Individual Stars Compose Track Squad for Year

Team as Whole Weak; Relay Quartet Is Undeveloped

Season's Schedule Finished

Although there are more than 130 students out for track this year, including freshmen, Coach Clyde Littlefield indicated Wednesday that it would be rather difficult to pick a well balanced track squad from among that number.

The squad, however, boasts of a large number of individual stars and a wealth of material has turned out, Littlefield who has coached the Longhorns to five consecutive victories, said.

Weak in Distances
In the distance events and the hurdles, according to Coach Littlefield, the team is especially weak, and there are the divisions in which Texas men formerly starred. In some of the other events Texas looks like a sure winner, with conference record holders on the team.

In the dashes, Landa, Baggett, and Windrow are showing up well in practice. Landa is an experienced man, running his last year for Texas.

In the quarter mile, Daniels ran the circuit in 49.2 last year and was anchor man on the conference record relay team. Terrell, Harris, Vestal, Dickinson, and Gideon are among his running mates.

In the half mile, White, Jones, Arnold, and Wright will probably represent Texas. Hammonds holds the conference record in the pole vault, and Courter goes better than 12 feet. Wolf and Sandberg are also vaulters.

Baldwin in Shot Put
Baldwin, who holds the conference record and Hargis are expected to win the shot put event for Texas. Baldwin and Boyer hurl the discus, while Smith, Reynolds, and Gallaway will compete in the javelin throw. Smith holds the conference record in the broad jump. Shepherd and Presson also compete in this event. Shepherd holds the conference record in the high jump, and Haggard holds the national intercollegiate record.

Publication Office Gets Texas Almanac

A copy of the 1928 edition of the Texas Almanac and State Industrial Guide, published annually by the Dallas News, has just been placed in the reference department of the Texas Students Publications in B. Hall.

The Almanac is a general reference book upon Texas, its government, officials, physical characteristics, population, agriculture, livestock, manufacturing, and other industries, education, mineral resources and production, climatic conditions, forest and wild animal resources, health, transportation and traffic, banking, insurance, finance, history, and other topics of interest, including a description of each county in the state.

The first annual issue of the Almanac was published in 1857 as "The Texas Almanac and Immigrants' Guide," and has been issued regularly by the Dallas News since that date.

CO-EDS AT OHIO STATE U. ENJOY FIELD HOCKEY MOST
Special to The Daily Texan.
COLUMBUS, Ohio, Jan. 25.—(IP)—Co-eds at Ohio State University enjoy field hockey more than any other college sport, it is learned from women's physical education authorities here. Volley ball and swimming run a close second. Correctives—learning to stand up straight and breathe properly—are the bane of the co-ed's life.

Slaughter to Lecture On "China of Today"

Speech Begins At 8 o'Clock

The first University public lecture will be given by Professor J. W. Slaughter of Rice Institute, an instructor in civics and philanthropy, this Thursday night at 8 o'clock in the auditorium of Garrison Hall.

Dr. Slaughter's lecture will be on "China Today." He has but recently returned from China, where he has studied its problems. He has also spent some time studying in Europe and South America. Mr. Slaughter recently published a collection of essays on China.

Dr. Slaughter is representing the Houston Philosophical Society and has been obtained by the "Fortnightly club in exchange for a lecture by Dr. Eugene C. Barker, professor of history in the University. Dr. Barker will speak before the Houston Philosophical Society in March.

Education Frat Initiates Seven

Pi Lambda Theta Elects New Members Monday Night

Fall semester initiation for Psi chapter of Pi Lambda Theta, national honorary fraternity for women in education, was held Monday night at the Faculty Women's club. Three associate and four active members were formally initiated.

Associate members included Clara May Parker, Miss Ruby R. Terrill, dean of women; and Cora Merriman Martin. The new active members are Charlotte Heyman, Iris Murdy, Lucille Womack, and Jean Granger.

The purpose of Pi Lambda Theta is to foster professional spirit, to secure and maintain an abiding interest in educational affairs, to encourage graduate work and stimulate research, to promote a spirit of fellowship among women, and to advocate in the educational administration of the universities of the country changes which the interests of the women students demand.

