

'High Tor' Opens Run Tonight in Hogg, 8:15

Power Shovel and Business Men Incident to Highlight Production

By JOE JAMES

Tonight at 8:15 o'clock the Curtain Club will open its four-night run of the Maxwell Anderson comedy-fantasy, "High Tor," in Hogg Memorial Auditorium.

Admission will be 35 cents with blanket tax and 65 cents without. Blending realism with fantasy, "High Tor" brings a different type of production to the campus. Although much of the play is written in verse, "High Tor" moves fast and is filled with humorous scenes. Selected as the best play of the 1937 season, the play was a hit on Broadway with Burgess Meredith in the leading role.

For the first time, a huge power shovel will operate on the stage in Hogg Auditorium, and in what is probably the funniest scene of the play, will lift two shystr business men high into the air.

The plot of "High Tor" is built around the love of a man for a mountain of which a trap-rock company is seeking control. With the mountain in their control, the trap-rock officials plan to tear it down with steam shovels and use the material for construction purposes.

Adding punch to the play, Anderson introduces a band of ghostly Dutch sailors who haunt High Tor, and then adds three bank robbers who flee to the mountain heights after robbing the nearby Nanuet bank. Meeting on the mountain summit, the robbers open up on the Dutch ghosts with automatics, only to find their slugs, obviously not silver, do no harm.

"High Tor" is being directed by James H. Parke, director of the Curtain Club, assisted by Richard L. O'Connell, assistant director. Miss Dorothy McLaughlin, make-up supervisor, and Gordon Minter, head of technical production. John Young, Curtain Club member, is stage manager.

Edward Potter of McAllen, Florence Sears of San Antonio, and Esther Deveny of Austin play the leads. As Van Van Dorn, Potter plays the easy-going owner of High Tor. His battles with the trap-rock company officials, played by Clint Anderson, Samuel Frech, and Bill Crain, forms the background for the play.

Miss Deveny plays the role of Judith, life-long friend of Van Dorn, while Sears plays the role of Lise, pretty Dutch girl also in love with Van.

The rest of the cast follows: Indiana, Melvin Pape; Asher, Allen Ludden; Pieter, C. M. Miller; sailor, Bill Matthews; Dewitt, Don Jackson; Dope, George B. Quick; Elkus, Harvey Yale; Buddy, Ross Whittenburg; Patsy, Joe Baldwin; Budge, John Dashiell.

Carnival Crowds Jam Midway At Varsity Show

Greeks Perform In Taxi-Dance, Side-Show Thrills

By WALDO NIEBUHR and JOHN WAGNER

Dazzled by the glitter of the midway and lured by the "ladies" of the taxi dance, several thousands of University students rattled from their seats another successful Varsity Carnival last night.

Beginning at 7 o'clock with Coach Dana X. Bible's football show, the carnival ended four hours later with leather-lunged barkers dug out the front doors.

Of the thirty-six shows, the Phi Psi's Bowery taxi-dancers, the Zetas' "hit the hay" girls, and the Deke's duck mart probably drew the biggest crowds.

Featuring Conrad Fath's "Dwight Fiskian" ditties, Jimmie Valentine and Bonnie Ruth Taylor's swinging door ballads, and assorted vegetables and pennies tossed by the audience, the floor show had its audience flowing into the wings and over the edge of the stage. Fath's tribute to a branch of the Dutch who were neither of the Rotter- or Amsterdam genealogy raised a few blushes and many a howl from the group.

In one corner of the lot future traveling salesmen visited the Chi Omegas' "Farmer's Daughter," while just across the way, the A.T.O. saloon delved in "vice." Among the Delta Theta Phi "Crime Don't Pay" cloths finger-printed future clients of that law fraternity's members.

To the left of the stage Alpha Phi's puppet show exploited all the oriental allure of one Corine. And while Corine twirled and twilted with abandon, next door a human lay suffering from Theta Xi's health service, while a morbid gallery of onlookers gagged at the removal of vital organs.

In the S.A.E. "Hit 'Em in the Puss" concession, well-aimed baseballs soon demolished Dean Hildebrandt's effigy, while Professor Bob Montgomery's lay torn aunder a few minutes later.

Jointly sponsored by Panhellenic and Interfraternity Councils, the colorful Varsity Carnival turns over all admissions to the scholarship funds of those two organizations.

No check-up on paid admissions was available last night, Bob Park, chairman of the show, said.

DR. COX RECOVERS

DR. A. B. COX, professor in the School of Business Administration, is back in his office after a short illness. Dr. Cox was forced to cancel his plans to attend a meeting of officials of schools of business and government in Washington.

The five candidates from the University will be given personal interviews with the committee during the day and the final selection will be made this afternoon. The two candidates chosen by the state committee will be sent to the district committee in New Orleans. Other Universities and colleges in the state will also be represented in the Houston meeting.

The district committee will meet on December 17 to select four men who will enter Oxford in October, 1939. These four candidates will be selected from two men representing each of six southern states—Oklahoma, Texas, Louisiana, Alabama, Mississippi, and Arkansas.

Taylor's $10 Buys Chisholm Bracelet

A silver bracelet that once belonged to Jesse Chisholm was purchased for $10 by T. U. Taylor, dean emeritus and the University's "Grand Old Man," at Wehoka, Okla., last week. The bracelet will eventually go into the Chisholm Museum at Bandera. According to a bill of sale filed with Miss Emilie Limberg, county clerk, the bracelet was purchased from Alfred E. Harper, who says he is the grandson of Jesse Chisholm.

Harper said the bracelet was given to Chisholm, late great trail rider, by Comanche Indians in recognition of his services in peacetime as interpreter at the peace treaty in 1844 on Tehuacana Creek, seven miles northeast of Hueco Springs (now Waco) . . . and for other services rendered.

College Youth Says Limit Jew Refugees

First National Poll Reveals 68.8% Favor Restriction

By JOE BELDEN

Editor Student Opinion Surveys of America Copyright, 1938

Jewish refugees from Central Europe should not be allowed to come into the United States in great numbers, a large majority of the college youth of this country believes, the first national poll of the Student Opinion Surveys of America reveals.

In slightly more than a month Germany has turned its Jews into a world problem, one that may have to be faced by leaders of tomorrow—college men and women of today. Should the United States offer a haven to the persecuted Jews? Although many think some should be admitted if other nations co-operate, seven out of the ten are opposed to opening wide the doors of Ellis Island.

