

Six Student Offices in Balance As Polls Open at 8 o'Clock

Longhorns Defeat Phillies, 4-1

Score First Victory
Over Big League Team

By DON PATTESON

Illness prevented Uncle Billy Dirsch yesterday from realizing a life-long ambition—to see the Longhorns beat a major league baseball team. Melvin Deutsch allowed the Philadelphia Phillies only seven hits and one run at Clark Field yesterday afternoon while his teammates were driving in four runs with ten hits.

Never since Uncle Billy has been coaching here have the Steers won a game from a major league team. And yesterday Uncle Billy was laid up with a recurrence of the "flu" which kept him away from the ball park several days last week. He will be up in a day or two, perhaps in time to handle the team when it plays the University of Oklahoma Wednesday and Thursday. If not, Freshman Coach Ed Price will manage the Steers as he did yesterday.

Deutsch, working in mid-summer weather, made the Phillies cut under the ball and fly out to the fielders most of the time. His curve broke well and he had little trouble in putting the ball where the catcher called for it.

Aside from Deutsch, the individual star for the Longhorns was Clarence Pfeil, last year's all-conference center-fielder. He came up in the first with Moers on base and drove one up on the cliff out in left center field for a home run. Moers scoring ahead of him. Again in the seventh, he hit another long one to left but was held to a triple. He fielded perfectly, handling seven chances without a mistake and holding the Phillies on base with his accurate throws.

The Phillies' only score came in the fourth. Scott opened the inning with a double to left center field and stole third when Arnovich fanned. Whitney came up and drove out a single to score Scott.

The only double play of the game came right after the Phillies scored. Whitney went to second on a single by Powers and started to third when Millies hit what looked like a Texas Leaguer to center field. However, Pfeil came in fast and caught the ball, doubling Whitney off second before he could get back.

After the first inning, Poindexter held the Longhorns scoreless until the sixth. Lawson singled after Hill had fanned and went to second on a ground ball by Everett. The Philly first baseman fumbled the throw and Everett was safe on first, Lawson going to third on the play. He scored a moment later on a long fly to right field by Deutsch.

The scoring ended in the seventh when Pfeil hit a triple and came home on a hard double to right field by Conway. Conway's drive went clear to the fence, hitting it at the top and bounding back into the playing field. A few inches more and it would have been another home run.

Prize Contests
Open to Orators

U. T. Try-Outs
Today, Wednesday

A $150 cash prize will be awarded for the best oration at the Battle of Flowers Oratorical Contest in San Antonio, April 21, and a $40 cash prize will be awarded for the best oration at the Missouri Valley Oratorical Contest, to be held in connection with the Missouri Valley Debate Tournament at the University of Colorado at Boulder.

All men and women students in the University are eligible for the try-outs for the San Jacinto Day celebration, tonight at 7:30 o'clock in Garrison Hall 1. Eight will be chosen to compete in the finals next week.

Ellwood Griscom, professor of public speaking, will advise entrants on subjects, which must concern Texas, and approve orations.

A Texas representative to the oratorical contest at Boulder will be chosen Wednesday night at 7:30 o'clock in Garrison Hall 1.

Topics for this contest must relate to national problems or current world affairs. T. A. Rouse, associate professor of public speaking, is in charge of the University's participation in this contest. Only undergraduate men are eligible.

Last year the contest was held in Austin and Gerdes Isenhour, who was graduated in 1938, won second place.

John Stephen won first place in the Battle of Flowers Oratorical Contest last year.

Faced With Choice, Nation's Students
Would Pick Communism Over Fascism

Communism would be the choice of a majority of American college students if they had to decide between that system and fascism. This trend has been revealed by the latest nation-wide poll of the Student Opinion Surveys of America.

Within the last two decades fascism and communism have come into the front in the news as a result of the set-ups in operation in Russia, Germany, and Italy. During that period of time today's college youth has been growing up.

Because of the directly opposite policies of the two forms of government, in theory at least, speculation as to which is better has developed, especially in halls of learning. Frequently asked is the question, "If you had to make a choice, which would you prefer, fascism or communism?" When this hypothetical question was put before the nation's college students, representing in the Surveys' cross-section every creed, race, and political affiliation, the results were as follows:

Communism ..... 56.4%
Fascism ..... 43.6%

On Election Eve

Students Duck 7 Candidates,
Chase Dibrell, Visit O'Daniel

By PAT HOLT

In one of the wildest nights the University campus has seen in a long time, seven candidates were thrown in the Littlefield Memorial Fountain, one was besieged in the Physics Building, and Governor W. Lee O'Daniel was waited upon by a delegation from the Tri-Dorm Association last night in a climax to the 1939 spring political campaign.

Assault Charged
Tennis Player

Hal Bridges, Texan
Sports Writer, Files

Hal Bridges, Texan sports writer, from Luling, was beaten about the face and eyes last night in his room at the Y.M.C.A. by John Braubach, Longhorn tennis player, shortly after the six-foot athlete accused Bridges of printing "lies" about him in an account of the Davidson College-Texas tennis match which appeared in Sunday's Texan.

After reiterating that he wrote from a wholly impartial viewpoint, reporting only what he saw, Bridges was asked to print a retraction, which he refused to do. Braubach then said: "Are you going to take off your glasses?"

