

"Good Morning"
 Lady Lindy.
 What's next?
 Free shows.
 Richer today.

WELL, another woman has busted loose and done something "first." Amelia Earhart yesterday successfully completed her flight across the Atlantic in her plane Friendship when she and her pilot, Wilmer Stultz, and mechanic, Louis Gordon, anchored in Burry inlet, just four miles off the coast of Llanellay, Wales.

AMELIA is now the female Lindbergh of the air! And at that she bested Lindy's flying time across the waters of the Atlantic. It took the Friendship a long time to make up its mind to leave the waters of Trepassey (N. F.) Bay; but when it did spread its wings, like the American eagle it proved to be, and pointed toward Europe, not stopping until 2,400 miles of blue water were put behind.

SINCE the Atlantic has been conquered by woman, Amelia being the lucky one, the fair sex will probably turn next to the Pacific, and after that they'll be trying to see who will fly to the North Pole first.

BUT now that women have their suffrage and are in politics and got the eighteenth amendment passed through the W. T. C. U.; since many of them are proving to be successful in a business way; and since they are all trying to do something "first" before any other woman, so that they can get into the movies, we are wondering what the next "first" will be.

OFFICIALS of the athletic department have often regretted the fact that not enough students and loyal citizens of Austin turn out for the athletic contests in which the University teams take part. Often times 5,000 are expected and only 3,000 turn out. Judging by the huge attendance at the FREE picture show last Saturday night, we might say that possibly ONE way to get the right number to turn out for the athletic contests would be to make them free too. But of course that is impracticable. Nevertheless if they had not done away with the compulsory blanket tax requirement, you could almost call the games free—make people believe so anyway—and that's half the story.

NOW that Amelia Earhart has met with success in her flight across the Atlantic, Miss Mabel Boll, who hoped to be the first woman to fly across, has announced that she may change her plans in regard to her hop. The monoplane Columbia stood idle and the plans of its crew were still unsettled late Monday. Maybe Miss Boll figures that since the possibility of holding the honor of being the first to get there has been done away with, that the chance is not worth it now. Or maybe she figures that if one of them were lucky enough to get across that that is enough and she might be right, if we stop to realize that less than 50 percent of those who have started for Europe in planes have not arrived there but have gone to a watery grave.

TODAY the University is $1,500 richer or $3,500 poorer than it was last week. A 10-room rooming house in the 2400 block on Speedway, which belonged to the University, burned down early Sunday morning. Five University boys leaped from the windows to safety. Insurance amounted to $1,500 while the house was valued at approximately $5,000. We wonder if the ex-students of the University will get a speaking idea that the Alma Mater got in such a bad financial shape that she had to burn the house for the insurance. If that's the case, maybe they will come across with the rest of the Union Drive money to put the campaign over the top.

YESTERDAY a bus-load of University students went to San Antonio for the first out-of-town excursion. They visited the missions, the famous Buck Horn Curio Shop, the flying fields and some of the theaters.

New Esperanto Section Begins Work Tonight

Kenngott Organizes Second Class in International Language

60 Attend Tuesday

Austin Citizens Invited to Visit During Lectures

Meeting for the first time as a regular class, the second section in beginner's Esperanto, the international language, will assemble in room 219 Main Building Tuesday night at 7:30, according to a statement issued yesterday by Dr. Alfred Kenngott of the department of Germanic languages.

The first section of the beginner's class in Esperanto met for the first time last Wednesday afternoon in Main Building 207 at 5 o'clock. The regular meeting for the first section will be held at the same time and place which it was held last week, Dr. Kenngott said.

The general lecture given by Dr. Kenngott last Tuesday in regard to the language was attended by about 60 people; and though most of those present were students in the University, quite a number were citizens of Austin, the language professor declared.

Dr. Kenngott yesterday announced that not only were those who had attended his lecture last week invited to attend the class, but any others who may have become interested in the course may begin tonight.

Baylor Starts On New Program

Burleson Hall Rejuvenated as First Step

WACO, Texas, June 18.—The first step that has been taken following the vote of the Baptist State Convention that Baylor University would be permanently located in Waco was the rejuvenation of Burleson Hall. Burleson Hall is the oldest women's dormitory on the campus. It is named for Mrs. Rufus C. Burleson, and is not less sacred in the estimation of the alumni and former students of the university than the statue of Dr. Rufus C. Burleson which adorns the front campus.

Every room in Burleson Hall will be made modern in every respect while the towers of the building so familiar to Baylor students and alumni will be kept intact in their perspective just as they were designed in 1887.

Plans for a Greater Baylor University program which will involve the expenditure of $800,000 are being worked out by the committee on the Greater Baylor University each week. The first building in the new program will be Waco Hall for which $416,000 was contributed by the city of Waco in a recent campaign.

Other buildings on the campus which are being reworked this summer include annexes and lecture halls so that when the 84th session opens on September 14 the university will be modern inside with the classic atmosphere on the outside.

