

Assembly Votes Final Approval For Ballot Law

Order of Names Decided By Lot in New Rule; Change Noted

Name Committees

Faculty Member Not to Be Included on Blanket Tax Group

The by-law relating to the listing of the names of candidates on the election ballot was given final approval; a decision was made that a faculty member would not be included on the blanket tax apportionment committee this year; and several committees were appointed at the February meeting of the Students' Assembly last night in the assembly room in Main Building.

The by-law passed last night was introduced at the December meeting of the assembly by Frank H. Carpenter, law assemblyman, and provides that the order of candidates on the ballot shall be determined by lot. Herebefore the listing of names was in the order in which they reached the hands of the secretary of the Students' Association. The by-law as it will be incorporated into the constitution of the Students' Association is as follows:

By-Law Added
"Bill No. 1, December 17, 1931, to be added to Title 2, Chapter 1 of the Laws of the Students' Association:

"The order of the names of all candidates for offices in the Students' Association shall be determined by lot. The procedure in making up the ballot shall be as follows: The secretary shall place the name of each eligible candidate on a separate card not larger than three by five inches. These cards must be of similar size. In the presence of the president and vice president of the Students' Association and of all candidates who care to be present, the secretary shall place the whole number of cards in one of the regular ballot boxes and thoroughly mix them by shaking the ballot box. The secretary shall then draw the cards separately and place the names of the candidates on the ballot in the order drawn. Due notice of the time and place of the drawing shall be given by an announcement in the Texan."

Committee Unchanged
Because of a suggestion that a faculty member should be included on the blanket tax apportionment committee, Wilson Elkins, president of the Students' Association, presented this matter to the assembly for their decision. The assembly voted to pursue the old policy of maintaining a committee composed of three members from the assembly itself. Elkins appointed J. D. Matlock, vice president of the Students' Association, Calhoun McCutcheon, and Henry Krieger to membership on the blanket tax committee which will determine the apportionment of the blanket tax receipts for the next year.

The assembly elected Zula Williams to the student entertainment committee to replace Haskell Roberts, who withdrew from school at the end of the first semester. This committee, which was created for the first time this year, has had control of arranging and booking most of the programs that have been presented in Gregory Gymnasium this fall.

The assembly voted to hold the customary annual banquet for officers of the Students' Association, and Ruth Boren, Mary Owen, and Charles Page were appointed as a committee in charge of the arrangements for the banquet.

"A kingdom for a horse!" And a part of one for just a photograph.

For some reason lodged in the make-up of the next issue of the Longhorn-Ranger, Helen Engelking, editor, has been forced to send out an S. O. S. for a picture of Harpo Marx.

She is in dire straits for want of it, she says,—so dire indeed that she is offering a reward—nature as occult and mysterious as political secrets and the contents of her magazine.

'Army and Navy Are Unprepared'

Professor Shows Needs In Talk to Society

"The military equipment of the United States Army and Navy is inadequate to cope with an international crisis, should it be necessary to do so," J. W. Ramsay, associate professor of electrical engineering in the University, said last night in addressing members of the University Aeronautical Society.