Work for Doctorates
Two members of the local chapter have the degree of doctor of philosophy; two others will receive their doctor's degrees this year, and a large number are working toward their doctorates.

Active members now on the campus are Marie Morrow, president; Ruth Reed, recording secretary; Josephine Casy, treasurer; Alice Miller, keeper of the records; Amanda Herring, corresponding secretary; Bertha Duncan, vice president; Helen Lois Koch, sponsor; Helen Hill, Gladys Lowther, Esther McClung, Pauline Keeton, Louise Shorff, Florentine Fernandez, Grace Oldfather, Mildred Pickel Mayhall, Edith Bowman, Annie Webb Blanton, Olive Tanner, and Frances Foster.

The chapter recently completed a group study of the influence of faculty regulations upon the scholarship of national secret social organizations of the University which received favorable comment from administrative and faculty officers of the University.

Ayer Speaks Before Austin High Grads

Dr. Fred C. Ayer, professor of educational administration in the University, will address the graduating class of the Austin senior high school at 8 o'clock Thursday in the high school auditorium. The occasion will be the semi-annual class night at the school.

Murray Ramsey, Jr. will give the president's address, and Murray Ramsey, Sr. will give the alumni address. The class night exercises will open with a procession by the high school band and will close with the singing of the high school song.

Calory Fiend Says Scales Cause Agony

Girl Shylocks Note Weight Gained or Lost Daily

"Give me my pound of flesh!" Shylock said this and meant it, but such an assertion is seldom made by feminine customers as they test their avoirdupois at popular scales near the campus. The usual wail is:

"Oh, these old scales are wrong! I know I don't weigh that much."

The common blame falls on the poor coat which always weighs twice as much as it appears to. Or as the startled girls sees the hand mounting higher, this question is usually asked:

"Are these scales really right?"

Gains Two Pounds
Being assured that they are, she immediately goes down the street, intent on disproving the statement, only to find she has gained two pounds en route.

Girls always agonize over their weight whether it is great or small. Some who perceive they are fat losing that perfect 34, and acquiring proportions similar to the figure eight, become alarmed, cut out carbohydrates for awhile and begin consuming cokes. Others who have a lean and hungry look, begin feeding upon fat sandwiches and many-colored "Oh, Charleys."

Boys are not concerned much about their weight except that they usually want to increase their avoirdupois.

Patrons of the University Cafeteria have weighed 232,462 times since the scales were set up in March, 1925. Students are more interested in calories now than ever before since charts showing one's correct weight have been placed on the wall of the cafeteria.

Breakfast Hour Leads
More persons step on the scales at breakfast, according to observation, than at the noon rush hour, and still more at night than at breakfast. Some take daily note of their weight, others weekly. By taking such though for their avoirdupois, some are on the road to becoming the world's champion heavyweights; others, skinny curiosities in the sidishows.

WEATHER

Thursday: Partly cloudy and generally warmer.

Rehm to Carry On Extension Night Course

University Credit Given for Completion of Study

Classes Begin Monday

C. A. Rehm, adjunct professor of business administration in the University will continue work in the business psychology and salesmanship course, which will be started Monday, when C. P. Brewer, director of the course, has finished his course of lectures.

University credit will be given to students who sign for the course, attend Mr. Brewer's lectures, and complete six special assignments given by correspondence under the direction of Mr. Rehm. The additional work will be based upon Tisdal's "Principles of Personal Selling," and two semester hours of credit, the equivalent of one-third of a course, will be given upon completion of the lessons.

Students may sign up for the course by applying at the office of the dean of the division of extension. The course will begin Monday, January 30, and will be given in the auditorium of the Law Building at 7:45 o'clock.

Official Lauds KUT Efficiency

Reports From Wide Area Give Approval of Radio Station

L. L. McCabe, district inspector for the fifth radio district, was in Austin Tuesday to check the wave length of KUT, the University broadcasting station. He commented very favorably on the station's equipment for maintaining a uniform wave length.

