

Hero worship
Court legality
Self-sacrifice
Lynching

FUNERAL services for Dr. A. H. P. McCurdy of Goliad, noted educator and religious leader of the Presbyterian church, who died early Wednesday, will be held from the University Presbyterian church today with the Rev. L. H. Wharton officiating. Dr. McCurdy was the father of John A. McCurdy of Austin, secretary of the Ex-Students' Association of the University. The Texan wishes to extend sympathy to the family and relatives of the deceased.

AMELIA EARHART, Lady Lindy, and first woman to span the Atlantic by air, is now in London and apparently she is enjoying each moment. She was wearing borrowed clothes at a reception yesterday; but then she said she was not vain. She also said that she didn't want to be the subject of "hero worship." "I don't deserve it," she declared. Perhaps she also borrowed the "idea" to be the first to cross the Atlantic. But about the hero worship; that merely emphasizes the point that the greater one becomes, the less great one feels.

THE state court of criminal appeals Wednesday held that evidence obtained on an illegal search warrant could not be admitted in testimony, though the defendant submitted to the search. While on the other hand, the United States Supreme Court recently upheld the fact that testimony gained through "wire tapping," which in itself is illegal in the state of Washington, where the case originated, may be introduced as evidence. The supreme court ruling then makes an illegal act legal when it is used in law enforcement. It might not be a bad plan if the courts could have a little more uniformity in their holdings.

CAREFUL CAL., rather than face the extreme stiffness of a Wisconsin summer, for the last six days has confined himself to Cedar Island Lodge near Superior. There, it would seem, he is enjoying the same seclusion in regard to physical matters that has so mystified the nation for the past six years in regard to affairs of national and international moment. Mr. Coolidge has gained a rather unenviable reputation because of this New England recitade. Had he been more free with his views, the work of government might perhaps have been less successful but certainly his personal reputation in the nation at large could be held in greater regard.

SELF-SACRIFICING friendship is not one of the outstanding features of our modern civilization, yet the greatest sacrifice of all has been made by Captain Raold Amundsen, dean of modern explorers, in his efforts to locate his friend and fellow-explorer, General Nobile. Amundsen has been missing after his flight to attempt to aid the lost Nobile expedition. Nobile now has been found. Amundsen is gone. The fury of the northern climate at this time of the year has caused many to doubt his ever returning. It seems hardly worthwhile to win our victories at such cost. Yet the great unfinished work must go on, and as soon as one is lost another takes the torch.

THE Republican party has a plank in its platform condemning lynching. Houston, Mecca of the Democratic party, is now inflamed over the lynching of a negro by eight unmasked men. It is to be wondered as to what action the Democratic party will take. The gauge has been flung down by the Republicans. The lynching at Houston intensifies it. But this is only one phase of the problem the Democratic politicians will have to cope with. It has been truly said that those who sit in high places have to bear the burden of their office.

Dean Pittenger Links Education With Religion

Lecture to Present Division In 'Fundamentalism,' 'Modernism'

Talks Friday Night
Parallel Aspects in Church To Be Discussed In Speech

Aspects of "Modernism and Fundamentalism in the Educational World" will be the subject of the lecture which Dean B. F. Pittenger will deliver Friday night at 8 o'clock in the Open Air Theater. The lecture is one of those scheduled as a part of summer session activities.

"The division between the two groups, fundamentalism and modernism, in the church world has its parallel with a similar division in the educational world," Pittenger said. The lecturer will not criticize either of the two existing conditions but will point out the parallel aspects of the two situations.

"We have fundamentalist and modernist attitudes toward the different types of instruction. The main difference in the two is their approach to the educational questions. One party decides a question by tradition and past practice, the other approaches the question by experimentation and from the scientific standpoint," Dr. Pittenger said.

The dean will take up as much of a survey of the question when he delivers his lecture Friday night as his time will permit.

Dr. W. F. Ledlow To Go to Denton

Educator Makes Exceptional Scholastic Record

Dr. W. F. Ledlow, adjunct professor of education, has recently accepted a position as professor of education at the North Texas State Teachers' College and will begin his work at Denton in the fall.

Entered College at 28
With only three years of elementary schooling, Dr. Ledlow did not begin his college work until 28 years of age. He received his B. A. degree from S. M. U. in 1913, and his M. A. from the University of Texas the following year.

From 1916 to 1920, he was president of the Thorp Springs Christian College. Receiving the Peabody scholarship in 1920 he came to the University and began work on his doctor's degree. He held the scholarship for three years. "I feel that I was greatly honored in receiving this scholarship," stated Dr. Ledlow, "for it enabled me to complete the required courses for my doctor's work."

