DEFINITIONS AND TECHNICAL NOTES:

THECB Statistics – In-state college enrollment statistics for the fall semester immediately following high school graduation are published by the Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board each year; data sources used include PEIMS reports of high school graduates obtained from the Texas Education Agency linked to college enrollment reported by in-state colleges and universities on the 12th class day of enrollment. These statistics can be viewed at:

www.txhighereddata.org/

Student Futures Project Statistics – In-state and out-of-state enrollment for the entire fall semester immediately following high school graduation as computed by the University of Texas Ray Marshall Center Central Texas Student Futures Project; data sources used include PEIMS reports of high school graduates obtained from participating school districts linked to college enrollment as measured by the StudentTracker service from the National Student Clearinghouse (NSC).

Differences in the in-state rates of college enrollment between the Student Futures Project and the THECB can occur for the following reasons:

1. Not all Texas colleges are included in the NSC database for the time period being measured. (See list below.)
2. THECB measures fall enrollment on the 12th day of class while NSC includes enrollment for the entire fall.