Station KUT is one of the most efficient in this part of the state. It has the same power rating as station WFAA in Dallas. Its programs are heard over a wide area.

Some interesting things occur in connection with the station's broadcasting. The director received copies of clippings from papers in many parts of the state of a story sent out by the Associated Press from Terrell.

On November 3 while the University band played "The Eyes of Texas" over station KUT, W. E. Heddin and Miss Viola Lee of Wills Point stood before a radio in a restaurant and were married.

Texas Rallies to Win From Southwestern In Fast Game, 48-41

Playing a fast and furious game for the entire period the Pirates forced the Steers to the limit to win last night's game by a 48-41 score. With six minutes to go Texas had a four point lead. This was cut to two points when Blackburn sank a long shot from near the center, and Mikulik tied the score at 41 all when he sank one from the 15 foot line. Johnnie Estes who had been sent in at the beginning of the second half after spending the first half on the sidelines went wild and looped three field goals, while Brock sank a free throw to complete the margin of victory.

Southwestern jumped into an early lead, which was soon tied, but was leading 17-15 with six minutes to play. Brock and King started looping crisp shots and Texas led at the half 25-20. Going into the second half with a five point lead, the Steers were forced to fight every minute of the half and at no time were they sure of winning. With only four minutes to go, the Pirates rallied to tie the score, and Texas won when Estes rang up his three consecutive field goals, the last one just as the final gun fired.

Brock Scores 21 Points
Brock again led the Steer scorers with 21 points secured with eight goals from the field and five free tosses. Most of Brock's shots were made as he was coming in fast on the goal and on a follow up. Several times he crossed up his guard and took a free unguarded shot from the field.

To Blackburn goes the honor of being high point man for the Pirates. He ran up a total of 13 points secured on five field goals and three free throws. All of Blackburn's shots were from near the center of the court. Blackburn was the only man on the floor able to loop any long shots, and all of his tries brought sighs from the Texas fans as the end of the game drew near and Texas, was leading by only a few points.

Whittle Follows Up
Mikulik, Pirate forward was second high point man for the Buccaneers with a total of 11 points secured when he looped four field goals and three free tosses. Whittle, the tall Pirate center, rang up ten points with four field goals and two gift shots. Whittle was adept at following up on the long shots of Blackburn and taking them off the board and dropping them in. Captain Estes was second high man for Texas with his five field made from the side at a difficult goals. Two of these goals were angle, and were the deciding scores of the game.

This is the last game for Texas this week. The squad members are engaged in finals this week, (Continued on Page 4)

Missouri Dean Asked to Make April Address

Williams Is Authority on Subject of Journalism

Visited Campus In 1925

Dean Walter Williams of the school of journalism of the University of Missouri will address members of the student body some time in April if plans of the department of journalism, which is trying to bring the dean here, materialize.

Dean Williams visited the campus in 1925 on his return from a trip to Mexico City, and spoke to students of journalism and other people interested in the subject while in Austin. He is an internationally known authority on journalism subjects and is the author of a number of books on the subject. In addition to these volumes, Dean Williams has written several volumes of history, particularly of Missouri, and has published other works.

Began in Boonville
Starting on a newspaper career in Boonville, his native town, Dean Williams became editor and part owner of the Boonville Advertiser in 1884. Since that early day he has been editor or publisher of a number of journals, including both newspapers and magazines. Since 1908 he has been dean of the school of journalism of the University of Missouri and has taught there as professor of the history and principles of journalism since that time. He is also president of the World's Press Congress.

Dean Williams' adventures have taken him to Africa, Asia, and Europe. His last foreign travels were made as a fellow of the Kahn Foundation for Foreign Travel of American Teachers, and under this fellowship he spent a year in going around the world. Among others clubs and organizations, Dean Williams is a member of Sigma Delta Chi, men's professional journalistic fraternity, in which organization he served as honorary national president in 1922-23.

