NEW DEAN OF STUDENTS BEGINS OFFICIAL DUTIES

TEXAS EX, WINNER OF $1000 PRIZE, TERMED GREAT ALGEBRAIST

Leonard Dickson, Mathematician, Was Valedictorian of His Class

That the University of Texas is rapidly taking its place in the first rank of American institutions is becoming more evident as new honors are conferred on Texas exes.

The latest award of note was the one thousand dollar prize given Dr. Leonard E. Dickson by the American Association for the Advancement of Science at its convention in Cincinnati. The prize was given as a reward for the greatest contribution to science in the year 1923. In conferring this honor on Dickson, Dr. Moore of the University of Chicago mentioned Dickson as the foremost mathematician of today in the algebraic branches.

Dickson was valedictorian of the class of '94 and after his graduation has since held places on the faculties of the Universities of Texas, California and Chicago, having held the latter position since 1900. Besides his teaching, Dr. Dickson has written several books on higher mathematics. He was president of the American Mathematical Society in the years of 1917-1919, and was also prominent in foreign mathematical organizations.

ORCHESTRA SCORES BIG HIT AT CO-OP

Great Ovation Given Jimmie's Joys; Will Play Again

Scores of students attended Jimmie's Joys concert at the Co-op Friday afternoon, the orchestra playing the dance numbers which it had recorded on phonograph records. Jimmie Maloney, director of the orchestra, delighted the crowd by playing on two clarinets simultaneously. He played the melody, "St. Louis Blues," on one and the harmony on the other. Maloney has the distinction of being the first musician on record to play two instruments at the same time. The stunt for the vaudeville tours of the orchestra was built around this accomplishment of the director.

In the early days of his musical career, Maloney played a clarinet in a church orchestra; later he changed to a baritone. When he entered A&M he organized a dance orchestra called the A&M Five. The following year he organized a dance orchestra at the University of Texas, the present orchestra, Jimmie's Joys, having grown out of that.

The members of Jimmie's Joys are now in the University. Maloney will take his degree in June. He has made no plans for tours of the orchestra after that date. The orchestra will repeat the concert at the Co-op today at 2 o'clock.

DEAR STUDE:

After the Dean has done his worst in spite of your efforts, and you have already bought your ticket home, rush around to our office and make arrangements to have the Daily Texan, The Ranger, and The Longhorn mailed to you for the rest of the year. They'll keep the Old Texas Spirit warm within you in the cold, cold winter time.

Sincerely Yours,

Texas Students Publications, Inc.

Ashbel to Study American Poets

"Contemporary American Poets" is the subject for study of the Ashbel Literary Society, first girls' literary club in the University, for the current year.

Ashbel Literary Society was organized in January, 1889. It was named for Col. Ashbel Smith, who was chairman of the first Board of Regents of the University. New members are elected in the spring of each year on the basis of their literary merit, according to Miss Llerena Friend of Electra, president of the society.

VAUDEVILLE BILL HIGHLY PLEASING

Eva Fay Mystifies Audience While Other Acts Are Well Received

Continuing the policy adopted with the bringing of the vaudeville to Austin, the Hancock Opera House offered an unusually good bill to the public yesterday. Farce comedy featured the entire bill, keeping the audience in an uproar the entire evening.

Eva Fay was the headliner, entertaining her audience with her "Thaumaturgy." She not only mystified those desirous of information with her answers but also allowed her audience "in" on some of the questions in question too.

The Revue presented by Skelley and Heit also received much applause. The Sally Sisters and Mildred Livingston proved good to look at and Skelley proved an able nut comedian.

Harry Hines, the 58th variety, proved as entertaining as he was foolish. Raymond Bond's skit entitled "The Minute Man" was well acted and received with appreciation on the part of the audience. The Neopolitan Duo presented Italian Opera and popular songs, the impersonation of Pagliaccio being particularly good. Olivette Haynes and Fred E. Beck handed out a line of concentrated nonsense, and Anderson and Yvel proved capable roller skaters.

Students Resume Long Grind

Large Number "Missing" at First Roll

Thursday morning brought the annual influx of the "back-from-the-holidays" students for the first day of registration for the winter term. Sleepy-eyed, restless and suffering from ennui, they arrived on the forty acres to interview the dean, register and recover from the Christmas programs of dancing and feasting and late hours.