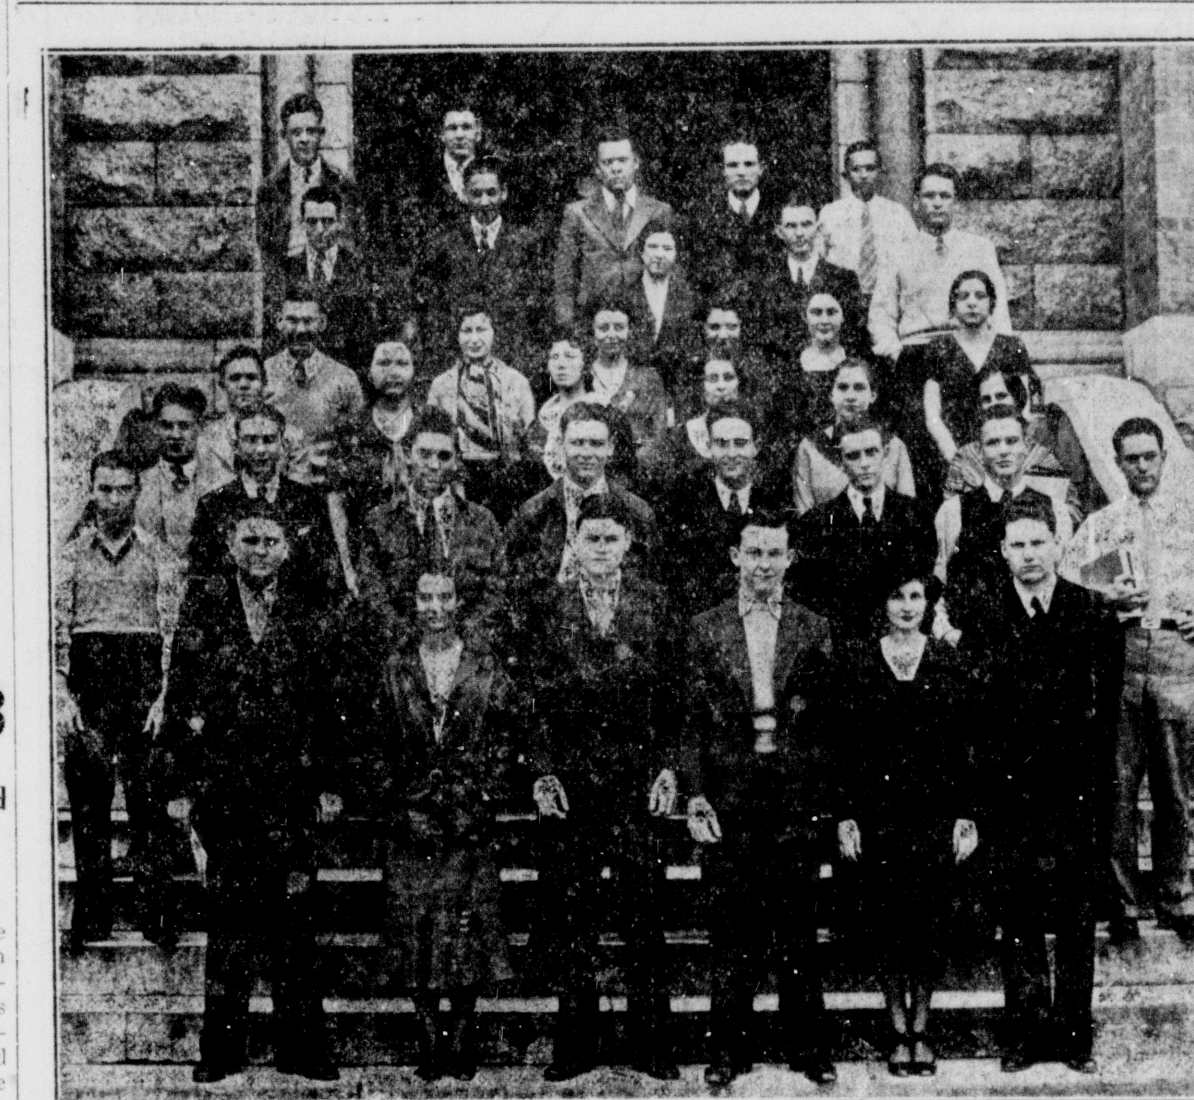

Mr. Ramsay is a major in the United States Air Corps Reserve and served in the World War. "The United States is unprepared to handle a situation like that existing in the Orient at the present time," Mr. Ramsay stated. "The government should increase and modernize its military equipment if it is ever to be prepared for armed conflict."

Ed Ferris, M. L. Colthorp, James N. Jones, Glen G. Butler, and Richard Holmes were elected to membership in the society. William F. Nicol, president, said.

Nicol announced that all members will meet in front of the Engineering Building Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock and go from there to the University Airport where the group picture for the Cactus will be made.

HILLEL CHARTERS BUS
Hillel Foundation will charter a bus to take students to and from Temple Beth Israel Friday evening. Between 7:30 and 8 o'clock the bus will make stops at dormitories, fraternities, and sororities, and at points around the campus, provided students notify the Hillel office or Sam Passman of the religious committee, according to Rabbi Bardon, director of the Hillel Foundation.

