"Good Morning"

Cosmopolite.
Women Shortage.
Welcome Warmth.
Rice Game.

THOUGH the University is known as a State University, it is far from being a gathering place for student who come from the state of Texas only.

This fact was revealed by a recent survey which shows that students from 12 foreign countries as well as students from 36 states other than Texas attended the University during the last long session. This information is, indeed, enlightening to most of us.

That we are a cosmopolite group, after all, then, is evident. From the East, from the West, from the North and from the South the students come. Great indeed would have been the university a few years ago which had representation from so many parts of the globe as are gathered together here in our own institution. But, then, the world has grown, and we are doomed to grow with it—or be left in the backwoods, so to speak, so far as universities go. Evidently we have not been in the class of school which does not take advantage of all opportunities to advance. Evidence is with us!

ANOTHER enlightening fact which we learn from figures recently compiled is that in the University, there is at the present a ratio between the men and women of three and one, with the men holding the majority. And what does this seem to indicate? Are men more interested in education; or are they forced to a certain degree, to have a college education in order to forge ahead in the present time of business advancement? Perhaps, too, some of the women have dropped their plans for higher education and are making homes for those men who have already made, in a way, a place for themselves—which in itself is nothing to frown upon.

But whatever the reason may be, the men are here in larger number than women; and maybe that accounts for the difficulty in making dates sometimes?????

WE MAY say that we were grateful when upon walking into the office yesterday morning we discovered that some one over at the Power House had taken pity upon us and had turned on a little steam. The little cold wave which we have been experiencing has brought to our minds that winter, in earnest, will be here soon.

And with the advent of winter, will come the increased business of the wood and coal dealers. On the other hand the gas company will probably come in for a greater amount of the heating business this year since natural gas is one of Austin's assets. Chopping wood and kindling wood, however, will remain the solemn duty of some of the eds during the winter time.

THE MIDDLE of the week is here and considerable discussion in regard to the Rice game at Houston this week-end may be heard about the campus. And this reminds us that today the ticket sale for the game begins at the athletic office. Students who attend the game should not wait until the last minute.

RIDING stick horses was the vogue yesterday morning for some of those being initiated into the Cowboys; while others were matadors part of the time and the others the bulls for the bullfight. This may seem a ridiculous way to initiate into the pep organization; but we may look at the situation in another way. It does acquaint the campus to a degree with those being taken into the Cowboys.

BARKER ISSUES TEXAS HISTORY CONTRIBUTION

Research Lectures Form Main Part Of Work

STATE HISTORIAN

Five Chapters Tell of Texan Colonists' Struggles

Research lectures on the causes of the Texas Revolution, written by Dr. Eugene C. Barker, professor of history at the University, have been issued in a volume by Dallas publishing company.

In 1927, Dr. Barker was chosen by the graduate faculty of the University as research lecturer for the year. Four lectures were delivered in the following April at the time of the meeting of the Texas Historical Association in Austin. It is these four lectures, together with a paper formerly published by the American Historical Association, that compose the five chapters of the book.

Gives Racial Background

The first chapter presents the racial and political background of the Anglo-Americans and the Latin-Americans who were to clash and struggle for supremacy within and for the control of Texas; the second takes up the Mexican aspirations and ideals with reference to Texas and makes clear the fact that the Mexicans realized the possibility of trouble with the Americans, who were talking of expansion and who were negotiating too cautiously for the purchase of the Mexican province.

The third chapter treats of the numerous grievances of the American colonists, their dislike for and disregard of the religious requirements of Mexico, their evasion of the law abolishing slavery in Mexico, and their resentment of the law of 1830 excluding further immigration from the United States to Texas, not to mention minor causes of irritation. In this chapter is seen the steady hand of Stephen F. Austin, who tried to steer his colony to success and safety between the shoals of Mexican suspicion and rocks of American aggressiveness.