These figures are the first announced by the new Student Opinion Surveys, organized with The Daily Texan as one of the co-operating members among college newspapers over the nation. The surveys, a non-commercial organization of campus editors, will publish weekly reports based on national referenda similar to those of other polls that recently have been proved highly reliable. The surveys are intended to add a "fourth dimension" to the college press by reporting scientifically national student thoughts. The Texas Student Publications, Inc., here are sponsors.

Campus interviews have approached students of every description, rich and poor, freshmen and seniors, in big schools like Columbia in New York and California at Los Angeles and in smaller schools like Luther in Iowa and Schreiner in Texas. They have asked, "Should the United States offer a haven in this country for Jewish refugees from Central Europe?"

YES, said 31.2 per cent
NO, said 68.8 per cent

But it was clear from the coast-to-coast returns that students as a whole would like to see the United States help oppressed German minorities in some way, some suggesting the offering of homes in U. S. possessions. "No country should turn away people who bring so much with them," said a Illinois senior. "But where would we put them?" asked a University of Minnesota sophomore. Others definitely believed none should be allowed admittance. "If other nations help also," said American Jewish students, con-

Wild Bill Kilman Named Judge for 'Ugly' Election

Tackles Election Job

Wild Bill Kilman, who starred on the gridiron this year at right tackle on the Longhorn football team, will keep his eye on balls instead of the ball Wednesday when he takes over his duties as election judge in the "Ugliest Man" contest. Kilman was appointed last night by John Connally.

Nominations Begin Dec. 14

Five Highest To Be Duchesses

Wild Bill Kilman, tackle on the Longhorn football team, was appointed election judge for the Student Association's "Ugliest Man" contest yesterday by John Connally, president of the Students' Association.

"In Kilman, I believe we have the right man to tackle the job, Connally said last night. "I believe he will lend the proper atmosphere to the election." Although many names have already been received as nominees for the coveted title of "King Ug, the Ugliest Man on the Campus," the nominations will officially begin Wednesday morning. Ballots will sell for one cent each, Connally said, and students may vote as many times as they wish, at one cent a time.

Friday will be run-off day, and the five nominees receiving the largest number of votes will be presented as "Dead Pan Duchesses" at the Charity Ball Tuesday, December 20.

At the Charity Ball, the five top candidates will be presented amid fanfare, and after the presentation ceremonies, the candidate receiving the highest number of votes will be announced. Amid paeanes that will "outclass any sweetheart election," the winner will be crowned.

Proceeds from the balloting and the Charity Ball will be given to charity, Connally said last night.

Archer Heads Travis Bar

In a meeting yesterday morning accented by the determination to bring the 1939 meeting of the State Bar Association to Austin, Judge Roy C. Archer, judge of the 126th District Court, was elected president of the Travis County Bar Association for 1939.

A committee report recommending that the State Bar Association be invited to hold its next year's meeting in Austin was adopted. Other officers elected were Henry Brooks, vice-president, and C. B. Jeffrey, secretary-treasurer. Charles L. Black, outgoing president, J. Harris Gardner, and D. H. Doorn were named new members of the board of directors.

The bid for holding the 1939 convention in Austin will be presented at the January meeting of the board of directors of the State Bar Association.

'Show Me a Shot I Can't Make,' Peterson to Challenge U. T. Today

Charles C. Peterson, the world's fancy shot pool billiards champion, who will be at the Texas Union at 10 and 2 o'clock today for free exhibitions, here is showing Miss Bernice Kidd of Chicago that billiards can be played even on a fast-moving table.

There will be no such thing as an impossible billiard shot in the Main Lounge of the Texas Union today when Charles C. Peterson, world's fancy shot billiards champion, gives a free exhibition of his uncanny skill. In the picture, he is showing that billiards can be played even on a fast-moving table.

He will be giving free instructions to those desiring them, it was announced, at the two exhibitions during the day, 10 and 2 o'clock, and again tonight from 5 until 6:15 o'clock at the University Faculty Club.

Peterson, who is making his seventh annual college tour under the auspices of the Association of College Unions, of which the Texas Union is a member, invites anyone in the audience, after his lecture-demonstration, to "show me a shot I can't make," his slogan. Masters and novices have failed to stump him so far, even when playing in a recent world's tournament in Chicago "framed" a shot they thought impossible.

The "Missionary of Billiards" is coming here at the invitation of the Texas Union for a second time. After a brief demonstration of the fundamental principles of good billiards, Peterson will show how it is possible to make 1,000 straight billiards in four minutes and twenty-seven seconds. His repertoire of fancy shots numbers more than five hundred.

'New Life' Advocate Dislikes Austin's Christmas 'Bombs'

By CLIFFORD SNOWDEN

"Your city is very beautiful, with its Christmas lights and gay decorations, but the Christmas bells are bombs to kill Chinese women and children," said Miss Pearl Teh-wei Liu last night, who with Dr. Pao-yu Yin is in Austin to give interpretations of the New Life Movement in China and to present the existing conditions in that torn but determined country.

Herbert Petry was named chairman of a committee to draw up a resolution calling for changes to be presented at the next session of the social calendar committee. Also on the resolutions committee are Pete Curry, Southwesterners; Frank Hunter, El Paso Club; Elliott Small, Dallas Club; Bill Clement, Rusk-Gregg Club. This committee will meet tonight, following the dance committee meeting.

Longhorns Drill For K. U. Game

Warren Wiggins Back in Uniform

Crowded out of Gregory Gym because of preparations for the Varsity Carnival, the Longhorns worked out yesterday in the gym at the School for the Deaf in preparation for their important non-conference clash with Kansas University Friday and Saturday.

Not at all satisfied with last Saturday's performance against the San Marcos Bobcats, Jack Gray sent the team through a stiff drill. The return of Warren Wiggins to the team yesterday was the bright spot of the workout. Wiggins has been out of uniform almost since the season training started because of a sprained back.

Also encouraging was the form displayed by Joe Roach, tall and rugged veteran. Roach played a big part of the game in San Marcos last week but saw little service Saturday night.

