DEAN OF WOMEN RESIGNS AND SUCCESSOR APPOINTED

PRESIDENT TALKS TO COMMITTEES OF LEGISLATORS

President Discusses University and Urges That Appropriation Be Maintained

President Robert E. Vinson of the University appeared before the joint session of the House of Representatives' committee with the Senate Finance Committee at the state capitol, urging that the appropriation which has been made for Varsity be amended by the legislators in a special session beginning next week.

The committees, when assembled for their first meeting preliminary to the opening of the called session, and that a deficiency of about five million dollars will occur in the state treasury unless appropriation bills of the last long session's conception are actually amended at this convening. The committees, when assembled for their first meeting preliminary to the opening of the called session, and that a deficiency of about five million dollars will occur in the state treasury unless appropriation bills of the last long session's conception are actually amended at this convening.

Suggests Use of Available Funds

The president admitted the existence of an emergency in finances of the state and advised that in regard to the state university the solution of the matter would be recognition of emergency by the committees and emergency use of available funds for running expenses of the school. The president, approximately $200,000 is derived annually from University lands which could be adapted for running expenses of this institution.

"I think we might as well face the present financial depression," Dr. Vinson told the legislators. "The cost of maintaining the University for the next two years will be practically the same amount originally estimated by the board of regents unless the legislature can in some way reduce the expenditure."

The original request of the Board of Regents was for $1,663,000 for the coming year. The House of Representatives of the legislature cut the figure to $1,475,000 per year. The University executive called the attention of the solons to the standing of the state school in number of students enrolled, there being only 10 universities in the United States with larger registration. He also mentioned the increase in the Summer School, which already surpasses the year's total by several hundred.

Alternative Action Planned

He gave two alternative plans which the legislators might follow. He said his proposal for the maintenance of the University were rejected in committee. The attendance of the University might be curtailed by legislation, he said. Or a relentless action of appropriations might be taken, with no thought as to the effect of such a pruning. This third method would seriously impair the usefulness of the University and might easily drive away many of the best instructors now on the faculty. In discussing this latter alternative, President Vinson stressed the fact that a university of the first class can never be continued without properly trained and well paid faculty.

Action of the committees will wait a message from Governor Pa. Neff, which will be promptly forthcoming upon the occasion of the opening of the called session on July 18th.

HISTORY PROFESSOR TO LECTURE MONDAY ON FRENCH PROBLEM

Bourne Will Trace History of Alsace-Lorraine and Franco-German Situation

Dr. Henry E. Bourne, professor of history in Western Reserve University, will discuss the problems arising out of the settlement of the Franco-German boundary at his lecture on "France and the Rhine," which he will deliver on the campus Monday evening at 8 o'clock. Dr. Bourne is well qualified to speak on this subject, for he has made an intensive study of the books and documents which have been published upon the Versailles Treaty. He is also the author of a textbook, "The Revolutionary Period in Europe," which discusses the origin of the present boundary question.

Dr. Bourne stated that he will begin his lecture by considering the historical background of the French frontier, going back especially to the period of the Napoleonic wars. He will show by history why the French in their proposals are not content to demand the return of Alsace and Lorraine but added a demand for the frontier of 1814, together with that part of the Saar district not included within this frontier.

A small but noisy minority of the French people, including many of the French military leaders, demanded occupation of all territory to the Rhine. At one time, the question of the Saar Valley and the left bank of the Rhine almost broke up the Peace Conference, but both questions were finally settled by compromise. At present France and the other Allies are occupying much territory along the Rhine which they expect to return to Germany during the next fifteen years. The permanent occupation of this territory would create a new Alsace-Lorraine question, with France ruling subject Germans, according to Dr. Bourne. The whole matter is full of perplexities, for the military party of France demands the Rhine as a boundary, while the conservative French, together with England and America, desire the return of her territories to Germany during the next few years. Because of the many problems involved, it is necessary that Americans know the history and present status of the Franco-German boundary question.