After a fortnight of homage to My Lady Pleasure, Varsity students must strive to please profs. There will be no more staying in bed until noon, for most eight o'clock classes seem to be coming during the winter term. Perhaps the students will be awake until the "wee small" hours, but it will be in an effort to

Girls' Glee Club to Sing Friday

Friday night, January 25 will be the date of the concert to be given by the University Girls' Glee Club at the Junior High School. The club will be assisted by the University String Orchestra, under the supervision of Frank Reed.

GIFT RECEIVED BY BLANTON

Miss Annie Webb Blanton, adjunct professor of educational administration in the University of Texas, and former state superintendent of public instruction, was presented with a Christmas gift of $500 by the Parent-Teacher Associations and Mothers' Congress of Texas as a token of their appreciation of her services rendered the public schools of the state.

April 5, Rice at Houston.
April 12, Mississippi A&M at Austin.

"Facing the stiffest program in history, Varsity track stock has taken a decided fall to somewhere around par," said Coach Clyde Littlefield yesterday. Besides the regular conference schedule we meet representative teams from three different states and in the Kansas relay games will oppose the nation's best.

Six Dual Meets

This year's track calendar calls for six dual meets, the annual triangular campus meet, and participation in the conference and the Kansas relay games. The three most important dual meets are: With Mississippi A&M, champions of the SIC; with Kansas U., Missouri Valley title holders; and with the Texas Aggies, runners-up to the Steers in the conference meet last year, and will be staged on Clark Field. Visits will be paid to Houston, Dallas and Stillwater Oklahoma, for dual battles with colleges there.

PATS BEAT ENGINEERS

In the first court battle of the new year the Pattersons of the boarding house circuit sprung a surprise by defeating Alexander Frederick Claire's proteges 25-21. The game was hotly contested throughout and at the end of the fourth quarter the score was tied nineteen all. In an extra period of five minutes the Pats demonstrated their superiority by registering three field goals to their opponents one. Captain Chesher starred for the Pats. The contest was staged at the Woman's Gym.

CASTING TRYOUTS WILL BE STAGED BY CURTAIN CLUB

New Members to Be Given Equal Opportunity to Place on Cast

MARY STEWART NEXT PLAY

Director Jones Will Make a Special Translation for Use in Production

Casting tryouts for the forthcoming Curtain Club production will begin Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock in 312 Education Building, according to an announcement by the president of the club. At the same time the cast is being selected for the new production, tryouts will also be held for new Curtain Club members. These tryouts will begin Monday at 7:15 o'clock in room 312, Education Building. The announcement states that the new members who will be taken in will have equal opportunity to try for a place on the cast of the new Curtain Club play with those who have already played in the club productions.

The next play given by the organization will be "Mary Stewart," an historical drama, and the text used in the production will be the Schiller version of the old German translation. Authorities of the organization state that this will be the most lavish production ever attempted by the club. Costumes and scenery will be designed especially for the presentation, and a musical score will be composed especially for the club.

FROSH WILL HOLD ELECTION MONDAY

Officers for Winter Term to Be Selected by First Year Men

Winter term officers for the freshmen class will be picked at a meeting of the first year eds and co-eds in the Law Auditorium at 7 o'clock Monday, according to an announcement given out Friday by Joe M. Bashara, present head of the frosh.

Upon the president to be selected at the forthcoming meeting will fall the responsibility of upholding the dignity of the freshman class. The two annual classic events in the life of freshmen namely, the pushball contest with the sophomores and the raid on B. Hall will be held in the coming term, and the task of leading the first year men to victory will devolve upon the new president to be chosen at the freshman caucus Monday night.

"We want a large number of co-eds out for this meeting," said Bashara in making the proclamation. "It is said that co-eds have been conspicuous at previous meetings by their absence," he continued, "but there is no reason why we should not have a large number out for this election, and have some interest shown in class affairs."

AWARD OF D. A. FRANK NOVEL PRIZE, $500, TO BE MADE THIS SPRING

Miss to Be Sent to English Department Chairman

March 1 is the last date for the submitting of manuscripts for the D. A. Frank novel prize. This prize was announced five years ago but the award is not to be made until June of this year. Any student or ex-student of the University of Texas is eligible to compete for the prize.

Manuscripts must be at least 50,000 words in length. No limitations are set as to the theme of the novel or as to a setting but it is hoped that the contest may call out something reflecting the life and atmosphere of Texas and the Southwest. Manuscripts should be addressed to the chairman of the department of English. They should be signed by an assumed name, the author's name being also given in a sealed envelope, accompanying the manuscript.