K. U. Coach Troubled By Loss of Stars

LAWRENCE, Kan., Dec. 12.—If any school has a course on "How to Replace an All-American in Ten Easy Lessons," it should get in touch immediately with Dr. Forrest C. (Phog) Allen, basketball coach at the University of Kansas.

The amiable doctor is devoting most of his time to the above-mentioned problem. Dr. Allen lost only two men from last year's squad by graduation, but how those two losses hurt!

There are nowhere near as many All-American cage teams as there are football teams, and consequently all-star national cage teams do not receive as much recognition as the mythical football elevens.

However, if Fred Pralle was not an All-American guard there never was one. He led the Big Six Conference in scoring from his guard position last year with an average of 12.1 points a game, played sensationally on defense and had a fighting spirit that helped to keep the team rolling at top speed.

Now, Dr. Allen is endeavoring to find a man to take Pralle's place and finding a suitable replacement is proving very difficult. It may be some time before another "Pralle" appears on the scene.

The other missing star from last year's championship quintet is Sylvester Schmidt. Schmidt, an honor student, was the basketball quarterback of the Jayhawkers and his performances are being sorely missed by the 1938-39 Kansas outfit.

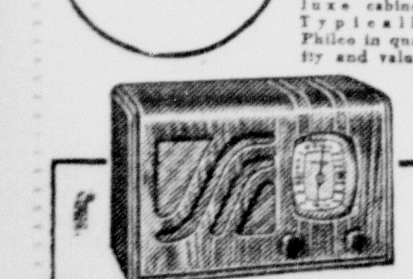

ST. MARY'S TACKLE READY

MORAGA, Calif., Dec. 12.—(INS)—Cheered by return of Nick Katzmeyer, spark plug tackle, St. Mary's footballers resumed light one-hour work-outs today in preparation for their date January 2 with Texas Tech at the Dallas Cotton Bowl. Katzmeyer left a hospital where he had been under observation for a week because of an appendicitis attack. Coach Slip Madigan, who has been tarrying at Los Angeles, returned to take active charge.

Four High School Grid Teams Remain in Championship Race

By CLARENCE L. ROCHE

Texas Sports Editor

Variety, like the theme has never been carried out before, will be the dominant feature on next Friday and Saturday's Interscholastic League school-boy semi-finals.

Four great teams from four great sections of the state are preparing for the final drive that will see two of the four emerge as finalists for the state title.

From Fort Worth, the city T.C.U. put on the athletic atlas, come the surprising little—and we mean little—Masons from Masonic Home High School. The Masons will average less than 150 pounds per man when they line up against the big scoring avalanche from Lubbock High School next Friday in Lubbock. What the light-weights lack in weight, however, is more than made up by their skill in executing fundamentals, their aggressiveness and spirit, and their great team play. The Lubbock-Masonic Home game should develop into a wild-scoring affair, the Westerners featuring Wild William Webster, hard-running back, and the Masons passing magic.

The other semi-final spectacle pits the Temple Wildcats, Centex powerhouse, against the State's heaviest and highest scoring machine, the rampaging Buccaneers from Corpus Christi. The big port city team has amassed a total of 426 points to 72 of its opponents.

The Temple-Corpus clash will take place at the high school field in Temple. This arrangement was made possible because the Wildcats journeyed to the coast for an early season joust with the Buccaneers. That game ended in a scoreless tie.

Coach Harry Stiteler, who will be remembered as the coach of Smithville's fine class B team from 1934 through 1937, will pit his deadly Warner system against a mighty forward wall, for in the Wildcats the Bucs will be meeting one of the best defensive clubs in the State. The balance of power, we believe, rests with Temple . . . that balance being supplied by one "Long" Tom Pickett, a back who will go down in school-boy grid annals as one of the best. Pickett should carry Temple into the finals against Lubbock.

WOMAN SCOUT WICHITA, Kan., Dec. 12.—(INS)—Mrs. Bessie Largent of McKinney, Texas, only woman scout in major league baseball, will head the board that will select eighteen All-American semi-pro players, it was announced today.

The stars will be chosen from 500 players who will compete in the Fifth Annual National Semi-Pro Tournament at Wichita, August 12-25.

In fourteen years, the Chicago White Sox scout has signed more than 100 players.

She was offered the place on the board some time ago but her definite acceptance was not announced until today.

RAIDERS WORK HARD LUBBOCK, Dec. 12.—(INS)—Texas Tech's Red Raiders buckled down today on Tech Field in preparation for the Cotton Bowl game January 2 in Dallas against St. Mary's of Moraga, Calif. They will leave Lubbock for Dallas December 21 and conclude the series of work-outs on the S.M.U. field there.

Coach Pete Cawthon was a happy man today. He had a "Christmas gift" of a complete scout report on St. Mary's. Tempering his joy was the revelation in the scout's notes that St. Mary's has a potent passing attack, something Cawthon had expressed the belief he would not find so troublesome as the Galloping Gaels' running offense.

Darkhorses, A.T.O.'s, Czechs, Win Way to Semi-Finals

S.R.D. Team Wins By One Point From Swedes

Spurred on by the cheers of their pretty fans, the S.R.D. Darkhorses managed to win a 7-6 victory over the Blomquist Swedes in the game played Monday afternoon for the championship of their league of Intramural touch football.

The game was a hard-fought passing duel between Swede Clyde Sims and Darkhorse Don Taylor. Taylor distinguished himself by completing sixteen out of twenty-eight passes.

The game started with the Swedes taking a kick and returning it to the 40-yard line.

A large part of the first half was consumed by the exchange of the punts. One of these kicks laid the foundation for a Darkhorse touchdown. They received the punt on the Swedes' 30-yard line and started a touchdown march, tossing a succession of short passes which brought them to the Swede 2-yard line. The Darkhorses got their touchdown on a pass from Don Taylor to Leonard Rode. The extra point was converted and the half was over with the Darkhorses leading, 7-0.

The second half began with the Swedes again receiving and starting a march of passes which brought them to the Darkhorse 25-yard line. Sims then tossed a pass to "Bucky" Boyd which was incomplete. However, due to a penalty for interference on the pass, the ball was placed on the S.R.D. one-yard line. The touchdown pass was tossed by Sims to Charley Broesche, who was playing a hideout position. The kick for extra point was bad and the Darkhorses still led, 7-6. The game ended with the Swedes fighting to get out of their territory.