In the fourth chapter the troubles thicken, the climax of war approaches. Two men, General Teran and Stephen F. Austin, understood the situation and both tried intelligently to avoid the danger. But now Teran, in despair, killed himself, and Austin, equally hopeless but more practical, gave up hope of preserving peace and went over to the cause of war, with independence as the ultimate goal.

On September 8, 1835, Austin, back from his Mexican prison, made his Brazoria speech, "charting the course that must be immediately followed." Thirteen days later, word came that General Cos had landed in Texas with the purpose of subduing it. On October 2, 1835, "the first shot was fired in the Texas Revolution." Thus ends the fourth lecture.

The fifth chapter deals with public opinion in Texas in the years preceding the outbreak, with a view to arriving at the causes of the trouble.

This book is but one of many contributions from the pen of Dr. Barker. For a quarter of a century he has been a student of the colonial period of Texas history. Taken together, his writings form a unit, making available for the first time the sources of the most dramatic and exciting period of Texas history.

AYER SPEAKS TO ROTARIANS ON EDUCATION

Work Here Explained By Department Head

FUTURE PREDICTED

College Working Day Of Professor Is Discussed

Dr. Fred C. Ayer of the University faculty addressed the Rotary Club at noon Tuesday. As chairman of the department of educational administration, he gave a classification talk on his vocation in that field. His talk centered around three points: First, the opportunity for social service; second, future development of education in Texas; and third, the various duties attached to work in the department of educational administration.

Professor Ayer stated that education is the largest business in the country, including as it does 26,500,000 pupils in public and private elementary and secondary schools, another million in higher institutions, another million in extension training, and enough others engaged in school publications, in the manufacture of school books, furniture, with those engaged in the planning and construction of schools to make a total of 32,000,000, or two out of every seven persons in the United States.

In connection with the future development of education in Texas, Professor Ayer asserted that the state of Texas offered a field for service unsurpassed by any other state in the union. He called especial attention to the fact that only three states in the United States have larger school populations and with an adequate system of taxation, are able to raise more school money than the state of Texas. Moreover, the economic development of Texas is just beginning, he said.

Professor Ayer announced that he was particularly attracted to Texas because this state combines the respect for honored customs and traditions of the South with the energy and adaptability of the West.

In discussing the duties of college professors, attention was called to the fact that the total time load of the average professor at the University of Texas is 50.5 hours per week, with slightly over an eight-hour day average for six days. Professor Ayer concluded with a brief explanation of his departmental activities in connection with teaching, the direction of these, research, and community service.

What Do You Know About—

By J. C. WATKINS. 1. Socialists? 2. Chicago Shooting? 3. Debunking Books? 4. Fashions for the Fat?

"Down with the government!" "But there is no government; it's a complete anarchy."

"Then down with the anarchy!" "Such seems to be the spirit holding forth in Dallas of late, with the meeting there recently of Communists and Royalists, and now of Socialists."

One Lee Rhodes of Grand Saline is candidate for governor of Texas on the Socialists' party ticket.

Yesterday he asked for permission to use the town hall for a meeting. Street Commissioner Arthur Reinhart refused the request, saying that any of the 3,900 street corners in Dallas with an equal number of soap boxes "should suffice those who are instituting movements against organized government."

The Monarchists who recently met to nominate a king of the United States were given the same type of reception.

"Smith spoke in Chicago on oil and corruption. If I spoke in Chicago I would speak on 'Prepare to Meet Thy Maker!'"

Thus remarked Will Rogers Monday morning. News was received Tuesday that Chicago gangsters had invaded a federal courtroom and shot down a United States prohibition agent who was testifying at a liquor trial.

Thomas Ryan in this latest victim of Chicago's organized criminal warfare. He figured recently in a liquor raid on an Italian garage, in which one racketeer was killed while resisting arrest, and it is thought that Ryan was killed in an attempt at revenge.

The officer was shot in the back and is not expected to live. In the confusion following the shooting the assailant escaped, but police last night were combing the Italian district for traces of the criminal.

The pendulum is now swinging the other way, as our English professor would say. This time it represents the changing style in literature—getting away from the "debunking" type of book, according to Henry Sydnor Harrison, one of our elder novelists.