George H. Belew, business manager of the University, is in charge of the immediate building program on the campus. Dr. S. P. Brooks, president of the university, will be engaged in summer work for a Greater Baylor University while the summer session is being conducted under the deanship of Dr. T. D. Brooks.

FREE MOVIE AT OPEN AIR THEATER ATTRACTS CROWD

Perhaps the largest crowd which has been gathered at the Open Air Theater this summer saw the presentation of "Captain January," the free movie, which was given there Saturday night under the supervision of Mrs. Charles Joe Moore, of the visual instruction bureau.

Not only were the benches filled, but also the crowds sat and stood about the grounds; while the autos which brought the movie-goers to the show literally lined the streets around the campus.

Delaney Presides at Fourth Session of Educators Today

Pittenger Gives Education Lecture Friday Evening

Fundamentalism, Modernism, Discussed at Theater By Dean

"Fundamentalism versus Modernism in Education" will be the subject of the University lecture which will be delivered by Dean B. F. Pittenger of the school of education Friday night at 8 o'clock in the Open Air Theater, according to an announcement made yesterday by I. I. Nelson, chairman of the summer committee on University lectures.

The lecture to be given Friday night is one of the regularly scheduled lectures on the program of the committee of the summer school on student activities, recreation and entertainment.

Two Boys Have Narrow Escape In Fire Sunday

John Alexander of Breckenridge and Vernon Porter of Navarro barely avoided death in the fire which destroyed the 10-room house at 2409 Speedway about 1:40 o'clock Sunday morning. Porter, who was sleeping in a back room of the second floor, managed to escape down the back stairway, but Alexander, who was rooming at the other end of the hall, was forced to jump from the second story window to save his life. Both escaped uninjured.

Porter was a student in the University in 1926-27, and the Breckenridge youth was enrolled last long session.

Mrs. W. C. Godfrey, who rented the property from the University, resided with her daughter on the first floor. Three squirrels, three mattresses, three suits of clothes belonging to Porter, and a dresser were the only valuables which were saved in the scramble to escape.

Losses of approximately $8,000 are partially covered by $1,500 insurance on the house, according to J. W. Calhoun, comptroller of the University.

NOMINATIONS FOR WOMEN'S COUNCIL NOT YET MADE

Nominations to the office of Women's Honor Council have not yet been made, according to an announcement made yesterday afternoon by Dean V. I. Moore.

The likelihood that the women for these positions will be named some time this week was expressed. "However," Dean Moore said, "there seems to be no rush in the matter of their nominations since there are no cases pending their first meeting."

When the nominations are made, they will be sent to the office of the summer school director who will make the appointments.

ELMER CALLIHAN WRITES FEATURES FOR DALLAS PAPERS

Elmer L. Callihan, former University student and issue editor on The Daily Texan, is visiting on the University campus. He has just returned from Dallas where he had a two-weeks vacation after teaching school the past year in the Prairie Lea High School where he has held the principalship for the past two years.

Callihan is a member of Sigma Delta Chi, honorary and professional journalistic fraternity, and a former member of The Daily Texan staff.

He is at present engaged in writing feature stories for Dallas papers. He is working on stories around Austin, and later in the summer will tour South Texas and Mexico for material.

MAST CHOSEN SPONSOR

LUBBOCK, Texas, June 18.—Miss Jane Mast, daughter of Professor and Mrs. C. S. Mast, has been selected to represent Texas Technological College at the meeting of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce at Ft. Worth this month. Miss Mast is a member of the junior class in the school of liberal arts. Two years ago she was selected as one of the college beauties in a popular election by the student body.

Junior College Heads Continue Problem Discussions

Problems of junior college administration and similar subjects related to the development of the movement will again be taken up this morning at 9 o'clock when the 200 educators from all parts of the Southwest reconvene for the fourth session of the Junior College Conference which began yesterday. President J. J. Delaney of Schreiner Institute will preside at the meeting as chairman, and the general topic of discussion will be "General Curriculum Adjustments." All sessions of the conference are being conducted in the auditorium of Garrison Hall.

Under the system being used, a different educator serves as chairman each time the assembly convenes. At the three sessions yesterday, Dean T. H. Shelby of the department of extension, President C. W. Bingman of South Park Junior College, and Hon. W. F. Doughty, president of Hillsboro Junior College, presided.

Two Themes Studied

The meeting, according to Dr. Frederick Eby, director of the summer school is not of a business nature. Two general themes of interest to the administrator of every junior college are being taken up, discussed, and analyzed, namely that pertaining to the curriculum of the colleges and that pertaining to the administration of them.

President G. W. Gotke of the Brownsville Junior College will be in charge of the final meeting of the conference which will be held this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

At the initial meeting, which was held under President C. W. Bingman of South Park Junior College, the following theme was used as a basis for the discussion: "Principles Which Should Guide in Forming the Curriculum."

The program consisted of a welcome address by President H. Y. Benedict of the University; a talk by Dr. J. L. Henderson, professor of secondary education at the University, on "The Program of Studies in Senior High Schools and Junior Colleges"; "Junior College Objectives" by Dean N. K. Dupre of the Houston Junior College; "How far is Junior College Work Secondary Education" by Dr. E. P. O'Brien, professor of education at the University of Kansas.