The Darkhorses will meet the A.T.O. team Wednesday at 4:30 o'clock to play the semi-finals for the Intramural championship.

A.T.O. Beats Kappa Sigma

One Penetration Is Deciding Margin

Contrary to pre-game dope, the Alpha Tau Omega Intramural touch football team won one of the hardest fought games of the season from the Kappa Sigma team to win the Fraternity championship in that sport.

The running score was tied, 7-7, with the victor winning by one penetration. In spite of a cold wind, spectators of both sexes crowded the sidelines and the field was given a dash of Christmas color by the red and green decorations on the goal posts.

As usual, the A.T.O.'s came from behind to take the win. Early in the first half, the Kappa Sigs scored a touchdown when Boy Haskarl blocked a punt which Jack Curran recovered behind the A.T.O. pay-stripe. Bayard McMahon's kick was good for the extra point, placing the Kappa Sigs in the lead by a score of 7-0.

However, the A.T.O.'s refused to lose, and before the half had ended they had tied the score. An A.T.O. back, Myrle Self, tossed a pass into the arms of Raymond Harrison, who ran for a touchdown. Nolan Pickett kicked the extra point and the half ended soon after with the score tied, 7-7.

The rest of the game was hard-fought with neither team ever safe from defeat. However, the wind and a great A.T.O. line were slowing up the powerful Kappa Sigs. One Kappa Sig back was fighting with brilliant playing which refused to give the victory to anyone without a stiff contest. He was Boy Haskarl, a player who is a genius in no one department of football, but who can be depended upon to play fine offensive and defensive games.

The A.T.O. boys were led by Myrle Self and Nolan Pickett, one or the other breaking away every few seconds for some fine running which kept the spectators on their toes. Bayard McMahon was doing his best in the Kappa Sigma backfield, playing a fighting game.

The largest crowd of the season watched the game with a great deal of enthusiasm. There were about two-hundred fans present, fully one-fourth of them being girls, who kept the air filled with cheers.

Austex Girls First In 'Mural Swim

The Austex Club won the swimming championship of the independent division of women's intramurals in a meet held last Friday. Individual honors, however, went to Toni Redfern, member of the Seals team.

Miss Redfern broke the intramural record in the free-style, swimming the distance in 13.2 seconds. The old record of 14 seconds was held by Harriet Mitchell who tied her old record but finished behind Miss Redfern.

In the diving event Miss Redfern placed second behind Pat Downey of the Austex Club. Dorothy Loose of Kirby Hall was third. The free-style relay was won by the Austex Club with the Seals second and Kirby Hall third.

Czechs Win Crown From B. Hallers In Club Division

Winning their game in the last second of the game, the Progressive Czechs beat the B. Hall team Monday afternoon, to take the club championship of Intramural touch football. The score of the game was 6-6, but only in the closing seconds of the game were the Progressive Czechs able to push the ball across the penetration line for the victory. The Czechs were led by Jack Conway.

The first score of the game went to B. Hall when its alert end, Earl Donnell, intercepted a pass and made a nice run across the pay-line. A pass for the extra point failed.

The Czechs tied the score, when Conway passed to John Mayfield for a touchdown.

Both teams then settled down to a long second half fight. Penetrations were tied at 1 and 1. The teams played in the center of the field for nearly fifteen minutes with neither team gaining more than a few yards.

Then, suddenly, a break came to the Czechs which won the game. Conway tossed a 40-yard pass and the referee ruled that B. Hall interfered with the receiver.

The penalty placed the pigskin on the B. Hall 21-yard line. After two tries, the Czechs sent the ball across.

With his excellent kicking Charles Hinchley kept the B. Hall team in the center of the field most of the time. One time, he drew cheers when the wind in his face failed to keep him from getting off a 40-yard boot. While kicking with the wind, he averaged nearly 60 yards per try. Conway and Chink Slovacek were the mainstays of the Czechs.

After the game, the captains of the victorious teams in the games of the afternoon met in the office of Berry Whitaker, director of intramural athletics for men to toss coins for the first round competition Wednesday afternoon at 4:30 for the Intramural championship. The Czechs won a bye, and on Friday at 4:30 will play the winner of the Alpha Tau Omega-S.R.D. Darkhorse game. The winner of Friday's game will be champion.

In a nation-wide poll for the 1938 All-American football team chosen by writers on college and university newspapers, Ki Aldrich and Davey O'Brien, T.C.U. grid stars, were unanimously accorded posts at center and quarterback, respectively.

The poll is an annual affair sponsored by the Mutual Broadcasting Company through its collegiate commentator, Tippi Taylor, and colleges and universities from coast to coast participate in the selection. The eleven men chosen by the college scribes are practically the same players accorded the "All-American" honors on numerous other "all" teams.

Longhorn track fans have reason to feel elated this week because of the action taken by the Southwest Athletic Conference in Dallas by granting Gilliam Graham a year of eligibility. And they have a right to rejoice, for Graham happens to be about the best javelin man in the United States and a cinch to lead the Southwest Conference in that event next spring.

The action came as a bit of a surprise since the Conference "daddies" declared him ineligible early last spring, then reaffirmed their action just before the Conference track meet in May. And even more surprising is the fact that the decision last Saturday was UNANIMOUS... even Baylor and Rice casting their votes in favor of Graham. Rice, you know, had a very tough time last spring in nosing out the Longhorns in order to win the championship and it looks as if the race this year will be just as close. So in voting for Graham the Owls merely handed Texas five points.

However, we are inclined to wonder if it was so much a case of beautiful sportsmanship as it was an attempt to avoid further ridicule. For there was little excuse for the action taken last year, in shutting the door in Little's face. The facts of the case are, briefly, these: In 1932 Graham enrolled at Baylor as a freshman. He took no part in athletics. The following year he returned but soon had to drop out of school because of bad eyesight. He remained out of school until 1936, when he came to Texas and enrolled. The officials took advantage of a technicality to rule him out. It was such a flagrant case of observing "the letter of the law" that plenty of criticism was directed toward Rice, Baylor, Southern Methodist, and Texas Christian, the schools who had voted against him.

And happiest of all over the outcome Saturday was curly headed Graham himself. Gilliam, a smiling, good-natured and friendly fellow from Brownfield, is elated over the prospect of an opportunity to break the Conference record in the javelin throw and to help the Steers get that track title back from the Owls.