No longer are we going to be plagued with "Around-the-Walter" with Perfect-French courses, or be ashamed if we didn't walk two miles through the snow to hear a speaker of the H. L. Mencken type denounce American conventions and customs.

The reason, this writer tells us, is that no matter how red-blooded or two-fisted we have deemed ourselves in the past, we considered ourselves as lacking in culture, or having an "inferiority complex." Thus it has been that we are ready to flock to anyone who assumes an insulting attitude towards us, in hopes to find out just what is wrong with ourselves. This resulted in the rolling up of a mass of literature "of self-depreciation of absolutely staggering proportions."

Harrison thinks that "Bridges of San Luis Rey" is the first symptom of this change.

Those with an excess of avoirdupois noticed! These individuals are the chief beneficiaries of the latest product of the men's wear architects. A pleated waistcoat, designed like a skyscraper to convey the impression of height, is the innovation. Vertical pleats are said to bestow on the most rotund the impression of tallness and slenderness.

This is the latest fashion note introduced before the Men's Wear Buying Association now meeting in Chicago.

THOSE RATTLEBRAINS

"Those rattlebrained students"—that is the epithet which has been hurled at college students for the last decade and many adherents to public opinion seem to have been affected by its contagion and take delight in calling students any polite (or otherwise) name that comes in their mind.

Care and worry does leave its mark on the thoughts of older men, but those who are younger and who have not turned needlessly critical and who are yet in the colleges are as sincere at heart and as earnest in their work as any older man.

Suppose we scoffingly said, "Oh, well, let them talk. They are but a crazy bunch of old fossils." We might refer to the smokers of the older men which hold sway far into the night and the national conventions of everything from lodges to military organizations with a sneer.

Those who turn to student ridicule can proudly point to some one they know who has made his own way through school; someone who has made a success against all odds.

Those who turn to student ridicule can proudly point to some one they know who has made his own way through school; someone who has made a success against all odds.

WHAT KIND ARE YOU?

In these strenuous times of trying to win another football championship, it is a very easy matter to forget the main reasons for coming to college.

There are a number of reasons that one can give. There is the person who comes because he does not want to stay at home and work.

Then there is the athletic type, that comes solely for participation in athletics.

Then there is the average student who comes with a great desire to better himself some way by college.

Next we think of the brilliant person who comes solely to learn, because he has a terrible hunger for learning, and a curiosity to know and to learn the secret truths of all times.

Those mentioned are only a few of the types one sees in any average college.

From a sensible viewpoint it appears that each type could well afford to learn something from the other.

The average student will never excel in athletics or scholarship but should not let the other types try to emulate him to a certain extent, and both be benefited thereby?—McMurray Workshop.

EVERYTHING IN PROPORTION

A high school principal of younger days once told his boys that he would, by far, rather have them take second classes in their examinations and play on the athletic teams, than take first classes and not turn out for the team at all.

The main business of any school or college is not to make scholars, or athletes, but men.

The same principle might be applied to the social activities of a school or university.

There are, among our acquaintances, a few "grinds"—a very few, we are pleased to say.

In an address at a freshman banquet a year or so ago, Dr. I. A. Mackay, dean of the faculty of arts, ventured the prediction that if a man had not contributed anything to the life of the university in four years as a student, he would not greatly contribute to the life of his city or his country after he graduated.

BULL BELLOWS

By ALEX MURPHREE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Among the many discomforts of long hair is the hairpins to roll down the back of your neck.

THE AGGIES ARE AWFUL. THE AGGIES aren't so good. They've lost their rabbit's foot. They must repent by wearing Hair cloth shirts and soot.

They haven't had much luck. Talk of suicide is rife. Unless they win a football game They all may take their life.

They've lost two times this season. And both times on Kyle Field. And now we're going to beat them. Before their wound has healed.

Oh, true it is but sad, And sad it is but true. The Aggies aren't so good. And I am glad, aren't you?

