'Whoo-Whoo' Song to Send Team to Waco

"I got train bells and whistles on my mind—whoo! whoo!"
Them eds and co-eds as gets up early enough Saturday morning to send the Longhorns off at the Baylor pep rally will be hearing this phrase, thinking this phrase, and even singing this phrase.
The pre-Bear rally will be held in the Missouri-Kansas-Texas railroad station at 8:30 o'clock Saturday morning. Clanking cow-bells and tooting horns will join with yells in what promises to be a hot session, cheer leaders promised Wednesday.

Between the Longhorn Band, the yelling Cowboys and the expected crowd of hundreds, the Steers ought to get a good send-off, they said. At least a good enough send-off to enable them to trample the Bears in their rush.

Baylor Train to Leave At 8:30 Saturday

A special train, sponsored by the Longhorn Band, will leave Austin Saturday morning at 8:30 o'clock for the Baylor-Texas game in Waco, Colonel George E. Hurt, band director, said Wednesday. Round trip tickets will cost $2.
The train, carrying the Longhorn football team also, is scheduled to arrive in Waco at 11:45 o'clock. The return trip will begin at 6:30 o'clock Saturday.

Toronto vs. Texas To Open Debates

A student forum that will bring debaters to the Forty Acres from places as far away as Canada will be sponsored this year by the University Oratorical Association.
To be held the second Wednesday night in each month, the forums will begin November 12. Two University debaters will meet two debaters from the University of Toronto to discuss the question as to whether or not the United States should declare war on Germany now.
Scheduled for later competition here are the University of Kansas, December 10; Sophie Newcomb College, in an all-girl debate, January 14; Baylor University, February 11; Texas State College for Women in another all-girl meet, March 11; and the University of Missouri, April 8.
An inter-society debate will comprise the May 13 program.
A different subject will be used for each forum, association officials said, with different combinations of speakers representing the University.
Beginning at 7:30 o'clock each time, the forums will last about one hour, forty-five minutes of which will be devoted to the formal debate and fifteen minutes to audience participation.

The Weather:

Fair. Highest temperature about 68 degrees.

Historian Speaks 3 Times Today

Dr. Arragon to Make Three-Day Visit

Dr. Reginald F. Arragon, professor of history at Reed College, Portland, Ore., begins his three-day visit on the campus Thursday with an address on "The Position of Modern Art," before economics, sociology, government, anthropology, and philosophy students in Garrison Hall 1 at 12 o'clock.
At 1 o'clock he will attend a luncheon in the Texas Union with members of the social science departments. At 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon Dr. Arragon will talk to Plan II juniors and seniors on "Liberal Arts and Fine Arts" in Main Building 201. The day's program will wind up with a dinner with Plan II faculty members in the Queen Anne Room of the Texas Union and an informal discussion with students at the Y.M.C.A. at 8 o'clock.

Highlighting Dr. Arragon's stay in Austin will be a public lecture open to the entire University community on Friday night at 8 o'clock in the Geology Auditorium. "What Has the Historian to Do With the Arts?" will be his subject.

A professor of history of civilization at Reed College since 1923, Dr. Arragon has been particularly interested in the development of fine arts in education and its position in liberal education, explained Dr. C. E. Ayres, professor of economics and coordinator in charge of the visit. Dr. Arragon published an article on "Share of the Arts in Interpretation of History" in the Pacific Historical Review, March, 1940, and is now a member of the Education Committee of the Portland Art Museum.

Graduating from Northwestern University a Phi Beta Kappa "with highest distinction" in history, Dr. Arragon then attended Harvard in 1923, where he took his doctorate. Aside from an interest in the arts, he has been concerned with the history of thought and the theory of history and has a volume in the Berkshire Series on "The Transition from the Ancient to the Medieval World."

'Civic Leaders Should Be Born In Colleges'

Dr. McClusky Asks Co-Eds to Use 'Democratic Muscles'

By ANNE STACY

"Our colleges and universities should be West Points of civic leadership," said Dr. Howard Yale McClusky speaking at a joint meeting of the Campus League of Women Voters and the Austin League of Women Voters Wednesday.

Addressing a group of more than three hundred co-eds, he urged that we exercise our "democratic muscles" and cease depending upon "government by proxy." The subject of Dr. McClusky's talk was "Fun in a Democracy."

President Homer P. Rainey formally introduced Dr. McClusky, whom he had known before in the graduate school of the University of Chicago. Dr. Rainey recalled that at that time they had been famous for their "Barber Shop" quartet. Proving the statement, they led the group in singing about eight verses of "Alouetta."

Dr. McClusky commended the Campus League of Women Voters as excellent training for the younger generation. He emphasized that the central problem in our society today is to use the educational process to develop leadership. He aptly commented about some of our civic leaders of today: "They want to fiddle while the world turns."

Dr. McClusky said that civic participation can literally be "fun" by adding variety to the individual's daily routine, and by trying to attain significance in a "world that looks like a crazy mad house."

'Emergency Brings Problems to Youth'

A round-table discussion, "The Home Prepares Youth for the Nations," from the stage of Hogg Memorial Auditorium Wednesday night at the sixth general session of the Texas Congress of Parents and Teachers was led by Dr. Bernice Moore and Dr. Robert L. Sutherland, with Kay Hamblin and Tom Law, University students, acting as spokesmen for the problems of youth.

Entering vocations while they postpone husband, home and family was given as the problem facing the modern young woman. Young men are confronted with the necessity of leaving their profession temporarily to enter the Army, Law stated.

Today 1,772 Frosh Take English Exam

A uniform objective examination will be given to 1,772 students of English Ia Thursday night from 7 until 9 o'clock. Special students are excused because of exceptionally high grades made on entrance exams.

"The purpose of this exam is to indicate to students and instructors deficiencies in the fundamentals of English grammar," said Dr. Kenneth F. Gantz, English instructor who is chairman of the committee.

Failure of the exam will result in reported failure at mid-semester. The examination covers the English taught in high schools which has been reviewed by the students the past six weeks.

An additional value of the examination is that of comparison between the students of different sections of English, Dr. Gantz said. Instructors will have the opportunity to compare their grades with those of other instructors in relation to the scores the students make on a uniform exam.

Varsity Carnival To Be on December 8

The fifth Interfraternity Council-Panhellenic Varsity Carnival will be held Monday night, December 8, not December 3, as The Daily Texan incorrectly reported yesterday.

Staged the second Monday night of each December, the affair features side-shows and concessions put on by fraternities and sororities on the campus and is open to all students. Dick Donovan, council president, is general carnival chairman.

Co-Eds Will Die With Oxfords On

Collective Austin Foot Shod In Soiled Black Suede Pumps

The average woman does not keep her shoes clean, and "wedgies" are almost extinct in Austin.

These are some of the conclusions reached by the twenty-four students of Marketing Research and Analysis under David J. Luck in their survey held during the last six weeks. At the end of the survey, the students will have observed approximately fifteen thousand pairs of shoes.

Working in pairs, the students stood on certain downtown street corners, checking, according to type, color, material, and style, every shoe which passed by. The class found, as the survey progressed that Mrs. Public was pretty self-conscious about her foot-wear.

Many were found without their "best foot forward," and it was noticed that the average woman does not keep her shoes clean or well-repaired, although most of the shoes surveyed were new.

The first week, black suede pumps held the spotlight, being followed by the more business-like oxford. Alligator and other reptile shoes showed popularity, as did the military heel. Platforms and wedgies were almost extinct.

The survey, since it was conducted in the downtown area, did not throw much light on what the college girl is wearing this season; so one student, out of curiosity, took an independent survey on the campus. He reported that the saddle oxford was still king. It comprises about 89 per cent of the college girls' shoes.