Friday and Saturday the Kansas Jayhawks drop down for a two-game series. And heading the delegation will be Forrest (Phog) Allen, Jayhawk coach, who is to basketball at Kansas what Knute Rockne was to football at Notre Dame and what Uncle Billy Disch is to baseball here. Allen is an authority on basketball theory and the records of his teams show quite definitely that his theories work out very successfully. Since 1925 his Kansas team has won the Big Six championship eleven times. Last year the Jayhawks won eighteen and lost two.

Encouraging, however, is the fact that the Oklahoma Aggies, downed the Jayhawks twice last week. The Aggies took the first one, 21-5, and the second, 25-19. It might be well to mention in this connection that the Aggies have an exceptionally strong team.

There was quite a buzz of excitement last Saturday night between halves of the Longhorn-San Marcos game. Steer fans were wondering why the Steer team that had so completely and thoroughly overwhelmed the Bobcats earlier in the week could do no better than a 19-19 draw. It happens that we saw the game in San Marcos and therefore find it quite easy to explain.

In the first place, Texas hit a peak in offensive play down there in the first half that was a joy to behold. Granville, in particular, just couldn't miss and the rest of the boys were going great guns. Add also the fact that the San Marcos team was very ragged. It wasn't so much the fact that they couldn't get the shots as it was that they couldn't hit the basket.

Saturday night the situation was somewhat reversed. In the first half the Bobcats were dropping shots neatly through while the Steers weren't doing so good.

But chief reason for that tie score at the intermission was that Jack Gray's boys were busy thinking about the headlines they got earlier in the week and about the prestige they would gain by defeating Kansas on December 16, 17. Maybe that is a bit strong, but it was evident that they were overconfident and cocky. As a result they kept letting the Bobcats out hustle and outplay them.

swing, we drink cups of tea and compose poems."

Miss Liu explained the Chinese tea drinking is different from the custom in America.

"We don't drink 'bottoms up' as you do—we sip. The rose tea is very expensive. It consists of a dried rose placed in a cup with tea leaves, honey and hot water, and immediately covered. The leaves of the rose open and give off a delightful fragrance."

The educated, in making their poems over a cup of tea or dinner table, have to use suggestion.

"If I want to make a poem about wine, I can't use the word wine, but I have to suggest it," she said.

In China the boys do not talk to the girls of love as they do in America, but express their love through writing beautiful characters and sentences.

In the universities, the girls wear the customary long dresses, but for sports, these are a hindrance, and they wear skirts that strike them about the knees.

"The boys usually wear American trousers, even if they wear the Chinese blouses," Miss Liu said.

"We are here to present a very conservative picture," she said, "making of the work in America. We don't want to talk propaganda; we just want to present the true picture of the life in China as it really is."

"We have been greatly encouraged by the sympathy people have shown," she said, as she leaned forward and clasped her fingers together. "We have unfailing confidence that we will win out. China is losing battles to win the war."

"America is unconsciously helping Japan, the country which is marvelously good at propaganda."

Jayhawker Mainstays

When the powerful University of Kansas Jayhawks invade Gregory Gymnasium next Friday and Saturday nights, two of Dr. F. C. Allen's mainstays will be Lyman Corlis, left, and Bruce Voran, right. Corlis, a two-year letterman at forward, is a senior and has been switched to guard in an effort to plug the gap left by the graduation of Kansas's all-American guard, Fred Pralle. Corlis is good on defense, a smooth ball handler, and a good long shot.

Voran, who was Allen's star against Oklahoma A.M. last week, is a junior and may see action against the Longhorns both at center and guard, as he plays both positions equally well. He was unable to play with the Jayhawks last year as a sophomore because of a burn, but he is making up for lost time this season.

Oklahoma Cheerleader, Blind, To Get Medical Care

STILLWATER, Okla., Dec. 12.—(INS)—Gaither Bynum, Oklahoma A.M. College cheerleader who was stricken with blindness while leading the cheering section during the Aggie-Kansas University basketball game Friday night, today was assured of expert medical attention.

Between halves of the Aggie-Kansas University game Saturday night, spectators passed the hat, gathering $186 to be used in sending Bynum to an eye specialist for treatment.

The cause of the sudden blindness was still undetermined today. Bynum has recovered slightly, according to college infirmary authorities. He is able to distinguish light from darkness and tell when an object is placed before his eyes. He is, however, unable to distinguish objects about him.

His attack, Bynum told physicians, was accompanied by a severe headache and dizziness.

Hitler's March To Include Memel

LONDON, Dec. 12.—(INS)—Germany's march to the East has been transformed from talk into reality.

As a result of the overwhelming Nazi victory in the Memel elections, responsible observers today were reconciled that Chancellor Hitler will be able to announce return of Memel to the Reich when the Reichstag meets in Germany. This is expected in spite of earlier assertions by Hitler that he does not want Memel.

Lithuania, as possessor of Memel, is seen as menaced, but she is expected to profit by the experience of Czechoslovakia and submit it, becoming a vassal state within the German orbit without a fight.

Well-informed quarters do not expect any third power to resist Memel's incorporation within Germany, or to assist Lithuania.

U. S. Won't Offer Plan For Defense at Lima

LIMA, Peru, Dec. 12.—(INS)—The United States definitely has decided to drop the idea of presenting a draft treaty for mutual continental defense to the Eighth Pan-American Conference, now in session at Lima, it was learned on unimpeachable authority today.

The decision to abandon the defense plan was taken, according to reliable reports, as a result of a series of conferences between Secretary of State Cordell Hull and leaders of the Latin American delegations. It was also a direct consequence of the address made Saturday by Jose Maria Cantillo, foreign minister of Argentina.

In place of the abandoned project, it was authoritatively reported that Hull is now circulating privately the text of an alternative treaty. By the terms of this pact all the nations of the American continent would bind themselves to take action in the event of a threat to the sovereignty of any American nation by a non-American power.

Each American nation, however, will, according to the proposed arrangement, take its action as an independent entity so that its signature of the treaty will in no way affect its national sovereignty, or its right to act in the manner most suited to its particular situation.

Secretary Hull's draft treaty also was reported to oblige the foreign ministers of all the American nations to meet regularly every year except on years when Pan-American conferences take place. They also will meet in the event of danger of aggression from any European source.