The 5 foot, 9 inch sportswriter replied that he "only had the use of one arm," but that he would fight him if he insisted (Bridges's right arm was strained playing tennis and he has been taking treatments at the University Health Service).

As he took off his glasses and turned around, Bridges said, Braubach swung on him without warning, cutting him under the eyes and knocking him against the wall while Braubach's two friends stood in the background. Joe Ross, Union, R. M. Weidele, O. P. Whittington, Max Bickler, Gordon B. Williams, H. H. Power, James D. Harman, Thomas L. White, Ted Dunnam, Bob Wheelock, Albert D. Aberton, James Hartsfield, Leslie Armour Taylor, Kay Domeier, Mary Lewis Scott, and L. B. Sheppard.

Braubach's grievance arose from Bridges's account of a tennis match between the University and Davidson College Saturday in which Bridges reported the netter as taking advantage of a dubious point. "To this writer," Bridges wrote, "and to others on the sidelines the ball appeared to bounce at least twice and possibly three times before Braubach scooped it back over the net."

The umpire, Paul Lynde, the story continued, turned to Braubach and asked, "Did you get that ball?"

"I thought I did," Braubach replied. See ASSAULT, Page 2.

The seven candidates ducked in the fountain were Dub Singleton, Sydney Reagan, and Dick Newcomer, candidates for president; John Roberts for chairman of the Judiciary Council; Max Skelton and Everett Shirley for Texan editor; and Glenn Appling for secretary.

James Dibrell, the other candidate for president, refused to appear at the ducking and was besieged by a group of disappointed Tri-Dormers in his office in the Physics Building. According to Joe Martin, one of the Tri-Dormers, when ringleaders in the group called him to warn him about the ducking, he refused to have any part in it, saying it was "childish," and that "if I'm elected, there won't be any more of this foolishness, because I'm going to do away with student politics."

When Dibrell did not appear at the meeting in front of Littlefield Fountain last night, a group of almost a hundred students laid siege to the Physics Building, where Dibrell was locked up in his office. They got in the building, but not into Dibrell's office, and disbanded after some of Dibrell's cronies in the building had turned in a police call. Learning from the window of his office, Dibrell tried to make a speech to the crowd, but was soundly booed. He did manage to say, however, that he "couldn't even hope to talk intelligently to a bunch of adolescents."

Later he told Martin, "I would not have the office if they gave it to me."

After the ducking was underway, a group of about twenty of the students gathered around the Governor's Mansion to try to persuade Governor W. Lee O'Daniel to come out and watch the fun. The Governor appeared and made a brief speech in which he said he would like very much to see the "duckings," but that the press of official business kept him at his desk. He added that "I like this delegation very much. It's such a relief from the people I have to deal with in the day time."

The crowd in the Governor's yard broke up when told it was disturbing a service at the First Baptist Church across the street.

A girl was thrown in the fountain last night for the first time since the ducking party was started a year or so ago by the Tri-Dorm Association. She was Glenn Appling, candidate for secretary of the Students' Association, who submitted cheerfully to the ducking as did all the other candidates. Anne Finch, also a candidate for secretary, escaped only because of the fact that she had just left the hospital after a two-week illness with influenza. One of her sorority sisters offered to be ducked in her place. See DUCKING, Page 2.

Council Leads 2-1
For Re-Election

Members of the present Austin City Council were re-elected Monday night, returns from sixteen of the nineteen boxes showed, with leads of two-to-one over the five opposition candidates.

Simon Gillis, commissioner, led in the incomplete returns, followed with 4,394; Tom Miller, 4,328; C. F. Alford, 4,052; Oswald Wolf, 3,350.

The highest number of votes polled by one of the opposition candidates was 2,053 for Will T. Johnson in the incomplete returns.

7,000 Votes
And the Future

AN EDITORIAL

OVER NINE THOUSAND students today have the duty of selecting from twenty-five candidates twelve students who will be the leaders in campus activities for the coming year.

Over nine thousand students should take this duty with a serious thought, in that the officers for the next year will have an important, as well as an unusual, role to play in the University's development of the future. On the two recent visits to the campus by Dr. Homer Price Rainey, president-elect of the University, the new President has made plain that the University have in the future even a closer harmony between the faculty and students than has existed in the past.

When Dr. Rainey takes office in June, the new student officials will also have assumed their duties. A new era in the University's development will begin with Dr. Rainey's taking office, and student interest in his program will be essential.

The nine thousand students should realize these problems as they cast their votes for the twelve offices, forgetting political affiliations and associations in determining the students who will be most capable of assisting the new administration in its program.

In the spring elections of a year ago, over sixty-five hundred votes were cast in the president's race. This year enrollment has increased by nearly one thousand students, and a decided increase should be made in today's voting number.

At least seven thousand students today should express a preference for the Students' Association's president, vice-president, secretary, chairman of the Judiciary Council, editors and associate editors of the Texan, the Cactus and the Ranger, for head yell leader, and for the outstanding athlete of the year.

Regardless of political affiliations, all students should combine forces in seeking a 7,000 vote today.

Texan Backs Ebulient Effie
In Dubious Write-In Campaign

Astute, shrewd politicians scratched their heads, wrinkled their brows, and chewed on their fingernails yesterday, trying to dope out the latest development in campus politics.

The old hands at the game were faced with a situation none of them had ever encountered before—a write-in campaign. Would it work?