DRIVE FOR FUNDS TO BE LAUNCHED TODAY

Quota For Daniel's Work In Brazil To Be Increased By Students

At a meeting held at the University Methodist Church Friday evening arrangements were made to launch a financial campaign to complete the attempt made by the students of the regular session to swell the amount of the Daniel's Fund to $7000 for this year. The goal of $7000 was set during the early part of the fall term of last year and of that amount $3000 is yet to be pledged.

The Daniel Fund was originated in 1914 when J. W. Daniel was sent out as a missionary to Brazil. Although Mr. Daniel had received degrees from two universities of this country, his initial salary was $750. He has met with great success, according to reports from people who have visited his territory, and has established a large church and school in Passo Fundo. The Methodist students of the University have been financially supporting the work at that station, and will take a considerable part in the construction of a school that is to cost $50,000.

Starting Monday evening, there will be a short meeting every evening throughout the week at 7 o'clock for the report of each member of the committee for the day. Speakers including Humphrey Lee, W. A. Smith and Dr. K. P. Barton have been secured to give five minute talks at each gathering.

ELECTION OF NEW MEMBERS IS HELD BY KAPPA DELTA PI

Summer School Students Are Elected To Membership; Visiting Professors Are Invited

Kappa Delta Pi elections for new members from the Summer School took place on Friday afternoon. Those nominations which passed the standards of eligibility were unanimously accepted to membership.

The students in the Summer School who were honored with membership are: Ione Spears, Mary Crutchfield, Raymond Huff, A. L. Hall, W. Lycurgus Hughes, Robert Lee Speight, H. D. Fillers, A. M. Blackman and Dr. W. J. Battle. Invitations for membership were also voted on at the meeting. The following visiting professors and teachers were included in this list: Miss Helen Herron of New Orleans, Dr. H. W. Nutt of Kansas and Dr. A. M. Jordan of Arkansas University.

Kappa Delta Pi is an honorary educational fraternity of national scope which has for its purpose the recognition of thorough scholarship in the study of education, the recognition, as well as the stimulation, of an active interest in the work of education and the recognition of achievement in the field of education outside of college activities.

Delta Chapter of Kappa Delta Pi, established on May 30, 1916, has among its membership many of the most prominent school people of the state and some not in the state.

Initiation of the new members will take place Friday evening, July 15, in the Education Building. Following the initiation of the new members, the organization will adjourn to Barton Springs for a picnic and a swim.

University Endowed By Sixth Texas Legislature

This is the third of a series of articles dealing with the early historical development of the University. These articles will appear on Tuesday, Thursday, and Sunday of each week until the series is complete.

The Sixth Legislature of the state of Texas in 1855 was engaged entirely in settling one question of vital importance. [This one was: "Should the state of Texas have one or two or any university?"] The bill to establish a university was created in the Fifth Legislature and after much discussion in the Sixth and Seventh Legislatures was finally enacted into law. But before this was done there was much said on both sides of the question.

Governor Pease recommended that $300,000, instead of $250,000, be used as an endowment added to the original forty acres. With this money, Governor Pease stated, able professors could be procured, comfortable buildings could be erected, instructors in all branches of literature and science could be obtained, and the institution as a whole would be put upon a sound and firm basis for the welfare of the generation to come. Governor Pease pushed the issue forward and made every one take notice. On December 6, 1855 the Senate Committee on Education introduced a bill to create a permanent fund for the erection and support of a state university. Prior to this had been a bill creating the Literary College of Eastern Texas to be located east of the Trinity River on a specified area of fifty leagues.

Many substitutes and motions to table were offered to the bill creating a state university. The endowment of $300,000 was changed to $500,000 and "a university" was changed to "two universities." The $500,000 endowment was to cover the increased cost of two universities. Added to the bill was a substitute which appropriated $1,000,000 to the public school fund. Then the bill went back to the Committee on Education, totally changed, where it remained until

FREE BARGE RIDES TO BE GIVEN STUDENTS BY CITY CLUB MEN

Tickets For the Rides May Now Be Obtained At Registrar's Office

Final plans have been completed for the three big barge rides to be given the University students under the auspices of the City of Austin Chamber of Commerce. The rides are scheduled for the evenings of Wednesday and Thursday of next week and the following Monday.

