Dear Henryk:

Your letter of May 30th has just reached me.

I had not known of the search for a professor of paleontology at George Washington University, but I can readily understand Doctor Cooper's feelings in putting your name in nomination. I should be very glad to do the same, and you can count on me to say a lot of very nice things concerning you and your work if I am approached. I cannot help feeling regret at prospect of your leaving Texas where there is such a splendid field for work in Tertiary paleontology and where a man of your abilities, I think, is especially needed. I am not acquainted, however, with details of circumstances that may make you feel interested in an outside offer. In any case, I am for you.

Cordially,

A handwritten signature in dark ink, appearing to read 'Ray', with a stylized flourish at the end.