Would it fail? What effect would it have on the other races? The professional politicians looked in vain for the answers to these and other questions, as Effie split the campus wide-open with her write-in campaign for Ranger editor.

In a statement to the Texan yesterday, Effie said:

"I'm gonna win if I can find enough mugs in school who know how to write."
Joe James, the other candidate for Ranger editor, whose name is on the ballot as elected, said: "She'll never do it. I'm gonna have some extra ballots with my name on 'em printed."

James also warned Election Judges Livius Lankford and Bob Kemp to keep a careful watch over the ballot boxes to prevent stuffing, and to keep Effie from writing her own name in more than once—"that is, if she can write at all," he added.

The Daily Texan is giving Effie its full support, Pat Daniels, editor of the campus paper, said last night.

"Effie was gypped out of being Sweetheart," Daniels said, "but we're going to see to it that she gets elected Ranger editor, even if we have to bribe the election judges, refuse to print the returns if Effie isn't elected, or stuff the ballot boxes ourselves. Effie's the capable candidate."

On the election program, the first one devoted to a single subject since Dr. Homer P. Rainey was interviewed, all election results until 10:30 will be given, and candidates, campus leaders, and election judges will be interviewed, said Margarette Garrison, program director.

An incorrect outline was published under the picture of the film-burying ceremony in Sunday's paper. Rather than a picture of Colonel Paul Wakefield, as the Texan stated, the picture was of Hal Norfleet, special representative of the motion picture producers, with Molly O'Daniel and Dr. E. H. Sellards. The Texan regrets that the error was made, and sincerely apologizes.

Alpha Phi Omega pledged eight neophytes in Texas Union Monday. The new pledges are Bill Barton, David Coffman, Milton Davis, Anthony Dibrell, Thomas Drawhorn, Marvin Petty, Charles Trenchmann, and Russell Vernon.

The pledge group met at 7 o'clock Monday night to elect officers and to learn the purposes and principles of the organization. The officers elected were Barton, president; Petty, vice-president; Vernon, secretary-treasurer; and Trenchmann, reporter.

University students will go to the polls today to fill eleven campus offices from a field of twenty-two candidates, five of whom have jobs cinched for next year by virtue of the fact that they are unopposed.

Students will also vote on the proposed new constitution for the Students' Association and will select one of the three athletes nominated by the T Association to receive the annual Athletic Council award. A copy of the official ballot follows:

Candidates for the Athletic Award are Roy Baines, Wallace Lawson, and Willie Tate.

Twelve ballot boxes over the campus will be open from 8 o'clock this morning until 1:15 this afternoon. The boxes will be located in front of Hogg Memorial Auditorium, in front of the west entrance to Waggoner Hall, in the Law Building, at Garrison Hall, at Sutton Hall, between the Chemistry and Physics Building, between the Geology Building and the Main Building, in front of the Engineering Building, in front of the Old Library Building, and in the corridor of the Main Building.

Two boxes will also be placed in front of the Texas Union.

Pharmacy students will not be allowed to vote today, even if they failed to vote in the special election held for them yesterday, Livius Lankford and Bob Kemp, election judges announced yesterday.

Counting on the ballots will begin at 2 o'clock in the Main Lounge of the Texas Union. Each candidate will be allowed a representative on the counting floor, and other students who want to do so may watch the counting and receive periodic returns from the balcony overlooking the Main Lounge. The first report on the tabulations will probably not be given until 5 or 6 o'clock this afternoon, said Daniels.

The Daily Texan will have special operators on duty Tuesday night from 6 to 11 o'clock to give election returns. The number is 2-7289.

Rules governing the voting, as announced by the election judges, require that there be no campaigning within fifty feet of each ballot box. Lankford explained yesterday, however, that students wearing badges for certain candidates will be allowed to teach the boxes and vote without taking off the ribbons.

Referring to the campaign to write in Effie for Ranger editor, Lankford said that students should see ELECTION, Page 2.

Lindsey's Tight Relief Hurling Wins for Aggies Over Frogs, 4-3

Series Evened In Close Tilt

Welch Retired In Fourth Frame

Special to the Texas

FORT WORTH, April 3.—The Texas Aggies gained an even break in their baseball series with the T.C.U. Horned Frogs here Monday afternoon by nailing out the Purple, 4-3.

Ralph Lindsey, junior right hander, turned in the winning relief effort. After Welch had been shelled for three runs in the fourth, he took over and blanked the Frogs the rest of the way. Durward Horner was on the hill for the Frogs and gave up but seven hits. However, he walked six and his mates booted four plays to keep him in trouble.

The Aggies scored a run in the second and fourth rounds, one unearned. Then the Frogs jumped on Welch to take the lead. Singles by Don Looney, Billy Bilderbeck and Connie Sparks, coupled with a two-base error by Cooper, did the damage. Lindsey started the fifth and set the Frogs down with two hits the rest of the way.

The Aggies tied it up in the fifth on a walk, stolen base and single by Jeffrey. Then with runners on first and third, a double steal was attempted. Karcher was run down between first and second for the third out but not until Jeffrey had crossed the plate with what proved the winning run.

Score by innings:
Aggies — 010 120 000—4 7 2
Frogs — 000 300 000—3 5 4

Summary: Doubles—Jeffrey. Runs batted in, Williams, Nolen, Bilderbeck, Sparks 2, Jeffrey. Left on base, Aggies 7, T.C.U. 6. Winning pitcher, Lindsey. Innings pitched, Welch 4, 3 runs, 3 hits. dents who do so will have their vote disqualified in that race only.