According to Walter Long, Secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, the ride will be given free of charge and music will be provided for dancing. In order to save time and make the means of transportation more convenient, the Austin Street Railway Company will provide special cars which will leave the University Y. M. C. A. at 6:30. The cars will remain at the dam terminal to assist the frolickers in making a rapid transit to their respective downy beds.

The barge will leave dock at 7:00 o'clock for a long ride up the Lake to Bull Creek. The picnickers will disembark at that point to enjoy the lunches which are to be provided by the individual groups to their own satisfaction. As the silvery moon beams down upon the merry crew, the barge will steal gently back while sweet strains of music will agitate the rhythmic motives of the dancers.

Tickets will be given to all students who will apply at Registrar's office on Tuesday or Wednesday of next week. The maximum number of tickets to be given for each trip is placed at 350, and it is thought that all students desiring to take advantage of this offer will be able to go on one of the three excursions.

til brought up again at the adjourned session.

Many were the opinions on this subject in the Sixth Legislature. To record all of them would require books and volumes and much time. Only a few are reported in the State Gazette Appendix, published weekly during this period by the printers of the Journals.

Prominent among the advocates of a single university was Senator Palmer of Harris County. One university would afford the most thorough course for any professional business and the South would be proud of such an institution, he said in a speech to the senate. Effort must be concentrated in one point and with the state of the finances, which would not justify the erection of more than one university, the state would be able to erect a university that would attract all children to the school in Texas, instead of sending them in great numbers to other places which were direct enemies of the Southern institutions. Senator Palmer believed in locating a school where children from all parts of the state could come. The ties formed by the mutual friendships made in this school, he stated, would be the strongest ties that could possibly bind the different portions of the state.

The subject came up in the Senate whether there were enough children properly qualified to enter a university or not. On this subject, Senator Palmer stated that "if the institution were erected today in less than one year from today there would be two hundred and fifty students within its walls." If Senator Palmer were to visit Texas today and see the rolls of universities ranging up in the thousands he would see and appreciate more the earnest efforts put forth by those firm believers of higher and better education. Senator Palmer feared a division of the state and he believed that to have one univer-

PROPERTY BUYING IS HELD UP AT PRESENT AWAITING DECISION

Special Session of Legislature May Act On Land Problem

Owners of property in the University campus expansion district which is situated north of 24th street Saturday morning received notices from the University Land Acquisition Board that offers made by the Board for their property had for the time being been withdrawn.

This action seems to indicate that the work of buying in property in the two blocks north of the present campus will be discontinued pending the meeting of the special session of the Legislature. It is thought that this suspension will not apply to land already contracted for in this neighborhood.

The notice of withdrawal of offers made by the Land Acquisition Board comes on the heels of protests made by the women of Austin and by property owners in the neighborhood generally that the valuations put upon their property by the Board underestimated the value of the land, and did not allow those in the condemned district enough to provide suitable homes elsewhere in Austin.

The past session of the Legislature provided that approximately $1,350,000 be appropriated for the purchase of additional land for the University campus, and that none of the tract described in the bill should be bought unless all was purchased. The law provided that citizens of Austin should make a bond that any amount additional to that appropriated, if needed in making the purchase, would be met by the city.

J. H. W. Williams, secretary of the Land Acquisition Board, announced yesterday the transferring of another large plot of land as a further step in the purchase of the 135-acre addition to the University campus. Mr. Williams stated that the land for which a deal was closed Saturday covered five blocks, or fifty lots, of unimproved ground. The cost of the land was $34,360.

The latest purchase of the Land Acquisition Board for the University tract was directly east of the present forty acres, and is not among the several blocks of the authorized purchase which it is proposed to eliminate by the King measure now in the hands of the Governor.