Incidents of embarrassment frequently showed themselves. One young student followed a rather portly lady, trying in vain to classify her shoes. When he finally triumphed, his enthusiastic report to his fellow surveyor was in a voice a little too loud, "Oh, they're brown suede step-ins!" he exclaimed. Meaning shoes.

Next survey to be made by the Marketing Research and Analysis class will be a study of shaving habits in cooperation with other schools over the nation.

Maybe He Ate Those Carnations In Rare Book Room

Those stories about Br'er Rabbit and the carrots and lettuce, gems of American childhood literature, are finding a place in the University Library, along with the works of the sophisticates and classicists of the past.

Original manuscripts of six Joel Chandler Harris stories about Uncle Remus are highlighting an extensive collection of American literary manuscripts now on exhibition here in the internationally famous Rare Book Collections of the University Library.

Other well-known authors represented by original manuscripts in the library are Emerson, Twain, Thoreau, Irving, Longfellow, Hawthorne, Whitman, O'Henry, Lowell, Eugene Field, Holmes, Poe and Kate Douglas Wiggin.

Petroleum vs. Light Opera

Singing Geologist Writes Theses To Tune of Own Tenor Notes

By BILL NOBLE

A singer, student, radio artist, and writer of books—that is Frank Gardner of Alice, 26-year-old candidate for a doctor's degree, who has returned to the campus this fall after a year's absence.

Remembered as the Glee Club's number one tenor since 1936, Gardner began his University career as a soda jerker on the Drag back in 1932. During the four years that followed, he worked his way through school and took voice lessons on the side.

He held a job in the Library, worked some in the Legislature, then took a job with the Railroad Commission. In 1937 and 1938, with a degree in geology, he worked for the Commission on a full-time basis. Last year, he was employed as staff geologist for the Rinehart Oil News Company of Houston and is now in the University on leave of absence.

Meanwhile, Gardner was rounding out what appeared to be a musical career. In 1936, he was named the leading tenor of the Glee Club and was elected president of the organization. He was also a member of the Curtain Club and the Light Opera Company.

Chest Donations Now Total $277

Complete Report Expected by Friday

Total contributions to the student Community Chest drive through Wednesday amounted to $277.66, Elizabeth Wharton, secretary-treasurer, said. Largest contribution Wednesday was $11.02 from Brackenridge Hall.

Other contributors were Carothers Dormitory, $8.16; Roberts Hall, $7.86; Prather Hall, $7.25; Sigma Phi Epsilon, $5; Kappa Alpha Theta, $5; Men's co-operative houses, $3; and Kirby Hall, an additional $3.

Other organizations will report later this week on contributions, Miss Wharton said. A full report should be available Friday. Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity has made the largest contribution, $35.

Stumberg to Study Juvenile Problems

George W. Stumberg, University professor of law, who has made a special study in the field of juvenile delinquency, received notification Tuesday of his appointment as a member of the special committee on child welfare of the Texas State Bar Association. Appointment was made by Gordon Simpson, president of the association.

Mr. Stumberg has been asked to submit juvenile law studies for the benefit of the children of Texas.

Other members of the committee appointed are James H. Goodman, Midland, chairman; Charles V. Anderson, San Antonio; W. S. Barron, Bryan; Lester Boone, Fort Worth; Reed Cozart, Texarkana; Clem Fain, Livingston; Raymond Gray, Llano; Miss Hattie L. Heneberg, Dallas; H. L. Lackey, Gatesville; and J. L. Shepherd Jr., Houston.

'Mural Field Lights Must Wait

Other U. T. Projects Have Preference

President Homer Price Rainey told five student leaders Wednesday the University "can not promise help yet in lighting the intramural field." Two other financial projects have precedence in University action, he said.

The five—John Seaman, Bill Barton, Tom Law, Ed Holcomb, and Dick Donovan—had formed a committee "to keep the intramural lighting drive rolling."

"We want students to know that a great deal of work is being done to see that the drive does not bog down," they said. "We have no official authority, but we are vitally interested in seeing that more students have an opportunity to participate in sports," they said.

Approximately $3,300 of the necessary $10,000 has been raised.

If It's in the Can Let It Stay There, Dr. Williams Says

It's even safer to keep canned food in the can than in other utensils, even after the can has been opened, Dr. O. B. Williams, professor of bacteriology, recently returned from six years of research for a national canners' group, reported Wednesday.

Dr. Williams, who is returning to the University to continue his research on heat-killing of bacteria in home canning, cites recent United States Department of Agriculture notices which declare that tin cans are cleaner. Cans, once opened, should be kept in a cool place, he declared.

Exploding the old fallacy that food should be removed from the can as soon as opened, Dr. Williams cites the unusual care being exercised in canning industries to provide sanitarily perfect cans for all good products. His recent work has been on a grant from the National Canners Association.

Baseball Drive Nets Mere $54 On Campus

Jaycees Announce Total of $15,000 Given for Park

Approximately $54 in contributions were received Wednesday in the "Disch Day" drive to raise funds for a municipal baseball park, Ann Whitley, president of Orange Jackets, said.

Three tables were maintained on the campus by Orange Jackets from 8 to 1 o'clock Wednesday to aid contributors.
The $32,000 park, to be named for William "Uncle Billy" Disch, who coached University baseball teams to twenty-two years of championships, will probably be begun within thirty days, D. D. Johnson, general chairman of the project, said Wednesday night. The City of Austin is to furnish $16,000 when the Junior Chamber of Commerce raises the other half in contributions.

More than $15,000 have already been received, Mr. Johnson said. The City of Austin has bought ninety acres of the Butler tract on the Barton Springs Road for "Disch Field." His teams have won twenty-two out of twenty-seven championships. He has sent many players to the major leagues, and is nationally recognized as the foremost college baseball coach in America.

Colonel George E. Hurt, director of University bands, was chairman of the drive. Assisting him were Dick Donovan, president of Inter-Fraternity Council; Ed Holcomb, president of Men's Inter-Community Association; and Miss Whitley.

Forensica Wants To Draft Co-Eds

Forensica, speech society for University co-eds, enthusiastically endorsed a program for selective service for all University girls, at an open meeting in the Texas Union Wednesday night. The open forum discussion which brought about this endorsement was held under the leadership of Jones Spann, chairman of the Texas Union committee on open forum speakers, and Josephine McCutcheon, former president of Forensica.

It was such statements as these made by Spann which stirred much talk in the organization: "The army is a fine thing; it is in the service of its country, but it is your attitude and the attitudes of other American girls just like you that will make or break the morale of the United States army boys."

"Many recruits have lost themselves almost hopelessly when they entered the army, and it resolves itself into the duty of an organization like Forensica to see what it can do to help the draftees," said Spann.

Coinciding with the ideas expressed by Spann on the U. S. O. movement for University co-eds, were the suggestions made by Miss McCutcheon following the speech of Spann's.

"The thing wrong with the U. S. O. now seems to be that they try to entertain too many soldiers, and this means that there is a definite place for co-eds to fit in entertaining work," said Miss McCutcheon. "Why not institute a selective draft registration for all University girls under the sponsorship of Forensica?"

Transport Leaders To Air Ideas Here

Southwestern transportation problems, with special emphasis upon the section's requirements in the light of the national emergency, will be aired at the first Texas Conference on Transportation, to be held at the University November 14 and 15, it was announced Wednesday by Dr. A. B. Cox, director of the University's Bureau of Business Research.

Two days of conferences and discussion panels have been planned in order to provide opportunity for transportation leaders and officials from both government and private industrial agencies to swap ideas, Dr. Cox, who is planning details of the session, announced.