All signs found within the fifty-foot limit will be confiscated. Lankford said. Every student is entitled to one vote and anyone attempting double voting will be subject to disciplinary action, the judges announced. To vote, students must fulfill the following instructions:

- 1) Print their full name as it is recorded in the student directory. To facilitate rapid voting and to prevent congestion between classes, the judges ask that all names be printed clearly. Slips of paper will be provided by the clerks at the poll, on which the names are to be printed.
- 2) Present these slips of paper with the names on them to the election clerks and receive their official ballots.
- 3) Scratch all names except the ones preferred. Only one name is to be left for each office.
- 4) Vote ballots unaltered, and drop them into the locked ballot box.

Further rules, as issued by the judges, state that there can be no voting by proxy; if any mistake is made in voting, the voters must have the ballots checked by the clerks at the poll. Any ballot not properly filled out will not be counted. All disputes will be handled by the election judges, and their decisions will be final.

Ducking --

Miss Finch's place, but the boys declined.

Newcomer, candidate for president, staged a one-man rally before and after the ducking. Before the Tri-Dorm group rounded up the other candidates, they paid a visit to Newcomer and his loud-speaking equipment stationed just in front of the Main Building. Newcomer wanted them to allow the candidates to come to his "party" before the ducking, but the Tri-Dormers refused, and went after the other candidates, and came back later for Newcomer. While waiting for the Tri-Dormers to return, he tried to get the small crowd around to dance, but they declined. He was wearing a tuxedo, but stripped down to bathing trunks for the ducking. After he was thrown into the fountain, he pulled out a bar of soap and calmly proceeded to take a bath before the several hundred people who had congregated for the affair.

Pennebaker will be delivered tonight before a meeting of the student chapter of the A.I.M.E. for the selection of a technical paper to represent the University in a student competition for the best papers to be delivered by students of the engineering colleges of the Southwest at the Houston Oil Show to be held in Houston the latter part of

E. G. Smith Attends Consumer Meet

Everett G. Smith, professor of marketing, is attending a four-day conference on "Consumer Education" which began Monday at Columbia, Mo.

The Institute for Consumer Education at Stephens College is sponsoring the conference, being held on the college campus.

This month.

The meeting is to be in Engineering Building 301 at 7:30 o'clock, and the public is invited.

Longhorn Varsity and Frosh Netters Meet Invaders Today

Both the varsity and the freshman tennis teams will get into competition this afternoon. The varsity netters will oppose San Marcos State Teachers College on the Penick Courts at 2:30 o'clock. Starting at the same time, the frosh will meet the Schreiner Institute racket-wielders.

Ironically enough, the frosh meet the tougher competition—the Institute team having already defeated the Teachers this season.

Dr. D. A. Penick, coach, has not announced the personnel of the two teams to face the visitors. Some of the top-ranking Steer netters may participate for the sake of getting practice, or, on the other hand, the reserves may take the courts.

Members of the frosh squad expected to see action are Bradley, Dosen, Franklin, Ben Nixon, Headington, Slubicki, and Offer.

Heading the Schreiner team is "Lefty" Brown, big southpaw netter who is well known in Texas tennis circles. Next to him in the ranking is Tom Nixon, brother of the Yearlings' Ben. The two played high school tennis in San Antonio last year and were finalists in the state schoolboy tennis tournament.

DRAMATISTS RETURN

E. G. Minter, Dorothy Helene McLaughlin, James H. Parke, and F. L. Winship, all of the staff of the College of Fine Arts, returned last week from the Baylor Drama Festival in Waco.

Quad-Meet Takes Steers to Waco

The Longhorn track team, with the unofficial team championship of the Texas Relays on their trophy shelf along with Olympic and Fort Worth Fat Stock Show, will attempt to take another track meet Wednesday when it journeys to Waco to challenge Baylor, Texas Christian, and Southern Methodist in a quadrangular meet.

The Steers are heavy favorites to win over the Bears, Frogs, and Ponies, who have never produced outstanding track teams.

"All of our boys came out of Saturday's meet in good condition," Bully Gilstrap, acting coach in the absence of Clyde Littlefield, declared Monday.

The two biggest surprises to him in the Relays, Gilstrap said, was the performance of the Yearling 440-yard relay team, which set a new national freshman mark of 42.1, and the showing of Bill Davidson, Texas high jumper, who leaped 6 feet, 4 inches to tie for second place.

Gilstrap commended the officiating and handling of the Relays Saturday. He said that the meet was almost perfectly conducted.

Purcell Endorses White's Plan

In the Sunday issue, The Daily Texan omitted a statement from Stuart Purcell, candidate for head yell leader, through an oversight, although statements from other candidates were printed. Purcell's statement follows:

"Stuart Purcell, independent candidate approved by the committee for head yell leader, is a junior in the College of Arts and Sciences and a member of MICA.

"He has openly endorsed Louis White's plan for a men's pep squad for next year and has various ideas on card formations and seating formations to be exhibited by this organization at athletic games.