The Board, composed of Will C. Hogg, J. C. Walton, and J. H. W. Williams, has been active during the past week in securing additional lands under the instructions given it by the Legislature in its past regular session.

FORMER NORMALITES TO HAVE BARGE RIDE

Committees Are Appointed For Entertainment and Ex-students Organize

Ex-students of the North Texas Normal School at a meeting held on Friday decided to have a barge ride for Thursday afternoon, July 14. The crowd will gather at the Y. M. C. A. at 5:15 and go in a boat out to the Lake.

The meeting was called to order by C. E. Carter for the purpose of organizing and for arranging for an entertainment. W. M. Williams was unanimously chosen to have general charge of the arrangements for the barge ride.

The number of normal students now in the University was estimated at about 250 or about one hundred more than during the past long session.

The chairman of arrangements was authorized to appoint committees for the selling of the tickets for the barge ride, entertainment and refreshments. C. E. Wedgeworth was appointed in charge of finances while Miss Clara Parker will have charge of the entertainment and Jacob Stambough will see to it that all refreshments are on hand.

LUCY NEWTON IS TO BECOME DEAN IN FALL SESSION

Lilia M. Casis Succeeded After Two Years By Former Wisconsin Instructor

Official announcement made yesterday by the office of the president that the resignation of Miss Lilia M. Casis as dean of women of the University has been accepted marked one of the most notable changes in the personnel of the school's administrative forces in the past two years. Miss Casis, while giving up her position as dean, will continue on the University faculty in her capacity as associate professor of romance languages.

Miss Casis will be succeeded as dean of women by Miss Lucy Josephine Newton of San Antonio, who will take office with the beginning of the fall term of the 1921-1922 session of the University. Rumors have been current for more than two weeks that the present dean would resign her position, but no confirmation of the report was obtainable until yesterday.

It was not considered necessary for a new dean of women to be installed during the Summer School session because an assistant has been serving during the short period. Miss Edna McDaniel, of Baylor University, has acted in that capacity this year.

Miss Newton will come to the University next fall with a good record as administrator and as instructor to her credit. For sixteen years she was a teacher in the elementary and secondary schools of San Antonio. This summer she is attending the short session of Columbia University, where she will obtain her master of arts degree. She will also receive this summer a diploma awarded by the Teachers College for those expressly qualifying for positions as dean of women.

In 1918 Miss Newton graduated from Columbia University with a bachelor of science degree. During the past two regular sessions of the University of Wisconsin she has been an instructor in history and head of a girls' dormitory there. She is expected to arrive in Austin shortly before the opening of the next long session of the University here, to assume promptly her duties as dean.

Retiring Dean Did Constructive Work

Miss Casis found that her duties as dean conflicted with her work as an instructor in Spanish, she said yesterday, and decided that her preference was the teaching work, with which she has had long experience. She originally took the office of dean to inaugurate modern rules of procedure for the University, and feels at this time that a start toward progressive legislation has been definitely made.

During this past year the dean of women cooperated with a representative board of University girls in the preparation of a new code of rules governing the women of the school. Miss Casis has at all times been in harmony with the co-eds under her direction, and was notably instrumental in the girls' work on the University student laws.

Admires University Women

In her statement Saturday, Miss Casis said that while the situation of the girls here is different from that of other universities on account of long standing precedents peculiar to Texas, the women in this University are willing to cooperate in an interchange of ideas and are ready for the broad educational opportunity lying before them.

It is her hope, as expressed yesterday, that the constructive legislative work which has been begun by the girls during the last year will be continued and broadened during the future sessions of the University.

Her ambition has been to make the office of the dean of women a place

Indications are that the question of University campus expansion will come up before the special session of the Legislature which convenes on July 18. The threatened deficit in the state treasury, the protests of citizens owning land in the two blocks north of Twenty-fourth Street that valuations placed upon their property were inadequate, may be said to be two causes for the step, if it is taken.

Representative King has prepared a bill proposing, roughly, to cut out the land lying between Twenty-fourth and Twenty-sixth streets north of the present forty acres, from that which the law provides shall be acquired.