Meet Opens Monday

"Administrative Problems of the Junior College" was the general theme of the second meeting of the conference held Monday afternoon from 2:30 to 5 o'clock at Garrison Hall auditorium.

Hon. W. F. Doughty, president of Hillsboro Junior College, was chairman for the afternoon session. The first speaker introduced was Dean E. J. Mathews, registrar of the University, who spoke on "Causes of the Elimination of Students during the First Two Years." Five-minute presentations were made by President V. I. Griffin of Victoria, President E. M. Stanton of Jacksonville, Dean S. A. Caldwell of Brownsville, and Dean G. D. Pickens of San Antonio.

In their talks they gave the chief problems that they had met in their colleges and discussed the relationship of the student body and the teachers. Dean W. P. Akin and President J. M. Hodges, who were to have spoken on the same subject, were not present.

Nelson Makes Address

Director J. E. Nelson of the San Antonio Junior College talked on "The Advantages and Disadvantages of the Separate Two-year Junior College." He first defined the two-year college as being separate from the high school and offering the first two years of college work. The advantages named by Mr. Nelson were that it is easier to maintain college atmosphere if the college is not connected with the high school; college standards are more easily maintained, and students are therefore better prepared to enter their third year in college. The disadvantages, according to Mr. Nelson, are that separation makes the operation (Continued on page 4)

Wester Conducts Second of Local Trips Wednesday

Excursion Starts at 3:30 For Visit to Capitol

See Historic Desk

Climb to Dome Offered as Feature of Tour This Week

The second local excursion of the summer will be conducted Wednesday by Miss Lillian Wester when students who are interested in local history meet on the front porch of the Governor's Mansion at 3:30 o'clock. "All summer school students are invited to go on the excursion," Miss Wester said. "I want to call attention to the fact that the time for the tour to start has been moved up half an hour and the excursionists will meet at 3:30 o'clock rather than at 4 o'clock as was previously stated."

At the Governor's mansion, the visitors will have the opportunity to see such features as the room in which Sam Houston lived and the old desk of Stephen F. Austin.

In the Capitol, the excursionists will visit the House of Representatives, the Senate Chamber, and the Governor's State Reception Room. The climb to the Capitol dome will be left up to the ambitious members of the party, Miss Wester said.

Czech Club Plans Picnic for Sunday

High School Graduates Will Be Guests

The Czech Club met in a called meeting in the Girls' Study Hall last night, the purpose of the meeting being a farewell talk by Dr. Eduard Micek, who is leaving for Houston to teach a Czech school sponsored by the S. P. J. S. T. lodge this summer. Plans for a picnic to be held next Sunday were discussed, the guests to be the graduates of Temple, Caldwell, and Taylor high schools, and Edward Sebesta was appointed chairman of a reporting committee to Czech papers of Texas.

Dr. Micek described his trip to East Barnard last Sunday, where he made an address to a gathering of Czechs.

The following program was rendered: Vocal solos, "Passing By" and Schubert's "Serenade"—Ludma Kopecky, accompanied by Miss Rockwell.

Readings: "Old Friend Wife" and "Son, You Washed?"—Elizabeth Pressley.

Piano solos—"Angel's Twilight" and "Kde Domov Muj"—Columbia an Vettermann.

Address—Dr. Micek.

Address—John Kolaja.

COWAN VISITS

Joe Cowan, former University student, was on the campus for a short time Monday night visiting friends. He was enroute to St. Louis, where he will join other university students who will a tour of Europe this summer.

Cowan is a former member of The Texan staff, and has served both in editorial and mechanical departments.

Cowan has been attending school at the University of Missouri during the past long session.

Dr. Hackett to Attend Massachusetts Meet

"To explore the facts underlying international events and to promote among adults the serious study of foreign affairs with a view to creating a more sympathetic understanding of the problems and policies of our own and other nations," is the purpose of the eighth session of the Institute of Politics which Professor Charles W. Hackett of the University will attend August 2-30 at Williams-town, Massachusetts, it was learned recently.

The institute "seeks to accomplish these objects by offering courses of public lectures delivered by distinguished scholars and statesmen from foreign countries"; and by holding round-table and general conferences presided over by authorities on the topics selected for discussion.

Professor Hackett has been assigned to the round-table conference on "Recent Inter-American Relations and Problems," and will preside at conferences on that subject. The round-table conferences will be held at 9 o'clock each morning of three days a week.

Registration for the institute will be held the next day and the conferences will begin Friday and Saturday.

EZEKIEL JOINS STAFF

AT A. & M. COLLEGE

Special to The Summer Texan
 COLLEGE STATION, Texas, June 18.—Dr. Walter N. Ezekiel has been appointed plant pathologist and research technician in the division of plant pathology at the Experiment Station, A. & M. College of Texas, succeeding Dr. J. L. Pessin who resigned June 1, to return to the Forest Laboratory at New Orleans. Dr. Ezekiel's work will be at the main station laboratory at the college and will be directed chiefly toward the cotton root rot problem under the direction of Dr. J. J. Taubenhaus, chief of the plant pathology division, who has a corps of specialists at various points, each working on some important phase of the problem.

