Salary Question May Be Settled By Legislature

Resolution Would Request Governor to Submit Adjustments

Vote Postponed

Change to Affect Those In Lower Salary Brackets

A resolution requesting Governor Miriam E. Ferguson to submit the question of adjustment of all State salaries to the extra session of the Forty-third Legislature was presented in the House of Representatives yesterday. The resolution was presented by Representative MacKay of Alcoa.

Vote on the resolution was postponed on a point of order by George Parkhouse, the point of order being the expiration of the time for consideration of resolutions in the house. Twenty minutes each day are allowed for presentation and consideration of resolutions.

Representative George Butler of Bryan spoke in favor of the resolution.

The measure has been endorsed by A. W. Griffith of Austin, as being a needed act of the Legislature.

Considered Wednesday

The resolution cited that living costs had increased materially since the regular session and adjustments were necessary, and pointed out that employees paid from the general revenue fund were required to discount their pay warrants.

The adjustments would be limited to employees in the lower salary brackets.

Representative W. E. Jones of Roundtown said many State employees were "fortunate to have a job to bring them bread and meat and are not in the bread lines."

"The State employees and the Legislature ought to realize there has been a depression and that we are trying to get up," Jones declared.

University Oil Royalty Mounts

$51,719.62 Paid in Last Month

University oil land royalties for the month of September amounted to $51,719.62, according to information issued by Sam Sayers, chief of the State land board.

This is an increase of $3,000 over the amount received the month before, and a $20,000 increase over the July income. The increase is due to the rise in oil prices of late, Mr. Sayers said. He added, however, that this is almost a 50 per cent decrease from the incomes for the same months last year. University officials are hopeful that the present price trend will continue.

WARRANTS TO BE CASHED

Information released from the office of Charley Lockhart, State treasurer, reveals that all holders of general revenue warrants up to $166,279 are at liberty to cash them.

Registration Day Hottest of Month

Students have probably already guessed it—registration day, September 20, was the hottest day of the whole month. The thermometer reached 98 degrees, A. R. W. Stoesen, weatherman, stated Tuesday in his monthly report.

September was the hottest ninth month since 1922. The mean temperature was 83.4 while that of September, 1922, was 84.2 degrees.

Purchasing Power Of Consumer To Gauge Oil Sales

Output of Products to Be Guided by General Business Trends

The really significant feature in gauging the immediate future of the oil producing and refining industries is the share of the total purchasing power of the consumer which will be allocated to the purchase of petroleum products, reports Elmer H. Johnson, industrial geographer in the University Bureau of Business Research.

"If total purchasing power can be substantially increased, which depends fundamentally upon increased business transactions, it seems fair to assume that the sales of petroleum products will increase at least relative to those of most other commodities," Mr. Johnson pointed out in his monthly analysis of the oil industry. While it does not follow that the converse of this statement may be true, it certainly is a factor to be considered.

$33,589 Already Paid In Blanket Tax Fees

C. H. Sparenberg, auditor of the University, announced Tuesday that an analysis of all fees paid through September 30 showed a total of $33,589 paid for blanket tax tickets by the 3,199 students who bought them.

Mr. Sparenberg was unable to give figures on the distribution of this sum because the president of the Students' Association, who is authorized by the Students' Assembly to apportion the funds, has not yet done so.

Date Extended For P. T. Registration

Miss Anna Hiss, director of physical training for women, issued a statement Tuesday that registration for physical training for women would not close until October 15.

Cuts are being counted, however, for those who have registered and have not signed up for physical training.

During the first two days of sectionizing, a new record was set when 1212 registered in the gym. The most popular courses offered are archery, tennis, clogging, and interpretative dancing.

Houston Students Form Organization

Plans for the organization of the "Houston Club" are being made by Worth Ware, associate editor of the Longhorn-Ranger. "As there are over 600 students from Houston, I feel that some organization should be formed that would bring a closer unity in work and activity," Ware said.

The meeting will be held in Garrison Hall 1, tonight at 7 o'clock. Future plans feature a Christmas dance to be held in Houston, intramural activities, and better cooperation in all activities of the University, Ware stated.

A. I. M. E. TO MEET

The American Institute of Mines and Metallurgical Engineers will hold their meeting in the new Engineering Building 137, Friday at 7 o'clock. R. B. Newcomb, instructor, stated that all members are requested to be present.

Fire Chief Asks Student Aid In Fire Prevention

October 8 to 14 Named As Date for Drive In Austin

Hazards Listed

Careless Smoking Causes Most Fires, Says Woody

John Woody, chief of the Austin Fire Department, in announcing plans for Fire Prevention Week, October 8 to 14, stated that University students could be of material assistance in the prevention of fires in Austin.

Chief Woody said, "One of the largest causes of fires is the careless use of matches and smoking materials. It is such a simple matter to make sure the match or 'but' is out before you discard it."

Chief Woody urged students not to connect electric cords of extensions themselves. This should be done by licensed electricians.

The accumulations of trash, papers, and rubbish in basements, attics, storage rooms and out buildings, he added, is a very common fire hazard.

Mentions Dangers

"Look over your heating plant and see if it is in proper condition for safe and efficient service this winter, as a large number of fires occur each winter from defective furnaces, stoves, and pipes.