With the appropriation bills for practically every branch of the state government to be considered and provided for at the special session, it is difficult to see how the Legislature, within the short space of 30 days, will be able to reopen the University campus question and still dispose of measures most pressing. The campus expansion problem should be considered as settled by the action of the Legislature, which was certainly taken after mature consideration of the merits of every side. Until this matter is disposed of finally, the University can make no plans for future expansion and development, property owners in the neighborhood will be in a turmoil, and uncertainty will be most prevalent. Moreover, acting in accordance with the law just passed, many people have made provision for new homes, have taken on new obligations, all in good faith, and to change the status of things will be a hardship.

The question as to the fairness of the valuations put upon the land to be acquired should not be difficult of solution. There is a great elasticity in the money available for the Land Acquisition Board, since the citizens of Austin have guaranteed to make up any additional amount required over and above that provided by the state. And the citizens of Austin should be willing to make up any difference. Conservative estimates place the expenditures of the University and of the University students in Austin at around two million dollars yearly, all of which goes to make for the material prosperity of the city. In addition, there are intangible benefits to be derived from the location of the University in this city, intellectual and cultural. And the more provision made for the future growth and prosperity of the institution, the greater will be Austin's participation.

for social development of the girls rather than a court of investigation where only evil doers are hailed.

Miss Newton was lauded by the retiring dean, who predicts that her training fits her for the position. Miss Newton is in full sympathy with the women of Texas, but has at the same time the advantage of training in one of the most modern educational plants in the country, the University of Wisconsin.

New Dean Sympathetic To Texas

The potential position of the new dean in the hearts of the University women was stressed by Miss Casis, who insists that the new dean will have the chance of showing to the coeds that their pleasures about the University may discreetly be multiplied, rather than hindered by rules or regulations.

Miss Lilia M. Casis was a fellow in romance languages in the University of Texas in 1895-1896. She was made tutor in French and Spanish in the following year. For two years thereafter she was instructor in the same studies. In 1899 she was made an adjunct professor, and in 1908 she became associate professor in Spanish. In 1915 she was given the title of associate professor of rorance languages, in which capacity she plans to continue.

Miss Casis Trained in Varsity

She was born at Kingston, Jamaica, West Indies. There she was reared and received the benefit of private tutoring. Undergraduate work was done in the University of Texas, which she entered in 1894. In one year she secured her bachelor of science degree here, and the master of arts degree was awarded Miss Casis in the year following.

When Phi Beta Kappa installed a chapter in Texas, she was made a charter member of that society.

Miss Casis has done graduate work in the University of Chicago and in the Ecole des Hautes Etudes and the Sorbonne of Paris. She also did considerable study in the Library of Madrid. She taught in a private school in Jamaica until 1890, after which she affiliated with the public schools of Texas for a four-year period. She left public school teaching to enter the University of Texas in 1894. Here she succeeded Mrs. Helen Marr Kirby as dean of women when the latter resigned in June, 1919.

STOMACH TROUBLE

There are many different kinds, such as gastritis, indigestion, ulcers, abnormal amount of acid or gastric juice, etc. All forms of stomach trouble are due to abnormal supply of nerve energy supplied to the stomach and its glands. The CAUSE of this disturbed nerve function is a partial obstruction of the nerves at the spine due to the small bones being out of alignment through which the nerves pass. CHIROPRACTIC Spinal Adjustments correct the small bones to normal alignments which frees the nerves from all impingement, and the stomach trouble will no longer exist.

sity would be a preventive to such action.

Senator Armstrong of Williamson County believed that the university would benefit only the wealthy of our population and would make perverted habits and would produce profligacy, extravagance, and licentiousness among the students. To this Colonel Guy M. Bryan answered that every youthful aspirant should be given the opportunity of higher flights in the field of letters and science. Men who come from the humbler walks of life and have distinguished themselves in the service of their country are exceptions to the general rule. The Colonel further stated, in a debate before the Senate, that collegiate institutions are breeding places of aristocratic opinions if it is aristocratic for one to pursue literary and fine arts study, and also if it is aristocratic to cherish a desire for all knowledge that conduces the well being and happiness of mankind. Whether these things do this or not is another question, stated Colonel Bryan.