Dr. Ezekiel is a graduate of the University of Maryland. He is the author of numerous scientific publications. Important among his dis-

Philologist Tells Of Experiences In Address

Dr. John Fitz-Gerald, professor of philology in the romance languages department at the University of Illinois, will lecture at the Open Air Theater tonight at 8 o'clock, and again Monday evening, June 25. Both lectures will be based on the outstanding characteristics of Spanish-American countries which Dr. Fitz-Gerald has visited as related to Hispano-American ideals. This is the first time that the University and the University of Illinois have carried on the exchange of courses in romance languages.

Leader in Field

It is through extensive correspondence that Dr. Fitz-Gerald has become one of the highest, if not the highest, of authorities on current problems and discoveries of Hispanic philology. At the time of the compilation of material for the second edition of the New International Encyclopedia, he was in full charge of the departments of history, biography, languages, and literature.

The International Advisory Editorial Board appointed him a member of the Pan-American Scientific Congress, of which he was associate secretary in 1915-1916.

Dr. Fitz-Gerald was appointed a member of the delegation of the American Association for International Conciliation to inspect educational institutions in Paraguay, Peru, Chile, Uruguay, and Argentina.

In American universities and colleges, Dr. Fitz-Gerald has taken his A.B., Ph.D., and the honorary Litt.D. and in the University of Paris he took the French degrees, M.A. and Ph.D., of "Elevé Titulaire" and "Elevé Diplôme." In addition to these, he studied in the Universities of Berlin, Madrid, and Leipzig.

Queen Gives Passes To Lucky Students

Free tickets to the Queen theater to see "Harold Teen" this week are being given to the lucky students who find their names given in The Summer Texan.

The editors of the paper have arranged with the management of the theater to select names at random from the school directory and to put them in the classified advertising section. If the students who find their names there will present the notice at B. Hall 127 they will be given their free passes.

GRIFFIN-JONES CONCERT

FEATURES THURSDAY PROGRAM

Mrs. Fred Jones of San Antonio and David Griffin will be featured in the concert to be given at the Open Air Theater Thursday evening.

Mrs. Jones will sing "Ah Forse Lui," and Mr. Griffin will present the George Chadwick setting of Scott's "Lochinvar Ballad." Norma Owens will be at the piano.

The University chorus will open the program with several part songs.

Free concerts will be held every Thursday night throughout the summer at the Open Air Theater.

A light opera will be presented this summer, in addition to "Stabat Mater," "Il Trovatore," "Leaves from the Operas," and "Messiah."

GROW 5,000 VARIETIES OF COTTON AT TEMPLE STATION

Special to The Summer Texan

COLLEGE STATION, Texas, June 18.—More than 5,000 varieties and strains of cotton have been assembled and are now being grown in plotted areas at the Temple sub-station of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, A. & M. College of Texas, in the search for a strain of cotton resistant to the cotton root rot disease. Each of the 5,000 strains will be subjected to the disease by a method of artificial inoculation to determine whether any of them possesses immunity or resistance to the plant malady. The finding of a cotton root resistant strain would solve the root rot problem, officials at the station have pointed out.

"Some people are so painfully good that they would rather be right than be pleasant."—L. C. Ball.

CRITICISM

Criticism has often been considered an evil. To believe or discard this consideration it is first necessary to have a clear concept of what is meant by the term. What is criticism? Writers have brought forth different opinions, basing their definitions on certain philosophies of their own; but in the true sense which accepts no argument, criticism might be considered as the bridge between lethargy and ignorance on the one hand and truth and ignorance on the other. Criticism is not an evil, but on the contrary it develops a productive ability and encourages deep thinking. It is the motive which leads people to question accepted traditions, in other words, to consider their problems seriously so that they may adapt themselves to what is taken to be right. Criticism serves as a sieve to separate the fruits of practical knowledge, leaving the coarse, worthless stone in the ditch of forgotten materials. The practical knowledge in this case is the new and the best which people accept after having weighed them accurately in their minds.

Without criticism, the world would remain unchanged as the stagnant water stays in a ditch. Strictly speaking, criticism goes hand in hand with civilization and side by side with the better world and the keen, creative mind. Poets are exposed to criticism for years until they attain the highest of their ambitions. Ruler after ruler and leader after leader are attacked by the sword of criticism until the one who will stand bravely and courageously that attack, displaying an unexcelled ability and knowledge, will ascend the throne of leadership and prestige. Religions and prophets are not an exception to the law of criticism. Religion after religion and prophet after prophet have been subjected to criticism in generations past. The same process is continually at work. Science, in spite of its great service to the world, is criticized. All persons are subject to criticism; as are their deeds, behavior, and ideals.