The bureau chief will set the keynote for speakers on the program with a discussion of "Resources and Industries of Texas and the Southwest," detailing needs in the transportation field

Co-Op Buying to Be Planned Tonight

Final plans for a co-operative store and a co-operative buying club will be discussed Thursday night by delegates from co-operative houses, fraternities, sororities, and other board and lodging groups, Herschel Gipson, assistant dean of student life, said Wednesday. Delegates will meet in the Junior Ballroom of the Texas Union at 7:30 o'clock.

Representatives will bring questions from their groups to be discussed thoroughly. Final vote as to whether the group will begin a co-operative store or a co-operative buying club will be taken a week later.

A guidance committee composed of Jimmy Mahon, Morris Hassell, Bill Raschke, Juana Broussard, Mrs. C. E. Peck, Mrs. Eva Prendergast, Ben Denman, Olivia Barrier, and Dick Donovan prepared the two plans.

Velle to Lecture Tonight On Culture of Mexico

Rafael Heliodoro Valle, who considers the University's Latin-American Collection one of the three outstanding among American libraries, will speak on "Some Aspects of the Contemporary Culture of Spanish America" at 8 o'clock Thursday night in Main Building 202.

Dr. Valle is a professor of history and literature in the National Preparatory School and a member of the faculty of Philosophy and Letters in the University of Mexico.

The Babblin' Brook
TEXAN SPORTS EDITOR

Remember this "one at a time" business somebody started a few weeks ago?

What's happened to it? Haven't heard it mentioned since returning from Dallas. Well, it still goes with D. X. Bible's Longhorns and it had better get back in the minds of a few others.

Why? There are several reasons. Do you realize that Pete Layden will miss the Baylor game? Yes, he missed the Arkansas game, but he was the only first line man who was out. It's different this time. Julian Garrett, the most underrated man in the Conference, is also riding the sidelines with a contrary knee. Garrett has been more than instrumental in the Steer offense and defense, especially the latter. The big senior tackle has been outstanding in every game this year. There are two very doubtful performers for this Saturday, and both starters.

There has not been much thought given to the possibility of Mal Kutner and Noble Doss missing the Baylor tilt, but it's not positive they will play. A slight bump could aggravate either man's injury to the extent that he would be physically unfit for a football game. Broken blood vessels and bruised boils aren't to be played with.

Say, for instance, these four men did not see service against Baylor. You have four vital men out of a well-coordinated combination of eleven men. What effect would this kind of situation have on the other seven? Would the four replacements make up for difference in a way that would insure quick touchdowns that Texas spectators are now EXPECTING?

Can They Do It?

A nice argument can arise over the above questions. You might ask, Well, what about the effectiveness of the Sanders group? Haven't they scored easily in nearly every game this year? Or, hasn't Walton Roberts's team, a third group, man-handled most of the opponents? Sure, both Sanders' and Roberts's teams have scored a lot of points, but who was in there at the beginning?

Not taking any credit from these two teams, but who can deny that those eleven starters didn't soften the opposition? Once you knock a man down, he doesn't come back so furiously as he did at the start. That's just it, Crain, Layden & Co. slap the opponent dizzy, and before the poor guys can completely recover (it takes at least a week) Sanders, Roberts and the rest have massacred them. Mind you, it takes good football to score against any kind of Southwest Conference team, so don't underestimate the second and third groups, but be sure to consider their power and deception. The thought of the whole game resting on their shoulders just doesn't bring the ease and comfort supplied by the veteran starters. The only catch about the second and third eleven is that they are untested with a full load.

Injuries Thin Ranks of Stars On Both Baylor and Texas Teams

No Chance for Layden, Garrett to See Action

Bears' Russell, Nelson Probably Out of Game While Jack Wilson Nurses Old Wounds

As Baylor and Texas passed their mid-week practice sessions yesterday, it became evident that both teams would go into Saturday's game minus the services of several of their respective stars. And it would be hard to say which team will be at the greatest disadvantage.

The Longhorns, who have been imitating that irresistible force you hear so much about, will face the opening kick-off with their captain, Pete Layden, and Julian Garrett, first string tackle, occupying a position on the bench. Both boys have leg trouble; with Layden it's a sprained ankle, while Garrett is suffering from a bruised cartilage in his knee.

Baylor, who has probably been the number one hard luck club of the Conference so far this year, will have to do without their outstanding end and all-America candidate, Jack Russell. Russell, who was named on the all-Southwest team last year while still a sophomore, was being counted upon to play a big part in the defense against the Longhorns' heralded running attack.

The Bears may also have to do without the services of their 175-pound right half, Travis Nelson, who has been consistently turning in good performances although the team itself has not been faring so well.

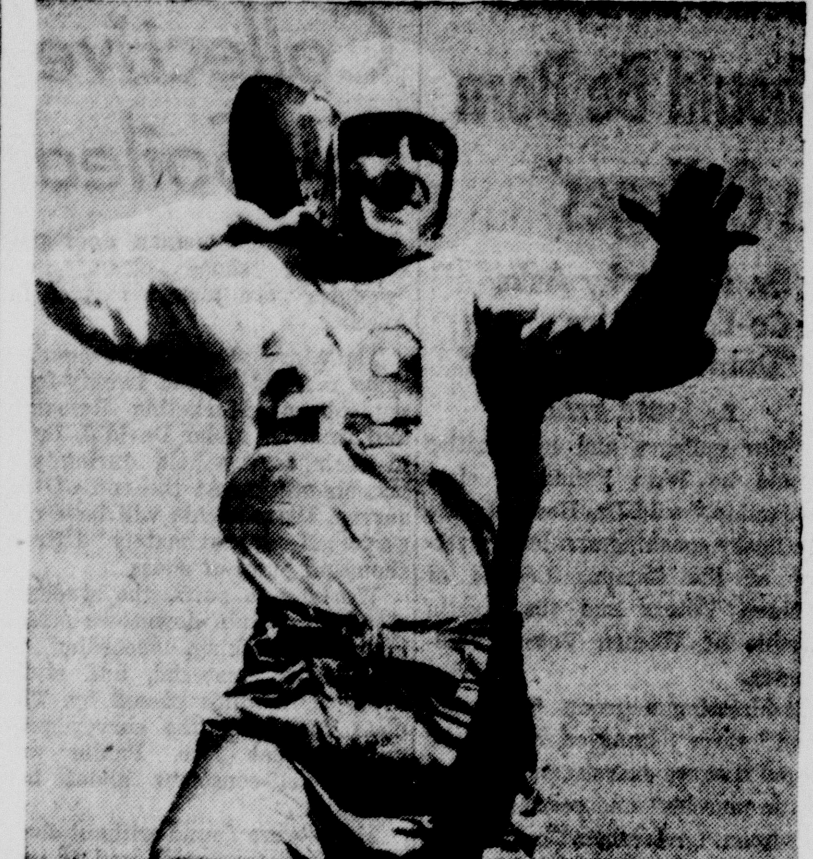

And the injury trouble doesn't end here for either team. Although these players are the only ones who are definitely scheduled not to see action, both teams will be handicapped by having key men below their peak because of minor injuries.

Heading this list is Jack Wilson, Baylor's great all-around back. For three years, Wilson has been the difference between a winning and a losing team at the Waco school. Last year, the Bears showed great promise until Wilson was injured in an early game and forced to the sidelines for the greater part of the season. This year, it was the same story. The Bears were flying high until their spark was injured in the Villanova game. Although he has been playing since then, Wilson has not been at his peak and the team has suffered accordingly.

Malcolm Kutner and Noble Doss are the two Texas boys who will be hampered Saturday by minor injuries. Kutner is quickly recovering from a badly bruised arm while Doss has been suffering from an infected boil on his wing.

If you can overlook this list of injuries, both teams will be in pretty good condition. The Longhorns turned on the steam in yesterday's practice, running through line scrimmage against the freshmen and then winding up the afternoon's workout with a spirited drill against the tackling and blocking dummies.

Once Again . . .