Courtroom Setting Effective In 'Trial of Mary Dugan'

By VIOLET RICHARDSON

The case of the People vs. Mary Dugan, head lady of the famous courtroom drama, has been tried behind the footlights of many theaters, and has thrilled dozens of audiences from coast to coast. For Austin audiences, however, is reserved the sensation of witnessing "The Trial of Mary Dugan" from the spectators' benches in an actual courtroom with a real judge on the bench.

A fine old play found its perfect setting when it was presented last night by the Austin Little Theater in the Fifty-third District Court Room in the new Travis County Court House. The originality of the Austin Little Theater and its director in assembling a cast of actors whose real jobs are in most cases identical with the roles they interpret caught the imagination of last night's audience.

The spectators were instantly appreciative with hearty applause; Judge Cofer was kept busy with his gavel restoring order in the court.

Staging Impressive
The staging of this play is an outstanding example of the unique possibilities in Little Theater work. No setting carefully planned and built for professional actors could equal in impressiveness the actual courtroom placed at the disposal of this group of community players. A special bit was a jury box full of impressive and judicious-looking jurors.

Members of the jury were especially for the "trial."

Jessie Mary Ramsey in the role of Mary Dugan and Girard Kinney as the young brother who defends her case have honors for fine acting among the youngsters.

Judge Robert E. Cofer as Judge Nash, and his son John D. Cofer as the prosecuting attorney warm the cockles of the critic's dramatic heart with their authentic characterizations. The scene between the prosecuting attorney and Mary Dugan in the witness stand—the cameo features of Miss Ramsey breaking from misery to terror under the relentless, dispassionate cross-examination of the lawyer—is one of the most finely wrought bits of acting in the play. There will be no end to the list if everybody who contributed something fine to this play is to be mentioned. But anyhow, we nominate Jalla Garrett as the French maid and Thomas C. Green as Inspector Hunt for last night's "hits" of the show.

The "State of Texas" will obligingly try Mary Dugan all over again tonight and tomorrow night at 8:15 o'clock in the Travis County Court House.

EIKEL REPLACES BAXTER

Vera Elizabeth Eikel was elected vice president of Theta Sigma Phi Thursday night to fill the place of Ouida Baxter who has withdrawn from the University.

D. A. R. to Place Base for Statue During February

$50,000 Memorial Planned To Honor Washington; Campus Chosen

Sterling to Speak

400 Delegates Expected To Attend Ceremony On Birthday

Dedication of the base of the statue of George Washington which is to be erected on the University campus by the Daughters of the American Revolution will take place Monday, February 22, at 3 o'clock, Miss Mary Elizabeth Decherd, adjunct professor of pure mathematics, said Thursday. Governor Ross Sterling, Dr. H. Y. Benedict, president of the University, and Dr. W. J. Battle, professor of classical languages, are to speak at the occasion.

Preceding the dedication, the state and national officers and the speakers of the afternoon will be given a banquet with both city and University chapters of the D. A. R. and the Colonial Dames acting as hostesses.

400 Delegates Expected

About four hundred delegates are expected, Miss Decherd said. Invitations have been sent to one member of each chapter of the D. A. R. in Texas. The State Regent, Mrs. McFadden, is having programs made for the occasion.

The statue is to cost $50,000. It is to be erected as part of the Texas celebration of the Washington Bicentennial. Although the statue itself will not be ready by the opening day of the bicentennial, February 22, the base is to be dedicated at that time.

It will stand in front of Main Building on the spot where the white ash tree from Mount Vernon was planted last February as a memorial to Washington.

The design of the statue has not yet been decided upon, but probably one of the well known statues of Washington will be used. It is to be of bronze and is to be heroic in size, Miss Decherd said. Although several sculptors have offered to model the statue, the design committee has not yet made its choice. The statue will be the only one of Washington in Texas.