"Purcell has a plan whereby the athletes and students can be brought closer together to enhance a stronger school spirit by giving the various athletic teams a dinner and pep rally preceding their respective seasons. This will give Joe College and Miss Co-Ed an opportunity to meet the athletes and thereby show the team that we are interested in them personally, and want to know them personally.

"Purcell is heartily in favor of Colonel Hurt's band hall drive and has donated toward the new building."

Gebauer Speaks To San Antonio Deans

Miss Dorothy Gebauer, dean of women, returned Saturday afternoon from San Antonio, where she spoke to the San Antonio District Deans' Association at a luncheon on the mezzanine of the St. Anthony Hotel. She discussed the information a student should receive before coming to college in the form of an interview with Dorothy Martin, a San Antonio high school senior girl who will enter the University this fall.

In the interview she answered questions about the organizations on the campus, the courses a freshman would take, the clothes to wear, and the places to live.

Miss Viola Moore, dean of girls at Jefferson High School, spoke on the responsibility of the dean in preparing students for college.

Orchestrals Begins Work on Program

Intramurals

By BILL NEWKIRK
Texan Sports Staff

ALBEIT THE WEATHER yesterday afternoon was tops for baseball, only one intramural game was played (possibly in deference to the Steer-Brownie tilt over at Clark Field). In the lone tilt the Rangers shellacked the Campus Guild, 10-5. Although they only had seven men on the field, the Rangers got off to a 7-0 lead in the first frame. The Campus Guild, on the other hand, got off to a bad start and couldn't get back in the game despite Frank Rosson's triple in the last inning that brought in three runs. Ed Carnes, Ranger moundsman, stood out for the winners as he registered 10 strikeouts in 4 innings. Both teams played loose games in the fielding end of it.

Play has progressed rapidly in the handball team sport and a University champion will be crowned before the week is up. The Rangers won the MICA division and the University Czechs topped the Club division.

There's no regulation that you can't pitch horseshoes in your shorts and sans shirt, so all of you luck-piece tossers who want to combine sun-tanning with your pitching get your entries in before the deadline today. The number of entries last year wasn't anything to write home about—a scant 254—and horseshoes being a game anybody can play, this seems lamentable. So, unless you prefer your sunning in a recumbent position, unwind your best arm and amble over to the courts on the north side of Gregory Gym.

And here's a warning to all you golfers: If you want to get credit for those low cards, get your qualifying scores into the intramural office at once. It's advisable, too, to play these rounds off as soon as possible... that course is going to be mighty crowded during these days just before entries are due. It might be a good idea for the golfers to team up with the horseshoe twirlers, for the entry deadline for the golfers is April 13.

Women's Tourney Due April 4

First division of the women's intramural softball tournament will be played April 4 at 5 o'clock. Mrs. Frances Seybolt, secretary of intramural athletics for women, announced Monday. Games to be played are Zeta vs. A. D. Pi; Scat vs. Kirby Hall; and Zephyrs vs. Woman's Building.

CLIPPED COMMENT

Before Texas Youth

HOMER P. RAINEY'S Thursday broadcast over WFAA cannot be regarded as a project lecture by the director of the American Youth Commission rather than a declaration of policy by the new president of The University of Texas. The figures that he quoted and the situation that he presented are, to be sure, the direct results of the work in which Dr. Rainey has been engaged for the Federal Government. But at The University of Texas, the new president comes to a task that is fully as closely concerned with the future and the development of the young men and young women of Texas, those enlarging and oncoming generations caught in an economic situation which cannot fail to affect their lives. Dr. Rainey described them as the most valuable Texas resource going to waste. In going to waste they affect critically, too, the life of adult Texas.

If you consider Dr. Rainey's speech only as an epitome of so much cold statistics—if you regard that total of nearly 1,250,000 young people between the ages of 16 and 24 in Texas as merely an abstract figure, you will miss both the point and the imperative need. For broken down to concrete case, these are not strangers to you, these million and a quarter of whom only 485,000 are employed or are in school and college. Their horde includes your Jane and your John, your neighbor's Tom, Dick, and Harry. Even if they are among the 160,000 still in school, school does not last forever. Beyond it—what?

That is the problem that Dr. Rainey points out his commission has had to consider. The Dallas survey brought out figures that come close home to us. The educational aspect of the report reveals the startling shortage in adequate rural schooling. But in the main and most important, the driving problem is that of employment for the beyond school age years. It is not a simple problem and it will not be solved overnight. The four-point program of the Youth Commission will not solve it, though it will help. For of what value is vocational training if there are no fields in which to practice the vocation?

Certainly the most elementary form of attack presents itself as continuing, co-operative state application to the condition and supervision of the planning for the employment of our own people. Partly the solution is tied into the development of our resource field to furnish jobs but that, too, comes under the classification of long-range planning.

Not all of the burden of solution depends on adult Texas. Much of it must rest on youngsterhood itself, on its discipline to the Spartan realization that facts must be faced, that it must seek means of occupying leisure hours without cost, of devoting earnings to essentials and not to frills. It is a man-size problem for youth and age alike. It is one that we will have to solve.—DALLAS MORNING NEWS.

THE BELLES

See the dresses on the belles—
Bluebonnet belles!
What a big outlay of cash the whole thing spells!
How they wrinkle, wrinkle wrinkle
In the shining social light!
While the "rocks" that oversprinkle
All the glad rage seem to twinkle.
It's a sight, sight, sight!
They're having a time, time, time
In a sort of social climb,
And there's a tittling and a tattling, and so musically it wells

From the belles, belles, belles
Belles, belles, belles—
From the rushing and the gushing of the belles.