Perhaps no odder crowd ever gathered in the history of Freestone County. There was old Si Horton and his wife in their gig.

They hit out for the darksome canyon with Sheriff Barnaby in the lead, a determined look in his eye.

After they got into the wooded section there was a queer sound off in the distance.

They all rushed toward the sound of this noise and they came upon Archibald Chauncey Adkins, lying on the ground in a faint.

It was over there. Something white. It screamed and I shot but it came right towards me.

That's all . . . I remember. (To Be Continued)

BOOKS AND EDUCATION

A Philadelphia businessman, who has made an extensive study of college graduates and men lacking college training believes that of two men going into business, the one with the intent to go ahead to the best of his ability, and the other waiting until he finishes his college career, the one with less culture will probably be the most successful.

The investigator explains that the one who starts in business without an education reaches a point in his progress where he can go no further without the aid of books.

All college men absorb some knowledge while in school, but many of them do not form the desire for books that is necessary for the grade of culture demanded for real success.

While this difference between the college graduate and the person who has never attended an institution of the kind is exaggerated, it does impress the fact that college men do not appreciate the value of books as they might.

The time to learn this value is not soon forgotten, and, as usually seems the case, a person who is well-read has an education that is above reproach.

THE UNION AMENDMENT

Although appearing to be almost unnecessarily radical in its most important provision, the amendment proposed to the Union constitution contains much that makes it worthy of consideration and adoption by the Union membership.

That the present constitutional requirement, making it necessary for a quorum of 600 be present at a Union assembly in order to pass upon any proposed amendment, has been demonstrated to be impracticable can hardly be doubted.

To place the power of changing the Union's organization within the hands of such a small number, it is true, appears dangerous.

At the same time, the Union constitution provides that suitable notice of any amendment must be given 10 days previous to its submission to an assembly of the membership.

This single objection considered and removed, the amendment seems logically enough to deserve adoption; and with the difficulties connected with getting an adoption.—Michigan Daily.

Army of 1,816 Men Take Physical Training

In an emergency, the University could assemble a fair-sized army of able-bodied men, as 1,816 are now enrolled for physical training.

Handball leads all elective sports in popularity, 239 upper iving cast their choice for it, while fencing ranks lowest in line in point of numbers, with only seven devotees.

A total of 182 have gone out for swimming, 173 for boxing, 140 for swimming and 120 for weight lifting.

There are eight classes in enrollments varying from 55 to freshman physical training, with 127. Sophomore enrollment in swimming shows three classes with respective enrollments of 37, 44 and 50; only one advanced swimming course is being offered, with an enrollment of 38. Boxing is offered in five classes, four sophomore and one advanced, with respective enrollments of 33, 30, 50, 38, and 13.

Tennis is being taught 182 students, only eight of whom are advanced. Nine classes in handball are being held, ranging in size from one with an enrollment of eight to one with an enrollment of 54.

Weight lifting is offered in three classes, with respective enrollments of 37, 48, and 35. Golf classes are held, one a sophomore class with an enrollment of 37, the other an advanced class with an enrollment of eighteen.

Wrestling and fencing are offered in only one class each, with 32 students registered for the former and only seven for the latter.

That the majority of students prefer the morning classes, meeting from 10 to 12 o'clock, for taking physical exercises is shown by the enrollment figures of those classes, compared with classes meeting at other hours.

NEW POWER PLANT BEGINS OPERATION

The steam heat from the University's new power plant was turned on yesterday morning for the first time, although the plant has been in operation for several weeks.

In accordance with expectations, the results proved entirely satisfactory, according to Hal C. Weaver, professor of mechanical engineering. Professor Weaver also stated that the new plant was about 50 per cent more efficient than the old system, as it has a capacity of 2500 boiler horse-

An ELIZABETH ARDEN Treatment is based on three fundamental steps: CLEANSING · TONING · NOURISHING

The cleansing—with Venetian Cream—rids the pores of all impurities which cause blackheads and coarseness. The Toning—with Ardena Skin Tonic and Special Astringent—clarifies the skin and firms the contours.

