As Dr. Rainey Regards
the Youth Problem

Pope's Kin Mourns His Death

Among the thousands of Catholics in New England mourning the death of the "Pope of Peace" is Mrs. Anselma Toneatti, 50, of Gloucester, Mass., one of five blood relatives now living in the United States. Her father was a second cousin of Pope Pius XI, about whose death she is shown reading.

Alsup Says 2 Profs O. K. No-Math-Language Bill

DORAINE GEIGER

Two University professors, whose names Representative Lon E. Alsup refused to give to The Daily Texan last night, have told him that they will appear before the House committee on education when it holds a hearing on his bill, or a proposed substitute, to abolish foreign language and mathematics requirements for a bachelor of arts degree.

The hearing will probably be next Wednesday night, Mr. Alsup added.

Substitution of a "less strong" bill was announced last night by Mr. Alsup. This new proposal would create a Liberal Plan, to be added to the present Plans I and II. Under it students who do not intend to continue in graduate work in other institutions, such as Harvard and Michigan, would not have to take foreign language or mathematics.

The revised proposal would make the language and math requirements binding only upon those whose later work would make the subjects necessary.

The two professors have already indicated they would support this alternative, Mr. Alsup declared.

First mention of eliminating foreign language requirements for bachelor of arts degrees was made a month ago by Representative Joseph White Jr. of New Boston. In bill form the suggestion was introduced recently by Alsup as House Bill No. 401.

The bill, pertaining to requirements for a bachelor of arts degree and a master of arts degree, also applies to a bachelor of science and master of science degrees in education.

By BILL COWAN

"Germany has economically absorbed Europe since Munich," Countess Listowel, Hungarian-born British journalist, told an audience in Hogg Memorial Auditorium last night. Pointing out on a large map the changes in Europe since the Munich Pact, Countess Listowel said they resulted from Germany's aerial supremacy, political and economic position, and Russia's weakness.

U. T. Has Awarded 4,012 Graduate Degrees

Graduate degree awards at the University have climbed to 4,012, with last year's 370 as a peak, Dr. A. P. Brogan, dean of the Graduate School, said Monday.

The number of degrees increased fifty last year, Dean Brogan added, with 337 masters' and 33 doctors' degrees being awarded. Recent attention was focused on the Graduate School when Dr. H. P. Rainey, University President-elect, affirmed that to expand it was one of his five major objectives as head of the institution. Advanced degrees have been awarded since 1884.

Norton to Deal Texas Trouble

Gray Concentrates On Defense Drills

By CHARLES SANSOME

"The time has come," The Walrus said, "To talk of many things . . ."

Yea, verily. Even of South-west Conference basketball championships. For tonight at 8 o'clock Jack Gray's University of Texas Longhorns meet Whitey Bacus's S.M.U. Mustangs, with whom they are tied for first place.

J. D. "Sniper" Norton, Pony spark-plug and ace forward, is reported to be hale and hearty once more after a siege of influenza. This spells nothing but trouble for the Longhorns, and if he is in top form, pay shots for the home team will be as scarce as the Nazi salute in a ghetto. Paired with Norton at forward will be Billy Dewell, another Mustang ace who has been an all-conference forward, as well as an outstanding member of the S.M.U. team, for two years.

CONFERENCE STANDINGS

Team	W	L	Pct.	Pts.	Opt.
S.M.U.	5	2	.714	245	232
Texas	5	2	.714	265	270
Rice	4	2	.667	250	227
Baylor	6	3	.667	392	313
Arkansas	5	3	.625	333	305
A.M.	1	6	.143	222	266
T.C.U.	0	8	.000	245	323

Others expected to break into the opposing lineup as starters are Wilkerson, center, and Dougherty and Coppedge, guards.

Coach Gray would not divulge his starting lineup Tuesday afternoon, but it is almost certain that Texas rosters will see Captain Willie Tate at center, Bobby Moers and Oran Spears at guards, Thurman Hull at one forward post, and Denton Cooley, Chester Granville, or Elmer Finley at the other.

An added attraction will be presented between the halves when the University tumbling team will give an exhibition that promises to be much better than the popularly-received show given at the first Kansas-Texas game. More thrills, more stunts, and more comedy are planned for Wednesday night.