Holchak Wins Badminton Crown

HERBERT HOLCHAK, Alpha Tau Omega, became the intramural badminton champion Wednesday night when he downed Gene Goodman, Sigma Chi, in the badminton finals, 15-0, 15-2, in Gregory Gym.

Tuesday night in the quarter finals, Holchak won over Phil Smith, Coffey House, 15-3, 15-4, and Goodman beat Elgin Williams, Phi Kappa Psi, 15-4, 15-5.

Students 0.02 Smarter Last Year Than in '39-'40

University students made better grades in the 1940-41 long session than in the preceding year, statistics from the Registrar's Office show, and women, as usual, maintained a better grade point average than men.

"Girls probably study more than boys," Max Fichtenbaum, assistant registrar, said in discussing their higher scholastic rank.

Other factors may be that a larger percentage of the boys work and that the University gets more girls than boys who did well in high school, Mr. Fichtenbaum said.

The University average jumped from 1,201 grade points per course in 1939-40 to 1,221 last year. Senior students maintained the same average, 1,437 grade points, for both year.

The meeting was attended by those persons interested in the problems of education for teachers.

Owls, Porkers Cross Roads In Bayou City

Both Clubs Return To Full Strength For Saturday Tilt

HOUSTON, Nov. 5—Coach Jess Neely's twice beaten Rice Owls will be out to make a new start in their Southwest Conference play Saturday when they hook up with a greatly improved Arkansas eleven in Houston.

The Owls, who were squelched by Texas in their opening Southwest encounter, have won three and lost two while the Hogs are on the debit side of the ledger, winding up on the short end four times in six starts.

Bob Brumley, the Owls' vaunted fullback, has just about completely recovered from a troublesome knee injury while Bob Forte, the Hogs' triple threat tailback, returned to action last Saturday against Texas A.&M.

Frogs Play Gents 'n Non-League Game

FORT WORTH, Nov. 5—Texas Christian meets its last non-conference opponent on the 1941 schedule when the Horned Frogs play the Centenary Gentlemen in Shreveport next Saturday.

Centenary, this year, appears to be in shape to offer the Frogs little opposition. The Gentlemen have no victories and only one tie—with Louisiana Normal—to their credit.

Ponies for U. T. Cause Aggies Meet Ponies In Crucial Struggle

Game Has Definite Bearing on S.W.C. Race; Methodist Victory Would Put Steers on Top

COLLEGE STATION, Nov. 5—(A.&M.C.)—The football game of the week in the Southwest Conference will be played on Kyle Field here Saturday, when the Texas Aggies and the S.M.U. Mustangs, co-champions for 1940, tie into each other to settle the question of which team will go on toward the 1941 banner and whether the Texas Longhorns, should A. & M. lose, will take the S.W.C. number one place.

The question of supremacy has been debated seriously for the past two years and although the Aggies have emerged victorious in both games the players and the fans still are arguing about the matter.

In 1939 the national championship Aggie team defeated the Mustangs, 6-2, in a sea of mud and a constant downpour here. At that the Mustangs came within seconds of winning that game when Bill Conatser's behind-the-goal-line punt was blocked by Roland Goss but recovered by Conatser for S.M.U.'s 2 points. Johnny Clement was still chunking passes as the final gun fired and a pass slipped from the wet fingers of a Pony receiver behind the goal line.

Last year they battled in another mud puddle in Dallas and again the Aggies took the victory with a score of 19-7. That should have settled the matter but as it happened, the Aggies lost to Texas and the Mustangs lost only to the Aggies in conference play and therefore were wound up as co-champs. Coach Matty Bell and his players did a very gentlemanly thing and waived all claim to the Cotton Bowl invitation which then went uncontested to the Aggies.

Both teams were hit heavily by graduation but with twenty-one Aggies seniors, including two All-America men and five others of those seniors named to all-Conference teams, the Cadets seem to have been hurt more than the Ponies. However, both teams bounced right back with good clubs and the real test for the defending co-champions will be had Saturday.

The Aggies all agree that the S.M.U. game will be one of their toughest this year and while they have great respect for Johnston, the Mustang star, they really are afraid of a "guy named Joe." Will the fans please recall that See AGGIES, Page 3

Delta Tau's Win Opener With Lambda Chi, 13-6

Phi Delts Down A.T.O.'s, 12-0; Other Games Are 'Track Meets'

Five games were played in intramural football Wednesday afternoon two of them close, fast moving tilts, and the other three were more or less one-sided track meets.

Delta Tau Delta beat Lambda Chi Alpha, 13-6, in a game that proved to be the best of the afternoon. The score ran 6 to 6 until the last few minutes of play. Then Grady Hatton, Longhorn baseball player, tossed his second touchdown pass for the Delta Tau's. The passes were caught by Gath-er Jones and Stanley Banks. Hat-ton kicked the extra point.

Harry Shytles caught a touch-down pass with no one near him for the Lambda Chi score.

The second top-notch game of the afternoon was one in which Phi Delta Theta beat Alpha Tau Omega, 12-0. The score was 6-0 scoreless until the last half, and going into the last half, Clair Gannon tossed two touchdown passes—one to Grady Jordan, and the other to Webb Bishop.

Thurman Clements and W. D. Ratliff did well in the A.T.O. gack-field, knocking down numerous Phi Delt passes.

Other victories of the day were Phi Gamma Delta over Theta Xi, 33-6; Sigma Chi over Delta Chi, 18-7; and Little Campus Dormi-tory over A.S.M.E., 27-8.

LATE WORLD NEWS

American Lives Lost in Atlantic Total 130

Seventeen Americans and two Canadians, civilians sailing for England to serve in the technical corps of the R.A.F., are missing from a ship supposedly sunk in the Atlantic, the British Press Service announced Wednesday night.

There was no information released as to the nature of the engagement, nor as to its time and place.

This brought the number of Americans known to have lost their lives in the Battle of the Atlantic to a total of 130.

Japanese Press Strangely Quiet on U. S. Relations

The tirades against American "aggression" and "interference" in the Far East that have been carried on for several weeks in the Japanese government-inspired press suddenly ceased Thursday with the departure of Sabura Kuruusu, special envoy to Washington, for the United States.

In a desperate and perhaps final effort to pour oil on the extremely stormy waters of Japanese-United States relations, Premier Hideki Tojo dispatched Kuruusu to "make a fresh effort for an agreement," without, however, retracting any of Japan's demands for her "New Order" in Asia.

Kuruusu was former Japanese ambassador to Berlin, but is generally considered friendly to the United States and Britain.

German Submarines Reported Off Newfoundland

Nazi submarines are raiding shipping within sight of the Newfoundland coast, and within 400 miles of the United States defense base there, Navy Minister Angus MacDonald of Canada stated Wednesday.

Two of the U-boats have been attacked, and one possibly sunk last month by a Canadian corvette and a coastal command plane, he said. Roger Nuhn.

Election-Pleased President Urges Speedy Price Control

Aboard Presidential Special en route to Washington, Nov. 5—(INS) President Roosevelt, well pleased over off-year Democratic election successes in his home town of Hyde Park and elsewhere, returned to Washington Wednesday to urge Congressional leaders for all possible speed passing pending price-control legislation.

First White House callers upon the President's return from Hyde Park—where he conferred over the week-end with Canadian Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King—were Vice-President Wallace, Senate Majority Leader Barkley, Senate Foreign Relations Chairman Connally, House Foreign Affairs Chairman Bloom, and Representative Jere Cooper, (Dem.) Tenn., and E. E. Cox (Dem.) Ga.

The President found great personal pleasure Thursday night over the decision of his Hyde Park neighbors, normally Republican, to vote in a complete slate of Democratic town officers for the first time since 1871. Addressing a celebration parade of village admirers, he deftly turned personal views on the election into expression of an earnest hope that the country of his other Hyde Park week-end guest, Crown Princess Juliana of the Netherlands, would soon be removed from "the heel of Hitler."

