Mother" Mary Carr. The picture consists of a series of adroitly arranged incidents, specimens of dependable showmanship rather than dramatic real or convincing, emphasizing light romance and light comedy throughout. The whole thing might have been lifted from one of the slenderer stage musicals, and indeed it was. But only one song is injected, and that ingeniously by one of the first automobile radios to appear in the movies save on police cruisers in gangster melodramas. Mr. Dowling, who looks, acts, and talks as if he might be a relative of Joe E. Brown but who evidently isn't, proves himself a little something of a showman, but a little gamin by the name of Ray Dooley. She draws a number of laughs, as well as creating an effective characterization in the grotesque. Other persons seen include June Collyer, Noah Beery, Raymond Hatton, Armand Kaliz, and George Kotsaros. Somewhere in the piece, Mr. Dowling makes good as suitor to Miss Collyer, and with the aid of "Mother" Carr, succeeds in reforming a trio of the rough gambling element. However, the latter, for comedy purposes, rather wander from the straight and narrow toward the end of the picture. Altogether, "Honey Moon Lane" is an inoffensive piece of mild entertainment.

What Did Rockne Do? Queen Makes Contest Offer

In keeping with the spirit of the football season and the feature that will start at the Queen Theater Sunday, L. O. Daniel, manager of the Queen, has announced a contest open to the students of the University. To the six students sending in the best essay, not exceeding 200 words, on the subject, "The Influence of Rockne's Character and Leadership on Modern Football," the following prizes will be given: first, four guest tickets to the Queen; second, two guest tickets; and the next four will receive one each.

The theme should include the manner in which Rockne's spirit has influenced his men; how his character, leadership, and fairness has been brought out in later life, as portrayed by his former pupils on the gridiron.

Rockne, before his ill-fated death, picked the players that appear in the picture "The Spirit of Notre Dame" that starts at the Queen Sunday. It is to the great mentor that this picture is dedicated, and Rockne appears in the prologue. The shots were taken shortly before his death.

The contest closes Saturday at 1 o'clock and the winners will be announced in Sunday's Texan. The judges will be appointed by the management of the Queen. Entries should be turned in at B. Hall 119, care of Knute Rockne contest editor, not later than 1 o'clock Saturday.

The first football trek of the year starts today with the outflow of students and Longhorn supporters Dallas-ward. The Steer squad leaves tonight.

The Longhorns beat the Oklahoma Sooners last year. The Rooster believes they will do it again. The Steers have been working out in earnest this week. They have a spirit that was lacking last week.

The Steers are out to redeem themselves. And they aren't going to make any bones about it. They are out for blood.

There are always a certain number of poor sports who start hollering their head off about a lousy team and a lousy coach the minute a team loses a game.

The Longhorns did play a lousy game Saturday. In fact, the Rooster believes he has never seen a Texas team display such an utter lack of coordination and pep as the Steers did against the Owls last week. But it wasn't that the team is not any good, nor that the coach is no good. The gang was off their feed and the Owls were playing above their heads.

We believe that the Owls will win a couple of more football games this year, but we wager that their chances against S. M. U. tomorrow are mighty slim. Last Saturday's game with the Steers was the Owls' climax, their high-point. The rest of their season will be not so spectacular.

The Owls played against Oklahoma this year just as Texas played the next week against them. After being ballyhooed far and wide before the Oklahoma game, the Owls got most ingloriously smeared. Then all the press writers of the State, particularly those of Houston, turned around and began berating the Owls for all they were worth. If you think your local paper panned the Steers, you should have been what the Houston papers had to say after the Oklahoma game.

Then the Owls came to Texas and went back against a glorious and dope-upsetting winner. Immediately, sports scribes, particularly those of the Feathered Flock's home village, again took up the magazine for the Rice Institute squad and began yelling their heads off over how good the Owls were. Oh, we all did that. The Rooster, himself cast a few compliments in the way of the Owls. But here's what we are driving at: the Steers had been ballyhooed, just as the Owls had been. Then they played a lousy game and everyone started panning them, just as they panned the Owls. Just wait till the Steers trim the Sooners, then watch the scribes come flocking back to the fold with great big gooney adjectives dripping from their pencils. Funny lot, these sport scribes.

The Longhorns are in pretty fair shape for the game tomorrow. "Dutch" Baumgarten, out last Saturday (and how we missed him) will be in shape to play. Moody, who suffered a broken nose in the Rice game will also probably be able to play. The only man definitely out of the game will be Arthur Niebuhr, reserve tackle, who fractured his wrist in a scrimmage session.

Coach Littlefield has been drilling his men on pass defense and offense this week. We look to see the powerful air attack of last year come back to life tomorrow.

Every scribe has to expose himself to ridicule once in a while by guessing on games. We won't guess the score but we're prophesying Texas to beat Oklahoma; A. & M. to beat T. C. U.; S. M. U. to win from Rice; Baylor to eke out a win over Arkansas.

And since we've gone that far, we're picking S. M. U. to win the conference championship and Texas to take second.

Texas-Sooners Bands Meet In Dallas Pep Rally

DALLAS, October 15.—Although their 26th annual football game doesn't start until 3 o'clock, Texas and Oklahoma will clash informally Saturday morning when their respective bands, each a crack musical organization of more than 100 pieces, over the northern sector of the Lone Star State.

In the Longhorn line will crouch such stalwarts as Claude "Ox" Blanton, of Hewitt, Tex., a 202-pound 6-foot 2-inch All-Southwest Conference tackle; Wilson Cook, 200-pound guard from Austin; Bill DuBose, 185-pound end from Gonzales; and Captain M. "Dutch" Baumgarten, of Schulenberg, Tex., the aggressive 180-pound leader stage their annual parade of Dallas streets, followed by students, alumni and fans.

Following the parade each band will repair to its headquarters, Oklahoma in the Baker Hotel and Texas in the Adolphus, where a half-hour pep concert will be played right down in the lobbies where everybody can see and hear it.

A rally will be staged at the Crystal Ballroom in the Baker Hotel at 11:30 o'clock Saturday morning by the University of Oklahoma club of Texas of which Charles Newell, formerly of Dallas but now of Texarkana, Ark., is president. Ben G. Owen, the Sooner athletic director, and President W. B. Bizzell, of Oklahoma, will be the principal speakers. Every Oklahoma student, alumni member or fan is invited. At 6 o'clock Friday night Ad Lindsey, Oklahoma coach; Clyde Littlefield, Texas coach; Director Owen and W. E. Metzenthin, chairman of the Texas athletic council, will each speak briefly of the ensuing conflict over broadcasting station WFAA. The bands of the rival institutions will also broadcast a concert over

MOTHER NATURE'S SAFETY VALVE ON SWEETS

For husky lads whose eyes are bigger than their stomachs, give sweets in diluted form. No confection is more eagerly accepted than sparkling Dr. Pepper. And yet, the proportion of sugar is less than one to six. The bulk of it is pure, sparkling water and fruit juice... wholesome, healthful and good. Let them drink their fill.