Writes Many Books
Some of the books which Dean Williams has written include "How the Cap'n Saved the Day," published in 1901; "Some Saints and Some Sinners in the Holy Lands," published in 1902; "The State of Missouri," 1904; "The History of Missouri," 1908; "Missouri Since the Civil War," 1909; "Eloquent Sons of the South," 1909; "From Missouri to the Isle of Hull," 1909; "The Practice of Journalism," 1915; "The History of Northwestern Missouri," 1915; "Journalism, the Newest Weapon for Democracy," 1919; and "The Press Congress of the World in Hawaii," 1922. President Warren G. Harding wrote the introductory note for the latter volume.

IDAHO U. HAS LIGHTEST BASKETBALL FIVE IN RACE

Special to The Daily Texan.
MOSCOW, Idaho, Jan. 25.—(IP)—After having had the heaviest football team in the Pacific Conference, the University of Idaho expects its basketball five to be the smallest in the association. The biggest man on the squad weighs 160 and is five feet ten inches tall. The other are all in the "runt" class.

INTRAMURALS AT C. I. A.
Intramural sports will be begun early in February at the College of Industrial Arts. Basketball, tennis and swimming will be the activities featured. Letters will be awarded for tennis this year in addition to the emblems offered in other sports.

Political Aspirants Oil Vote-Pulling Machine

U.T. 'Bug' Victims Prepare For Race

In spring, squeeze the tree of politics and the saps begin to run. The leaves of all colors, mostly green, are seen to burst forth from the tree that has been deadened by the snows of winter, but which takes on new life with the new saps within its veins. Many of the campus politicians are new at the trade, but they get campaign managers who have weathered many a storm or who are born "vote pullers."

New Activity Begins
With the thawing of the politicians, the whole campus takes on a new air of activity. All the old languorous ease is thrown off and the politicians ride into office on the wings of the wind made by the political talks on and about the campus.

Not only is the spring ushered in with the gusts of fresh wind, but there is a lot of noise accompanying spring and politics. The candidates are like the traditional "Bull in the China Shop" only this time it is the same old "line" in politics. Disappointed young old maids will find solace in the dates with the nice young gentlemen who are so polite and compliment them of being such nice old fashioned girls; the average girl will look with surprise upon the increased chances of taking in the Gym, German, Cabaret, or what she will; while the little gold-digger will find a rich vein of ore opened up before her eyes, if she will keep the politicians guessing.

Gold-diggers will not all be of the feminine gender, however, for candidates for office will be besieged by male parasites as well. Many a big black cigar will be passed to doubtful voters in exchange for their good will and, incidentally, their vote. Chewing gum will be stowed away in the vest pocket of every suit.

Don Full Suits
And of course there will be full suits! No victim of the 'political bug' will be seen on the campus in his shirt sleeves, for the dignity of the office depends upon the dignity of the holder, and certainly the candidates intend to act after election just as they do before. Some of the politicians might be trying to wear out some of the trousers that come with the two trouser suits and will, therefore, have to borrow their pre-office suits, but they will get them in some way.

They will have to have that suit at least once a week, for every office seeker must attend two regular church services a week; not only must the candidate go to church, but he must see that one of his supporters is present at each church for every service. Of course there are some politicians who play for the atheist votes and never go near the church, but (Continued on page 4)

Student Bans Clock and Coffee Pot for Soothing Melodies

ONCE is the long ago, music was considered only for dance purposes, then it was discovered that it made good accompaniment for meals, and finally some enterprising man discovered that one could lose weight to the tune of music. It remained however for an ingenious junior who had Government 11 and English 13 to make a new use for music. He discovered that it made possible his concentration on studies, and that he could better stay awake through the use of music than by drinking coffee.

Throughout the night the strains of "The World Is Waiting for the Sunrise," and "What Does It Matter" were wafted out through the still air as the weary student pored over page after page of government and read essay after essay.

The sun rose, and the strains died out. Alarm clocks took the place of the soothing music and another day of torture was on hand.

Fine Relay Team At Arkansas U.