It was stated in conference circles today that this initiative already has been approved privately by all the attending delegations. These delegations now are consulting their home governments prior to undertaking affixing their signatures to the draft, which probably will take place at the next plenary session of the conference.

It appeared certain today that the efforts of the United States to procure more favorable customs house treatment among the American nations as well as to obtain abolition of exchange control regulations of many South American states, are doomed to failure.

The first of these two plans, it is expected, will be wrecked upon the rock of existing treaties between South American states and European nations. The second has been blocked because the South American nations, now practicing

Britain, France Expect Merrill to Be Kept

LONDON, Dec. 12.—(INS)—Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain today informed the House of Commons that the British and French governments have expressed the hope to Germany that she will use her influence to see that the Memel Statute is respected.

(The statute guarantees the autonomy of the Lithuanian city of Memel, where a sweeping election victory by Nazis was interpreted today by Nazi leaders as indicating the possible annexation of the city with the Reich.)

The Prime Minister also told the House that Great Britain was not committed to come to the aid of France in the event of attack by Italy.

O'Daniel to Visit Ford

FORT WORTH, Dec. 12.—(INS)—Texas Governor-Elect W. Lee O'Daniel will confer with Henry Ford, noted motor magnate, at Ford's home in Dearborn, Mich., Wednesday, it was announced by O'Daniel.

The ex-flour salesman and radio entertainer said he may also visit other industrial centers in the North and East. He is studying possibilities for his program of Texas industrial expansion.

Because of O'Daniel's absence, the scheduled $100-a-plate dinner to be given in his honor at Fort Worth has been postponed.

Lima Conference

THE OPENING of the Eighth International Conference of American States at Lima on December 9 marked the latest and perhaps the most determined effort yet made to preserve the peace of all the Americas—and to establish a system of diplomatic fortifications against what this government regards as menacing activities of foreign governments which covet the trade and even the land of the republics to the South.

Significant indeed was the speech of Assistant Secretary of State Berle on November 20, when he said of the Americas: "We are no longer two vast islands but a part of an integrated civilization. It is a significant fact that never has there been so large an area of peace maintained for so long a period of time in modern history. We are prepared to defend this position—and to defend it on any line which may seem necessary." Today's Latin-American problems, from our point of view, are much more serious and difficult than when President Hoover made his successful good will tour ten years ago—or even when President Roosevelt made a similar tour in 1936. For generations we have been Latin America's "big brother." No other power has been a factor there to any significant extent. But now Germany, Italy, and Japan are all making strong bids for Latin-American favor—and we must outbid them if the Monroe Doctrine is not to become a dead letter, and much of South America's vast markets closed to the products of our farms and factories.

It is an important fact that the delegation appointed by President Roosevelt to represent us at the Conference was as non-political as could be asked. It was headed, of course, by Secretary Hull—passionate advocate of peace and stimulated trade among nations. It included a priest who is an authority on Latin-American affairs, a college professor whose specialty is international law, executives of the C.I.O. and the A. F. of L., a number of State Department experts, and Alf M. Landon, who carried the G.O.P.'s presidential hopes in 1936. Mr. Landon's appointment, it is believed, indicates an effort of the President to unite the two major parties so far as our foreign policy is concerned.

No one expects any great immediate results to follow this conference. There will be many flowery speeches and formal gestures of good will, for public consumption. The real work will be carried on largely behind the scenes. Vast problems must be discussed. For the conference must deal with more than American affairs.

And in the meantime, American prestige wanes as German, Italian, and Japanese dollars and immigrants flow into the Latin republics. The dictators extend the hand of friendship and the promises of trade and prosperity. Already in some of them strong Nazi and Fascist trends have appeared. Rumors go the rounds of secret air and naval bases so situated as to make possible an attack on the Canal Zone—and while most experts regard these rumors as being greatly exaggerated, they also realize that

TURN BACKWARD, TURN BACKWARD, O TIME IN THY FLIGHT!

Whether the Garner for President movement is another evidence of the wave of reaction that seems to be engulfing our nation or merely a picking by Texas of its most logical "favorite son" is a question that can only be solved by watching how the movement catches on outside the state.

The Garner ballyhoo is fully in line with such reactionary tendencies as University students and people of the nation as a whole favoring the Dies investigation (as shown by the Bureau of Student Opinion poll and the Gallup poll) and the congressional victories of Republicans and Old Guard Democrats.

President Roosevelt and the more progressive democratic elements have fought for eight years for a legislative and administrative program that has enabled, and will enable, the government to deal more intelligently and efficiently with social and economic questions. But many of these measures are still in the experimental stage, and to abruptly change the policy of the federal administration at this time would be to toss away these valuable reforms, both those that have practically proved their worth and those that are still in the embryonic stage.

Only two ways seem open for the Democratic Party to maintain its control of the federal government: one, to run Roosevelt for a third term; two, to elect a candidate that would assure the continuation of the Rooseveltian policies and behind whom Roosevelt could unreservedly throw his political support. Such a man Mr. Garner definitely is not. And the third term tradition and the position of Mr. Roosevelt that he will not run unless it is absolutely necessary makes the finding on the part of the Democratic Party of such a liberal candidate a political mandate.

And of course it is self-evident that if the Republicans gain control in 1940 there is the greatest danger of the advances of the last eight years winding up in the national wastebasket.

Consequently it seems to us that the forming of the University Committee for Continuation of Rooseveltian reform was an intelligent action on the part of those students who participated. The tendency toward reaction or the tradition of bowing to a "favorite son" may be too strong in the state for the actions of these students to be more than a drop in the bucket, but nevertheless we believe their attitude sensible; and their activities may have an effect.

BARNUM IS STILL RIGHT

In connection with the publicity that is being generated in the state papers in relation to the Garner for President movement, we are inclined to wonder just how many more generations of Americans will fall hook, line, and sinker for the outworn, "born in a log cabin" type of political propaganda, and for the other sentimental, irrelevant ballyhoo that inevitably runs as a muddy stream through every political election.

Speaking of reaction, rank conservatism, and political ballyhoo, we would like to quote, if you will forgive us, intelligent readers, from Dale Miller's eulogistic article in the Texas Weekly of Saturday, December 10, entitled "Garner for President: Club No. 1."