"Inflammable materials such as books and papers should not be left near a stove.

"As Chief of the Fire Department, I suggest that an appropriate way to observe Fire Prevention Week would be for each person in the City of Austin to appoint himself or herself as fire inspector of his or her own home or place of business.

The Fire Department is just as eager to prevent fires as to put them out once they get started, not only during Fire Prevention Week but all the year round, and we will be glad to help in any way possible to remove any fire hazard," he said.

Shall Passes to Dances Be Offered By Assembly?

AN EDITORIAL

Some five years ago, at the time when the dances given under the auspices of the German Club were abolished, and the All-University Dance under the auspices of the Students' Assembly instituted, the practice of giving passes to assembly members and to many others was first begun. The first year very few passes to these dances were given to students not assembly members or to other persons, but the number has increased from year to year.

Last year more than 700 passes during the two semesters were issued and used by assembly members, football players, and a council members, to whom the assembly took the liberty of voting free passage to the All-University Dances. Although the number of 700 may not seem excessive for an entire year, it is interesting to note that at times the entire squad, plus the student managers, of visiting football teams have been voted passes merely for the reason that they had participated in an athletic contest with The University of Texas.

The matter of pass issuing has at last reached a point this year where it can no longer be overlooked or a disinterested view taken by the student body or those connected with the matter in student government. More and more passes have been granted each year since the practice first began, and the whole matter has reached such proportions as to be alarming. A very real problem must be faced by the assembly and each individual member of it, and the action which they take should interest every student of the University. If passes are issued the majority of the students should favor such action and if the majority do not favor it none should be issued. An expression of such student opinion is invited.

Mrs. Lutchter Stark Gives 1611 Copy of English Bible

"The most important single book in the State of Texas became the property of the University Tuesday," Miss Fannie Ratchford, Wrenn librarian, announced yesterday afternoon, "the gift of Mrs. Miriam Lutchter Stark of Orange." This book is a first issue of the first edition of the King James translation of the Bible. Since its publication in 1611, this book has become known as "The Greatest Book in the World," and has been described by A. Edward Newton in his essay of that name. Its influence on history certainly has been the most important of any printed work, Miss Ratchford said.

"A most unusual array of talented artists are expected to appear on the program," Ray Bonta, chairman of the committee in charge, stated. Present plans call for a midnight show, together with a popular local dance orchestra, several special numbers including a tap dance, a girls' trio who will sing current music hits, and a vaudeville skit.

Joe Hornaday was elected president of the organization to fill the place of Thomas Hagan, who did not return to school. Hornaday was also selected to represent the Texas chapter of Sigma

Ex-Student Drive Plans Under Way

Membership Expected To Double Because Of Campaign

Organization of the various districts for an extensive ex-student drive by members of the executive council of the Ex-Students' Association is rapidly getting under way, John A. McCurdy, secretary, announced Tuesday.

At the present time, Houston is the only district which has definitely set up its complete organization. Members of the association of the executive council are Hines H. Barker, general chairman; Dr. Ghent Graves, and Louis N. White, vice chairmen.

The Ex-Students' Association expects to double its membership of 2500 as the result of this extensive and vigorous campaign. Texas is divided into twelve districts with headquarters in the larger cities of the various parts of the country. These districts are Austin, Galveston, Houston, San Antonio, East Texas, Waco-Corsicana, Fort Worth, Wichita Falls, Amarillo Plains, Sweetwater-Abilene, and El Paso.

Chairmen for the local committee of Houston are E. M. Wise, president of the Texas Ex-Students' Club of Houston, and C. A. Pickett.

Mr. McCurdy has estimated that there were about 3,000 ex-students in Austin and in Houston; 2,500 in Dallas and San Antonio, and 2,000 in Fort Worth.

Plans are being made to conduct a personal canvass of each ex-student of this district.

Fight to Admit Bryan Girls Carried to District Court

An application for a writ of mandamus to compel directors of Texas A. & M. College, at College Station, to admit Bryan girls other than the daughters of employees of the college was presented to W. C. Davis, district court judge, at Bryan early this week.

The directors of the college, represented by Judge Nelson Phillips of Dallas, are planning to carry the legal fight to the State supreme court if necessary. The applicants have retained Colonel C. C. Todd, of Bryan, former commandant of Texas A. & M. College, to champion their cause in the fight.

Ex-Student Named Broadcast Editor

Leaves New York Paper For New Position

Edward Angly, graduate of the University, has resigned his position on the editorial staff of the New York Herald-Tribune, to accept that of night editor of the Columbia News Service, Inc., which was recently organized as the news gathering unit of the Columbia Broadcasting System, with headquarters in New York.

The radio news service may develop into a strong competitor with newspapers and the innovation is attracting wide attention on the part of newspaper men generally. For the present only high lights of the daily news grist will be announced over the radio, it was stated.

Mr. Angly's home was in Palestine. After completing his studies at the University, he was a member of the editorial staff of the Galveston News for about two years and then became connected with the Associated Press in New York. He was later assigned to the London office of the Associated Press where he served two years, and was then transferred to the Paris office of that organization where he spent another two years. His assignments took him to practically all of the capitals of Europe.

Dr. Dodgeon was enrolled in the University and its medical branch during the years of 1899-1903, taking his doctor of medicine degree the last year of his attendance. While in the medical school, he was elected president of the senior class.