Studied in Chicago
In the summer of 1923 Dr. Ledlow spent three months doing research work in the University of Chicago. His thesis on the "History of Protestant Education in Texas" was completed in 1926. His work was of an unusually high character, record books showing that his grades have never fallen below a 'B'. He has recently published a book entitled "Jesus and His Methods."

For the past five years Dr. Ledlow has served on the University faculty, first as instructor and then as adjunct professor. He taught a course in the "History of Education" at the Denton Normal school during the summer of 1925. He gives as his reason for accepting the new position that he believes he will have a better opportunity for his particular field of work and that he will receive an increase in salary.

SIGMA DELTA PI MEETS TO MAKE SUMMER PLANS

Sigma Delta Pi met Wednesday evening to reorganize for the summer session. Plans were made for the meeting to be held Thursday, June 29, in M. B. 225 at 7:30 o'clock. Dr. Fitz-Gerald will lecture on, "A Visit to the Birth Place of Juan Valera."

All students of advanced Spanish are invited.

Summer Students 'Shun' Hospitals

WHETHER summer students are of a more healthy nature than the long session students; or whether they are more fortunate this summer than usual must be left to an analysis of the medical department.

However, indications show that they are one or the other, for there have been only two students in the hospitals during the summer session to date. One patient remained in the hospital only long enough to have an injury to her hand treated. The other patient was not quite so fortunate and had to remain in the hospital overnight.

Mrs. Dan Moody Greets Students On Local Tour

Excursionists Visit Capitol And Governor's Mansion

Probably the largest local excursion held in any summer school was held Wednesday afternoon, in the charge of Miss Lillian Wester. More than 300 University students visited the Governor's Mansion and greeted Mrs. Dan Moody. They were taken through in five groups.

On leaving the Mansion, the excursionists visited the Capitol, the senate chamber, state library, the governor's reception room, the Supreme Court room, and the Court of Criminal Appeals.

This tour is one of a series being directed by Miss Wester, which give opportunity to the students and friends of the University to see places of interest in and near Austin. Many persons have stated their pleasure in these excursions, and their intention of attending others.

Wednesday of next week the excursionists will meet at 3 o'clock at the Y. M. C. A. and go to the Elisabeth Ney studio, the State Cemetery, and the French Embassy.

The only expense for next Wednesday's trip will be the bus fare. All are cordially invited to attend, said Miss Wester.

Visual Instruction Bureau Presents Screen Program

The life and works of Julius Caesar will be portrayed on the screen Saturday night when a program will be presented by the Visual Instruction Bureau at the Open Air Theater at 8 o'clock. In addition to the screen entertainments which will be presented at the Open Air Theater, another feature will be presented in the form of an interpretive dance by Dorothy Rather, who will portray a little fairy, and Kathryn Rather, who will portray a golden firefly.

Scribes Sound Doom of Printer's Ink With 'Colored Boys Delight' and Swim

"Hey! that's the wrong kind of a head! The drops too long—er—I mean that's the wrong kind of a dive—you dropped too far!" This kind of an expression will be typical of many when the Texan staff gathers tomorrow at Barton Springs to enjoy a picnic and swimming party which has been planned for the workers on the paper.

Editors, reporters, mechanical men and flunkies will leave B. Hall at 6 o'clock tomorrow in a big bus chartered just for this special event. Practically all of the staff members will be the guests of the Texas Students Publication, Inc., which has provided for the financial backing of the undertaking. Everything's free including the swimming pool tickets and watermelon. The editors expect a large attendance and also

Saturday Set as Final Day For Tennis Entries

Because of the success in organizing intramural baseball leagues this summer, Berry Whitaker, physical training director, will organize tennis intramural leagues as the next activity on this summer's athletic program.

According to Mr. Whitaker, any student will be eligible to enter the tennis tournaments who is not a letterman in tennis. A definite schedule for entries will be made out next Saturday and all applications for entries must be in by that time. Entries can be made in Z Hall in Mr. Whitaker's office or at the Athletic Council office in the same building.

"We are expecting a large turnout for this activity," said Whitaker, "inasmuch as the students seem to show a great deal of interest in summer intramural baseball. I am sure that the results will be encouraging."

The intramural baseball games on the schedule for the past week were rained out and will be played off in the near future. Today the Cafeteria team will play Pat's, and the Wild Cats will play Wukash's at 5 o'clock. Two more games will be played Friday when the faculty team plays Delta Chi and Gutsch's squad plays the Elite Cafe team also at 5 o'clock.

Veteran Writer Visits University

Hornaday on Way to Report Twentieth Convention

He has reported his nineteenth national presidential convention and is on his way to his twentieth!