THEATERS

WITH C. B.
"THE TERROR," one hundred per cent (all) talkie. It's all in sound. That is, you hear it all, you hear what you see, it's a talkie, in fact. Outside of that, it's a comedy-mystery drama with the accent on the comedy. And we do recommend it. At the Queen.

"THE CAMERAMAN," with Still-Face Buster Keaton at it again, and we hope funnier this time. He's pretty good occasionally. This one sounds good. At the Majestic.

SOUSA AND HIS BAND, making their thirty-sixth annual tour. Featuring Sousa's famous compositions and a number of specialties. Something that must not be missed. Two performances, matinee and night today only. Under auspices Amateur Choral Club. At the Hancock.

"THE ALBANY NIGHT BOAT," with Olive Borden showing her pretty teeth. We haven't seen the picture but we know that woman shows her teeth. She always shows her teeth. She's famous for it. Yeah, go see it. At the Crescent.

COMING:
"ABIE'S IRISH ROSE," Thursday and Friday matinee and night. At the Hancock.
"SUBMARINE," an epic of the underseas. October 30. At the Hancock.
"THE SINGING FOOL," Al Jolson. November 4. At the Queen.

SOUSA COMES TO HANCOCK STAGE TODAY

Today.
 John Philip Sousa and his world famous band will appear at the Hancock theater under the auspices of the Amateur Choral club today for matinee and night programs, featuring Sousa's own famous compositions as well as numbers from among the melodies of other great composers. The supreme saxophone sextette and a select group of other artists will also be featured. The matinee program is scheduled for 3:30 o'clock and the evening performance for 8:15 o'clock.

The following program will be rendered:
 Matinee: "A Study in Rhyme," Sousa; Cornet solo, "Bolero Concerto," Boccalari, Mr. John Dolan; Sulta, "At the King's Court," Sousa; Soprano solo, The Beautiful Blue Danube, Strauss, Miss Marjorie Moody; Prelude and Love's Death, from "Triston and Isolde," Wagner; Selection by the Austin High School Band, conducted by Mr. Sousa; Favorite number from operas of Victor Herbert; (a) "Parade of the Gendarmes," Lake; March, "Minnesota," Sousa; Xylophone solo, "Ghost of the Warrior," Grossman, Mr. Howard Goulden; "Dance of the Hour," Ponchielli.

Evening program: Peoration known as "Militaire Francais" from "The Algarisme"; Cornet solo, "Habemera," Sarasate, Mr. John Dolan; Suits, "Tales of a Cavalier," Sousa; Soprano solo, "Love's Radiant Hour," Sousa, Miss Marjorie Moody; Symphonic Poem "Death and Transfiguration," Strauss; Sketch, "Among my Souvenirs," Nichols-Sousa; Sextette for the Flutes, "Dance of the Marilions," Tschaiakowsky; Xylophone solo, Polonaise "Mignon, Tiarnis," "Balance all—and Swing Partners," Sousa.

'TERROR' NOW AT THE QUEEN

"The Terror," Warner Brothers' second all-talkie and a vast improvement over their first attempt, holds forth at the Queen theater, the home of all the talkies, all this week. You are advised to see this show, because it's worth it.

May McAvoy, the heroine, looks beautiful, screams two or three times effectively, and consents in the end and little more. She adds nothing in particular to the show except her beauty, and if one doesn't care for her type, she will add nothing.

There are three Vitaphone acts, two of them being unusually good. Gus Arnheim and his Ambassador orchestra prove that an orchestra can be recorded so that each instrument may be picked out separately. Arnheim is a master of jazz. We should like to hear him from across the footlights. Val and Ernie Stanton do some good stuff in a song and patter number. Movietone brings the S. M. U.-Army game to Austin in sound.

CRESCENT HAS SHIP PICTURE

Ralph Emerson, who plays the part of Ken in "The Albany Night Boat," the Tiffany-Stahl melodrama featuring Olive Borden, showing at the Crescent theater, was a second lieutenant in the World War and was considered the best athlete in his company. Archie Roosevelt was his captain.