Dr. C. M. Montgomery, professor of Romance languages, is a brother-in-law of the deceased.

Part Time Work Given 14 Girls

Students Work in Clipping Bureau During Day

Fourteen girls have part-time employment for the current long session of the University with the students' clipping bureau, Miss Lorena Drummond, assistant to the director of publicity, stated.

Students in the clipping bureau are employed in marking and clipping thousands of articles from current Texas newspapers. The clippings are used by a wide variety of clients. During the eighteen years in which the bureau has been in use, several hundred undergraduate girls of the University have been given part-time employment. The bureau is self-supporting, its receipts paying the salaries of the girls employed as well as incidental expenses.

The following girls have been chosen for the employment: markers, Blanche Miller of Dumas, Agnes Swenson of Manor, Alta Belle Duke of Woodville, Gladys Watford of Houston, Annie Lee Marshall of Graham, Edith Phillips of Austin, and Malvina Haidusek of West; clippers, Vivian McDaniel of Dallas, Luella Hawkes of Austin, Katherine Atkinson of Cameron, Margarine Powell of Center Point, Christine Zaharniak of West, Ivy Anderson of Manor, and Sarah Ella Black of Barstow.

Honoring the Majority

The following was picked up from the news columns of The New York Times which appeared under the by-line of Leslie A. Nichols, Jr. Our purpose in running the story is to instigate a similar investigation at The University of Texas.

Tentative plans are being drawn up at Syracuse University, Syracuse, N. Y., for a drive to reduce the large number of national as well as local honorary and professional societies on the campus. The effort, first broached during the spring semester, is largely the movement of a group of prominent senior students, although it is known to have, in general, the sympathy of Chancellor Charles W. Flint and other administrative officers. The drive will be chiefly educational. The facts will be made known to lower classmen, from whom the fraternities are recruited.

Such fraternities have become a "racket" in recent years, it is charged, operating on a tremendous scale throughout the country. Many facts about them were obtained last year when a group of upper classmen, enrolled in the School of Citizenship and Public Affairs, applied for permission to make a complete survey of the situation in connection with their theses. The proposition was sanctioned readily by directors of the school and other university administrative officers. It appears from this investigation that Syracuse University provides a typical example of a situation that exists in many large universities of the country.

Of the sixty-three honorary societies on the Syracuse campus, according to the report, thirty-eight have national affiliations. Although they are represented as "honorary" groups, it was estimated that a student has at least a 60 per cent chance of getting a key or pin. There are in many cases two, three, and even four organizations in the same field of activity, so that if the poorer student misses "making" the first, there is a chance that the second will consider his abilities, and so on.

Through the medium of a questionnaire, which was filled out in every case by some responsible officer of the society, the investigators ascertained the methods of the honorary fraternities in financing, paying officers, and keeping records. Of the nationally affiliated societies on the Syracuse campus, the investigating group learned the majority of the headquarters are located in the West. There were a number of fraternity officers, however, who admitted that they had no idea where their national headquarters were located. There are a total of nearly 1,500 chapters identified with the various national organizations represented on the Syracuse University campus.

The national groups on the Syracuse campus, the report showed, had about 1,150 student members, including 679 actives and 482 pledges, last year. This number represents about 22 per cent of the total student body and about 60 per cent of the junior and senior classes, from which the honorary and professional societies are made up.

These thirty-eight societies have a total budget of $10,088.50, 48 per cent of which is forwarded annually to the national headquarters. Of the $8,009 collected as initiation fees, $3,838 are sent to the national headquarters, it was revealed, and $908 of the $2,145 collected as dues each year goes similarly to the central offices.

MEDICINE'S ECONOMIC PROBLEMS

A significant economic and social trend was reflected in the program of the Indiana State Medical Association, which has just closed its annual session at French Lick. The members devoted considerable time to economic discussions for the first time in the history of the organization. Heretofore the meetings have been limited to scientific papers and round-table talks on various phases of medical and surgical problems. The physician always has been called on to contribute much charity work, but recent social trends and the effects of the depression have projected him into a new public relationship which may exert a profound effect on the profession.

Leaders of the Hoosier society continued their insistence on the retention of individualism in medical practice as opposed to the theory of mass medical attention that has been receiving emphasis in recent years. The doctors will continue to serve the indigent, working through township trustees and county or local societies in treatment of the poor. The fees charged will be nominal. The profession makes a sharp distinction between that type of service and socialization of medical practice. It contends that the personal relationship between the doctor and patient should be retained and that mass treatment of industrial or social groups is detrimental both to the doctor and the individual.

The state association was clearly within its rights in protesting against Federal competition with the profession, hospitals, and druggists in the veterans' hospitalization movement where that service involves care of non-service-connected disabilities. The Hoosier physicians will continue to cooperate in aiding those still suffering from wartime ailments. It is beyond the proper scope of governmental activity to provide medical attention to former service men whose ailments are in no way linked with military experience. Such procedure marks a step in the direction of state socialism. This tinkering of self-styled economists will destroy much of the medical profession's usefulness unless checked in time. Political meddling with the individualism of the medical fraternity is another factor which should be stoutly resisted.

FAIRNESS TO SENIORS

Picture the poor senior who, having struggled over final examinations for seven semesters, realizes that there will be no finals for him.