Mr. Frank is a distinguished alumnus of the University and is well known for his generosity to his Alma Mater. Aside from various prizes given for excellence in athletics and in public speaking, he has also given two prizes annually for a number of years for the best poems written by students of the University.

Mr. Frank graduated from the Law Department of the University in 1903 and took a B.A. degree in the College of Arts two years later. He was for several years general counsel for the Southwestern Bell Telephone Company with headquarters at St. Louis. He is now engaged in the practice of law at Dallas, being a member of the firm of Thomas Frank, Milam and Touchstone.

Honorary Chemical Frat Has Chapter of Fourteen Here

Phi Lambda Upsilon, honorary chemical fraternity of the University of Texas, has an enrollment of fourteen members, with prospects for an election in the spring.

Election to the fraternity is based on good work in chemistry, and specialization in either applied or pure chemistry. All students having a high average in chemistry are eligible, after elimination has been made to determine the most desirable.

Robert C. Goodwin of Austin, is president of the University chapter; Walter Schulze, Denton, vice president; Henry Kohler, San Antonio; and H. D. Wilde, Tampico, Mexico, treasurer.

Members are: D. T. M. Davis, Childress; F. L. Marek, Taylor; H. H. Meier, Marlin; W. K. Ward, Beaumont; E. D. Smith, Longview; W. J. Wilkie, Houston; P. E. Streeter, Beaumont; A. H. Ullrich, New Baden; L. E. Potter, Beeville; H. D. Weiss-ern, New Braunfels.

STEWART DRIVES STEERS ON COURT

Continuing the style of work introduced before the Christmas trip, Coach E. J. "Doc" Stewart put the Longhorn basketball team through a stiff practice yesterday afternoon in an effort to get something like top form for the opening game with Southwestern which is only four days away. Texas has never bowed to the Pirates on the court, but this year Coach Gardner has developed what is considered the strongest five in the history of the Georgetown institution and Stewart's men will have to attain their regular stride to gallop off with the series.

Pass, pass, pass, is the daily cry at Varsity court practice just as "Hurry up" was the continuous hue on the gridiron. Coach Stewart has instructed his men to pass whenever possible. The dribble is only used in case of emergency.

YMBL Endorses Stadium Support

At a luncheon at the Driskill Hotel Friday, the Young Men's Business League adopted a resolution favoring the stadium and providing for co-operation in every effort to be put forth by the Central Committee in getting the drive under way.

The action of the YMBL is typical of the steps taken by civic organizations throughout the city in support of the stadium project.

WINTER DANCES BEGIN TONIGHT

Music Will Be Furnished by Steve Gardner's Troubadours as Usual

Official permission to hold the all-University dance has been granted by the University social committee and the first dance of the winter term is scheduled for tonight, announced Manager Arno Nowotny, Friday. The doors of the Woman's Gymnasium will be opened at 9 o'clock and dancing will continue until midnight. The campus social affair will be held every Saturday night, beginning with tonight, said Nowotny, and will be held regardless of the condition of the weather.

Steve Gardner's orchestra, who furnished the music last term, will furnish the music for the remainder of the year. During the holidays the orchestra gained much recognition and practice while playing for dances in Austin and over the state.

TAYLOR AIDS ALEC FROSH

All students above the rang of freshmen in the College of Engineering who fell below the catalogue requirements to remain in school were called back by Dean Taylor Jan. 2, and the causes of their failures were ascertained, according to a report from his office Friday afternoon.

Some busters, Dean Taylor stated, showed errors in their record, others were placed on last warning probation, and still others were mildly requested to withdraw from school. All freshmen falling below the requirements were placed in trailer sections and given until the middle of the winter term to make better grades.

There were fewer junior and senior busters, and more freshmen making the honor roll this year than usual, Dean Taylor said.

NEWEST DEAN IS GLAD TO RETURN TO "FORTY ACRES"

Has Followed Varsity Activities Closely Since Days When He Was Student

IS STUDENTS' FRIEND

Notes Progress of Relations Between Longhorns and Aggies

By John Woodruff

"I am glad to be back," said Hubbard, the new dean of students Friday, "Although the changes that have taken place since my day at Texas are many, it is still the same old Texas to me."