In the short cage practice Tuesday afternoon Coach Gray spent much of the time coaching individuals in guarding in a last-minute effort to keep Norton's and Dewell's scoring down to a minimum. He was evidently satisfied with the Steer offense, as he conducted only a twenty-minute routine offensive scrimmage. If that practice session is any indication of the Steers' play tonight, however, it would be best to recall that the Mustangs are a powerful defensive club, despite Baylor's 60 points.

Declamation Entries Offered Coaching

Students entering the annual Wilmot declamation contest in March may receive coaching from teachers in the Department of Public Speaking by applying to Howard W. Townsend, director of the contest, at Main Building 2503.

The founder of the contest was E. P. Wilmot, founder of the Austin National Bank. Since Mr. Wilmot's death, the contest has been carried on as a memorial to him.

The contest, which is for first-year freshmen, has two divisions, one for men and the other for women students. A preliminary contest will be held a week before the final. First prize in each division is $25 in cash. The second prize, $15 in books, is given by the University Co-Op.

Law Faculty Opposes Student-Backed Bill Exempting U. T. Graduates From Bar Exam

Students and faculty of the School of Law of the University have taken opposite stands on the proposed bill before the House of Representatives which would exempt graduates of university law schools from bar examination requirements.

In a special meeting Monday afternoon the law faculty, with only one dissenting vote, passed a resolution expressing opposition to the bill; however, during the past three weeks law school students have taken an opposing view, definitely for the proposed bill, and have urged their representatives and senators to support the measure.

A report of the faculty meeting Monday stated that "Whereas, there is now pending before the Texas Legislature a bill which proposes to restore the so-called 'diploma privilege' exempting graduates of certain law schools from taking the state bar examinations, it is resolved that the faculty of the School of Law favor the retention of the present system of admission to the bar by which all candidates are required to pass the state bar examinations, as was provided for by the Forty-fourth Session of the Legislature."

The faculty based its report, as it did in both 1935 and 1937, during which years a similar bill was also proposed before the Legislature, on four points, as follows:

1. The denial of the diploma privilege is in conformity with the views of the American Bar Association which at the annual meeting in 1921 resolved that "The American Bar Association is of the opinion that graduation from a law school should not confer the right of admission to the Bar and that every candidate should be subject to an examination by public authority to determine his fitness."

2. It is in conformity with the recommendations of the Texas Bar Association in 1932.

3. It is in conformity with the recommendations of the Texas Civil Judicial Council in 1932.

4. It is in conformity with the practice in thirty-three states of the nation.

Members of the faculty expressed their belief that the abolition of the diploma privilege by the Forty-fourth Legislature was a step in the right direction because it means that all persons applying for admission to the bar are judged by the same standard, rather than by standards that See LAW FACULTY, Page 2.

Bears Beat Aggies, 47-23, to Move Into Tie With Rice for Third Place

Aggies to Start Spring Training

Special to the Texan.
COLLEGE STATION, Feb. 14.—With one week of winter training behind them the Texas Aggie football squad will begin a round-robin tournament Tuesday afternoon, February 14, by staging games between the A team, or New York Giants, and the C team, or Washington Redskins; and B team, or Green Bay Packers, and the D squad, or Chicago Bears.

This is somewhat of an innovation at A.M., but Coach Homer Norton has announced that he expects to develop the squad as team units so that he may substitute in waves next season. While he has not announced it definitely, he has intimated that the winner of the coming tournament will rate serious consideration as the Aggies' starting team next fall.

The tournament will consist of ten games to be played between the four teams with the finals for the championship to be played March 2 between the two teams heading the league.

SCHEDULES OUTLINED

Volleyball and shuffleboard schedules will be outlined Monday, February 20, at 5 o'clock at a Sports Managers' meeting. Mrs. Frances Seybolt, girls' intramural sports secretary, has announced.

Rich or Lazy Or Simply Crazy? 40 Evade Jobs

"Lobbying" against Roosevelt's emergency spending measures was being carried on yesterday by forty University students who were seemingly trying to impede the flow of money from the United States treasury.

N.Y.A. headquarters, which is to say the office of V. I. Moore, dean of student life, reported that number of promised jobs yet un-called-for, their rightful owners "among those missing."

"They must be waiting for us to send them engraved invitations to come and get their jobs," said Dean Moore Tuesday night. His language, translated, would intimate that if any of them are expecting such a tea party, they should go to an A.M.-Texas basketball game in College Station.