Fund Yet Incomplete

The fund for the statue is incomplete but the D. A. R. plans to collect the remainder by a sales and letter campaign. Tinted dinner plates with scenes depicting the life of Washington are being sold by the local chapters. Letters in the form of an original bit of poetry are to be sent to all men whose names are George attending the University and to all those living in the State of Texas requesting that they donate 10 cents to the fund.

Mrs. T. S. Maxey, a vice regent of the association, originated the plan about eight years ago and she carried on the work until her health failed. Finding that she would be unable to continue alone, she asked the D. A. R. for help. They responded generously, she said, and she now has the assurance that her plan will be completed.

Hirsch Assigned Duties in Russia

Took Bachelor's Degree From Texas, 1907

Alan Hirsch, ex-student of the University, has received an appointment as chief engineer to the National Planning Bureau of the All-Union Chemical Industries of Russia with headquarters in Moscow.

Mr. Hirsch's duties will be supervisory and advisory in connection with their existing and projecting chemical enterprises. He will sail in February for the Soviet Union.

The Ex-Students' Association received a letter Wednesday from Mr. Hirsch, who is now a consulting chemical engineer in New York City, telling of his appointment.

Mr. Hirsch received his bachelor's degree from the University in 1907.

Bit and Spur Hold Tryouts Wednesday

Tryouts for Bit and Spur will be held Wednesday for the last time this year, Miss Margaret Kirkner, sponsor, announced Thursday. All girls wishing to try out are requested to turn their names in at Women's Gymnasium 104 as soon as possible. After the tryouts the club will begin work on the horse show to be given the latter part of April.

'Keep Kissable' Girl Ex-Student

Texas co-eds who desire to "keep kissable" during leap year should seek advice from Adriane Jeannet Allen of Temple, who attended the University in 1930.

Miss Allen is the "keep kissable" girl of cigarette advertising, says a trade magazine, in its January issue. Its information comes from Bradshaw Crandell, well known New York illustrator.

Miss Allen is 19 years old and had never posed for an advertisement illustration until recently. Her good work caused much favorable comment and Miss Allen has received many offers from the stage. However, she turned them down as she wished to continue her study of dramatics.

Miss Allen is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Allen of Temple.

Jeffers Elected Head of Debate Squad Thursday

Student Serves for Fifth Year as Member Of Group

Leroy Jeffers was elected captain of the active debate squad of the University Thursday. This marks his fifth year as serving on the debate squad.

Jeffers represented the University in the Missouri Valley oratorical contest in 1930 and is winner of the Houston Post-Dispatch extemporaneous speaking contest. Jeffers is a senior in the School of Law, a member of Delta Sigma Rho, national honorary public speaking fraternity, and a member of the Athenaeum Literary Society.

Resolved:

That the Peace Industries Board with Powers and Functions Similar to Those of the War Industries Board Should be Established" was submitted to the squad by T. A. Rouse, debate coach, as the official Missouri Valley debate question. Debates will also be held on the question "Resolved: That Lobbying as Now Practiced is Detrimental to the Best Interests of the People." Members of the squad will begin work on these two questions immediately.

Two debates with the University of Kansas, one to be held in Austin and the other in San Antonio, are scheduled for the latter part of February. Dates for the debates with the Universities of Colorado, Missouri, Oklahoma, Tulane, Louisiana State, Washington University in St. Louis, and the University of Kansas in Lawrence have not been definitely arranged.

Among the articles that remain which may be of use to some student for a few cents are various text books consisting of Spanish, mathematics, German, English, a geology and a physics laboratory manual, and a few notebooks.

Several men's slickers and two men's hats are yet available. Numerous pairs of gloves and many single gloves are offered which may appeal to those interested in archery. Miss Peck said.

Miscellaneous articles such as compasses, purses, spectacles, cases for glasses, pencils, pen caps, and assorted collection of keys, and a lipstick may be purchased for a very low and reasonable amount. "Everything must be sold," Miss Peck declared.

ASHBEL PICTURES MADE

All members of Ashbel Literary Society who have not had their pictures made for the Ashbel page of the Cactus, have been asked to do so immediately, Margie Bright, president, said Thursday. If the pictures have been made, members of the society should notify the Paralta Studio that the pictures are to appear on the Ashbel page.