Has Four Record Breaking Members

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., Jan. 25.—With the arrival of Wayne Jewell, former El Dorado high school track star, the University of Arkansas freshman track squad will have the entire crack quartet oilfield relay team which broke the University interscholastic mile relay record here by more than nine seconds last season.

The former El Dorado relay team, who will be listed at freshmen here with Jewell, include Oliver "Chicken" Holmes, Milton Bain, and Edwin "Pete" Davis. Jewell made his debut here on the cinder lanes in the annual invitational meet last season, easily coping first place in the 100 and 220 yard dashes. The swarthy skinned runner was also given credit for breaking the relay record when he, as anchor man, took the baton under a 15 yard handicap and breezed home a winner on the straightaway, flashing under the wire in front of LaForge of Little Rock.

Previous to this meet, the Little Rock Tiger star had shattered the quarter mile state record. The lanky oilfield runner also gained national prominence last summer when he, in his first big-time performance, finished sixth in the 220 yard dash in the national high school meet at Chicago.

The other trio of tracksters is also able to perform creditably in other events. Holmes is a quarter and half-mile, low hurdler and pole vaulter; Davis, besides running on the relay team, takes his turn regularly in the dashes; Bain has made a specialty of the longer runs.

Low and Randolph Open Law Concern

Sam D. Low, graduate of the University School of Law with the class of 1920, and Nowlin Randolph, who graduated last year, have opened the firm of Low and Randolph in San Antonio where they have each been practicing law for the past year. Friends on the campus learned of this Wednesday.

Why Study How?

A recent survey conducted at the University of Minnesota among more than 1,000 women students indicates, according to those who conducted the test, that the students investigated do not know how to study. The exact technique employed in making the survey is not stated; but there will be few to doubt that no matter what the method may have been the results obtained are not extravagant. For it is a truism among most college teachers that by far the greater part of their students do not know how to study.

The statement is often made by students who have been unsuccessful in the pursuit of learning that they have spent almost unlimited time, varying in most instances inversely with the grade received, on their preparation. This would be amusing if it were not true. The Michigan Daily has the following to say concerning the situation above outlined:

"It is a curious thing that University students, having for their business the acquisition of facts and knowledge, should employ such woefully inefficient methods as they do to such a large degree in acquiring knowledge. It is curious that this business of studying has never been reduced to scientific precision by the acute minds which have preceded us; and it is anomalous as well as curious that men and women engaged in learned pursuits should have learned so little about the implements of their profession.

"Still as we round the bend toward the close of the present semester, it is only too apparent that the great bulk of all studying is done by haphazard methods—students picking up crumbs here and there in the hope that the instructor will chance to pick on that particular bit of knowledge for an important question. Often this type of study is successful, often it is not; when fortunate the student considers himself worthy of the grade he receives; when unfortunate he bemoans the fact that it was a cruel fate which deprived him of his credit."

It is, of course, to be regretted that education involves so much unfruitful effort. The formula for the construction of an efficient mind has not yet been found. And it is not so curious as it might at first seem that men and women engaged in learned pursuits have not learned more about the implements of their profession. The unintelligent among them are usually not able to diagnose their own ailments; and the more successful are generally unaware of the conditioning factors which have made them capable of doing creditable work. There are a few things that can be taught; sometimes they can be given to the student after he has entered on his college career but in a greater number of instances the time for the formation of profitable habits of study has already passed by the time they reach that stage in their development. But in so far as it is possible to correct the maladjustments which interfere with intellectual proficiency, the educational principles applicable in such instances should be sought for an applied.

From Other Pens

The Vicious Circle

It is doubtful whether in the past history of American journalism the present greed for morbid news of crime has ever been surpassed. Criminal happenings in the past few years and particularly in recent months gradually are looming as momentous and acceptable items for publication. This tendency is rather national in scope, and it may be said with assurance that it covers and fills every stratum of Yankee journalistic practice.