When the time came to shoot the scenes showing Olive's rescue, Emerson made a beautiful jump of sixty five feet from the boat deck of the steamer into the water. Alfred Raboch, the director of the picture, promptly changed the action to include some stunt work for Emerson after he saw the splendid dive.

FAMOUS COMEDY HERE TOMORROW

It is doubtful if ever the coming of an attraction to the Hancock theater has created more keen interest than has the forthcoming engagement of Anne Nichols' famous comedy success, "Abie's Irish Rose," of which she is author and producer, and which she will present to local theatergoers Thursday and Friday.

"Too much stress cannot be laid on the fact that Miss Nichols is sending to this city the entire cast and production which recently filled an engagement of 29 weeks at the Colonial theater, Cleveland. "Abie's Irish Rose" is not a motion picture, but the original and genuine stage play itself.

KEATON NOW IN MAJESTIC FILM

Laughs from a new source is the dish offered by Buster Keaton in "The Cameraman," opening at the Majestic theater today for a three-day stand. Keaton has found comedy in everything else, and this time he gets the laughs with a news reel camera of ancient lineage, with tripod legs, which gets tangled in everything from the New York subway to a motorboat propeller. If you can't laugh—stay away, but if you want to forget all about that mid-term you have the next day, and for which you haven't cracked a book—go.

"The Book That's Different."

"Such popularity must be deserved!"

Down deep in the Kongo the native sons believe that anybody who has an explorer for dinner will absorb all the brains, courage and other success-assuring virtues of the unfortunate victim.

We wish we could say the same of Chesterfields—that all their popularity is conferred upon whosoever smokes them. Frankly, however, this is not invariably true. Several Chesterfield smokers have recently been discovered who are not ambassadors, steel kings, or even bank presidents.

But—since Chesterfields are so satisfying, mild and different—we'll all of us continue to enjoy them for these sound smoke-virtues alone.

Popularity? Six million smokers are enjoying 'em today. Such popularity must be deserved. Make it six million and one!

MAKE OWL FEATHERS FLY

FOR TEXAS I WILL

SPORT TALK

By BOB CANTRELL
Texan Sports Editor

Coach Francis Schmidt was the busiest man on the field Saturday. He went through every play that was pulled, and was constantly talking to himself. If there was such a thing as mental telepathy, the Porkers were in constant touch with their mentor.

The first fall intramural tournament will start Thursday when the first round of the intramural tennis singles will start. We dropped by the office of Whitaker yesterday afternoon and looked over the list. There were three pages of names, and among these were some of the best tennis players in the school, not out for Varsity or freshman.

There were more scouts than there were sports writers in the press box Saturday. Every team in the conference had at least two men there, and none of them were wasting any time. We saw four fellows who took down every play, and where every man went on every play.

Austin has three teams after a championship. Texas, St. Eds, and Austin Hi are all conceded a good chance to have a say in the final awarding of championships.

LONGHORNS WORK BEHIND SHUT GATES FOR OWL GAME

Refusing to take the Rice game lightly, Coaches Littlefield, Karow and James sent their charges through one of the hardest afternoon workouts that they have had this year yesterday. Every gate was closed, and no visitors were allowed to see anything which took place, but from the sounds emerging, scrimmage was evidently the main part of the program.

In all probability, the Steer coaches are looking a week beyond the Rice clash—to the game with S. M. U.—one which promises to be the most sensational game of football ever played in the southwest, with both teams opening up with every play known to the followers and coaches of the game, in an effort to secure a win.

Texas will have a burning desire to gather in revenge for the last three defeats handed the locals, while S. M. U. will have as her goal a perfect season, with a possibility of a post-season game with Vanderbilt looming in the distance.

Every man on the Steer squad was out to work yesterday with the exception of Pinky Higgins, who suffered a shoulder injury in the Arkansas game, which will keep him out for about a week.