He accordingly budgets the time of his final semester, giving himself a few more days more on his term papers and a little more time hunting for that job. Suddenly he is shocked to hear the professor state that "we will have an examination at the last meeting of the class, and there will be no final."

Now picture the poor senior, working frantically to complete his term papers and at the same time studying for the exam.

Whether the professor thinks he is outsmarting the seniors by moving the final up a week, or whether he really needs more work from them to use as a basis for grading, is beside the question. Whether the seniors should be punished for "coasting" through the exam-less semester, or should be given some consideration of the tremendous amount of work involved in preparing to be graduated, is also beside the question.

The point is that, if the seniors are compelled to take finals (whether they are given at the scheduled time and called "finals" or shoved ahead and called "an examination"), they should be warned at the beginning of the semester.

many students being "honored"—twelve out of every twenty—and that there is far too much money going to national headquarters for which no return is made to the local organization, the group making the investigation stressed the need for a plan whereby these organizations might be consolidated. There is no necessity, it was stated, for having three journalism fraternities, half a dozen business administration groups, and several groups each in the fields of public speaking, engineering, architecture, forestry, chemistry, and fine arts, all duplicating the work of each other. Rather, it was recommended, there should be one honorary fraternity in each college and school of the university. Both sexes should be admitted to the honorary organizations.

Besides a general simplification of the system, some of the other recommendations advanced by the investigating group are:

1. Initiation fees should be limited, a maximum of $8 or $10 being considered a reasonable amount.

2. Special caution should be exercised to see that no national organization takes an excessive allotment from the local branch. Societies sending 80 per cent of their budgets away are considered to be victims of "rackets." Fifty per cent of the total budget could be established as the maximum allotment to any national organization.

3. Each organization should be required to keep a model financial report based on a model, simple, recording system. This report should be submitted semi-annually to constituted undergraduate or administrative authorities.

4. A general scholastic average requirement of "B" should be established as a prerequisite for admission to any of the honorary societies.

Stock Probe Continues
What-a-Man Dollfuss

By LeROY COLE

PROBE—Ferdinand Pecora and his Senate investigators resumed their stock market inquiry yesterday.

The first witness, Clarence Dillon, head of New York's Dillon Read & Co., in answer to Pecora's numerous questions, explained that his banking house was originally a partnership but in 1922 it became a joint stock company; that he owned the majority of the stock in the business; and that in 1927 Dillon Read & Co. had demand deposits amounting to more than $5,000,000, representing only seventeen accounts, but that since that time the company has discontinued accepting deposits and had none at present.

Dillon further explained that none of the members of the firm are directors of any Federal Reserve Member banks, and that they sit on boards of only a few industrial firms.

ASSASSIN—Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss, Austria's diminutive dictator, was slightly wounded by an assassin in Vienna yesterday, but an hour after receiving treatment he was able to continue with official duties.

In his battle to prevent German Nazis from gaining control of Austria, Chancellor Dollfuss recently reorganized the government by appointing himself Minister of Foreign Affairs, of Defense, of Public Security, and of Agriculture, and recognized the fascist military organization known as the Home Guard. In so doing he aroused the ire of the socialists who, in their opposition to both the government and the Home Guard, have brought Austrian politics to the boiling point.

DEFIANCE—Although the soft coal code, designed to bring peace to the strike-swept area in western Pennsylvania, was scheduled to go into effect Monday, not a single mine has resumed operations.

The action of 75,000 miners in refusing to return to work is in direct defiance to the orders of the union leaders, and, although they have planned a gigantic mass meeting, their reason for continuing the strike has not been explained.

TREE ARMY—Selection of men for the second six months' period of forest work under the Civilian Conservation Corps was begun Monday. Although this period was not scheduled to begin until November 1, authorities decided to allow the men to return home during October. This will save issuing them winter clothes and bedding.

Any men now in the camps may re-enroll if they so desire, and in addition to those who re-enroll, about 75,000 new men will be enlisted.

TRUST FUND—A holder of Insull Company debentures has secured an order restraining withdrawals from a trust fund in a Chicago bank as the result of a claim that the former utilities tycoon was using it as a source of income. The holder, Gus Lowery, charged that the fugitive magnate, who is now in Greece, has a secret million dollar trust fund in the bank under the name of Constantine E. Eftax.

After the order was issued, government authorities admitted that the fund had been under investigation for some time in connection with Roosevelt's gold hoarding orders.

The bank, however, denied that they had ever done any business with Insull, and claimed that the account belonged to a Chicago drug store owner, now living in Greece. Insull, in Athens, also denied the charge with the words "absolute rubbish" and "No such luck."

Cotton Income Sets Pace For Texas Business Trend

Income from cotton is the biggest factor in setting the pace for Texas business, says Dr. A. B. Cox, director of the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research.