Differences in climate and the lack of transportation facilities were the reasons that Senators Lott, Taylor, Russell and Guinn favored two universities. Senator Taylor gave as the cause for delaying the establishment of these two universities the public debt and the lack of preparatory schools. The rivalry between the two universities, stated Senator Flanagan, would co-operate to build up and sustain each other. He spoke for the benefit of the eastern part of Texas. Likewise, he believed that Texas would be divided and then the western part of the state would have all the educational institutions.

In the Sixth Legislature there was a man who was opposed to building either one or two universities. But he was not totally against education. He believed that steps should be taken to secure a good system of common schools. This man was Senator Millican. He stated that he objected to the building of a state university because it would build up a class of aristocrats in the country, and therefore, the majority of the people would not benefit from the establishment of such an institution. Unlike the other senators, Senator Millican believed that the operation of only one university would tend to increase dissensions, hatreds and animosities. This would do more than anything to cause a division of the state.

There is far more likelihood that a university would be judged as a nuisance than that we need more than one, stated Senator Maverick to a group of interested senators. After the common schools have succeeded for years it will have been time then to advance universities and colleges. Senator Maverick believed that colleges and academies should be established all over the state before the universities could be considered.

Senator Scott agreed entirely with Senator Maverick, and he supplemented the university bill with an endowment of $1,000,000 for the common schools. This bill then returned to the Committee on Education for further consideration. A bill to create a fund of $400,000 for the erection and support of a university was proposed to the Committee on Education by Senator Palmer, July 14, 1855. Again there were multitudes of amendments and substitutes to the bill. Senators Armstrong, Flanagan, and Martin offered alterations which were defeated by very close votes. The whole bill was laid on the table for further reference by the motion to that effect by Senator Flanagan.

As a result of much debating and discussion, the Sixth Legislature located 25,000 acres in Shackelford and Callahan counties for educational purposes. The legislature also authorized the selling of certain lands which were actually sold until a law contrary to that was passed in 1874. This law also provided that no statute of limitations should run in favor of any "squatter" upon lands set aside or sold by the state of Texas for the purposes of advancing the educational system in Texas. These laws were approved August 30, 1856.

MISS McDANIEL HAD CHARGE OF CHAPEL

Speaking before a full room at the Chapel exercises Saturday morning, Miss Edna McDaniel, dean of women for the summer session, presented a graphic picture of Jesus at the grave of Lazarus and of what the incidents which took place there should mean to us. Using the phrase, "Loose him and let him go" she showed that this command was especially applicable now, as there are many people today who are bound down by one thing or another. Continuing, Miss McDaniel said that a person's life might be likened to a triangle in which his life was represented by the square on the hypotenuse and his relation to God and to man was represented by the other two sides of the triangle. If the latter two sides are all right then the square on the hypotenuse will be all right.

VARSITY VICTORIOUS IN SEVERAL FIELDS DURING PAST YEAR

Debaters, Athletes Win Honors For Texas; Tennis Champions Take International Honors

Honors have come to the University of Texas from many sources. Billy Disch's baseball teams for the past ten seasons have made the annexation of state and conference championships an annual achievement. Football elevens have vied with A. and M. from year to year in the state and conference races. Track and basketball stars have defeated and have been defeated by some of the best opponents in this section of the country. Nor has honor been gained only by athletic prowess. Debating teams have been winning the majority of intercollegiate debates against some of the most formidable opponents in the United States. Faculty members with creative imagination have added by means of their researches a great deal to the standing of the University in other sections of the country. University students holding fellowships and scholarships in other universities have helped to make the University of Texas one of the foremost schools in this country.