STEERS ENTRAIN FOR COWTOWN TODAY

Olle's Charges Face Frogs Tomorrow

By WELDON HART

Ed Olle's Texas Longhorns entrain north this afternoon for a pair of cage battles this week-end which will have little bearing on the Southwest Conference race. After playing the Texas Christian Horned Frogs at Fort Worth Saturday night, the Steers move over to Dallas for a game with the Southern Methodist Mustangs Monday night. These engagements will furnish Olle's crew their first action since they lost to the Rice Owls at Houston January 23.

The Steers are given no chance to upset T. C. U. the team which slaughtered them 52-22 at Austin two weeks ago. Inability of the Texas centers to get the tipoff from T. C. U.'s towering Dietzel was fatal to the Steers in that game, the Frogs driving through to the basket on tipoff plays almost at will. The Longhorns are hoped to take another licking by 20 points or more.

Olle Pessimistic

The Steers hold a 35-29 decision over S. M. U. in a game played at Austin January 15, but Coach Olle is not optimistic over his chances of repeating on the Mustangs' own court. He is of the opinion that the Pones, who are without a conference win to their credit, will be out for blood Monday night and that the Steers will have to play their best game of the season in order to make it two straight over Jimmie St. Clair's charges. The two clubs are unusually evenly matched as was shown in their first meeting, and one of the best games of the year is promised Dallas fans.

Basketball practice, almost at a standstill during the mid-year examinations, is being indulged in quite freely by the Longhorns this week, and they will meet the Christians with four days of hard scrimmage behind them. Coach Olle has not named his traveling squad, but he is expected to carry ten or eleven men, probably including Captain Wilson Elkins, Ed Price, Bennie Rundell, Ronald Fagan, John Tullis, Bill Kubrich, Glenn Thompson, Floyd Garrett, Wyatt Taylor, Ed Maxey, and Paul Wittman.

Baseballers Drill Against Cold Breezes

By DICK WEST

Three squads of baseball candidates faced the blasts of a chilling north wind yesterday afternoon to take a lengthy workout on Clark Field. In addition to the regular baseball uniform, all those participating in the practice were clad in heavy sweaters to safeguard against "charley-horses" and other ailments.

Billy Disch, veteran coach of Longhorn baseball teams, stressed the fundamentals of baseball as he moved about from infield to outfield. Yesterday's workout was inaugurated with "pepper" practice, a practice of loosening interference, and that is what the other backs need the most. (4) Because he can pass accurately and can carry the ball.

"But remember, S. R., it is a long time until football season. By that time another equation may be better. But for one I am confident that Coach Littlefield will work out the solution and bring home the 'bacon.'"

"Yours for another championship next year."

J. J. MILLER.

The other day Uncle Billy Disch was showing us a letter he received from head football coach Casey of Harvard. The Crimson Tide mentor lauded the Longhorns of 1931, calling them a flock of healthy, manly, kindly, and worldly boys. At the end of the epistle he says, "Thanking you sincerely for the nuts you sent me, I am . . . etc. He certainly is two-faced! Aw, nuts."

"(2) Because he is a good punter."

PORKERS INVADE TEXAS TONIGHT

MURPHY - GUARD

The University of Arkansas basketballers have been perennial threats to the Southwest Conference cage crown for a number of years, winning the flag five years in a row, and placing well up every season.

This season they have won three games and lost one, that being to the Texas Longhorns in January. They invade Texas for the first time this season when they play the leading Baylor Bears a pair of games at Waco tonight and Saturday night.

the muscles in the players' arms. In addition he gave them limbering-up exercises.

Disch Looks 'Em Over

Coach Disch supervised a long infield workout with those intending to play infield position. Ox Blanton, who is a candidate for catcher and first base, hit ground balls to Howie, Ankeman, Watson, and Viebig. Pat Ankeman, son of Fred Ankeman, president of the Houston Buffs, showed up exceptionally well on second base. Viebig, captain of last year's freshman team, showed to advantage on the "hot corner." In the absence of Ater, captain of this year's team, Watson practiced at short.