"Bear in mind the cotton income of Texas is not evenly distributed over the State," he explained. "Indeed, there are large areas in Texas, where cotton as a source of income is negligible. Cotton predominates in all regions in the State possessing deep, rich soils, except the high plains in the northern Panhandle. The black prairie regions of north and central Texas, including such widely separated cities as Paris, Gainesville, Greenville, Cleburne, Dallas, Fort Worth, Waxahachie, Corsicana, Waco, Taylor, Georgetown, Austin, Lockhart, Seguin, and San Antonio, outline in a general way the major cotton region of Texas. Other important cotton-growing regions are: coastal black prairies and the interior coastal plains extending from Houston to below Corpus Christi and including such other cities as Robstown, Kenedy, Cuero, Yoakum, Victoria, Gonzales, Richmond, La Grange, and Brenham; the East Texas red lands regions centered around Longview, Marshall, Tyler, and Palestine; the Abilene-Haskell plains region including such cities as Brady, Coleman, Ballinger, Abilene, Sweetwater, Stamford, Seymour, Vernon, and Quanah; the high plains region centered around Lubbock but including such towns as Lamesa, Post, Slaton, Crosbyton, and Littlefield; and the Red River rolling plains region, including such towns as Childress, Memphis, and Shamrock.

"In addition to the regions outlined there are smaller regions and cities largely dependent on cotton such as the alluvial areas represented by such cities as Navasota, Bryan, and Hearne. Other important centers dependent largely on cotton are Clarksville, Wichita Falls, Brownwood, Snyder, and Galveston.

"The areas and towns mentioned above not only receive a major portion of their income from cotton production or the processing and handling of it, but the prospects for cotton dominate their business outlook as well.

"What, then, is the business outlook for the regions and cities mentioned insofar as they depend on cotton?

Social Relations Studied by Group

Interfraternity Council Passes Resolutions

Presided over by the new president, George Kroll, the Interfraternity Council met Tuesday night at the Chi Phi fraternity house in the initial meeting of the year. Dean V. I. Moore was guest of honor.

An introductory address of welcome was given by Kroll to the new members of the council after which each member was called upon to introduce himself to the group. The president urged full cooperation during the coming year, and pointed out that the council was in a position to do a considerable amount of constructive work.

New business consisted of attempting to establish a definite night on which fraternities should meet. However, no definite night was set due to conflicts between the proposed time, Monday nights, and the meetings of other campus organizations. President Kroll appointed himself as a committee of one to seek out the leaders of these conflicting organizations and work out a compromise.

Moore Explains Rush Rules. Dean Moore was called upon by the president to say a few words, and in his address brought out a proposed change in the sorority rushing rules to come before the committee on social relations in its meeting Thursday afternoon.

The proposed change in the sorority rushing rules submitted by the Pan-Hellenic Council will permit, if sanctioned by the committee, the sororities to hold open houses or teas at the chapter houses twice a month to which ineligible girls will be permitted to attend. A resolution was passed by the Interfraternity Council to consider this change with the possibility that fraternities might adopt it, and a committee was appointed to sit with the committee on social relations in its meeting Thursday and report its findings at the next regular meeting.

Women Visitors Requested. The question of granting those fraternities who have house mothers special social privileges was raised by Dean Moore. In concluding this matter the council adopted a resolution whereby Dean Moore was petitioned to bring the matter before the committee on social relations and petition it to grant fraternities the right to have women visitors at fraternity houses Tuesday and Thursday evenings between the hours of 6 o'clock and 8 o'clock. Those fraternities not having house mothers would secure either a temporary or a permanent chaperon.

Margaret Graham, a former student in the University, is now acting as substitute teacher in the San Antonio schools.

Elizabeth Autrey visited the Theta house last week-end.

This year bids fair to be approximately $84,000,000, or 56 per cent more than last year in dollars. This calculation is based on the last government report which indicated a crop for Texas of 3,815,000 bales of 500 pounds gross. The price used is 9 cents per pound which is one cent under the recently announced Federal loan value of cotton to the farmers. This would make the total value of the lint about $170,000,000. In addition to this the Federal Government is paying or has paid about $44,000,000 to Texas cotton farmers to plow up growing cotton. Cottonseed is worth an average price at the gin of about $14 a ton or a gross value of about $20,000,000, not including reserves held for planting seed. A conservatively calculated value of the cotton crop for Texas this year is therefore about $234,000,000. Based on the same method of calculation and an average price of 6 cents per pound, the crop last year was worth to Texas approximately $150,000,000.

"According to the Bureau of Labor Statistics, the buying power of the dollar has decreased about 7 per cent from September last year. Taken together, these figures indicate that the buying power received from cotton in Texas this year will be approximately 50 per cent more than last year."

Firing line: One of the lady instructors in the University has made a very important criticism of the young men who frequently enjoy the "Turkish Deity" or an "Egyptian Trophy," or whatever brand of cigarette he may prefer. "On my way to Main Building this morning I was forced to inhale cigarette smoke along the entire route," she said. It is a very lamentable fact that most of the students of Texas have never so far learned that it is extremely impolite to smoke in the presence of a lady, most especially without asking her permission.

No night shirt parade was held last night in celebration of the victory over Poly. The boys are conserving their energy and the girls their screams for future victories.

Associations Give Hike and Steak-fry

Upperclassmen interested in hiking are invited to participate in a hike and steak fry sponsored jointly by the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A., Joe Brown, chairman of the hike committee, stated Tuesday. The date for the first hike has been set for October 14, and the group will go to Mount Bonnel. More definite plans will be announced later, Brown said.

Members of Brown's committee are Genevieve Clark, Ann Ramsdell, Lelia Wendell, Charles Bintliff, Ollie Heard, and Carl Czigan.