International Honor

Honor must be placed where honor is due. Consequently, the greatest honor must be placed where the greatest honor is due. The greatest honor, an international one, has come to this University very recently through the indirect work of a third man. These men are Charles E. (Chili) Granger and McNeill Drumwright, Varsity's tennis champions, and Dr. Daniel A. Penick, their coach. But Dr. Penick is too modest to claim any of the honor and insists that not too little praise be given the two men who recently fought hard fights to the finish to win even greater honors.

Tournament in Northern City

Interest of high degree has been shown by students in the outcome of the tournament just completed in the northern city. All know from previous reports in the Texan that Drumwright was not eliminated until he reached the semi-finals. But before losing to Fenno of Harvard he defeated Levy of California, a tennis player of no mean ability who went to the meet with an enviable record behind him. In a recent letter to Dr. Penick, Drumwright told of the hard strenuous match with Levy. He said that he was forced to put all of his energy into this fight and that when the match with Fenno came he was almost exhausted.

In doubles, Granger and Drumwright defeated the strong Harvard team. But in the third round, they were eliminated by Yale. It was a Yale team that defeated Texas last year in the finals in doubles. In his letter to Dr. Penick, Drumwright said that they were handicapped to some extent by the rains. They were strenuously worked during the last two days. He himself had been fighting hard in the singles against Levy and Fenno. According to Drumwright, he and Granger would have had to meet the strong California team if they had won from Yale and that match would have followed immediately after the Yale match. Considering the strenuous work that both men had been put through and their physical conditions after such work, it seems inevitable that they should have lost to one of the two strong teams.

Despite the fact that the Texas men did not win first honors, they played hard fought games, showing the north, east and west what "Texas Spirit" is. Their showing was good enough for their selection to the All-American team. And in that part of the tournament they won honor for America by defeating the Oxford-Cambridge combination. It was at this point of the tournament that international honor came to the Texas men. It was an honor in itself to be selected as a part of the All-American team and greater honor to win their part of the matches played.

Much Credit Due Champions

Dr. Penick, the coach, is not at all disappointed in the outcome. In fact he is greatly pleased with the showing made by the team. Of course he would have been better pleased with continued success. In his opinion, Texas students can not give too much credit to Granger and Drumwright.

Granger has at different times held the state, southwestern and southern singles championships. He and Drumwright have at different times held the same championships in doubles. They are now southwestern champions in doubles, and Drumwright holds the conference title for singles. They have defeated all state, southwest, and southern players that they have met. During the past two years they have played in the national tournament. Last year they reached the finals in doubles and semi-finals in singles. What they have done this year, has already been told. In these two years they have twice defeated Harvard. Last year tennis fans boasted that tennis was the only sport in which Texas had been nationally represented. But this year the Texas team has entered the international ranks.

Many Good Men

There are many good men returning to school who were on the squad last year. Lloyd Gregory and Aaron Taber, letter men, are coming back. Among those who won "T" 2nds are Brown, Spivey and Alderson. Other squad men are Daniel, Bell and Paine. These eight men will form a strong nucleus for a representative squad from which a team can be selected to take the place left vacant by Granger and Drumwright who graduated in June. Several of last year's freshmen, including White and Hillyard, are expected to strengthen the squad materially. Besides these men several prominent University athletes have signified their intention of going out for tennis next year. Among these men are George McCullough and Swede Swenson. A great number of promising high school players who will make good Varsity material after they have passed their freshman courses are expected to enter school here next fall. Thalheimer of Dallas, the present Interscholastic champion, is expected to become a Texas student.

Dr. Penick states that hard work will be required of all tennis players who make the squad. The men must look to the laurels of the school. Tennis is growing in other institutions and competition is getting stronger. Texas and A. and M. now recognize tennis as a major sport. Rice, Baylor and S. M. U. are increasing their interest in the sport. For these reasons and for the fact that all old squad men have been hard workers, the coach feels that all men who go out for tennis will have to put forth their maximum efforts in order to have a showing. Dr. Penick is looking to the future of tennis in intercollegiate circles.