Criticism often indicated a person's standing in society. "Criticized men are great men." This epigram may not apply in all cases, but there is a large measure of truth in it. No person would enjoy the privilege of being criticized by others unless he was a great man. It is because of the greatness of the man and because of his importance that he becomes the object of criticism.

As has been implied, criticism is the agent governing the progress of the community and of the individuals therein. As such it is indispensable to the spread and development of civilization.

GOOD ELEPHANT

And so it came about! While a million radios were still being tuned in to catch the proceedings; while campaign managers were still figuring with frantic pencils the delegates claimed and the delegates secured; even before the chairman stood upon the platform and delivered the quadrennial inveiglement against smoking, the issue was settled. Cold water, floods of it, poured over the fireworks, and the melancholy farmers could not even rouse a dull "ah!" for all their trying. The anti-Hoover scandal sheets were futile, and, with no goal before them, they can only fill wastebaskets or memory books.

The long roll call, then, is destined to be exhumed but once today; and that only as a formality, the mere assurance of triumph already won. The cryptic "I do not choose" was altered just in time to "I will not," and the vague possibilities of a dark-horse third term are checked, once for all. And is it not better so? All the squirming and writhing of the politicians could mean but one thing: that, though they knew the voters' choice, they did not wish to obey it; that if holes were not already there, through which the machine men might slip, they would dig them. Their chance is gone now, and the party is able to present to the public, without further delay, Nominee Hoover.

One party at least has stopped side-stepping. What will happen at Houston is still a question. It may be that some bright angel will be kind enough to lay a guiding hand on the shoulders of the Democrats, and lead them from the maze into the light of public demand. If so, there will occur the amazing spectacle of the two parties opposing in one and the same campaign their two outstanding men, and not dodging with compromise candidates that do not satisfy the parties, the delegates, or the nation. An amazing spectacle, certainly, and one that promises somewhat more government by the people than that often-mouthed phrase usually means.—The Harvard Crimson.

HUMOR?

The storm of criticism recently launched on College Humor by college humorous publications may be in a large measure deserved and just, but it calls to mind an old proverb regarding "striking the mote from the eye of a brother while forgetting the beam in your own." The attacks were based on the assumption that the material reprinted in College Humor was not truly indicative of college life and aims and gave the readers a wrong impression.

A casual survey of several of the leading college humorous publications will show plainly that should any reprinter desire to find material of a vulgar sort of republication, he will find little difficulty. The entire issues are permeated with suggestive material and jokes in which the only humor lies in an appeal to the immoral. There are notable exceptions—those magazines in the college field which have a definite high standard of humor and stick to it, and those which are attempting to get above the common run of jokes and quips. The remainder of the publications appeal to distinctly morbidly minded individuals only, and are no more truly representative of the college or university than the publication they have been so ardently criticizing. We are not defending College Humor, simply stating the obvious fact that if some of the rot in college humorous publications is humorous, we have no sense of humor.—urdu Exponent.

What Do You Know About—

1. Governor Smith?
2. The Oklahoma storm?
3. Senator McNary?
4. Mexico's earthquakes?
5. Earhart's success?

Journalists are of the opinion that Governor Smith of New York will have an easier task of being nominated by the Democrats than was Hoover by the Republicans. The Kentucky delegation has swung to Smith and there is an authoritative report that Idaho, Indiana, Nebraska and Maryland are ready to vote for the governor at the end of the first ballot. Smith's bitterest enemies are Texas and Georgia and unless Dan Moody comes to the front again to score the New Yorker, the Texans are even expected to line up for him.

Six were killed and about 150 injured in an Oklahoma storm last Saturday. The storm area included an agricultural area three miles wide and 30 miles long in which the towns of Blair, Hedrick, and Snyder are located. The storm completely demolished the three towns and for many hours all of the roads and communication lines leading to them were rendered useless. A large black funnel cloud was seen by the inhabitants just before the disaster took place.

The tenth annual convention of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce opened in Fort Worth yesterday. This organization has grown from a membership of 1500 in 1919 to an organization with a membership of 25,000 and an annual income of $100,000 a year in 1928. The organization is a self-supporting and self-perpetuating body which has for its purpose to develop industries and business in West Texas. Delegates report favorable condition in their part of the state.

Senator McNary, republican of Oregon, reached an agreement with Herbert Hoover Saturday when he agreed to sidetrack the equalization fee provision of his farm relief bill in order to get farm legislation passed by the next Congress. Senator Haugen, co-author of the bill, could not agree with McNary in his compromise. The fee provision of the bill and the whole question of farm relief was one of the most debated planks in the Republican platform for the forthcoming presidential election. Although McNary agreed to the compromise he said that he still believed the fee provision of the bill to be of a sound nature but that he was willing to abide by the agreement in order to gain some relief for the farmers of the land.

No additional radio messages have been received from the Italia since last Saturday. Rescuers are not of the opinion that the men have suffered annihilation but believe that the marooned fliers are conserving radio power for an emergency that might arise later on. Rescuers continue to send their messages.