The President also appealed to every citizen of the nation to make personal sacrifices to insure the "defeat of Hitler" and the escape of the United States "from the pagan slavery proposed by the would-be dictators of the world."

Specifically, the Chief Executive called upon all workers in defense industries to "work longer hours to produce the munitions required," and notified every adult he would be expected to "be trained in some task" essential to the Civilian Defense Program.

The President's move to secure immediate authority for the Washington Administration to impose price ceilings on commodities now rising toward inflation levels was watched with particular interest in view of his week-end conference with Canadian Prime Minister Mackenzie King.

The Dominion leader recently imposed a rigid price control structure on Canada that set ceilings over all prices.

Nazis Say Reds Flee in Crimea

Japan Sends Envoy For U. S. Showdown

By International News Service
Germany today reported that Russian forces were in panicked flight before advancing Nazi troops in the Crimea, Moscow admitted that the Peninsula remains in grave danger, but on the Moscow front itself all German attacks were reported checked.

Japan meanwhile sought a showdown with the United States. After negotiations with Washington dragged on for weeks, Premier Tojo dispatched Sabura Kuruusu, former ambassador to Berlin, to the American capital. Kuruusu carried explicit instructions to cooperate with Admiral Nomura, the Japanese ambassador in Washington, in seeking a solution of Japanese-American difficulties.

Finland gave every indication that American requests for a separate Finnish-Russian peace would be rejected. The Finnish press denied that their fight with the Soviets in any way menaced American security. It was stressed that Finland must fight on until her frontiers are secured, but it was stated that this does not imply any political obligations to Nazi Germany.

German reaction to the torpedoing of the American naval tanker Salinas was a renewed warning:

"We have said time and again that anyone who goes to England by water goes to his death," a German spokesman said.

The Vichy radio, quoted by Exchange Telegraph in London, reported that Premier Joseph Stalin has left Moscow for Kuibyshev, the temporary Soviet Capital.

Front line dispatches to Berlin said the Germans were rolling rapidly over the Crimea following collapse of the great Russian defensive systems south of the Perekop Isthmus.

Fall of the Black Sea port of Feodosia was said in Berlin to mark the "doom" of Kerch—the "short cut" gateway to the Caucasus.

A break through the Yaila Mountains in the south, Berlin said, further isolated the naval base of Sevastopol.

Russia's version said the German drive into the Crimea has been checked somewhat. The Soviet army newspaper Red Star said that "strenuous and sanguinary" fighting is under way, and the Germans are suffering "tremendous losses."

with honors in 1936 and returned to the campus two years later to receive his master's degree. Gardner wrote while he sang.

His master's thesis was done on "A Correlation of Characteristics of the Oil Fields of South Texas" and was written under the supervision of Dr. R. H. Cuyler. It was published in September, 1938, by Rinehart as "South Texas Oil." This publication is now in the University Library.

Work on his doctor's degree is now being done under Dr. E. H. Sellards, the thesis for which is "A Correlation of Characteristics of the Oil Fields of North and North-Central Texas." The thesis, Gardner said, required three years of research and is now in the hands of the examining committee.

Now a man of letters as well as of notes, Gardner has written, since, "South Texas Oil," three year-books on Texas oil and gas developments, and more than forty papers and reports on individual producing areas in Texas. All of this was done while he was employed as staff geologist for Rinehart. Publication rights for his doctor's dissertation have been sold to this company and will be published under the title "North Texas Oil."

Gardner's merits as a student of geology were recognized last year when he was awarded the Joseph S. Cullinan scholarship in petroleum geology. He is now in the University under that scholarship.

In May, 1940, the South Texas Geological Society and the American Association of Petroleum Geologists sponsored competition in San Antonio to select the most outstanding student in geology and the society's award went to Gardner. In addition, he was voted two year's membership in A.A.P.G.

He is also a member of Sigma Gamma Epsilon, honorary geological fraternity; Sigma Xi, fraternity for research sciences; the Southwestern Geological Society; and the Houston Geological Society.

An actor, a radio artist, a writer of books—Gardner is strictly, as he phrases it, a petroleum geologist. You got to admit he's a darn good singer, too.

Waco Club Holds First Organization Meeting

The election of officers, the nomination of a Bluebonnet Belle, and the appointment of organization committees occupied the attention of Waco students Wednesday night at their first meeting of the year. Officially known as the Waco Club, the organization met in the Fountain room of the University Commons, and named Tom Tyrell, president; Catherine Moss, vice-president; Nevada Whitworth, secretary-treasurer; and Jerry Johnson, reporter. Pattie Rose Early was elected Bluebonnet Belle nominee.

Aggies --

the Aggies had a 7-7 tie almost cinched in Dallas in 1938 when a substitute tackle named Joe Pasqua strode out to the forty-five yard line and kicked a field goal which not only won the game but broke the hearts of the Aggies and their followers. That same "guy called Joe" is still kicking field goals and extra points for S.M.U. and is apt to get one off at any time. Pasqua is now a senior and regular on the team which the Aggies will be up against this Saturday.

Selective Service for Our Co-Eds

YESSIR, GIRLS, you too might be drafted if a project discussed by Forensics, women's speech society, last night is instituted on the campus.

Although the members of the group did not go into detail upon how the idea might be carried out, preferring to limit their discussion to the question of whether to go further into the matter, their enthusiasm was enough to indicate that it may not be long before serial numbers and order numbers are as popular female topics of talk.

Roughly, the suggested play would include a regular registration day and the following "lottery." Each co-ed registrant would end up with an order number—just like her brother or boy friend might have now, and would be subject to call in turn to have a "date" with some visiting soldier on the campus or in Austin.

Speaking imaginatively now, the set-up might conceivably and attractively include such things as a campus Selective Service headquarters and director, local boards to consider deferments and induction postponements, provisions for conscientious objectors, allowances for volunteers or persons engaged in other "defense" occupations.

Really born at a U.S.O. meeting this summer, the scheme has several worthy inciting reasons and numerous inviting possibilities.

Mainly, it affords a logical, and at the same time unusual, way of taking care of the service men who come to Austin or the University and who know no one whom they might go out with. Getting "dates" for these fellows to open houses and dances would be taken out of the haphazard stage.

Moreover, the whole procedure would be simpler—in an entertaining way—on the girls and the men. There would not, or should not, exist the uncomfortable feeling that the engagement was a trumped-up affair. Instead, the uniqueness of the arrangement should instill the sensation that "this indeed is an unusual experience."

Is America First Really Isolationist?

VARIOUS GROUPS of quite opposite characters are combining in one mutual result: useless hampering of United States defense preparations, dividing American citizens into unnecessary factions. These groups range from selfish industrial leaders seeking more profit "... as usual" (President Roosevelt), to tin-god labor leaders using the wrong time to settle near-personal differences.

Chief among them all, however, in public recognition, is widely-discussed, roundly-hated America First Committee.

Accusations against the America First Committee have been many, and most remarkable in its reasoning is the charge hurled forth by writer Harlan R. Crippen in "U. S. Week," back in September. Stating that America First is not genuinely isolationist, but really for war as long as it isn't against Hitler, Crippen points out the "... queer, twisted reasoning (forming) the policy of America First: appease Germany, appease Japan, condone slavery, get a share of the plunder."

It is true that Senator D. Worth Clark of Idaho came out with a speech urging the conquest of the Western Hemisphere by U. S. soldiers instead of sending them to Europe.

Senator Clark is an America Firster. This is hardly a genuine isolationist speaking.

"Wheeler will protest exploitation," writes Crippen, "if and when it can be used as a weapon against Britain and for Hitler. He is perfectly willing to ignore the most brutal exploitation elsewhere."