The Hickman and Snyder-Gray cases just now before the public eye appeared in an unusually garish light. In the latter the deluge of publicity gained momentum as each day wore on, and the degree of morbidity which it attained in the end is almost classic. Its gruesomeness finally reached the point where one-line devourers of scandal found themselves shocked, a spot along their mental walk which produced nothing less than genuine revulsion.

Anyone who attempts to fathom the motivating causes of this printed orgy is sure to get himself in trouble. For many and varying are the opinions concerning newspaper policy, each one of which is supported by a host of well-known public figures. Essentially, the battle narrows itself down to two distinct forces. On the one hand we find those individuals who are wont to cast their all in favor of tabloid and free-lance news sheets. On the other we may discover a body of individuals whose chief creed centers in a rigid curtailment—or a slight modification, at least—of all tabloid practices. The first group seems to comprise a majority of American publishers and editors and the second recruits its personnel chiefly from the ranks of the various professions, from men and women prominent in public life and from a group of teachers of journalism.

While the practice of journalism has undergone many important changes within the past two decades it remains still an avocation. That is to say, despite the most strenuous efforts of its outstanding leaders and opponents both within and without its domain, it has not attained even the slightest promise of becoming a profession. The most rabid opponents of the tabloid newspaper and all that it carries with it are loud in their announcements that professionalism will save the day. It is their belief that the majority are governed by two important factors, each one of which gains its full share of public support and defiance. They contend that adherents of the tabloid shield themselves behind the "fallacious" slogan "We must give the public what it wants." Their second bombshell consists in a relentless assertion that pandering is resorted to for commercial gain, for the mazzins which accrues from fat circulation standards.

Whether any American is competent and sure enough of his ground to influence the situation by an expression of opinion is altogether a matter for serious reflection. We doubt the efficacy of this method. This is a case where "reform" activities do nothing but add more fuel to the fire. It is a task which seems to be undefined. Its salient features are not yet discernible.—The Daily Illini.

The Cinema

MAJESTIC: Thursday through Friday, Billie Dove in "The Love Mart"; Saturday through Tuesday, Gloria Swanson in "Sadie Thompson."

HANCOCK: Thursday and Friday, Olive Borden in "Pajamas"; Saturday and Sunday, Orpheum Players in "Other People's Business."

QUEEN: Thursday, Mary Astor in "Sailors' Wives"; Friday and Saturday, "The Thirteenth Juror."

TEXAS: Thursday, Norma Shearer in "After Midnight"; Friday and Saturday, Clara Bow in "Get Your Man."

Pajamas

"Even pajamas have their uses," seems to be the moral of the picture, "Pajamas," appearing at the Hancock, featuring Olive Borden. It is the old story of a petted and pampered society girl who finds her big he-man out in the great open spaces. The shams of civilization cease to interest her and she decides to live out in the woods where things are "genuine."

The picture was evidently designed to give Olive a vacation at Lake Louise, Canada, and also to make use of her time. The scenes around Lake Louise are really marvels of photography. It is too bad they were not used in a better picture.

—J. H. A.

The Love Mart

One hundred years ago when New Orleans was ruled by beauties and dandies, the belle of all the city was Antonette Froilaine, played by Billie Dove, in "The Love Mart," at the Majestic theater until Saturday.

All New Orleans was at the feet of this beauty. Men fought for her in brilliant duels and then, when she was suddenly put on the block and sold as a slave, watch what the dandies do.

Gilbert Roland as the hero is all that is to be expected; at the right moment he dashes up and saves her, in more cases than one. No one is better suited to be the villain than Noah Beery and he is perfect as the slave dealer. All the romance and picturesqueness of old New Orleans is embodied in this picture.

—M. E. L.

After Midnight

Story of a P. W. G. who took a thug in out of the cold. Not what the title sounds like. But fair to middling stuff, intriguing camera shots (plus legs and so forth), and an adequate helping of good acting. Worth seeing, I guess.

Norma Shearer (not nearly so bad an actor as usual and a great deal more good looking) is the particular Poor Working Girl who regenerates Lawrence Gray (unusually bad part, for him, largely on account of poor camera work) and marries him. She did that because when a person does such a thing as regenerate another person, they've got to make up for it in some way, and the only way Norma, as a woman, could find was to marry the poor sap. Come baby, kiss-kiss. Nuf sed, I gotta exam.