Earthquakes caused panics in Mexico yesterday when violent shocks swayed buildings, tumbled down houses and cracked the paved streets in Mexico City and Vera Cruz. The town of Oaxaca suffered the most from the quakes. No lives had been reported lost Monday but enormous property damages lent confusion to the disaster. When the quakes were first noticed the inhabitants of many towns rushed into the streets in a wild panic, some kneeling to pray while others sought protection of any sort.

For the first time in a number of years, the prospective presidents of the United States, Herbert Hoover, is a Quaker. Hoover has attended the Quaker church since he became a church goer. His wife was an Episcopalian before her marriage.

Miss Amelia Earhart now holds the honor of being the first woman ever to fly across the Atlantic on a non-stop flight. The girl pilot together with Wilmer Stultz, co-pilot and Louis Gordon, mechanic, landed the tri-motored Fokker monoplane shortly before 1 o'clock Monday and anchored in Barry Inlet, Wales. The fliers encountered rain and fog throughout the whole journey. Crafts of all types greeted the fliers when they landed on the water, ready to take the fliers to land. Miss Earhart refused to go ashore saying that she wanted to rest while one of the men fliers went for gasoline.

LARGEST CROWD OF SUMMER ATTENDS SATURDAY DANCE

The largest crowd of the term attended the second summer German at the Woman's Gym Saturday night. One hundred and thirteen couples and 103 stags attended the dance, according to a report made to Dean V. I. Moore. A profit of about $50 was made. This money will be invested in open-air entertainment for summer school students, Dean Moore stated.

Bill Barbour and his seven-piece orchestra, which played at the Saturday night dance, will play again next week.

CRAWFORD JOINS U. S. BUREAU ON COTTON RESEARCH WORK

COLLEGE STATION, Texas, June 18.—G. L. Crawford, marketing research specialist of the Experiment Station, A. & M. College of Texas, for the last three years, has resigned to accept appointment with the United States Department of Agriculture in its program of cotton research. In his new post he becomes agricultural economist in the division of cotton marketing, bureau of agricultural economics, and will pursue studies in cotton marketing relating to prices paid for different grades and staples. He will be directly associated with Dr. B. Youngblood who recently left the directorship of the Experiment Station to take charge of the research work of the division of cotton marketing of the Department.

Mr. Crawford's services with A. & M. date from 1917. Prior to entering the division of farm and ranch economics of the Experiment Station early in 1926, he was district agent in the Extension Service. During his connection with the college he has made a close study of Texas farming conditions and problems.

TECH ISSUES CERTIFICATES IN HOME ECONOMICS

LUBBOCK, Texas, June 15.—Authority has just been given Texas Technological College to recommend the issuance of certificates in vocational home economics under the Smith-Hughes law, according to Miss Margaret W. Weeks, dean of the home economics school. Under this act two certificates are issued, one to students who have finished two years of prescribed work in this department and the other to graduates.

Three other schools in Texas are authorized to make recommendations for the issuance of these certificates: University of Texas, San Marcos Teachers College, and the College of Industrial Arts at Denton. The recognition of the home economics work being done in Texas Technological College under the Smith-Hughes act is a matter of general interest, as there has not been any school in the western half of the State where students could secure these certificates.

THE THEATER

Good Morning, Judge

IT IS just another case of the little unknown stealing the show and leaving the star to sit on a tack. Reginald Denny, who is cutting tall capers at the Majestic theater in a picture called "Good Morning, Judge" although he sees the judge only once in the afternoon's entertainment, blew in on a streak of good luck when he got Otis Harlan to act in an old character part, meaning that Otis Harlan does the best work of the film, that he puts more comedy into the story than anyone else, in fact, that he makes the picture. And exactly what he makes the picture is this: worth going to see as a farce comedy, if you're in a mood to laugh, if your head doesn't ache, and if you like Reginald Denny.

—C. B.

Across the Atlantic

WELL, they did it. It has long been tacitly agreed that the dear old movie producers would give us nine or ten films inspired by the across the ocean flights. We knew it all the time. We were only a little surprised that the happy event had not taken place before. But take courage, my readers, you've got one now. "Across the Atlantic" with Monte Blue and Edna Murphy, now showing at the Queen, is exactly such a picture.

It might have been, indeed it was, expected that the plot of this picture would be a little lame. Well, little is altogether too mild a word. The poor thing walks on crutches. It holds the world's record for a sustained flight of improbability and inanity. Imagine an army flyer in the world war who loses his memory after being injured in an air battle. He miraculously gets a job in his father's airplane factory after wandering about for eight years: recovers his memory after being observed in an altitude flight; comes back to earth and escapes from the psychopathic ward to which he has been consigned; steals a trans-Atlantic plane and flies to Paris just

WHAT, WHEN, WHERE

Queen: Tuesday and Wednesday: Monte Blue in a Lindberg special not so hot, "Across the Atlantic," a Vitaphone orchestra picture, plus Vitaphone vaudeville, Movietone news.