Today at 1 o'clock he sets as deadline by which those holding options on jobs must call for, if they expect to get, the promised jobs. After that time, the positions will fall to the next names on the waiting list.

Racket Club Adds Three New Members

Three new members have been added to the Racket Club, officials have announced. They are Charlene Yeager, Pauline Chilton, and Jane Dalls.

The new members are winners in recent try-outs. Miss Yeager, San Antonio freshman, was winner in Interscholastic League singles last year.

The club will meet this afternoon at 4:45 o'clock on the terrace courts. In case of rain, the meeting will be held in the library of the Women's Gym.

last week. Moers was not dribbling with his usual agility. Tate was missing easy crisp shots, and Granville was butterfingering.

When asked about such a poor showing, Coach Gray replied, "The boys have been a little off stride today, but I believe they are ready."

The fact that officials are expecting a record crowd—an even larger one than that which attended that Steer-Frog game in 1933 when Texas won the championship—should lend moral support to the Longhorns in their drive for conference leadership.

Enlarging Gregory Gym's seating capacity may permit 7,000 fans to boo and cheer Dusty Bogges and Jack Sisco, officials.

Game time will find every inch of space used, Ed Olie, business manager, said.

Tickets may be bought in advance at the business office in Gregory Gym. Charges are 50 and 25 cents. Students will be admitted on their blanket tax.

Vaughn Leads Baylor With 15 Points

Special to the Texan.
WACO, Feb. 14.—Baylor's Bears will be gunning for the University of Texas Longhorns Saturday night to climb higher in the championship race after downing A.M. College Aggies here tonight, 47-23. The Bruins are now tied with the Rice Owls for third place.

For five full minutes the teams fought in a melee rather than a basketball game before Grady Vaughn dropped a field goal to unlock the tie and give the Bears a 6-4 lead.

Judge Smith, Aggie forward, meshed a free throw and two quick shots from the court to keep the Aggies close on the heels of the Bears, but the locals never relinquished the lead. At the half the count stood 18-14.

Pete Creasey and Vaughn burned up the hoop, but "Big Dog" Dawson of the Cadets could not click and the Bruins widened the gap. Five minutes after the half Frank Bryski fouled out and Happy Shahan followed eight minutes later.

Vaughn took the scoring honors for the locals, and Smith led the invaders with 15 and 9 points respectively. Both coaches used all of the squads.

Fitzgerald Speaks On Ethics in Trade

Business can be ethical in spite of competition, J. Anderson Fitzgerald, dean of the School of Business Administration, said in his talk on "Can Business Be Ethical?" at the Austin High School forum Monday night.

The consumer must be treated justly and fairly because the customer will patronize the source that gives him the best service, Dean Fitzgerald said. Some business men try to accumulate wealth by unfair means, but this is not the standard practice.

"Codes of ethics have been developed in nearly every branch of business in an effort to discourage unfairness," he said. "Service clubs have led in this movement."

Trade associations have been active, and state legislatures and Congress have passed regulatory legislation in order to lift the plane on which competition exists, he added.

In comparing little business with big business, Dean Fitzgerald showed how one can be just as fair as the other. "It is not a question of size," he said.

"It is not a question of can business be ethical. Business must be ethical if it is to be anything but temporary," he pointed out.

Both Senate and House will turn their floors over to the committee for its deliberations. The night session Thursday will be held in the Senate, while on Friday morning the committee will convene in the House.

Rolfe Couldn't Go To Housing Meet

A conference of national housing authorities was held at New Haven, Conn., this month to examine and discuss the physical status of the low cost house and the possibilities of its further development.

The conference was sponsored by Yale University and Life magazine. Its purpose was to correlate the best recent thinking on house building technology and provide a common meeting ground for current scientific thought. Walter T. Rolfe, chairman of the Department of Architecture at The University of Texas and an expert on low cost housing, was one of the one hundred invited guests but was unable to attend.

Results of the national meeting will be of special significance to building authorities in Texas. It is hoped that in the future research will make available more of the state's natural resources in the building of homes.

The Picture Screen

"DEVIL'S ISLAND"—At the State. Directed by William Clemens. Screen play by Kenneth Gamm and Don Ryan. Original story by Anthony Goldsworthy and Raymond L. Schrock. Photography by George Barnes, A.S.C. The cast follows: Dr. Charles Gaudet, Nedra Harrigan, Madame Lucien, James Stephenson, Col. Armand Lucien, Adia Kusnetoff, Pierre, Adia Kusnetoff, Collette, Edna Gourvitch, Robt. Will Stanton, Dr. Duval, Edoia Keane.