"America First wants the United States to play jackal to Adolf Hitler's wolf."

"... A. F. offers only a cowardly war of plunder, a war beside Hitler and not against him."

These charges will not be admitted, but an explanation of the evidence which causes them is slow to come forth from Messrs. Lindbergh, Wheeler, et al. Lindbergh, for a time at least admired the new order in Germany. Perhaps he does today.

It is hard enough to see facts and economic forces clearly now without being troubled by hecklers in the America First Committee.—E. B. G.

The Firing Line

Dear Editor:

I believe it has been the policy of the Texan to invite statements by members of the faculty on subjects of interest concerning which they may be regarded as experts. It appears to me, however, if this commendable practice is to be continued, those who consent to be interviewed should be treated with common decency. Despite unfortunate experiences which have caused several of my colleagues to refuse to be interviewed by the Texan, I recently agreed to answer a query put to me by a Texan reporter. His question was, "Has the President constitutional authority for his employment of American naval forces?"

Since I have made a serious study of our foreign relations powers, I answered readily that all of the President's acts to date have been strictly constitutional. I further added that his critics in Congress know enough about the constitution to be well aware of this fact but that they voice a doubt in order to confuse the public—in short, they are playing Hitler's game.

In the headline to the interview as published in the Texan Wednesday I am labeled a "Warhawk." While frankly declaring that I am an interventionist and have been one since the outbreak of the war, I feel that the name "Warhawk" was designed for but one purpose—to ridicule and insult. Personally I would rather be called a "Warhawk" than the only possible alternative, an "ostrich."

—J. LLOYD MECHAM.

(In a way, the Texan apologizes to Dr. Mecham for the mentioned bit of editorialization, hopes it will not needlessly occur again, and asks that he not remove himself as a source of valuable opinion.)

Dear Editor:

This is in answer to Sunday's letter by one S.W.R. It seems that S.W.R. is incensed by what he (or she) calls unfair treatment of the current campus phony, "Bow Wow." It is seemingly plain that the University and the football team want nothing to do with this faker. Otherwist he would be enrolled in the University and would be given a chance to show his "great prowess" on the football field. "Bow Wow" denies writing the much talked about letter to the sports editor of the Daily Idahoan. S.W.R. assumes that the letter had been written in the spirit of horseplay, and tries to vindicate "Bow Wow" by comparing him with Dizzy Dean and Max Baer. This is not our idea of funny horseplay. We may not be from Missouri, but you have to show us first.

The University of Texas and the football team are now on the spot in the national spotlight. We don't hire football bums to play on our teams. Then why should we let this bum go around spreading lies about his connection with the University and the team? Should we allow ourselves, our University, and our great team to be dragged down into the mud of public condemnation by the glory seeking and personal ambitions of this fellow?

S.W.R. condemns L. W. Brooks's usage of the word phooie in his sports editorial on "Bow Wow." Phooie to you, S.W.R. Phooie to "Bow Wow." Phooie on this whole business. PHOOIE! PHOOIE!

D. V.

Dear Editor:

Since the "Bible Plan" is paying such dividends, don't you think our new victory song ought to be a hymn? And it ought to embody traditions of the campus today; as somebody suggested in The Firing Line, it ought to include a reference to the orange victory lights. An enthusiastic Texas ex, who prefers out of modesty to remain anonymous, has composed some very fitting verses to be sung to a good old hymn:

"Let the Orange Lights keep burning,
Let them shine to tell the score
To some poor drunken, stagger'ng Longhorn
Coming from a liquor store."

With these noble sentiments nobly sung, we'll keep right on winning them "One at a Time!"

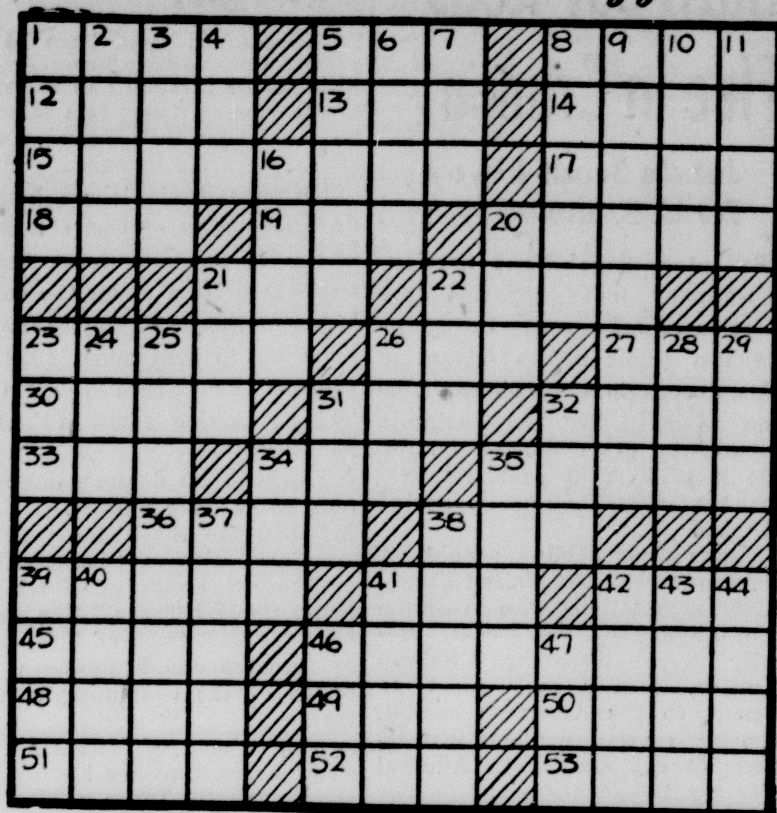

J. W. W.

The Freethinker

The open shop is about as American and democratic as concentration camps...

I will introduce this discussion of the open shop, which you can see by almost any newspaper is vital to the rights of the workingman, by pointing out the sponsors of the open shop movement.

Now as the omnipresent precursors of any drive to take away labor union gains, such as Senator O'Daniel's present legislation before Congress, there are always flowery speeches and indications that this fight is "to protect the rights of the laboring man."

Even the Texan followed this treadworn path. Remember the issue of October 31? The Texan took a poll, a front page blurb read, to see "what University students think about rights of the laboring man. Should every man have the 'right to work' regardless of whether or not he belongs to a union?"

This of course has as undisputable assumptions that (1) a man has the right to work if he does not belong to a labor union, and (2) he loses that right or part of that right if he joins a labor union.

Before I discuss the falsity or truth of those two statements I still would like to look at the sponsors of open shop movements. Who are these people so interested that the rights of workers be preserved? Who are working their heads off "that every man have the right to work?"

Well, you would think if such a movement as that of the open shop was so all-important to a laborer's fundamental right as the sponsors say, that the laborers themselves, both organized and unorganized, would be squarely behind it.

Latin-American Students To Sip Tea

Honoring new students from Latin-America, the Inter-American Association, an organization of students and faculty members interested in the two Americas, will have a tea Thursday from 4 to 6 o'clock in the Junior Ballroom of the Texas Union.

In the receiving line will be Charles C. Cumberland, president; Clarice Holman of Sao Paulo, Brazil, vice-president; Dr. Carlos E. Castañeda, faculty advisor, and members of the executive committee of the association.

Presiding at the service will be Charles W. Hackett, wife of chairman of the executive committee of the Institute of Latin-American Studies; Mrs. J. Lloyd Mechem, wife of the secretary of the institute's executive committee; Mrs. Harold Dean Gresham, wife of the newest member of the committee; and Mrs. Carlos E. Castañeda, wife of the faculty advisor of the association.