The freshmen kept the ball all afternoon, while Varsity broke up Rice plays time and again. This afternoon Varsity will likely take over the offensive, and let the freshmen try their hands at breaking up the game.

CO-OP TROPHY

CUP COMPETITION BEGINS THURSDAY

Those who wish to try to win the Individual Intramural Trophy cup offered by the Co-op should start out immediately to gaining points. Berry Whitaker points out.

The cup is a permanent trophy, and goes to the man who engages in the largest number of intramural sports during the year.

Each of the major sports is good for two points, and each of the minor sports is good for one point toward winning the cup. Last year the cup was won by Walter C. Wukasch with 196 points. "Shorty" Regan won it the year before.

VARSITY NET STARS SWEEP SECOND ROUND

Bell, Dunlap, Allison Win Matches Easily; More Today

Members of the Varsity tennis squad continued to set the pace in the second round of the All-City Tennis Tournament yesterday at the Penick Courts.

Hugh Dunlap, the wrong-handed ace and captain of the Varsity netters, scored the most impressive win of the day's playing by disposing of Barnhill, the freshman squad ace, 6-0, 6-0. Berkeley Bell continued his winnings by defeating Johnson 6-3, 6-3. Piggy Minchen, Varsity letterman in 1927, won the right to enter the third round of play by defeating Williams 6-3, 6-2. Lucian La Coste won his match from Moore by default. McNair had a much harder time disposing of Masterson, and only after three long sets turned him back, 9-7, 6-2, 8-6.

Wilmer Allison, former Varsity star and member of the American Davis Cup team, had little trouble defeating Brazelton by the score of 6-0, 6-0.

Complete results of the second round were: Dunlap defeated Barnhill 6-0, 6-2. Allison defeated Brazelton 6-0, 6-0. Minchen beat Williams 6-3, 6-2. Bell defeated Johnson 6-3, 6-3. La Coste won from Johnson by default. McNair defeated Masterson 9-7, 6-2, 8-6. Kamrath defeated Altman 6-0, 6-0. Ferguson defeated Gordon 6-0, 6-0. Caswell defeated Boren 3-6, 8-6, 6-1, and Caldwell defeated Gensberg 6-2, 8-6.

Jonathans Uphold Morale and Health Of Steer Gridders

"An apple a day is going to keep the S. M. U. jinx away," Pete says so. Pete is always doing something for the boys, and this is his contribution for the downfall of the Galloping Mustangs. This apple hand-out will last until after the S. M. U. game—every day, after each practice, each man will receive one red, fight-inspiring apple. 'Tis not stated whether the fruit that has made Arkansas famous will be Jonathans, Winesaps, or what not; but it is hoped that the masticulators of the aforesaid delicacy, donated by the Texas Candy Kitchen, will be enabled to make saps out of the cocky "Giants" from the city of the Hour. And Pete says so, too.

SLIMES TRAVEL TO BRENHAM FOR TILT

The freshman eleven open their football season Thursday when they journey to Brenham to take on Siki Sike's Brenham Memorial college team. Sikes' gridders have been going strong this season, in four games piling up a total of 233 points to their opponents 0.

Alderson states that he expects to carry about 25 men on the trip.

DISTANCE MEN GET CALDWELL FOR CAPTAIN

McLean Names Team For Meets With Owls Saturday

Coach Roy McLean's cross country men will get their first taste of competition for this year Saturday when they meet the Rice team at Houston.

At a meeting of squad members Tuesday afternoon, Bascom Caldwell was elected captain of the 1928 harriers and Coach McLean selected Caldwell, Bowen, Schmidley, Levi, Guffin, Johnson, and Westerfeldt to compose the team which will go to Houston.

It will be remembered that Rice won over the Longhorns last year, and they started the current season off last Saturday by handing the Mustangs of S. M. U. a 28-27 defeat.

There are 16 men on the squad this fall, and, according to McLean, competition is keener than it has ever been before. There are only two of the members of last year's squad to form a nucleus for the team this fall.