BORIS KARLOFF triumphantly lays aside his "horror man" make-up to take the lead in the starkly realistic drama of the Devil's Island penal colony are subjected. This Twentieth Century anachronism which was abolished only a year ago by the French government affords good material for a powerful story which could have been made into as powerful a screen presentation.

The melodramatic, familiar sequences, however, weaken the thread of the plot as Karloff, in the role of Charles Gaudet, the brain surgeon who is unjustly convicted of treason, endeavors to escape with six companions. While imprisoned on the island, Gaudet performs an operation which saves the life of the daughter of the commandant. This service incurs the gratitude of the child's mother, but only heightens the hatred of the father.

Gaudet and his fellow-prisoners escape in a small power boat, only to find that the gasoline tanks have been filled with water. They are helplessly adrift until picked up by a passing ship. After a good meal and rest they discover that the "mercy" ship is a prison vessel, en route to Devil's Island. Misfortunes and disaster then fall upon the victims, but they are at last rewarded as the happy ending unfolds.

Karloff has the only individualized part in the picture and he is scarcely a fine enough actor to bear such responsibility. The horror scenes of the punishments and cruelties and of the guillotine executions preserve the suspense and save the production from extreme mediocrity.—ANN HARRELL

"HOMICIDE BUREAU"—At the Texas. Directed by C. C. Coleman Jr. Original screen play by Eddie Shel. Photography by Benjamin Kline. Released by Columbia. The cast follows: J. G. Biles, Rita Hayworth, Chuck Brown, Marc Lawrence, Hank Haines, Richard Fike, Captain Olsen, Norman Willis, Briggs, Gene Morgan, Thurston, Eddie Fetherston, Jamison, Lee Prather, Eddie Fetherston, Stanley Andrews.

With two first rate actors "Homicide Bureau" as it stands the picture isn't bad, but it isn't good. It's just an interesting film that is a missed opportunity for some good actor. There's lots of excellent material in it that the director didn't handle intelligently.

Bruce Cabot, who was Hollywood's first official kiss tester, does a good job part of the time, and the other part he is dilatory in attempting to be nonchalant. He appeals because he looks like a detective. Most of our detectives are too handsome and matinee-like to be the real McCoy. Miss Hayworth appears to be definitely on the road to better picture. She's pretty enough, and seems quite capable of handling better roles than this one. The acting honors go to Marc Lawrence, who only needs a cigarette to be classed with John Garfield. Lawrence plays his gangster role with plenty of finesse.

CLIPPED COMMENT

As Dr. Rainey Regards The Youth Problem

THE YOUTH PROBLEM—what to do with the increasing numbers of high school and college graduates who each succeeding year face a longer gap between graduation and a permanent job—challenges Texas, along with every other State.

Recognizing that fact, Dr. Homer Price Rainey—director of the American Youth Commission, at Washington, who will become President of The University of Texas on June 1—indicates that he will continue to seek an answer here. He admonishes fellow-educators that they must face the crisis which this State is approaching:

"Today about 60 per cent of Texas's youth are in the high school. This is a constantly rising figure which presents a big problem. After all, we can't just plow those young people under; a new kind of secondary school that will help youth find or make a place for itself is required. Their effort to meet that need is keeping educators awake nights."

Dr. Rainey recalls that Hitler rode into power on just such a crisis as that rapidly coming to a head in this country. Before the World War only 8 per cent of German youths went through high school. In the after-war years the great majority finished secondary school, and many trained young men and women then could not find jobs in their callings.

A "revolt of youth" followed—and that gave the dictator his opportunity. Now Hitler boasts that there are "no unemployed" in the Reich. Every young man is assigned his place in the completely regimented state and then trained for the job. His employment is much like that of the bondman. Hitler has said that the young German will not know a day's freedom in his entire life, but that he is happy about the whole thing.

One hardly expects the free-born American—nourished on the democratic tradition—to accept such a condition. He would rather be jobless and hungry than be completely regimented.

Mexico for Mexicans
Going to the show Sunday mainly for entertainment and with no thought of encroaching on the duties of the versatile amusements staff of the Texan, we became quite interested in the section of the current March of Time devoted to the Mexico of the President Cardenas regime.