II
See the dancing of the belles—
Bluebonnet belles!
A tripping, light, fantastic bunch of swells!
On the shiny, slickened floor
There were more than fourteen score
And their jiving whirl denotes
In the room
That they're feeling all their oats,
And the escort sweats and listens while she gloats
At her bloom!

Oh, from out the lipping Nells
What a gush of simple patter voluminously wells!
How it smells!
Hell's bells!
Oh, the creature!—how she tells
Of the aching foot that swells!
Oh, the swinging and the clinging
Of the belles, belles, belles—
Of the belles, belles, belles, belles,
Belles, belles, belles—
Oh, the dancing and the prancing of the belles!

III
See the snooty, snobby belles—
Brazen belles!
What a lot of sinful suffrage now their very presence tells!
In the darkness of the night
And in the broad day light
They stooped to seek, seek, seek
Alike from barb and clique,
A measly vote,
In a glamorous appealing the ballots to acquire,
In a mad expostulation to move in cotton that's higher!

From frying pan to fire,
Pulling wire, wire, wire
With a resolute endeavor
Now—now to gain, or never
An "honest" ballot to promote.
Oh, the belles, belles, belles!
What a tale their tattling tells
Of politics!

How they smile! They're never sore!
What a promise they outpour!
As they lean on our "easy" campus Hicks!
Each damsel fully knows
By the neatness
And the sweetness
And the cut of all her clothes
That she them all excels
In the beauty
And the duty
Of a sweetheart for the swells.

There's a sinking and a swelling in this chance for all the belles—
For the belles—
For the belles, belles, belles, belles,
Belles, belles, belles—
Because of voting and promoting by the belles.

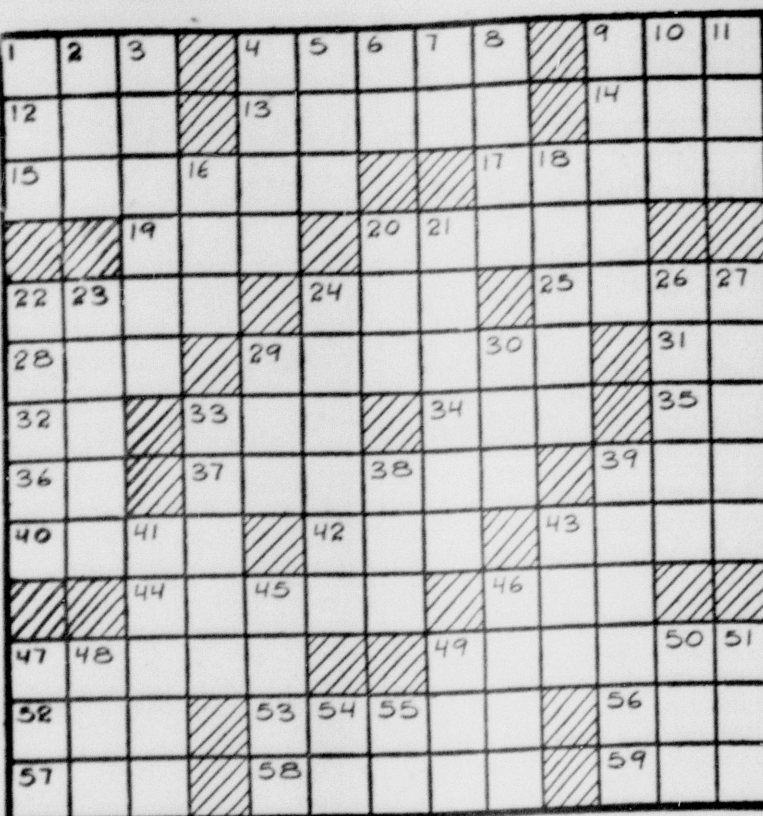

IV
Hear the weeping of the belles—
Saddened belles!
And their divers disappointing "what-the-hells!"
Now that the show is over
And they've had their night in clover,
There's a melancholy menace in their tone!
Because she was not chosen,
Each one's features is now frozen—
'Twas a shame!
And the student—ah, the student—
He that voted so imprudent—
Is to blame.

Oh, the rolling, rolling, rolling
In a fancy hair salon,
Their cute coiffures controlling
On their human heads of bone
To make them handsome cuties—
And to make them pretty beauties—
They aren't molls.

The coiffure it is who rolls,
And there are scolds, scolds, scolds,
Scolds
A-plenty from the belles.
There are swells, swells, swells
With the pageant of the belles!
And there are social knells
And a hot, hot time
In a sort of Round-Up climb
To the gabbing of the belles,
Of the belles, belles, belles—
To the blabbing of the belles—
Kassel time, time, time
On the night air swells
In a snappy Round-Up rhyme,
To the dancing of the belles—
Of the belles, belles, belles—
To the prancing of the belles—
Of the belles, belles, belles, belles,
Belles, belles, belles—
To the jiving and conniving of the belles.

THE POET'S RELEASE

ODE TO LOVELY EYES
Much brighter than the stars above
And gayer than your youth,
They fill your heart with thoughts of love,
For in them you see the truth.

These eyes affect you more by far
Than sparkling old champagne;
They make your senses rock and reel
To watch them shine again.