THEATERS

ONE SUNDAY AFTER-NOON opens today to play through Friday at the Paramount. Gary Cooper, Frances Fuller, Neil Hamilton, Fay Wray, and Roscoe Karns are included in the cast. "THE LAST TRAIL" with George O'Brien, Claire Trevor, and El Brendel, opens today to play through Friday at the Queen.

JIMMIE ALLARD'S Showboat Minstrels on the stage today through Thursday at the Hancock. "The Unwritten Law" with Greta Nissen, Skeets Gallagher, Lew Cody, and Mary Brian, will be shown on the screen.

"TERROR ABROAD" with Neil Hamilton, Charlie Ruggles, and Shirley Grey, today only at the Texas. "The Warrior's Husband" with Elissa Landi and Fredric March, starts Thursday.

Reviewed Today

JURNELL PRATT, an actor whose name never appears in box-car letters, steals the show from his more featured cohorts in "The Unwritten Law" now on at the Hancock. Greta Nissen, Lew Cody, Theodore Von Eltz, Skeets Gallagher, and Wilfred Lucas turn in very fair impersonations. Pratt, Stephen McBride the mystery writer, former sojourner in exotic lands and Hollywood scientist, exhibits a personality which actively fits his part. His voice is clearly audible and quite pleasing, and his acting is worthy of more and better opportunities.

The setting of this film is backstage and traveling Hollywood, and the actors are chosen to typify the usual impressions of directors, actresses, actresses' mothers, electricians, etc. The theme is that McBride (Pratt) is a man whom the producer, Roger Morgan (Lew Cody), thought he had killed "accidentally" many years before, and whose wife, Jean (Hedda Hopper), he had stolen. Mary Grant is the daughter of McBride and Jean and is an ingenue actress whom Morgan plans to ruin when she turns up. While she is initiated into his new job as scenario writer, McBride finds that the new chief is none other than the man who wronged him and whom he has been seeking all the years. The most dramatic scene in the show comes when McBride discusses the problem of his latest murder story (which is really his own case) and has the assemblage unwittingly act as jury to decide the fate of the squirming villain. The solution is well presented and interesting.

Estimate: C. In spite of a paucity of performers and settings the Show-at Minstrels, appearing on this public program, manage to get a few laughs and entertain with some fairly good tap dancing. The piano player, though inconspicuous, is good, and the best act in the show. No Estimate. —T.P.

Opening Today

ONE SUNDAY AFTERNOON with Gary Cooper, Frances Fuller, Roscoe Karns, Neil Hamilton, and Fay Wray opens today to play through Friday at the Paramount. It is the story of a man who wondered for years whether he had married the right woman until fate showed him. It is a theme of sweet, sentimental romance; the sort of picture to see with some one you love.

THE LAST TRAIL with Claire Trevor, George O'Brien, and El Brendel opens today to play through Friday at the Queen. The picture shows what happens when gangsters with their guerrilla warfare meet cowboys of the west in their simple but effective methods of fighting. And it's not hard to guess which comes out on top. It is a fast-moving drama with a combination of love, adventure, and comedy.

REINHARDT PROTEGE Dorothea Wieck, star of "Maedchen in Uniform," and now in "Cradle Song" for Paramount, started her stage career with Max Reinhardt.

CAPABLE AIDES USED The Four Marx Brothers, now making "Duck Soup" at Paramount, selected experienced actors for all supporting roles because 1 parts in their pictures must be played in an exaggerated manner.

SMOKING LOST JOB William Gargan, in Cecil B. DeMille's Paramount picture, "Four Frightened People," was once a street car conductor and lost his job because he requested a cigarette from a passenger.

GREEN REAL LAWYER Harry Green, featured in "Too Much Harmony," Bing Crosby's new Paramount picture, was graduated from New York University with a degree in law.

ALICE LAKE BACK Alice Lake, well known star of silent pictures, plays a minor role in Mae West's new Paramount picture, "I'm No Angel."

March, Cooper, Nissen, O'Brien Star in Shows

Lower center: Greta Nissen, who has a featured role in "The Unwritten Law," now showing on the screen at the Hancock. Lower right: Claire Trevor and George O'Brien in a scene from Zane Grey's "The Last Trail" opening today at the Queen.

during the final six months of 1933 will be nearly 3 per cent greater than that of the last six months of 1932. One factor considered of primary importance by the committee in making this estimate is the recent sharp advance in automobile sales and the expectation that this trend will continue. It has been stated, too, that the movement toward shorter working hours and the five-day week should aid the consumption of gasoline. Both of these assumptions are obviously dependent upon an increased purchasing power expended for automobiles and petroleum products—which is another way of saying that the oil industry and the automobile industry are dependent fundamentally upon the general business trends and developments. Moreover, it is to be expected, and the indications are, that as business recovery does tend to become more evident, the oil industry will be in a position to contribute its full share—and a very significant share it is—in such recovery.

"Considerable activity in the various phases of the oil industry may be reasonably expected in the various portions of the State in the near future, a full discussion of which involves a critical examination of long-range policies dealing with one of the most important natural resources of the State and of the Southwest as well as one of the fundamental industries of this section of the country.