The pictorial journalism of the March of Time is a competent and really remarkable method of presenting world and national current events and problems in an understandable and memorable manner. However, it is an opinion creating device, as is all journalism, and its facts and conclusions are at times open to question. And we question the fairness of the current production.

The announcer and pictures explained how American and British oil industries had gone into Mexico and developed the oil resources. It showed how foreign finance had given employment and taxes to the Mexican people in return for their oil reserves. It showed businessmen refusing to pay higher wages and fighting higher taxes because if they did pay more they "might as well go out of business."

Then it showed how President Cardenas, in his attempt to improve the conditions of the Mexican people by means of a socialized state, expropriated the oil properties and is attempting to operate them in a socialized manner. The announcer had a tear in his voice when the picture of Cardenas was pasted over the sign of some oil company as the symbol of expropriation.

What the announcer failed to take into account was that these oil properties were acquired under the regime of presidents of Mexico who were set up in power by American business interests, and that the grateful said presidents turned over the huge reserves (by means of privilege, etc.) to the foreign oil companies at much less than their real value. One might be so crude as to say the Mexican people were swindled out of this property.

True, the oil companies furnished taxes and employment, but the total of both is a sum much smaller than the profits which those companies have realized from their original investments. And also the sum is smaller than that which would have gone to the people of Mexico had they developed their own resources, which, in an era of progress, they would have inevitably done.

To keep the records straight, perhaps the government should have paid the original purchase price, but even at that we believe the oil companies, even after expropriation, find the venture into Mexico quite profitable. And we believe that each nation should have the undisputed right to control its natural resources as it may see fit, and even go to the extent of breaking contract when it feels that it is being "exploited."

The announcer also deplored the breaking up of huge estates into small plots, taking the land from the large land-holders and giving it to the peons. "After," he said, "the land-owners had spent generations improving the land."

Here again we fail to feel chagrin. The large land-owners built up their plantations in many cases with the aid of Yaqui Indian slave labor and in most cases with the labor of peons, so cheap as to be almost negligible costs. The land-owners had only to direct the work and to receive the privileges of a prejudiced government and the tolerance of an ignorant people.

Cardenas is, sincerely we believe, trying to raise the standard of living of the Mexican people as a whole. He cannot do this until he wipes out the serfdom of the Mexican peons. The easiest way to do this is to give them land to work. And they have earned that land many times over by working for many times less than their worth as labor.

What we cannot see is the idea that property rights are holy and to tamper with is sacrilege. We believe that contractual relationships should be respected of course. But it is necessary also to ask how was the property acquired, at whose expense was it improved, and what is being done with it. Cardenas is tampering with property rights because a whole nation is in a state of emergency and its people, many of them, near starvation. He believes there are certain rights greater than those of property—human rights—and so do we.

Our Pan-Americanism is a hollow hypocrisy unless we realize that Mexico is not a colony of the United States, but a sovereign and independent nation with problems of its own which it must solve in its own manner. As long as American business with the aid of the federal government attempts to make and unmake presidents and governmental policy in Mexico we deserve no respect from that country.

After ours and Britain's oil lands were expropriated, these two countries boycotted Mexican oil, forcing Mexico to trade on a barter basis with Germany. This result infuriated the two great democracies, but what could they expect? They are merely angry because there is a chance they will be beaten at their own game.

President Cardenas, it is true, is building his "New Mexico" by the means of a socialized state, a form which the so-called democracies often abhor without knowing why. However, Cardenas has a mighty problem—building a new economic system and social order on the shaky foundation of population which is to a large extent illiterate and untrained for the new way of life. He will make mistakes, and he may fail; but if he does the job he has set out to do, such mistakes may be forgotten.

Under the system of power states, the main thing the U. S. has to fear is that he will succeed, and build such a powerful state as to challenge our dominance in Latin and South America, especially with the implication of German economic invasion. But they have that right as well as we. We should fight fair, but we don't—because we have the biggest stick.

THE FIRING LINE

(Editor's note: All Firing Line letters submitted to the editor must be signed, although only the initials of the writer will be published if the writer so desires; letters should be as brief as possible; letters should be typewritten, double-spaced, with writing on only one side of the paper; personal denunciations must be omitted; articles trivial in nature and likely to do more harm than good may be rejected; all statements should be verified by the writer.)

sions which should be held in all common sense by men with education enough to lead and direct. The present attitude of the campus opposition is simply that of the dog-in-the-manager. They do not want an opportunity to train, so they would deny it to those who do."