Besides holding the position of dean, he will assume a place on the English faculty during the winter term, having charge of English 132, a freshman literature course, for the remainder of the current session.

"The stadium drive is the biggest thing for Texas that has faced the University in its history," Hubbard said. He said that aside from the practical side of the proposition, it would offer a chance for unification of the student body that will make it a unit of power such as Texas has never known.

Attends All Games

In speaking of his personal attitude toward the stadium, Dean Hubbard said that the principle advantage to him would be that it would save many Texas exes fruitless trips to Austin in time of a big athletic event. Since he has been at Belton he has never missed an athletic event of any importance on Clark Field. He thinks that in the construction of the stadium, assurance will be given out of town alumni that seats will be available, and will result in an increase in attendance and interest among the exes in Texas student affairs.

Texas has changed, is Hubbard's opinion. He has kept close touch with Varsity affairs since he took his degree in 1904, and has watched with interest the growth and changing spirit of the student body. The most noticeable change is the attitude toward the Aggies. In the old days at Texas it was a daredevil stunt for a cadet from A&M to venture about the campus, and anyone wearing a red and white pennant were not safe in the city limits.

Endorses Athletics

The new Dean is a rabid fan of every line of athletics. He has made it a point to keep in touch with the football, basketball and baseball games that have been played at the University every year since his graduation. He expressed his delight in being back on the campus where he could keep more closely in touch with the athletic work in the University. While reminiscing over the old days, he said smilingly that the proudest moment of his life was the time that he shook hands with Bob Fitzsimmons, then the world's champion boxer.

JUST A DREAM, SO FAR

The picture of 35,000 or 40,000 Texas football fans jamming a great new stadium on the Varsity campus next year at Thanksgiving is a pretty dream, but it is going to take more than idle contemplation of this proposal to have workers pouring concrete for a stadium by summer.

The drive for a Varsity stadium has received a flying start and it can be truly said that the student leaders backing the movement have done more than their share of the work. To build that stadium is going to call for considerable more interest in the student body at large than has been manifested so far. Dreams, day dreams are nice things, but "they don't get you anywhere" if there isn't hard work to make them come true.

Reports from all over the state indicate that Varsity alumni are ready and eager to chip in their part toward a stadium that will place University of Texas athletics on par with athletics of any university in the nation. It is the student who is lagging behind. The success of the stadium drive will be gauged by the response of student. Why shouldn't it be, when students are the most vitally interested and concerned with the welfare of Longhorn teams, and when a stadium at the University means a stadium at the home of students?

Columbs could be written be useless as far as the campus for Varsity athletics. It would about all that a stadium will do is concerned, for the campus already knows the need of a stadium, knows that the present bleachers may collapse at time with possible injury or loss of life to hundreds, already knows that Orange and White athletics are going to go backward unless they begin to move forward immediately. Texas has stood still too long. Within the next two years there is going to be a change, toward greater Longhorn teams, or toward comparative athletic oblivion.

Athletic competition is not everything in college life, not even the most important thing. Athletics, Longhorn teams, winning teams, just make up a part of the many activities that characterize college—but Varsity teams are responsible for the greater part of that 'Texas spirit' that binds the ex-student to his school. Perhaps you have been holding back your stadium pledge—thinking that really it doesn't hurt whether or not there is one less, and that some one else, not quite so hard up, will chip in to help out. If you have this attitude, you are helping throttle Texas athletics. Some two thousand other students are thinking the same thing, and holding back their pledges—waiting for the other fellow.

If you are a loyal Varsity student, you will not think of the other fellow. You will do your part, do it to the best of your ability, and according to the limits of your finances. The other fellow will take care of himself, if you "come through." It's not the fact that you gave $50, $100, or $1,000 that counts, it's the fact that you did what you could, that you gave all you could afford. That "is as much as a mule can do."

Opinions of Others

FRANK IRVING COBB
(Editor and Publisher)

The death of Frank Irving Cobb, editor of the New York World, in his prime, and at that time in life when men in the fullness of experience are prepared for their greatest achievements, leaves a vacancy in American journalism that cannot be filled. As in the past, others will reach the heights of greatness and bring equal honor to their profession, but they will have to be as individual as Greeley, Dana, Bowles, Pulitzer, Watterson, Cobb, and the remainder of that small group that have written their names on the scroll of lasting journalistic fame.