Majestic: Tuesday: Reginald Denny in "Good Morning, Judge." Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday: Gilda Gray gets warm and warmer in "The Devil Dancer."

Hancock: Tuesday and Wednesday: Dolores Del Rio as "No Other Woman." Beginning Thursday: "Seventh Heaven." see it.

in time to prevent his brother's marrying his wife.

If your sense of the ridiculous is not acute, you may be able to enjoy the picture in spite of the story, for there is a wealth of action and pretty fair photography. The flight across the Atlantic is appropriately thrilling and appropriately difficult what with the weather as it was and what with this and that. The scenes in which he is shot down by German guns during the war and in which he recovers his memory during the altitude flight are a little bit of all right, so maybe it won't exactly kill you to go.

—A. N. M.

No Other Woman

SCENES from Lou Tellegen's production for Fox Films, "No Other Woman," are laid in and around Biarritz, France, and every effort was made by Paul Ellis, technical director of the picture, to present the exact replica of the well known seashore resort bordering on "Jiscay's" sleepless waters. Patrons of the Hancock theater are to be given an opportunity to see for themselves how faithfully the work has been done.

Exteriors were filmed on the exact location by Fox Films cinematographers in Europe. The interiors were made at the West Coast Studio with Dolores Del Rio, Ben Bard, and Don Alvarado in the principal roles, supported by Paulette Duval and Rosita Marstini.

The Devil Dancer

GILDA GRAY. Is that enough? Usually it is, or ought to be; but just for the exercise we're going to explain that Gilda Gray signifies dancing, tantalizingly beautiful dancing as well as irresistibly passionate dancing. And you know what passionate means.

Gilda Gray, who comes to the Majestic theater Wednesday in "The Devil Dancer," is the foremost dancer on the screen today besides being more or less a master of dramatic acting. Either is sufficient excuse for taking a picture of hers, or anybody else's that can strut the same sort of stuff. And in this case, well, there just isn't any excuse not to. In spite of the warm weather.

Gilda glides sinuously through the role of a youngish white maid raised not on raisins but on the Tibetan scale with impressive oriental background, devil worshippers, and all the fixings, more power to 'em. Incidentally, she is quite proficient at the devil dance, whatever that is; we intend to see, if our eyes will stand it; anyway, we'll risk one eye. The hitch (no pun intended) comes in when Clive Brook visits the barbaric elements for some reason or other and from then on just can't live without the pretty little dancer. Trials—tribulations—sobs—sorrows—and so on, but you know how it's got to turn out—happily, although Anna May Wong and Sojin, who are good at almost any kind of mischief, both play in the picture. At the Majestic: Wednesday, Thursday, Friday.

—C. B.

Rae Logsdon has been visiting Lorena and Mrs. J. Z. Drummond and other friends on the campus. She is leaving today for Houston where she expects to attend the National Democratic Convention on June 26.

Joe Kincaid, Billy Lyons, and Mac Breath of the Phi Gam house motored to San Antonio Monday.

Julian Fertitta of Rice Institute is staying in the Phi Gam house for the summer.

Hancock

DOLORES DEL RIO'S latest involves a man, of course, and it came to the Hancock Sunday for a run through Wednesday. It is called "No Other Woman," and, we predict, will concern the general idea that no other woman would possibly do for the man who was lucky enough to be the Del Rio leading man in this particular film. He happens to be one by the name of Ben Bard.

Joe King of Dallas, long term student in the University, was at the Delta Tau Delta house Monday. Sandi Esquivel, also of Dallas, accompanied him.

Sammons-Martin Marriage Solemnized

In the presence of members of the families and close friends, the marriage of Miss Miss Etta Madonna Martin to John Maverick Sammons was solemnized Saturday at San Antonio. The wedding which took place in the Sacred Chapel of Divine Love was presided over by Bishop Capers of San Antonio.

The altar was enshrined with softly burning candles held by tall tapers, while the green ferns furnished a background for the baskets of white daisies.

Miss Gladys Whitley of Austin was maid of honor, and Alfred N. Carter of Austin, acted as best man. The bride was gown in green chiffon, wearing a picture hat of white. She carried a white prayer book.

Both the bride and groom were 1927 graduates of the University, having taken a prominent part in student activities while here. Mrs. Sammons is a member of Theta Sigma Phi, honorary journalistic fraternity for women and was editor of "The Sardine" for two consecutive years, and a member of The Daily Texan staff.

Mr. Sammons was a member of the Sigma Delta Chi, honorary journalistic fraternity for men, a feature writer on the Ranger, business manager of The Daily Texan, receiving his degree of Bachelor of Journalism.

During the past year he has been employed in the B. Wright Construction Company in San Antonio.

Mr. and Mrs. Sammons will make their home in San Antonio.

Augusta Tiemann of Kirby Hall was out of town for the week-end.

Alice Cookston, Dorothy McMahan, and Annie Davis of Kirby Hall went on the excursion to San Antonio Monday.

Mrs. Frances Ferguson, a student in the graduate school, has returned to Kirby Hall for the summer after an extended tour of the east.