At night you see them beam so gay
Like stars that shine so bright;
Their merry twinkle seems to say
That things will be all right.

When music plays they dance and sway,
Keep time to every beat.
They'll probably steal your heart away
Unless you're most discreet.

And as you gaze at them you pray
To watch them shine again.

The Firing Line

LIGHT OPERA CAST

IN THE MARCH 29 issue of The Daily Texan, there appears the cast of the Light Opera Company's forthcoming production, Rio Rita. Now, I have read that announcement backwards and forwards and no where can I find the name of Walter Kerr. What does this mean? Not meaning to cast reflections on any of the cast chosen, but how can they leave out that man who is without a doubt the one top-flight entertainer the University has?

Do you remember "Time Stagers On?" Without Walter there to hold it up it would have staggered off and fallen flat on its face. Then "A Night of Stars," which in spite of the large number of people it presented, was all Walter Kerr. Do you remember how he sang songs, did rope tricks, and even told jokes and kept the crowd rolling in the aisles long after the show was supposed to be over and not a soul walked out? Editor, anyone who can get out in front of the curtain and do this single-handed is definitely a showman and an entertainer. Well, if you want to go back to previous years how about his Sheriff of Nottingham in the Robin Hood operas, and Francois Villon in "The Vagabond King"? Bet you don't remember who played Robin Hood.

Anyway, Walter is the University's one entertainer who has star possibilities and here, the Light Opera Company doesn't even put him in the cast. I know that without him the thing can't be anything more than just another college amateur night, so my four-bits is staying in my pocket.

—JIMMY HENDERSON.

P. S. I'd rather see a horse-opera.

ENGLISH AND COMMUNISM

AFTER reading the Firing Line, Thursday, March 30, I think it will occur to a good many readers that a course in English literature is not necessary to produce the condition currently known as "teched in the head" in a certain "American Patriot," Mr. Fred Borth.

From as much as can be gathered by reading this masterpiece of "American" literature, the following conclusions can be drawn:

1. Mr. Borth objects to the study of English literature on the grounds that the authors were "immoral and communistic."
2. Mr. Borth objects to the study of English literature because American literature is superior to English literature.
3. Mr. Borth objects to the ### study of English literature because he is an American.

In the first place I wonder if it ever occurred to this "honorable gentleman" that our American writers are just as subject to "immorality and communism" as are English writers. The important question is not the personal life of the individual but the contributions he has made to his particular field. This applies not alone to literature but to any phase of learning. Our country was founded and built by men who were no paragons of virtue; some of the greatest advances in pharmacy, zoology, chemistry, engineering and the fine arts were made by men and women whose private lives fell far short of heavenly status. But whatever their lives were they have aided in the advance of human ideas and it has been these self-same people who have broadened the scope of thought to make true education possible.

Then Mr. Borth brings out the fact that it is unpatriotic to study English literature. Perhaps when he is a bit older and MUCH broader he will realize that great literature is not confined to any one nation nor to any one race. If the accomplishments of other nations had not been recognized and utilized to our advantage our American civilization would still be at the level of the Middle Ages. Again, this applies not only to literature but to all fields.

And last, but by no means least, Mr. Borth impresses himself with the fact that he is an American. I am inclined to believe that he is unaware of the factors constituting Americanism. Americanism makes for tolerance, for non-prejudiced decisions, for constructive and not destructive criticism, and above all, Americanism makes for humanitarianism. These elements are sadly lacking in Mr. Borth's viewpoint.

It is unfortunate that this "honorable gentleman" is unable to understand the literature of Shelley, Byron, Godwin, and Coleridge because, indeed, if this be the case, then he would fall far short of the ability to appreciate our great American poet, Edna St. Vincent Millay, whose unmatched metaphors were never written for the bigoted, narrow-minded individual.

I might suggest Mr. Borth employ a tutor or else confine himself to nursery rhymes... Or if he prefers prose there is always "Baby Ray."
—LOUISE GREER.

FREE LOVE?

SOOKIE and Dookie say that the three foremost urges in human nature are sex, hunger, and walking across corners. These advocates of path cutting then go on to seemingly approve marriage as a regulator of sex, but to condemn as inhuman the geometrical corners of the hard stone walks. What they are subtly insinuating is that marriage is inhuman, is like unto a hard stone walk whose corners should be cut. In short, these liberty-loving lovers are advocating free love.

Facing the Sun

Olivia de Havilland is facing the sun of these early spring days in a powder blue crepe button-down-the-front frock, distinguished by its clever use of tucks. Bands of tucks from the shoulders form a yoke and release the fullness across the front, while an ultra slender waistline is achieved by the use of another band of tucks. Rough navy blue straw makes her youthful Breton sailor, trimmed with saucy polka dot taffeta bow.

Memorial Tree Blooms Beside Statue

The seed that was taken from the grave of Ex-Governor Hogg in Oakwood Cemetery in Austin, nursed in the horticulture department at A.&M., and then transplanted to the north side of Governor Hogg's statue on the University campus in 1935 is breaking into bud.

When Governor Hogg realized his approaching death, he said, "I don't want, when I die, any cold marble placed at the head of my grave. I want a soft-shelled Texas pecan tree placed there, and at the foot a regular walnut, and when they bear fruit I want the nuts sent out to the farmers of Texas that they may plant, and they will do it."