The brilliant personality of Frank Cobb blazed through the anonymity of the editorial page. Big of body, big of mind, big of heart, he wrote to make men think, and, by so doing, he gave the lie to the shop-worn belief that editorials are not read. He achieved leadership by making public opinion.

Being a crusader who found joy in the fight for better things in life, his eyes gazed into the future and to him new goals worth fighting for were always just ahead. We hope that somewhere among his papers is found that which was his professional creed that it may be handed down for the guidance of others.

The death of Frank Cobb, whose counsel was prized by the men who govern the destinies of nations, is, at this time of world chaos, a national loss.

CONCERNING THE HONOR SYSTEM

(Cornell Daily Sun)

For the first time this year, discussion of the Honor System, its merits and demerits, and problems appurtenant to it has carved its way into the front page columns, a thing significant enough when it is considered that no other institution within the University is as important in its function and as universal in its application. By the adoption of the Honor System, an entirely different code in the conducting of examinations, the crux of a University career as it is now ordained, was effected. On the success of the system might depend, for a time at least, the soundness of a Cornell degree, although it is highly unlikely that evasions on a wholesale scale could long escape the Faculty.

Accepting such a fact as a premise, it easily follows that the Honor System, in its present form must be a success, or it would not be now existent two years after its inception. There are, however, two possible reefs on which it may wreck itself, unless a fine degree of caution and tact is used in its administration. They are the danger resulting from instructors who, in the prodigality of their trust and confidence, permit unnecessary temptation to be placed in the way of the weak, by over-indulgence of the privileges which the Honor System confers; and the fearful injustice which it is possible for the college honor committees to inflict upon an unfortunate whose carelessness rather than intent resulted in a slight fall from grace, in reporting such a case to the Central Committee for review and disposition.

The first of these is self-explanatory; it merely illustrates that, in individual instances, discretion is the better part of confidence. Although, in theory, the Honor System carried to its logical extreme, would permit the distribution of question papers the night before an examination was scheduled, on the understanding that they would not be consulted until the following morning, when the students concerned could set the alarm clock in time to awake and do the work in bed, such expedient has its practical objections.

The second point can be best explained by giving, in part, an actual case, which occurred recently and which, doubtless, has its parallels elsewhere. A student was brought before his college honor committee for a very minor transgression in the matter of some work submitted to an instructor, who suspected, and not without reason, that the paper, in some particulars, evidenced collaboration in its preparation. The paper was not an examination, not anything as weighty as a term report. The student admitted he had received aid, but it was clear from the circumstances surrounding the case that when he so acted, it was not with the realization that the Honor System permeated itself into comparatively inconsequential scholastic matters. His act was, in fact, insignificant to the point of being a breach of etiquette rather than of honor. Yet the decision of the committee rested on the determination of this one, unattached fact: did the student intend to deceive, regardless of degree, his instructor? It was found that he did. It followed that there was a breach of the Honor System. And as such it had to be reported to the Central Committee whose sole concern was the inflicting of a sentence. They were unconcerned with anything beyond the fact that there had been a breach—extenuating circumstances, recognized in every court room of the land, were outside the pale of the case under consideration. The student's name, coupled with a brief statement of his sin, which loomed far more terrible in the written form than every member of the college committee knew it to be, was recorded. He was banished from the University for a year. If he never returns, but one reason exists for his having left. An indiscretion, almost in childhood, is entirely capable of branding him throughout a lifetime. When application is made, as it possibly will be, to the University, from prospective employers.

The college committee handling the case arrived at a sound, legal conclusion of fact. There was a breach—but one in no way as grave as the countless deceptions which characterize the daily lives of many of us. Acting on its finding, the committee, as the tribunal in charge, dealt law—but it can hardly be said to have dealt equity. Thus is to show the phenomenon that undergraduates who are given power over others, whether it is the marking of a paper, or the determination of a breach of the Honor System, are far more inelastic in the exercise of their offices than Faculty men in the same capacity.

Drill for Company "A," 111th Engineers, will begin for the year on Monday night at 7:30 at the Armory on Speedway. At that time uniforms will be issued, and work preparatory to the annual federal inspection will be begun. Because of the federal allowance which allows pay for but 60 drills during the year, Company "A" did not drill but once each week during the fall term, but will drill twice each week during the winter and spring terms.

The abandonment of the SMA insane asylum project by the state has added enthusiasm to the company in that it is hoped that the company may again occupy their old barracks at SMA beginning the first of February. This will allow the company to be quartered together as formerly.