Sailors' Wives

Mary Astor departs from the steady usualness of her past performances in "Sailors' Wives" and becomes, for part of the picture, a wild and exotic joy girl. It doesn't last though and at the close of the picture she reverts to her usual sweetness.

Aside from a particularly nonsensical ending, even more overdrawn than we have become used to, the picture is one of the best this pair has done. The plot is a little hackneyed being that of the girls who only has six months to live and decides to live it riotously, but in this case she was going blind at the end of the six months instead of dying. The happy ending is more than a little strained.

Mary Astor was as pretty as usual and not quite as thin though she didn't lack much. Her face is deliciously kissable and her features are piquant and refined, but you can see that for yourself. Her acting has improved and particularly in the scene with the family doctor is she on great heights. With a little more careful directing she could become even better. In her previous pictures she has so often appeared with high salaried stars that not enough attention has been given her by the director.

The photography has many moments of beauty.

Academ Faculty Changes Made

Richardson Relieves W. P. Webb in History Department

Only minor changes have been announced in the faculty for the coming semester, and only two or three courses will be added, according to announcement made Tuesday. R. N. Richardson will take the place of W. P. Webb, associate professor of history, who will do research work under the Laura Spellman Rockefeller grant.

Miss Dema Lockhead of the William Lipscomb School has accepted an offer to lecture on "Elementary Methods" next semester. Miss Lockhead, who has been engaged in teaching the second grade at the William Lipscomb School for the past two years, was invited to teach at the University by Dr. J. L. Henderson, professor of secondary education.

Miss Lockhead received her bachelor of science degree at Columbia University, and has completed part of her work toward the master's degree there.

Southwestern Men Get Football Awards

Special to The Daily Texan.

GEORGETOWN, Texas, Jan. 25.—"Southwestern University's championship football team discovered the offensive punch which bridges the narrow gap between partial and complete success," Professor J. C. Godbey, representing the athletic council and the students' association, said when he presented miniature gold footballs to the sixteen Pirates who earned letters on the team that won the Texas conference title.

Gold footballs, engraved with the words "Texas Conference Champs," were presented to Marion Hodges of Marlin, Wesley Blackburn of Rockdale, Don Johns of Georgetown, Lloyd Johns of Georgetown, Herschel Brannen of Trinity, Andy Andrews of San Antonio, Lee Andrews of San Antonio, Harvey Ballew of Frost, Joe Allen of Georgetown, Claud Hallmark of Meridian, Alton Smith of Lufkin, Wallace Lowry of Wichita Falls, Robert Safley of Belton, Edwin Franklin of Troy, Lee Lehmborg of Crockett, and Fred Young of Cameron.

Couch Lefty Edens, mentor of the successful Pirates, made a short speech to the students.

CONVOCATIONS POPULAR

the University in the lectures given by prominent business men, according to Dr. J. Anderson Fitzgerald, dean of the School of Business Administration. All the students of that school are required to attend these convocations which are held several times during the month.

Among the outstanding business men who came to the University campus during the semester were Julian Gillespie of Constantinople, Turkey, former student of the University and now commercial attache to Turkey; Clarence E.

Gilmore of the Texas Railway Commission; Fred P. Mann, Sr., an outstanding merchant of North Dakota; Harry H. Rodgers of San Antonio, capitalist and former president of Rotary International; J. L. Whitmire of Gannado, president of the United Merchants of Texas; P. R. Williams, vice-president of the Bank of Italy of Los Angeles and president of the American Institute of Banking; J. # Texas Publications Inherit Names from Non-Campus Papers

Do you know where the Ranger, the Alcalde, and The Texan, different publications of the University, all got their names? The various newspapers, printed at odd times by University students, adopted these names long before they were chosen for the mastheads of the University's present comic magazine, the ex-students' publication, and The Daily Texan, the present student daily, were started or even conceived of.