Developments Noted "Several forms of recent developments in various phases of the oil industry are worthy of brief consideration here. For instance, the dominant position of the Gulf Coast section in the refining industry and in the oil industry as a whole is one that is commanding more and more national recognition. It is said that the planning and coordinating committee at Washington has recommended the Gulf Coast section be taken as the base in establishing prices for a considerable share of the prices of petroleum products in eastern United States. For example, a base price for gasoline in the Gulf Coast region would be established by the government, according to this plan. Prices at Atlantic Coast refineries and ocean terminals would be determined by adding to the Gulf Coast base the cost of water transportation. For points interior in the eastern market, rail costs would be added to the Atlantic Coast prices. The implications of this plan are clearly of great importance in determining gasoline prices, or the prices of any other petroleum products considered in this plan.

"Demands for several forms of oil products such as fuels and kerosene are approaching their seasonal maximum. Marine demand for fuel and diesel engines has increased in recent months. Industrial domestic demand for such products is obviously closely tied up with general industrial recovery. There are possibilities that demand for domestic heating in the eastern market may be even greater than was the case during last season.

"Gasoline sales, as reported by the State comptroller, on the basis of taxes collected, amounted to 65,700,000 gallons in July, as compared with 71,666,000 gallons in June and 66,436,000 gallons in July a year ago."

Volume Two Of Texas Geology May Be Issued

First Part by Sellards, Adkins, and Plummer Already Out

The volume of the "Geology of Texas," written by Dr. E. H. Sellards, director of the Bureau of Economic Geology at the University, and Dr. W. S. Adkins and Dr. F. B. Plummer, is to be followed by a second volume, issued from the Johan August Udden Publication and Memorial Fund, if the demand is found to be sufficient to pay the cost of publication. The manuscripts of both books were written and designed as memorials to Dr. Udden, for many years director of the Bureau of Economic Geology at the University. His research brought about the first development of the oil resources of West Texas.

There is a completed manuscript in the preparation of which the author, a specialist of national standing, devoted much of her time for eight years. The manuscript is illustrated by twenty plates of fossils, all of the photographs having been made to secure the best possible results by a specialist in photographing fossils. The text has been critically read by an editor experienced in passing manuscripts for publication. The manuscript referred to is "The Macro-Fossils and Stratigraphy of the Midway Group of Texas," by Dr. Julia Gardner.

The manuscript, begun in 1925 and completed in 1933, was planned as a joint project between the Bureau of Economic Geology and the United States Geological Survey. This project, begun under the direction of Dr. Udden, would be an admirable second volume to be issued from the memorial fund.

University Boasts Largest Newspaper Library in South

By OLNEY DAVIS

That The University of Texas boasts the largest and most complete newspaper library south of the Mason-Dixon line is probably news to most students in the University. With all of the new buildings being in the final stage of construction and the activity existing on the campus, it is indeed easy to lose sight of some of the older, well-established University institutions. The newspaper library, now located on the fourth floor of Sutton Hall, is an organization which is a real credit to the school, but with which very few students are really acquainted.

Some years ago, Major George Littlefield, Austin philanthropist and a liberal donor of many valuable gifts to the University, gave $150,000 to promote the study of Southwestern history. A part of this gift has been used to establish and maintain the Newspaper Library, E. R. Dabney, newspaper supervisor, said recently.

The first home of the library was in the basement of Main Building, where it was located until 1917, when it was moved to the fourth floor of Sutton Hall. When the new Library Building, now under construction, is completed, the library will occupy the entire first floor of the building and part of the second floor if additional space is needed. The newest and best library desks, tables, chairs, and shelving equipment to be had will furnish the new quarters, which are not expected to be available until the first of the year.

It is not only the largest newspaper library in the South, but also contains the largest collection of southern newspapers in the country. The files now contain nearly 17,000 bound volumes of newspapers.

Of great interest is the age of some of the papers in the files. Volumes of The News and Courier of Charleston contain papers which date from 1803. Most of the earlier papers from Arkansas are in the collection and include most of the issues of the Arkansas Gazette which was printed from 1819 to 1847. An old Dallas newspaper, The Dallas Herald, which was started in 1849 and absorbed later by The Dallas Morning News has most of its copies preserved in the collection. Many of the older papers were forced to discontinue publication during the Civil War, but the small paper which was published in Clarksville ran continuous issues from 1842 until 1878. The San Antonio Zeitung instigated anti-slavery propaganda in the Southwest and was forced to close its press at the outbreak of the war.

Many papers of the old South, especially in Virginia and Georgia, are among the valuable ones in the collection. An interesting tale is told of the establishment of one of these old papers. A gambler, winning several thousand dollars in a poker game in the North, came South and with his

Boating Club Plans Regatta October 12

Ernest McDaniel, connected with the Kennelwood Boat Club, Saturday announced the plans for a picnic and regatta to be held Columbus Day, October 12, at Lake Austin. Boat racing, including boats of all shapes and sizes, will be a feature of the day.

McDaniels, a senior in the University, and Clarence Kuhlman, ex-student, have organized a troop of sea scouts, the purpose of which organization is to teach land scouts the lore of the sea.

FOUNDATION MEETS

The initial meeting of the Hillel Foundation Student Council was held Monday afternoon in the office of the Hillel Foundation, Victor Ravel, president of the group, said Tuesday.