The tree in Oakwood Cemetery is bearing fruit and the farmers may gather the nuts and plant them. Perhaps within the next few years the nuts from the tree on the University campus will be planted and Governor Hogg's wish will be fully realized.

Three of Madame Slaviansky's Mr. Gable and the Mrs. Original Russian Chorus Sing

There were only three of Madame Slaviansky's original Russian chorus that sang in a small room in the Federated Club Building: Madame herself, who drew unbelievable tonal effects from a chorus of college singers; Miss Mara Slaviansky, her daughter, whose white fingers carried the piano accompaniment and whose flashing black eyes challenged the ear's attention; and John Bootenko with a booming basso that has been heard by many nations. But they carried an ordinary group of singers from Southwestern University in Georgetown to a height unbelievable for such a group.

There were soloists in the group, but outside of Edward Gross, whose tenor voice carried "Going Home" to good effect, there were none to compare with the voices of the University's Bonnie Ruth Taylor, Carruth Palmer, Frank Gardner, or Gene Hemmle, but this only made the chorus effects this fine Russian artist achieved even more remarkable.

Opening with Grieg's "Recognition of Land," the group presented a balanced program that included Dett's "Listen to the Lambs," a Czech folk song, "Li ci Daren," a Russian tune "Kobza," "The Song of Massachusetts," and a closing chorus of "Bluebonnets."

Laura Nell Key brought charm and a well-trained if undeveloped soprano voice to Strauss's "Blue Danube," and Charles Eccles led an excellent mixed choral arrangement of "Old Man River," from "Showboat." Mr. Eccles, though lacking the voice timber of Palmer, who is a former soloist with the group, was satisfactory in the assignment.

The Grieg number that opened the program and "Kobza," an imitation of a Ukrainian instrument, gave the group the best opportunity to show the remarkable effects that Madame can draw from the human voice. The Russian technique, that made her organization one of the finest choruses in the world at one time, achieves a resonant softness that drops to an unbelievably low pitch and carries out to the back of the auditorium.

Miss Slaviansky was forced to take part only as an accompanist due to a sore throat, and due to the small auditorium only forty-five of the chorus of sixty-two singers were presented. Also the size of the room made it impossible to give some of the best numbers of their repertoire such as "Plume Grass," and "Song of the Volga Boatman."

The only quarrel we have with the organization is that its program didn't include more Russian songs and costumes and that they don't come to Hogg Memorial Auditorium to replace some of the much inferior programs that are imported from great distances.

The program was sponsored by the Austin District Music Teachers' Association.

LOCKWOOD ON RADIO

"The Plan of the Department of Art at The University of Texas" was the title of a paper read over radio station WOAI by Ward Lockwood, professor of art, at the Southern States Art League in San Antonio Friday, March 31. Mr. Lockwood also served on a jury for the Houston Artists' Show at Houston last week.

Ex-Vogue Editor Says Murals In Federal Buildings Aid Art

New horizons in American art achieved by the interest of the government in artistic movements were discussed by Mrs. Helen Appleton Read, ex-associate art editor of Vogue Magazine, at a lecture in the Architecture Building auditorium last night.

The movement to beautify Federal buildings is not new, for governmental architecture has been built under the Treasury Department since the days of George Washington. The Treasury is the governmental agency for constructing and designing its buildings, and is probably the largest architectural client in the world, according to Mrs. Read.

Murals are the ideal form of art for such decoration because through them it is possible for the artist to best display true realism and a certain quality akin to the social or democratic ideal. Great efforts of mural have always paralleled times of great belief, either religious, as in Fifteenth Century Italy, or social, as in Twentieth Century America, said Mrs. Read.

From the Mexicans our artists have learned that a mural can be more than just a piece of art—it must be a perfect collaboration between artist and sculptor. Mexican art has also proved the fact that state support of art can bring about a renaissance.

Mrs. Read feels that the government's interest in art will push forward the national artistic movement, and make America "mural minded."

Climaxing her discussion, Mrs. Read showed slides of famous murals in Federal buildings throughout the United States. Of special interest were the two works of Ward Lockwood, University professor of art, which are in the post office at Washington, D. C. Mrs. Read referred to these works, which are pure frescoes, as possessing the true realism and iconography of the saga.

Edward Silk, ex-student from Wichita Falls, returned to his home by plane Sunday after spending the Round-Up week-end at the Delta Chi house.

Passion Play Given By Newman Club

"The Way of Sorrows," a passion play by Fred J. Karen, was presented by the Newman Club Sunday night in St. Austin's auditorium.

A sacred music concert preceded the play. Colonel George E. Hurt, director of the Longhorn Band, played a violin solo of Gounod's "Ave Maria." Edward Hatfield sang "The Palms" by Faure. Other selections on the program were "The Rosary" sung by Pat O'Keefe and "The Lost Chord," a saxophone solo by Randle Tankersley. Recitations were also given by Violet Alkemyer and Louise Martin.

The cast of the two-act religious drama, directed by Johnnie Coselli, includes Rachel, an old blind woman, Mary E. Linz; Jasparr, an adopted boy, Terence Flahive; Mary, Mother of Jesus, Katherine A. Fischer; John, the Beloved Disciple, Howard Byers; narrator, Tom Unis; soldiers, mob, etc., Mary A. Morrey, Noreen