"On a December afternoon as balmy as spring, hundreds of his (Garner's) fellow Texans, youngsters and oldsters alike, made the pilgrimage to the crumbling log cabin in which he was born 69 years ago, and organized the nation's first bona fide Garner for President Club."

"The scene was one to delight the eye of the artist or historian. The broad expanse of 'Blossom Prairie,' the old mud-chinked log cabin, the picturesque crowd and their homemade banners—all blended into an atmosphere so heavily nostalgic of early America that some tourists lured off the highway a few miles away had cause to wonder if they had not been transported magically to the frontier of a distant day. But there was nothing uncommon about the scene. The frontier of a distant day is the frontier of today on Blossom Prairie, and in manifold hundreds of communities elsewhere throughout the nation. It is not so much a vanished frontier as a forgotten frontier, and perhaps the rugged simplicity of a John Garner, his heritage and his humble habits of life, are necessary to make us remember it again."

The absurdity of the above appeal, successful before—maybe successful again, is too obvious for further comment, but we cannot resist.

What does Blossom Prairie, the forgotten frontier which we are called upon to remember so strongly, know about the National Stock Exchange, the crackle-pop of modern foreign relations, the explosive problem of unemployment, the war between great labor factions, the control of billion dollar monopolies, social security, the conservation of national resources, interstate commerce, wages and hours, the tariff? What does a "mud-chinked cabin" in the wilderness have to do with modern slum housing problems, rehabilitation, and reforestation?

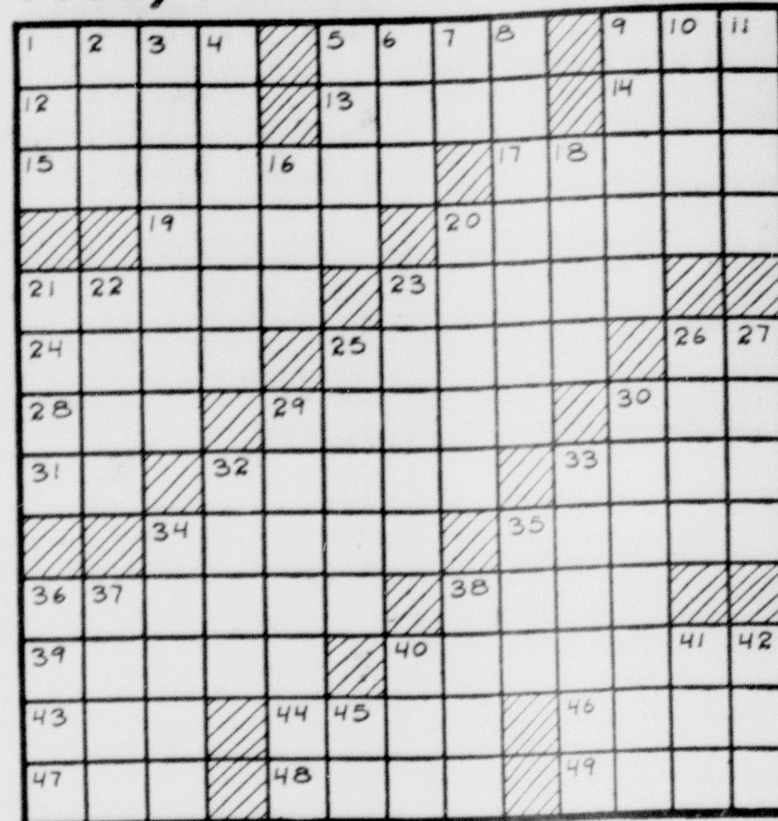

Why all this nostalgia to trip back with fright to huddle where we have been? Why not realize that technology and progress have long ago made an anachronism of this early American culture and look where we are going, trying to pick the straightest path?

Personally, and that is the only opinion we may express, we do not wish to take the step backward before going on again.

where there is so much smoke there is likely to be some fire.

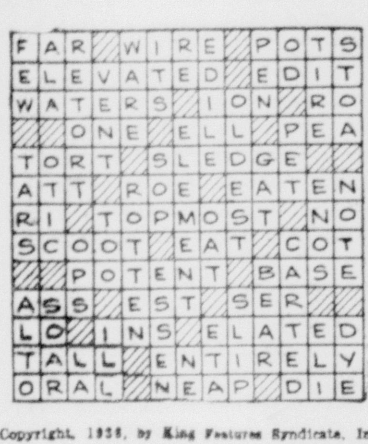

The groundwork is now being laid to restore America's prestige. What must be done in the future no one knows—our course of action must be fluid and elastic, if it is to meet changing circumstances beyond our control. And the basic issue involves much more than trade—it is Democracy versus Fascism in that vast area which lies beyond our territorial borders.

BEN GAYLE, one of the dry wits of the Forty Acres, often pulls the old ones with enough new punch to make them good. Dancing the other night Welborne Dodd approached him and said in the most polite and etiquette manner, "May I break?" Then, Ben with his brilliant wit, said, "You can bust all to pieces as far as I am concerned."

Something always makes us stop and think when we see Christmas spelled Xmas. We used to think it might be a little irreverent to merely substitute X for God's name, Christ. Then more thought produced the idea that X as used in Algebra for an unknown quantity might be good and maybe even complimentary. But we still revolt a little at the idea of the substitution. It may be all right for advertisers who have to save space, but it irks us just a little.

Lloyd Birdwell, being in a nasty humor Saturday night, was having a very good time heckling people until Sara Holmes stopped him with the razzing that the bird from Birdwell wasn't so bad. That alliteration got him, but he kept on having fun even if he did get in a better humor.

Feel sorry for the poor little University girls running around trying to buy Christmas presents for boys. They seem to get scared to death that the present they buy will be all wrong. Don't see why they worry about it so much. Few of them will be with the boys to whom they give the presents and by the time we all come back to school boys will have gotten over the surprises and horror of the present and will be able to beam and talk about how much they liked it. There may be another side to the problem, but the females seem able to get over anything. They don't wear ties!

Surely after the success last night the Varsity Carnival will turn into an annual event that will be looked forward to as Christmas begins to roll around. Everyone seemed to enjoy spending his money, and the idea that it might be helping someone more unfortunate seemed to make it easier for everyone to get a hand out of a pocket with something in it. Congratulations to those, too numerous to mention, who made it possible for the spectators to come and make the thing a success.