The Alcalde was the first in the list of campus papers. None of its first copies are available now, but it was begun soon after the University was established, and continued to be published until 1897, when the name "Alcalde" was dropped and "The Ranger" was substituted in its stead.

First Copy of Ranger

The first copy of the Ranger was issued Wednesday, November 3, 1897. J. C. Palm of the class of '98 was editor, and John O. Phillips was business manager. The sheet little resembled The Texan that is distributed to students today. It was about one-fourth the size of the present news sheet, and contained only four pages. The paper was issued weekly. It covered campus news almost exclusively, but printed the news of other colleges, particularly of Tulane, which sent in a weekly letter to the University.

Advertisements, which are never printed on the front pages of newspapers today, are to be found in every issue of the Ranger, giving it much the appearance of the small high school paper of today. This practice of placing advertisements on the front page continued until after the publication became a semi-weekly in 1908. No headlines were used in the paper for several years.

Only Three Schools

At the time of the printing of the Ranger, there were only three schools in the University, the College of Arts and Sciences, the School of Law, and the College of Engineering. Few of the present campus organizations were in existence at that time, although frequent mention was given to the Athenaeum and Rusk debating societies, and to the activities of the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A.

Social activities, freshman notes, athletics, and public speaking filled the remainder of the Ranger issues. Occasionally notes from the medical and pharmacy departments of the University were printed.

Editorial comment was printed almost anywhere in the issues. At one time the editorial might fill the entire front page, and in the next issue editorials would be relegated to a few brief paragraphs on page 4. Debates were of the greatest importance, and one instance a debate story occupied five-sixths of the first page, athletics being relegated to the inside.

Football games then, as today, were given due prominence. The games were played with teams from Houston, San Antonio, Dallas, and other cities nearby, few being scheduled with teams outside the state. This was due to the expense of sending a team year, who his campaign manager will be, and how many votes he can count on, etc. But no matter how many votes a candidate counts upon, he never gets what he expects, for some of his friends tell him that they will support him, yet the number of votes cast for him never tally with those promised him.

Some insist that politicians are merely social climbers after all, but this is not so. Office seekers are born not made! Any one who is just a social climber gives up the attempt after first trying to find a campaign manager, for they usually cannot find any one "high enough in society" to take the job.

Bellmont Has Yen for Rare Old Pictures

The fact that collecting rare, old pictures is a pet hobby with L. Theo Bellmont is ample reason for the vast number of pictures to be found in the channel of Z Hall. "Back in 1913, when I came to the University of Texas these pictures were not to be found in Z Hall," Mr. Bellmont remarked.

Mr. Bellmont immediately began collecting pictures for the purpose of preserving old ideals, so that future athletes and student could see the past as it had truly been. For the purpose of accumulating such pictures Mr. Lutch Stark immediately responded with a donation of $350. All available pictures dating back to 1893 were procured; many duplicates were made from the old Cactus.

At the present time, there are to be found 120 group pictures of the major sports; all are in one long, rectangular column of four rows. On the bottom row the football, on the second row the baseball, on the third row the track, and on the top row the basketball pictures are to be found. Likewise many other pictures are posted along the halls; in particular they are to be seen in the athletic offices of the various departments.

The most recent accumulation is a complete group of University coaches beginning with R. F. Hutchison of Princeton who was coach in 1903 and extending to B. M. Whitaker who was coach in 1922. These pictures are framed in two cases and kept in the business office of the athletic department.

Political Aspirants

they have to have friends who do go and who can draw in the votes from this quarter of the globe.

Managers Have Worries

In fact, politicians must be miniature globe trotters, they must be in every place at once. Their girls at two different sororities might ask them for dinner the same night, then the campaign manager must rack his brains to get his candidate out of his great trouble. Or on the night before his hardest exam, one of his doubtful voters might want to go to the show, again the manager's brains are called into use, for the candidate must save all of his thinking power until he gets into office.

However, after he gets into office, all of his time and brain effort will be spent in thinking which office he will run for next