Wives of graduate members of the association will assist with the pouring. Mrs. H. Max Cummings, Mrs. Laurie T. Callicutt, Mrs. H. Gordon Van Sickle, and Mrs. Louis G. Kahle will be among those serving. Approximately twenty girls in the association will be hostesses.

New students from Latin-America who will be formally presented at the occasion are:

The Misses Matilde, May and Julio Aranda, Panama City, Panama.
Miss Beatrice Antillon, San Jose, Costa Rica.
Salvador Armas, Guarico, Venezuela.
Eduardo Acosta, Caracas, Venezuela.
Nimira Bonilla, Chile and Panama.
Alfonso Cortes, Chihuahua, Mex.
Dr. Armando Ramos, Chihuahua, Mex.
Jose Antonio and Luis Isidoro Carreras, Santurce, Puerto Rico.
Jose Devesovic, Lima, Peru.
Bernardo Navarro Gonzalez, Chihuahua, Mex.
Juan Francisco Munos, Chihuahua, Mex.
Vose Miguel Nolla, Arechibo, Puerto Rico.
Hector Manuel Ramos, Chihuahua, Mex.
Ismael Jose Rosa, Panama, Panama.
Manuel Anthony Wong-Vale, Managua, Nicaragua.
Felipe Gutierrez, Monterrey, Mex.

A general invitation to all students and faculty members interested in Latin-America and the work of the Inter-American Association has been extended by the association's executive committee.

Dr. Allen to Address Delta Kappas

Dr. Corrie Allen, assistant professor of curriculum and instruction, will be the principal speaker and leader of the discussion on "Selection of Candidates for Teacher Training Institutions" at the regular meeting of Delta Kappa Gamma, honorary society for women teachers, Friday night at 7:30 o'clock in the Driskill Hotel.

New members will also be elected at the meeting. The program will include a sing-song and "get acquainted" meeting.

Freethinker --

time and for any reason or without any excuse, can't he? So what good is the right to work if the boss won't let him?

But on the other hand—if a man belongs to a union, and his place of employment is a closed shop, can the boss fire him without good cause? No. The union won't let him. So that looks like the union guarantees a man the right to work, doesn't it?

And by further extensions you can see exactly why an open shop is like a concentration camp. The man there is directly under control of the boss, they have no bargaining power, and at any time, just as in a concentration camp, the boss wants to kill him—i. e. cut off his right to earn food and a living—he can.

But everybody has the right to work, and can enforce it, in a labor union. And a union is open to all—the black, the white, the Jew, the immigrant, without favoritism and without prejudice.

Old West Lives Again In Swing And Turn Dances

"Chase a rabbit, chase a coon, Chase a girl right 'round the room—"

Swing and Turn Club dance will have a special program and open house Thursday night in the Texas Union from 7 to 9:30 o'clock. Folk dances will top the entertainment, and Dr. A. D. Zanzig will lead the folk singing following the dancing. Modern dances such as "Ten Pretty Girls," "Put Your Little Foot," and "Peek-a-Boo" will also be called for.

The club meets weekly at the Women's Gym on Thursday nights to schottische, polka, and square dance. Membership is open to anyone who likes to dance.

Swing and Turn squares are much in demand for exhibition dancing, and almost daily requests are received for members to perform at public events. Last year a representative won the State square dance callers contest at Waco.

The fairy godmother of the club is Dr. Ruth Bass, professor of physical and health education. One of the active sponsors and founders, she often opens her country home to club members for riding parties, picnics, and dancing.

Myers Parsons, long-legged, curly-haired engineering student who is the president, claims that rarely does a student drop in for one of the weekly meetings and fail to return the following week. "One session is like a vaccination," he said, "It gets in your blood."

Ettlinger to Tell Of Caribbean Tours At Club Luncheon

Recalling his impressions of summer tours in 1937 and 1939, Dr. H. J. Ettlinger, professor of pure mathematics, will discuss "Our Islands in the Caribbean and the Central Atlantic," as a pre-luncheon speaker before the literature and lectures committee of the Austin Woman's Club at 11:15 o'clock Thursday in the parlors of the club.

On their tours Dr. and Mrs. Ettlinger visited Bermuda and the outposts of the West Indies in the Caribbean Sea, including the French islands of Guadeloupe and Martinique, the British isles of Jamaica, Barbados, and Trinidad, and the north coast of South America in British and Dutch Guiana.

Dr. Ettlinger will present the geography, people, and natural resources of these islands, and their strategic importance to the United States in relation to the war.

Reservations Mount for Opening of Longhorn Room

Texas U. 'Dry' Nightclub Swings Out on Friday

BY WALTER NIXON

More than half the capacity of the Longhorn Room—new "dry" campus night club—has already been reserved for the Friday night opening, it was announced Wednesday afternoon by Bill Barton, member of the Texas Union Board of Directors.

This indicates that some one hundred couples have made reservations since capacity of the new room has been set at 360 people. The Longhorn Room will be open from 8 until 12 o'clock.

Designed to replace All-University Dances, the Longhorn Room has been created from the Main Lounge, converted into a campus night club with tables, dancing space, and even a soft drink "bar."

"At last we've settled the music question," Barton said, "The Longhorn Room will offer students all the 'big name' bands—on the platter."

Working with an amplifying system and a library of all the up-to-the-minute and old-favorite records, the Longhorn Room will really have the best music available, he said.

Carrying out the motif traditional of Texas and the Southwest, the Longhorn Room will have waiters dressed as cowhands, cactus leaves (dehorned) as shields for table candles, and an atmosphere of Lone Star State hospitality.

Although now merely in the idea stage, a campus talent floor show is being considered, Barton said.

Admission for the Room per couple will be 36 cents, with no stage allowed, Barton declared. Reservations can be made for parties of two to twelve by calling the Texas Union.

27 File For C.B.S. Program

More Applications May Be Accepted

Twenty-seven applications for auditions for the Fred Allen program had been filed Tuesday with Fred Nieman, president of the student body. It is still not too late to apply, since the date for the auditions has not been set. Any qualified undergraduate will be permitted an audition.

The search is for a talent suitable for broadcasting. The limitation on the competition is that only those who can do a specialty act should apply. They may be impersonators, instrumentalists, singers, or dramatic performers.

A campus-wide election will choose the winner whose name will be announced over the Fred Allen program of November 26. The Forty Acres will be honored December 3 over the Columbia Broadcasting System.

The Texas representative will appear on the show, win $200 in cash, be given a trip to New York City, and perhaps get a radio or movie contract.

Four Attractions Vie for Priority On December 2

By JACK HESTILOV

The entertainment-laden night of December 2 has Austin entertainment sponsors worried about probable attendances and local entertainment seekers almost frantic trying to decide which of the four outstanding offerings for that Tuesday night is their best bet.

Vying with each other in dramatic offerings are the successful Broadway production, "There Shall Be No Night," starring the Lunts, and the local offering by the Austin Little Theater, "Petticoat Fever." A concert by the Karyl Symphony Orchestra, sponsored by Saint Edwards University and a concert by the celebrated Swedish tenor, Jussi Björling, leave local music lovers in a pleasant quandary.

Interstate Theaters manager Louis Novy expressed concern over the situation Monday afternoon, and indicated that he intended to exchange Austin and San Antonio bookings of "There Shall Be No Night." Such a swap would bring the stage show here Wednesday night, December 3, rather than December 2, Mr. Novy explained.

Less worried about attendance is the Austin Little Theater group, which expects its heaviest crowd the opening night of their "Petticoat Fever." The initial performance is scheduled for December 1, the night of the concert by the Houston Symphony Orchestra.

The Saint Edwards sponsored Karyl concert will be held in the Austin High School auditorium. Sponsors of Björling are also rather worried, but not about attendance. They are concerned with his arrival in the United States. The Swedish tenor returned to his native Nazi-harassed Sweden last summer for a visit, and has experienced difficulty in obtaining a transit visa. The German government, however, has finally relented, and he is now scheduled to leave from Lisbon November 8.