Leary, promising hurler, pitched to those indulging in a lengthy batting session. Ernie Koy, Dutch Baumgarten, Ox Blanton, Bloebaum, and Carl Tyson were outstanding in the hitting sprees.

Canoe Instruction Feature of Meeting

Instruction in the handling of a canoe featured the meeting of Turtle Club Wednesday night at the Women's Gymnasium pool.

The members were divided into three groups, one receiving instructions in canoeing, another practicing diving, and the third learning new water stunts. Miss Annabel Stewart, sponsor of the club, was in charge of the first group, Peggy Watkins coached the stunts, and Dorothy Shelby instructed in diving.

A chart of strokes, dives, and stunts is being prepared, and as soon as tryouts are over members will begin winning points towards a turtle emblem or a gold or silver turtle, which are the awards given to those having the most points at the end of the term.

Intramurals

By BILL BELL

Texas Sports Staff

All boxing enthusiasts, especially last year's intramural champions, are invited to attend a meeting in Gregory Gymnasium 208 at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon, to discuss problems pertaining to this year's tournament and Fife Nite.

Friday is the last day for entries in the handball doubles tournament. All organizations that plan to enter should have their managers call the intramural office before 5:30 o'clock.

The fourth round of the intramural basketball tournament was played last night, with rather disappointing results, since five out of the ten scheduled games were forfeited. The intramural office urges that all those who have signed up to play to come out and try to win.

A Columnist Faces the Rap

A MURDER YARN somewhat above the average is "X Marks the Spot," now holding forth on the screen at the Queen Theater. The approach is from the Fourth Estate. A columnist who deals in theatrical gossip, some of it clean, is charged with the murder of a chorus girl because he was the last man known to be with her. When he tracks down the guilty man, it turns out to be a small calibre racketeer to whom the unlucky columnist owes a debt of gratitude for lending him $5,000 eight years before to provide an operation for his crippled little sister. The columnist tries to shield the murderer. When he does not succeed, the racketeer obtains a gun and they shoot it out in the court house. Who gets killed? Well, how do movies usually end?

The play holds audience interest in spite of its being raggedly constructed. However, the spectacle in one of the concluding scenes of turning a policeman charged with murder into a policeman legally burdened with shooting it out with the real murderer is a little too much for even the tense climax to overshadow. Wallace Ford, newly come to screen attention, does well enough in the leading role, presumably reminiscent of Walter Winchell. Other roles are taken by Lew Cody, Sally Blane, Mary Nolan, Fred Kohler, and a smoke bomb. Somebody has written several good lines and a comedy situation or so into the play to relieve the tedium.

Estimate: C.

Joy Biering of Littlefield Dormitory will spend Saturday and Sunday in Galveston.

Interest in Southwest

The opening of the one-semester course in "Life and Literature of the Southwest" with more than eighty students seeking admission suggests that unusual interest is being shown in the subject. Though this interest is due in a large measure to the active work in the field done by Professor J. Frank Dobie, teacher of the class and authority in Southwest literature, the abundance of unused material existing in the form of myths, traditions, folklore, romance of adventure, and colorful history lie at the foundation of the desire to take the course.

Professor Dobie has done much to arouse this interest, uncovering as he has in his books on the Southwest a rich legacy of materials that would challenge the imagination of any embryo writer as well as capture the efforts of literary people who have "arrived." This is not to suggest that there does not already exist a definite body of Southwestern literature, for it is just here that Professor Dobie's course enters to play its part. In giving a survey of what already exists in pointing out the extent to which the great dormant body of literary material has been invaded in the past, and in relating what has already been done in the literature of the nation and of the world, this course is a distinct service.

Not only is the course of value to embryo writers, but it serves to give on the campus and in this section a focal point to the cultural atmosphere as it is related to the Southwest and especially to the colorful traditions of Texas. Both from the standpoints of the way the course is handled and the importance of the field it represents the popularity of the course is well deserved.