With an address of welcome, extended to new members of the organization, the president opened the first meeting of the year. Social plans for the year were outlined, cultural programs prepared, and athletic organization of intramural teams for the various sports were discussed and an outline of activities compiled for the year.

Plans for an open house to be held Saturday night, October 7, were also voted upon by members of the council. The program will be under the direction of Rabbi Baron.

LITERARY GROUP MEETS

Sidney Lanier Literary Society will hold a meeting at 5 o'clock Thursday afternoon in the girls' study hall, Main Building, Helen Blackburn, president of the society, announced. All members are urged to be present, Miss Blackburn said.

TO HOLD MEETING

Jimmie Miller, manager of Brickmridge Hall, announced that a meeting will be held Wednesday night at 7:30 o'clock in the lodge room for the purpose of discussing the plans for the fall dance. Also offices which are now open will be filled at the meeting.

Registrar Gets Queer Requests

The Registrar's office has another significance! It is the birthplace of many funny incidents, which are retold by Alice Root, information clerk.

Students are using the temporary directory at all times during the day, and Miss Root answers requests over the telephone on the average of "one every three seconds."

Strange requests over the telephone are many and amusing. A student called the Registrar's office to find out the name of the girl who sits behind him in English class. Several others describe girls over the telephone and would like to know their names and other interesting information. There has been a large number of students who have gone to the Registrar's office to inquire as to where they may find their P. T. lockers.

A freshman boy asked, much to the amusement of the crowded office, whether he could have a permit to go to town.

New York University Gets First Diploma

New York University last week came into possession of its first diploma, issued 100 years ago to James Josephum Acheson.

The faded parchment was obtained from Russel A. Chapin of Santa Monica, Cal., a grandson of the first graduate.

When Acheson was a student at the University the professor of painting and sculpture was Samuel F. B. Morse, later the inventor of telegraphy.

Acheson later became a prominent doctor in New York and Brooklyn.

Little Campus Free Press Flays, Ridicules Inmates

Boasting the motto, "Costs nothing, worth it," the Little Campus Free Press made its first appearance of the year in the dormitory Monday afternoon.

In its introductory word to the reader, the editor, who preferred to remain incognito, stated the intention of the periodical to print "All the news that's fit to print, and any other dirt we can get hold of."

The Free Press, a two-sheet mimeographed weekly appearing every Sunday, is the official voice of the dormitory. In it the members of the group are free to express their views on anything from disarmament to their roommate's idiosyncracies.

This week's issue flayed mercilessly both old and new occupants of the dormitory, discussing freely the shortcomings of all. Because there are as yet no sport activities, the editor gave over the sport page to poetry.

FALL WEATHER WELCOMED BY BAND LETTER MEMBERS

Members of last year's Longhorn Band are waiting for cold weather to give them an opportunity to show off their new sweaters.

The sweaters, solid white in color with orange lyres on their fronts and an orange "T" in the middle of each lyre, were awarded to thirty-one band members, and to Burnett Pharr, director, and Joe Sheppard, assistant director.

Jack Pulliam, member of the advisory board of the band, stated that qualifications required of the men receiving sweaters were attendance for two-thirds of the year, musical ability, and general attitude.

Band members who will be sporting sweaters on the campus this year are Fred Becker, Mitchell Boyd, Arthur Hoffman, Nelson James, John May, Ben Parkinson, James Russell, Frank Stafford, R. C. Vaughn, Pope Lawrence, Byron Bronstad, Tom Crawford, Dunbar Fisher, Emil Hoffman, C. A. Hoover, Shelton Justiss, Carlos Leggett, Perry Pye, Jack Pulliam, Bob Hibbets, Marvin Camp, David Hamner, Leonard Smith, Tom Sammons, Millard Shaw, Charles Warman, Sumner Williams, E. C. Hoppe, Neal Owen, Sol Smith, and Bobby Tyler.

Alpha Delta Pi announces the pledging of Frances Brooks of Abilene and Bertie Heyne of Glen Flora.

Worth Parker will attend the Texas-Nebraska football game Saturday.

B. Hall Deserted For New Home By Journalists

Wrinkled yellow paper, a few cobwebs, some old Texans, out-of-date receipts, and numerous piles of trash were the only souvenirs which were left yesterday in B. Hall, the former center of journalistic activity. For the first time in history, the noise made by Journalism 12 students at their typewriters was equaled by the moving of desks, chairs, tables, files, and all that mysterious-looking equipment which is said to inspire the authors of The Cactus, The Daily Texan, and The Longhorn.

W. L. McGill, manager of Student Publications, Inc., while he was moving furniture, giving orders, answering questions, and what-have-you, smiled broadly. He seemed happy because the department of journalism was at last moving, even though he might have to work until midnight to put the offices in order.

Athenaeum Elects Two New Members

John Junior Bell, Frank Knapp, Herman Wright, and S. S. Bararia were the principal speakers at the meeting of the Athenaeum Literary Society Monday night.

Two new members, Norman Nicholson and N. Carter, were added to the society.

The club voted to continue their meetings in the Law Building instead of moving to the Texas Union, as had previously been suggested.

Lorwen Williams went to Fort Worth Friday, September 29, where she was bridesmaid to her cousin, Rachel Williams. She returned to the campus Sunday.