Bell and Allison Take Doubles Championship in Maryland State Finals

Special to The Summer Texan.

BALTIMORE, Md., June 16.—In a hard fought five set match, Berkeley Bell defeated Wilmer Allison in the final round of the men's singles championship of Maryland by the score of 4-6, 6-3, 6-1, 4-6, and 6-3. It was a thrilling and spectacular battle but fought hard until they won the championship.

Next week will find the majority of the players, including Bell and Allison, at Wilmington, Delaware, competing in the Delaware state championship.

STUDY WEED

COLLEGE STATION, Texas, June 18.—The relation of the various types of the lowly weed to soil types in Texas and a botanical key suitable for practical use in this state are promised as the result of a comprehensive work now under way by Dr. L. G. Jones of the agronomy department and Prof. U. R. Gore of the botany department, A. & M. College of Texas.

Dr. Jones is especially interested in the relation of soil types to weed types and methods of control while Mr. Gore has made an intensive study of the botanical classification of plant forms and expects to complete a key that will apply to the forms found in Texas. Specimens are being collected this summer in the southwest and northwest portions of the state. This work is the natural outgrowth of the work by students in the two departments in question.

tion cost higher due to the small enrollment, there is on coherence between the units of the system, and a student passing from one unit to another experiences difficulty in adjusting himself to the new environment.

"The Feasibility of the Four-Year Junior College" was discussed by President H. C. Baker of Edinburg Junior College. He defined the four-year junior college as consisting of the last two years of high school and the first two years of college. This system has been tried only one year at Edinburg. The advantages of the four-year plan Mr. Baker listed were that it organizes educational system and makes it a continuous one, it solves the problem of the period of transition and causes less instability and maladjustment among the students, the teachers understand the student problems better than University professors who are too advanced sometimes to teach freshman students, it is more economical to operate, and it affords opportunity for orientation.

Dean Herbert S. Von Roeder of Ranger Junior College gave a general discussion of the problems that must be dealt with before a four-year system can be carried out efficiently. Dr. E. E. Oberholtzer, superintendent of schools in Houston, spoke next in the absence of Dean F. M. Black of Houston Junior College. The last talk was made by Hon. A. M. Frazier, a member of the school board at Hillsboro, on "How Should the Public Junior College Be Supported."

A discussion led by Dr. Frederick Eby, professor of education, completed the program for the second session of the conference.

At the meeting held last night, the principal speakers were: Dean T. H. Shelby of the University; Dr. W. D. Fuller of Modesto Junior College; Dr. T. H. Musselman, editor of the Texas School Journal; President L. H. Hubbard of the College of Industrial Arts at Denton; Miss Bess Heflin, associate professor of home economics at the University; President E. R. Stanford of Westmoreland College; and Hon. S. M. N. Marrs, state superintendent of public instruction.

The complete program for the two final sessions of the conference today follows:

Tuesday morning: 9-12 o'clock — General Theme: Desirable Curriculum Adjustments. Chairman: President J. J. Delaney, Schreiner Institute.

Speakers: Dr. Frederick J. Adams, adjunct professor of education, University of Texas, "Vocational Guidance in the High School and Junior College"; Dean E. E. Davis, North Texas Junior Agricultural College, "The Vocational and Cultural Program of the North Texas Agricultural College"; discussion by: Prof. S. A. Blackburn of North Texas State Teachers College, and Mr. N. S. Hunsden, director of industrial education, State Department of Education; Dr. D. A. Brewer-Kohn
Wedding Solemnized

The marriage of W. S. Brewer and Miss Gertrude Kohn, both of Austin, was solemnized Monday evening at the Saint Martin's Lutheran Church. The ceremony was read by the Reverend S. G. Roesener.

Banks of palms and ferns, and baskets of dahlias and daisies in rainbow colors decorated the church. It was lighted by rainbow-hued candles.

The wedding music was played by Miss Mae Belle Haine. Mrs. Howard Bohn sang "At Dawning," accompanied by Miss Gladys Webb on the violin. "I Love You Truly" was played very softly during the ceremony.

The bridesmaids were dressed in colors carrying out the rainbow scheme. Miss Ernestine Coe of Amarillo, wore an orchid dress with accessories to match. Miss Jane Nash was dressed in green; Miss Anita Schutze wore yellow, and Miss Cora Brewer of Brownwood, wore pink.

The dress of Miss Eula Lee Kohn, sister of the bride, and maid of honor, was of pale pink. Mrs. Walter Bohn, matron of honor, was gowned in blue. The bride's nieces, Doris Cox and Molly Jane Kohn of Seguin, were flower girl and ring bearer.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, Adolph Kohn. Her dress was of white satin, with an imported lace yoke. The tulle veil was held in place by a pearl head-dress. Her bouquet was of white rose buds, showered with white sweet peas.

Ben Brewer of San Antonio, acted as best man. The groomsmen were Tommie Hollough, Travis Zimmerman, Adolph Kohn, Jr., and J. B. Moreland.

Both the bride and the groom are former students of the University.