CERTIFICATES GIVEN IN EDUCATION WORK

Students Requested to Call on Acting Dean to Record Courses Registered

Under a new ruling of the State Department of Education, only Education 1 may be counted toward a four-year elementary certificate, and only Education 104, 117 and 137 may be counted toward a two-year high school certificate.

It is believed that some students have registered in other education courses with the intention of counting these courses toward a two-year elementary certificate of a four-year high school certificate. All such students are requested to report to the acting dean in order that a record may be made of the courses in which they are enrolled and application made to the State Department to recognize these courses toward certificates.

COMELY MATRON

Myrtle Steadman, who is starred in "The Age of Desire," the First National attraction playing at the Queen Theatre today for the last time.

THEATRE ROW

Queen: "The Age of Desire," a Frank Borzage production.

Texas: "Homeward Bound" starring Thomas Meighan.

Crescent: "The Prodigal Judge," an Edward Jose production.

Majestic: An all-star cast in "To the Ladies."

Hancock: Eva Fay, a Majestic big time vaudeville bil.

"The Prodigal Judge"
Crescent Feature

Showing at the Crescent theatre for the last time today is the Edward Jose production, "The Prodigal Judge."

The story is based on the world-famous novel by Vaughan Kester and deals with conditions existing in the late nineteenth century. The beauty and the magnitude of the settings used in this picture has earned a new reputation for Vitaphone. An all-star cast is featured.

"Homeward Bound"
at Texas

Lila Lee appears opposite Thomas Meighan in his latest Paramount starring production, "Homeward Bound," playing at the Texas Theatre today.

Peter B. Kyne is the author of the story—a delightful tale of the sea, directed by Ralph Ince. Charles Abbie, Mahde Turner, Gordon and Cyril Ring are included in the cast of "Homeward Bound."

Queen Picture
Typical of the Age

"The Age of Desire," a First National picture produced by Frank Borzage and which is playing at the Queen theatre, is a tale of a woman who followed the elusive mirage of happiness which she believed would accompany it.

Never has Borzage possessed such a vital, pulsating theme for a picture, and he has done it justice. "The Age of Desire" is one of the year's strongest pictures and boasts of a cast that includes Mary Philbin, Myrtle Steadman, William Collier, Jr., Josef Swickard, Frederick Truesdell, Bruce Guerin, Frankie Lee, J. Farrell MacDonald, Mary Jane Irving, Aggie Herring and Edith R. Yorke.

BASKET BALL PROSPECTS.

Sport scribes over the state are already predicting a championship in basket ball for Texas, despite the brilliant prospects of the Texas Aggies and the SMU Mustangs for whirlwind quintets, to say nothing of Baylor and Rice, both of whom appear stronger than in years on the court. The Aggies, conference champs for the past four years, with four out of six letter men back, have the best opportunity for the title in basket ball this season.

With such stars as Captain King Gill, guard, and Darby, forward, both All-Southwestern, and Washburn, guard, and Duckett, forward, all letter men around which to build his team, Coach D. X. Bible will again put the most formidable basket ball team in the field for the court crown.

Up at SMU Coach Harry Faulkner has a wealth of veteran material to work with, including several stars off the Colt five, which was said to have been the best Freshman basket ball team in the conference.

BAYLOR STRONG.

Baylor had more success on their tour of the South this year than ever before. Most of the games lost by the Bears were by close margins. Only one severe defeat was inflicted upon the Bruins and that was by one of the strongest independent teams in

Woman's Ingenuity
Theme of Play

Under the direction of James Cruze it is predicted that the screen version of "To the Ladies," now playing at the Majestic, will surpass in popularity the stage presentation of the domestic comedy.

Edward Horton as "Leonard Beebe" becomes manager of the Kincaid Piano Factory through the activities of his wife, "Elsie Beebe," portrayed by Helen Jerome Eddy, after "Elsie" discovers that "John Kincaid," the factory owner, enacted by Theodore Roberts, owes his success to his wife, a part taken by Louise Dresser, the aforementioned all appearing in feature roles.

Aubrey Jackson, star of the freshman squad of '26, who was counted upon to register eight or ten points in each meet, has been affiliated with the order of bustees and there is much doubt as to whether he will be permitted to re-enter; worse than all Lanky "Jim" Reese, considered a certainty to breeze the tape first in