Expensive Textbooks

The beginning of the new semester and the attendant purchase of textbooks in various new "short" courses once more has brought home to the average student the realization that much of his money spent at the University goes for books—more often than not authorized by the head of the department in question or some other member of the faculty—which are relatively useless to him after the completion of the course, and which the book stores refuse to buy back at anything like a reasonable price.

No reflection can of course be cast upon the ability of University professors and faculty members to write or edit texts in their particular line, but the most important point is that the moment one of them does, it is immediately designated as the text for the course. The result of this practice has been the constant changing of texts almost every year, and in certain cases students have been forced to pay several dollars for a text which at the end of the semester had a resale value of only a few cents, due to the fact that either a more recent edition had been published or an entirely new text had been prescribed.

Thousands of dollars are spent each year by students who are forced to purchase expensive textbooks or supplements in which their instructors or professors are interested academically and sometimes financially. There can be no lack of proof that the books are excellent treatments of the subject at hand and are fitted for the course, but it does seem unfair for a great many students to be forced to lose large amounts of money due to the constant changing and sponsoring of new texts by various faculty members.

Research Endowment

The formal approval of additional projects in social science research given by the Board of Regents at the last session is to be looked upon with favor by both those directly interested in the fields of the projects and the public in general, since the research work which will be done will prove of benefit to society as a whole.

Financed by the Laura Spellman Rockefeller fund and The University of Texas, the total sum of $40,000—$30,000 appropriated by the Rockefeller fund on the condition that the University supply the additional $10,000—should do much to further research along the various lines approved by the Regents, since the men during the work are all recognized leaders in their respective fields of work.

It is such research funds that have done

WHAT PRICE LIFE? The hanging of Joe Hershon in Kansas City last Friday for his part in the slaying of Charles H. Dingham, a patrolman, brings to public attention again the consideration of the value of capital punishment as penalty for major crimes. Is the commitment of a felony properly counter-balanced by death? Is the extreme penalty a cure or an antidote against further criminal acts? Just how far does it stave off the evil intentions of a potential safe-cracker or deter the activities of a master trigger-puller?

These and similar questions have been subjects of controversial discussion for many moons, prominent authorities arguing on each side. Those who favor capital punishment claim that it sets up a fear of the law in the hearts of other anti-social individuals and consequently decreases the amount of crime. On the other side it is held that the death penalty does no good, that states which use the gallows have no fewer crimes than states which employ life imprisonment as the extreme penalty. It is further contended by the opponents to capital punishment that in most cases the criminal is a victim of circumstances and that he was not directly responsible for his act; that it is the social organization which is to blame and not one individual who happens to be caught as a peg in the wheel of uncivilized society.

It is not a question now of whether Joe Hershon should have been killed. Joe Hershon is dead and the state as well as the kin of the slaughtered patrolman has been avenged. Revenge! Is that the recompense for which civilized man deals fatally with a member of society who strays from the golden rule? Is the state and are the men who govern it still so barbaric that they deem it just to take an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth? Is the twentieth century so near a primitive stage that the black sheep cannot be brought back into the fold by a scheme of education and a developed sense of moral responsibility? Isn't the state responsible, anyway, for so conducting its institutions and looking out for the welfare of its inhabitants that a member of the social order could not by verdict of his conscience pick up a gun and deprive another of life? Capital punishment is no more the civilized way of caring for the mal-adjusted individual than war is the proper vindication for national wrongs.

The relatives of the slain patrolman have no more of Charles H. Dingham's life than they would have if Joe Hershon were living today, but blood must be paid for by more blood in this modern day of culture and higher learning.

THE COLLEGE MYTH

"The college student is in a class by himself so far as popular portrayal goes. He is characterized as a more or less indolent individual, but he is immensely popular with the American public," says a contemporary, speaking editorially, and the same writer continues by advising college students to preserve the illusion.

The college student no doubt is popular with the general public—but it is the sort of superior interest which a crowd shows in a circus clown. College students are all very well as long as their escapades furnish a slightly salty tang for the conversation over the tea cups. But when it is suggested that one come into closer touch with them—well, the public gets just a bit panic-stricken.