Thurman Clemonds and Raymond Harrison mad at Roy Brown because he took them to Froggie Bottom. They didn't like the color of most of the other patrons of the night spot and threatened to do battle with someone or other but Roy was in such a good humor he prevented any catastrophe.

We would like to add our gripe about the boys and some girls too, for that matter, that continue to wear their high school sweaters after they get to the University. Probably there isn't really much wrong with wearing them, but it seems to make a division in a student body that, during the last football season, proved itself to be pretty much one. All those old things should be submerged into love and patriotism and proudness of the new.

In schools where pep is a little better organized and where pep clubs exist we have seen boys with high school letters jerked off the sidewalk by pep club members armed with razor blades. Not long did the boys continue the frowned-on practice. If they wanted to keep their sweaters with letters intact to show their kids, they kept them in the right place—in the bottom dresser drawer under a stack of shirts.

Wonder what will come of the ugly boy race? Guess a fellow who doesn't have a bunch of rich enemies won't have a chance. With votes selling for a cent a shot it's now what price ugliness instead of the old everyday one about beauty.

AMAZEMENT REIGNS

WHEN the first editorial suggesting a ban on the wearing of high school and junior college letter sweaters was called to my attention, the whole idea seemed so childish and silly that it was dismissed without further thought. It now appears, however, that the Texan is serious in its idea, and if that be true, the subject must be dealt with regardless of its triviality.

Amazement reigned supreme when in black face type the statement, "Remember that you are not judged by what you did in high school, but by what you do here," was offered as the reason for not wearing high school letter sweaters. If that be true, pray tell me why the Registrar's Office is slightly interested in a piece of paper called a "transcript" which is a record of work done in high school. If we allow as reasonable the argument that one is not to be judged by what he did in high school, then the Registrar should welcome with open arms any and all persons presenting themselves for entrance into the University without any unpleasant and insistent demands for a record of "what you did at high school."

That the above statement is no reason at all, but merely some unthinking person's opinion in the matter becomes obvious when we see the attention actually paid to high school and junior college work by the Registrars of the colleges of this country.

Other statements advanced as reasons or arguments in favor of arbitrarily banning the wearing of a particular type of clothing on the campus are equally as absurd as the one listed above.

Corrigan Sweater

Joan Fontaine sets a new style in Hollywood with the Corrigan "wrong way" sweater. No matter which way the sweater is worn, it "gets there," Miss Fontaine declares. Worn with the back in front, it has a high neck line, fastening with one button at the side back. Reversed, it may be worn with a V-neckline and wide revers; or it may be fastened at the front instead of the back, preserving a high neckline all around. The triple changes make it suitable for wear with slacks for sport or with a suit for casual occasions.

The Theater-Goer

By BOYD SINCLAIR

WITH THE ADVENT of "High Tor" tonight comes the thought of whether or not Mr. Maxwell Anderson, the author, considers himself the American Shakespeare; or, whether or not anyone else considers him a dramatic bard for our side. That is the question I heard most asked by those who saw "Winterset," either on the stage or screen, or who read the play.

Mr. Anderson writes plays in verse. Only part of "High Tor" is in verse. If the play-goer does not realize this before he hears the speeches, he may perhaps wonder about a mysterious quality in the dialogue and the delivery of the actor, just as I wondered on a casual inspection of Mr. Burgess Meredith's delivery in the screen version of "Winterset." It was a full five hours later—slow wit of the first water—before my attempted analysis hit upon the cause as being nothing but dramatic verse.

"High Tor" will be found to contain more of the qualities of Henrik Ibsen than it will that of William Shakespeare. This is not to say that Mr. Anderson's play so much as nearly approaches the social message, fine poetry, trenchant social satire, history, legend, and the freakish and whimsical caprice of "Peer Gynt."

It cannot be expected to be, for the Norwegian legends and myths of the trolls and the saeter girls, are so much richer with the age of many tellings that the three hundred years of Mr. Hudson and his nine-pin players are strictly in the initial stage in comparison. What Mr. Anderson can be commended for is his classical ambition, his willingness to make a beginning, just as our own Mr. Dobie has successfully done.

In "High Tor," Mr. Anderson again brings his dislike of modern gargantuan and complex commercialism. With some show of bitterness, he paints it as rampant and destructive to the natural order of the ages.

I detect as underlying all of his play the same quiet battle between nature and unnatural civilization that Mr. Robert E. Sherwood gave to the philosophy of his hero in "The Petrified Forest." In the final prophetic lines, Mr. Anderson pictures nature as always winning through the geological eons.

He makes the Indian say, "Nothing is made by men but makes, in the end, good ruins." "High Tor" is a difficult play for any group of actors and technicians. In my second season of watching James Hambricht Parke, I have yet to see him fail, though. He is a gentleman aptly named. He is well known in the amateur acting world for taking hams and making them bright.

'Carnival in Flanders' Lives Up to Advance Praise

By PAT HOLT

Texas Amusement Staff

"Carnival in Flanders," first of a series of four French films to be presented this winter by the Alliance Francaise, is a delightful comedy of Seventeenth Century Flanders that well deserves the praise of New York critics.

The story concerns a small Flemish village in the year 1616. When word comes that the Spaniards are coming, the men of the town are thunderstruck and plan to fake an epidemic to scare the Spaniards away. While the men, led by the big blustering mayor, are preparing to go to bed or faint death to put the town into mourning, the women, led by the mayor's wife—a dour woman comparable to Shakespeare's famous shrew—give the town a holiday air and meet the Spaniards at the gate with the keys to the city. Keeping the men in the background, the women enter the invaders so royally that they succeed in persuading the Duke to exempt the town from a year's taxes.

It seems to be a rather common practice currently for critics to point out what they are pleased to call "social significance" in every play or movie that comes their way. "Carnival in Flanders," indeed, might very well be considered pacifist propaganda, as it shows so very aptly how effective non-resistance can be on occasion. As the mayor's wife says in calling on the women to entertain the Spaniards—"Men's arms are all right in a war, but women's arms have always conquered in the long run."

We prefer, however, to let the social significance of the film pass unnoticed, and content ourselves with its sparkling dialogue and delightful comedy.