Capitol to Observe Sadie Hawkins Day

Sadie Hawkins Day will be celebrated at 11:30 o'clock Friday night at the Capitol Theater. This all-important day of every modern American girl was made possible by one Al Capp, comic-strip creator of Lil Abner.

"Lil Abner will surely be the siren's mate unless he is mean to Backwoods Kate," and who knows? Perhaps, some other siren will get in on the fun at the Capitol Friday night. At least, they will get to see "Wings of the Navy," which is playing at the Capitol then. It stars George Brent, Olivia de Havilland, and John Payne.

The Texas Union Game Tournaments began Tuesday with the first skill to be tested in the field of chess. The checker tournament will begin on December 5. Contestants for the checker tournament may enter from Tuesday, December 2, through Thursday, December 4.

"The Bishop's Candlesticks" will be presented by the Wesley players Sunday, November 9 at 6:30 o'clock in the Wesley Foundation auditorium. The play is an adaptation of "Les Misérables" by Victor Hugo.

Bill Henry is the director of the play. The cast follows: Ray Scott, bishop; Jean Fisher, Persome, the bishop's sister; Margaret Hargis, Marie, the maid; Bill Henry, the convict; and Jim Campbell, the sergeant.

Lecture on Prologues Will Show Harpsichord

The eighteenth century harpsichord, now being used in rehearsals of the "Knight of the Burning Pestle," will be on display November 17 in the rare book collection at the lecture by Autrey Nell Wiley on seventeenth century prologues and epilogues.

The program will be under the direction of David Jackson McWilliams, instructor in English. On December 5, the harpsichord will be used at the lecture on children's music by Mrs. Homer Price Rainey.

Mortar Board Is Honored

The Mortar Board, senior women's honorary fraternity, was honored Monday night at a dinner given by Mrs. Gladys Henderson, Mrs. Connie Brockette, and Miss Gertrude Mooney.

Plans were made Tuesday night for Dad's and Mother's Day on the campus November 15 at a meeting of the fraternity. The Mortar Board members will assist in registering and escorting the visitors around the campus, and will serve as hostesses in the Union Night Club that night.

The yearly project was discussed, but no definite decision was made.

An exhibit by the Printmakers Guild will be displayed through November 7 in the Academic Room. A collection of prints by ten Texas women, the exhibit comprises seventeen lithographs, six block prints, and two aquatints of the Guild, who organized last season primarily as a study group.

A.A.U.W. to Back Children's Plays

To Present First On November 24

The first of four plays produced by the Clare Tree Major Children's Theater Players will be staged at Hogg Memorial Auditorium, November 24, by the American Association of University Women, sponsors for the fifth consecutive year of a juvenile theatrical season.

First of the plays will be "Sleeping Beauty," with "Toby Tyler" following on January 9, "Poor Little Rich Girl" on February 13, and "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch" on March 20.

The A. A. U. W. presents these plays to afford suitable entertainment for Austin children, both privileged and underprivileged, and to raise funds for the organization's civic and educational programs.

In order that they may "have fun like other children," tickets to admit the underprivileged are sold to Austin citizens. For such groups as those in the Blind School, the Settlement House, and the Children's Home, large blocks of tickets are made available.

Concert Presents Talented Artists

By EOLINE CLEWIS

An appreciative audience applauded the artists presented by the department of music in the Littlefield Music Hall Wednesday at 4 p. m. Outstanding among the artists was the crystal clear voice of Marguerite Grissom, blind soprano. Her flawless rendition of "Star Vicin" floated over an awestruck audience. Paul Moor also brought nods from music lovers with his rendition of Variations Symphoniques by Franck.

Other talented students presented were Nelson Whitaker, Mary Jane Maricle, Fred Aiken, Victoria Larson, Rosemary Erter, and John Collins.

Roger Busfield to Speak To Austin Forum Monday

"Organizing for Peace" will be the subject of a talk at Austin High School by Roger Busfield, news analyst, Monday night at 8 o'clock. This is the seventh of the fall series of the Austin Forum of Public Opinion, sponsored by the superintendent of the Austin school system, A. N. McCallum.

The introductory talk will be broadcast by radio station KNOW. The general public is invited to listen to the broadcast or to attend and participate in the discussion.

Jarrell Criticizes Auden's Poetry In Southern Review

Among the contents of the new autumn issue of the Southern Review is a contribution by Randall Jarrell, University instructor in English, which analyzes W. H. Auden's poetry and traces the development of that poet's style. Mr. Jarrell discusses the attitudes of his early works and compares them to later works.

The Southern Review, issued quarterly by the Louisiana State University Press, contains fiction, essays, and criticisms of contemporary writing.

Numerous critics have designated the magazine as one of the best critical journals of this type, says Dr. M. M. Wilkerson, visiting professor of journalism, director of the L.S.U. Press.

The Southern Review was founded five years ago under the encouragement of the late Charles W. Pipkin, then dean of the graduate school there. It has a circulation of approximately three thousand copies.

New City Directory Appears Soon

Austin's fourth city directory in three years will soon be published, George W. Burt Jr., superintendent of the Morrison and Fourny Directory Company, has announced.

A general increase in population is expected to be shown in the 1942 directory. For correct mailing addresses during the Christmas period, Austin citizens are urged to use the directory library, maintained by the company at the Chamber of Commerce, through which they may obtain addresses in every principal city in the nation.

Slave Illiteracy Was Due To Whites' Fear, Arrowood Says

Illiteracy among slaves in the Old South was due principally to the owners' fear of servile insurrections and to the lack of concern on the Negroes' part because literacy would not improve either their economic status or their value to their owners.

This belief is brought out in a paper, "The Education of American Plantation Slaves," by Dr. Charles F. Arrowood, professor of the history and philosophy of education in the University.

Although opportunities to learn to read and write were limited, some of the slaves were literate. Dr. Arrowood tells the story of a Negro man who taught himself to read by following the words in the Bible as the preacher read it, and to write by watching and imitating the white man who employed him.

In the early 1800's some free states restricted Negro schools from operating. By 1843, Sunday schools for Negroes limited "their work to oral instruction." Their education was also limited by the extra-legal or illegal activities of mobs and patrols, Dr. Arrowood says.

"The plantation was the school of citizenship of the American Negro. The plantation centered around the Negro. Its worst products show how very far short the plantation was of what any agency controlling human destiny should be; its best products prove how creative and rich the human spirit can be. For the weakness of the plantation as a character-forming agency was inherent in the institution . . ."

Mexico Air Cruise Proposed for Xmas

Sixty-eight minutes of film showing the "Land of the Incas," "A Guatemala Rainbow Vacation," and "By Air to Argentina" were shown to University students by visiting Pan American Airways' representatives Wednesday night in the Geology Auditorium.

A proposed special air cruise to be made to Mexico during the Christmas holidays was outlined by Mr. P. M. Sullivan, Pan American Air Lines representative from Houston, before the committee of the Institute of Latin American Studies.

The trip is proposed under the auspices of the Institute and may be conducted in the same way the educational good-will tour by rail to Mexico was conducted at the close of last summer's second semester.

New Defense Courses, M.E. Prof Predicts

Defense training in Texas may soon include courses in organization, production, and personnel, says M. L. Begema, professor of mechanical engineering, when he returned from Washington, where he conferred with C. R. Dooley, O.P.M.'s director of training with industry, about the further training of foremen and supervisors in Texas defense industries.

Professor Begema also spent three days in Philadelphia, attending the annual meeting of the American Welding Society, the American Society for Metals, and the National Metal Exposition.

At a meeting of the Fundamental Research Division of the Engineering Foundation, Professor Begema reported on the hard surfacing research being conducted at the University.