Such, at least, has been the public's attitude toward college students in the past. And when the same students went out to apply for jobs and places of responsibility, the employer all too often remembered specimens of crooning whoopee boys he had seen on the screen and read about in books. As a result the college student did not get the job. It is all very well for the colleges to represent that glamorous realm of forbidden naughtiness which the Big City and later Paris and finally Hollywood have, in turn, typified; but when that reputation becomes so strong as to jeopardize a man's chance for a job, then it is time to call a halt.

Freddie Football has been demoted to high schools and drug stores, and the sooner comic papers and a minority of students make this discovery, the better for higher education in general.

—Indiana Daily Student.

FORENSICS ON THE INCLINE

One of the most encouraging signs of the times is, we believe, the recent announcement by the forensic board that there has been increased student participation in, and patronage of, debates and discussions.

This new interest in the spoken word at the university seems to be due on the one hand to the feverish quest for knowledge which, we are told, is one of the uses of the present adversity. It may also be attributed to the excellence of the speakers who have been secured through the efforts of a rejuvenated Union Forum committee and other organizations.

But somehow we feel that there is not enough opportunity for student discussion. In this connection we might take our cue from the widely heralded English system of debate. In this form of debate, there are presentations of conflicting points of view by authoritative speakers also, but these ordinarily ex cathedra positions are criticized and defended by the audience which debates among itself the matters at issue. Usually, the house divides into a right and left section, each taking one side of the debate. The chairman recognizes speakers alternately from these sections and at the conclusion a ballot is taken.

Increased student participation in discussion must be the prime objective of the Forensic Board. Let us hope that its present success will herald a period of even greater glory in this regard.

—Daily Cardinal.

so much in the past not only for social science but for practically every field, and such funds are directly responsible for the great advances which have been made in those fields fortunate enough to have the necessary financial backing. Texas is fortunate in that it has received recognition from one of the most important funds of the Rockefeller foundation, and there is little doubt but that more than ample "dividends" will be paid upon the money invested in such research.

Shopping With Betty Co-ed

"Have you seen the new line, the 'little sister Connie' of the Jacqueline mode of shoes?" Betty asked her friends one noon. "They are made of genuine baby lizard. It's a little tie oxford, very smart for suits, walking, golfing, and driving." "Look"—to Ruth, Betty added, "I thought it would be something you would like, Ruth, so I had them send out a pair in your size; you of the girls are buying. It was a Betsy Ross bracelet, wide band in gold and inlaid with black enamel to give it that truly old-fashioned look. The bracelets were found in this particular jewelry store downtown with some equally lovely rock crystal combinations of necklace and earrings. The latter are so nice to wear with the quaint "baby" frocks that are quickly gaining in popularity.

"In a little exploration trip of my own," Jane said, "I discovered just the hat to begin the summer with." Of course, she was just looking around for summer is still a long way off, but chapeau was a distinctive model in Nasa blue of rough

"You don't know the half of it yet," chimed in Joan, "I was simply stunned with a frock I saw in one of the drag shops today." Enraptured, she told them of the "lace de ange," (angel lace) evening frock of a lovely shade of sky blue and having long slim lines with all the fullness at the bottom of the skirt. With a little jacket that had puffed sleeves at the top and tight fitting from the elbow to the wrist, it made an adorable dinner dress and the coat could be removed to transform it into one suitable for formal evening wear. The dress itself was extremely high waisted and the belt was jeweled buckled, presenting the quaint effect that so many of the designers have striven to perfect for the present season.

And speaking of finds, I couldn't keep the secret from the rest so I told them all about the most striking piece of costume jewelry that just loads

Pilots Are Connecting Link with Outside World

These two pilots, Johnnie Martin and Paul L. Carpenter, do an unusual bit of service to mankind by dropping newspapers to families of homesteaders scattered through the desert along their flying route between El Paso and Los Angeles. These people "two weeks by burro from civilization" look forward daily to the roar of the motors of the huge tri-motored plane flown by these American Airways pilots.

Martin and Carpenter are undecided on whether they have started something they will not be able to finish, but have agreed that whenever possible they will continue to drop information from the outside world to the families battling for meager existence on the desert.