The above appeared in February 9 issue of "The Dallas Morning News." I submit this editorial in order that the students might see an editorial written by an editor who is NOT connected with the Texan editorial staff. I hope that it will help many students to see the issue presented editorially by another newspaper for a change, and to note especially that the editorial FAVORS voluntary R.O.T.C. Why don't the students of this University wake up to the fact that they are being presented with a very prejudiced view on this question? There is an advantage to the R.O.T.C. Why not think on the question and decide for yourself? —J. SMITH.

GETTING YOUTH TO WORK

WELL, I noticed that our new President of the University, Dr. Rainey, has addressed the Legislature, pointing out the broad objectives and opportunities of our great institution. He made a splendid address.

This writer was particularly interested in his comments about the unemployed youth of the country. He says there are 5,000,000 unemployed youths, out of school, in America today, even with the depression lifted. Dr. Rainey thinks The University of Texas has a great field in trying to solve the problem of how to help get them employed.

Now this writer has been employed constantly since he was a boy about eight years old, when he can well remember trying to make it from the shade of one cotton stalk to another to keep the hot ground from burning his bare feet, and believes he is competent to advise the learned Doctor upon a few points about getting these youths to work.

They had just as well be told at the outset that in order to secure a position or a job they have got to go to work. Many of them, even though they have college degrees, are going to have to go back to the farm and milk old Pyde and Red, coax the old Dominiques to lay eggs through the time-honored method of storing away ripened grain in the barn for them. And you can't do this without having plenty of sweat on your brow, and wearing common clothes. Many of them are going to have to learn the basic fact that the cow, sow, and hen are man's best friends.

This writer can remember when the youth who could get the use of his father's buggy and the old grey mare to take his girl to church on Sunday was considered mighty fortunate. A boy who could move about in this grand style was thought to be the offspring of very rich parents; but today it is hard for a boy to get a date unless he can take her out in an automobile worth almost $1,000. And even if the girl happens to be the daughter of a W.P.A. worker she has got to wear silk stockings, and paint herself up like a Chinese doll. And everybody has got to have money to go to the picture show.

Every town is full of young lawyers, who are a little more than ambulance chasers, and really never have enough law practice to learn how to get a case in court. When the universities grind out these thousands upon thousands of young doctors, engineers, lawyers, and etc., and turn them loose upon the public there is just no demand for all of them.

With nearly every youngster in the country trying to get educated, so that he can get more money and do less work, it is hard to solve the problem of their unemployment. But if we didn't have Secretary Wallace, and a vast army of his kind, trying to get nearly everybody off the farm, millions of these unemployed youths could go back to where the pink beans grow, and the bees gather honey from wild flowers.

And sooner or later a vast army of them are going to have to go there anyway, or else put on soldiers' uniforms. Unless so many people quit trying to leave the country and come into town to make an easier living, or get the government to feed them, times are going to get harder and harder, and the problem of unemployment grow more acute.

Believe it or not, right here in Austin we are paying war-time prices for butter, chickens, meat, and many other sorts of food, while many of the people who used to raise these things, and make them abundant to everybody, are living, two families in a house, calling themselves unemployed, and drawing down $1 an hour on some sort of a W.P.A. job, having gotten themselves classified as skilled laborers. But it can't last. M. H. CROCKETT.

Shoe Shop on the Rouge

IT MAY surprise you to learn that a cobbler's shop runs daily at the Ford Rouge plant in Dearborn. But the Ford plant is full of surprises. Every one has a practical answer.

Hundreds of workers in the Rouge require special types of footwear. These the company furnishes. So a steady stream of worn-out footwear reaches the Rouge cobblers, and the busy tap-tap of their hammers joins the rhythm of ten-ton presses and heavy rolling mills.

The cobbler's shop is one part of the great drive that prevents waste in the Rouge. Lumber from incoming crates is sorted and used for outgoing shipments. Waste paper and wood chips go to the Rouge paper mill. Metal particles removed by grinding wheels and metal saws are reclaimed. Nothing is lost—nothing wasted.

All this plays a part in making finer, better Ford cars. Pennies saved are pennies earned. Multiplied at the Rouge into millions, they help build the value that keeps millions of Fords delivering dependable, economical service year after year.