James P. Hornaday, brother of W. D. Hornaday, director of publicity for the University, arrived in the University campus Monday morning from his home in Washington, D. C., where he is correspondent for the Indianapolis News. He is on his way to Houston for the Democratic convention, after having just "covered" the Republican national convention in Kansas City.

"I suppose that national conventions are getting to be a pretty old story to you now, aren't they?" his brother asked him.

"Well, in some ways they are," he answered, "but I still find them lots of fun and as interesting as ever in many ways. About the only thing I dislike about them is the actual discomfort of the crowded hotel facilities."

"The Kansas City convention was, of course, somewhat uneventful when compared to others of the past, for the outcome was more or less 'cut-and-dried' before the convention actually opened."

Mr. Hornaday has been a Washington correspondent for 26 years and has been acquainted personally with five presidents of the United States. He is of a family of newspaper men, and his three children, a girl and two boys, are all in the newspaper game. His daughter, only 21 years old, is a Washington correspondent for the Christian Science Monitor, often called "the ideal newspaper."

Musical Director Leaves Campus

OSCAR J. FOX, for three years director of University glee club activities, has announced his resignation. He has compiled and published a group of cowboy ballads and has taken an active part in the movement to record song-legends of the "lone prairie."

Fox Resigns as Glee Club Leader At University

Director Had Charge of Music Activities for Three Years

An agreement on the employing of a supervisor of University singing activities for next year to fill the position left open by the resignation of Oscar J. Fox, who held that office for three years, will probably be reached Friday at a conference of the presidents of the campus singing groups together with Dean V. I. Moore, it was announced yesterday.

Meet at 12 o'clock

The meeting will be held in the office of Dean Moore at 12 o'clock Friday. The representatives of the singing organizations who will be present Friday are John Guinn, Men's Glee club; B. R. Brooks, Choral club; and Mabel Neighbors, Girls' Glee club.

Resignation of Oscar J. Fox was recently made known through communication which he had with the office of Dean Moore. When asked if he would accept the position of musical director and supervisor for a fourth year, Mr. Fox replied that he could not do so.

However, Mr. Fox stated that his three years as supervisor of campus singing activities had been enjoyable ones.

The Men's Glee club, for which Fox had been director during his service here, recommended the past leader and supervisor very highly for another season.

Make Recommendations

Recommendations for the position of musical supervisor and director for next year will be made by the club presidents in the meeting Friday, and it is expected that some agreement will be made at that time for the appointment of the director for 1928-29.

Mrs. Nell Thiele Manning who has directed the Girls' Glee club under the general supervision of Oscar J. Fox has not signified a desire for nonparticipation in the singing activities in the future, it is stated.

STUDENTS GET PASSES

Free tickets to the Queen theater to see "Harold Teen" this week are being given to the lucky students who find their names given in The Summer Texan.

The editors of the paper have arranged with the management of the theater to select names at random from the school directory and to put them in the classified advertising section. If the students who find their names there will present the note at B. Hall 127 they will be given their free passes.

Summer School Education Group To Meet Friday

Weekly Luncheon Program Open to All Students Interested in Work

Dr. Benedict Speaks

Meeting Called by M.O. Britt, Past President of Club

Organization of the Summer School Educational Association will take place Friday at the Cafeteria at 1 o'clock, according to an announcement made yesterday by M. O. Britt, who was president of the association during the past short session.

An address by President H. Y. Benedict will be the chief feature of the initial meeting of the organization for the summer.

Separate Group

That the Summer Educational Association is entirely separate from the Graduate club of the School of Education during the long session was emphasized by the group president. Everyone interested in educational problems may attend the meetings it was stated.

The association meets once each week with a luncheon program. The purpose of the association is to bring together those who are interested in educational problems, both for a social get-together and to hear discussions on current problems in education as given by members of the University education school faculty and by visiting professors.

The organization of the association at this time is the result of a recent conference of some of the officers of last year with Dean B. F. Pittenger of the education school, who requested that the old officers attend to matters of reorganization.

Phillips Arranges Program

M. O. Britt, the past president, was superintendent of the city schools of Sonora during the past year; while Miss Margaret Phillips, past secretary and treasurer, was on the faculty of the Marshall high school. Miss Phillips will have charge of arranging the program for the organization meeting Friday, it was declared.

Music by C. M. Hornberg, at the piano, and Miss Mary Ernest, violin will be given, it was announced by Miss Phillips.

Penick Assumes Directorship of Summer School

Dr. D. A. Penick, assistant director of the summer session, today takes up his duties of directing the school during the absence of Dr. Frederick Eby, full director, who left yesterday on his vacation.

Dr. Penick announced that he would be in the office of Dr. Eby in the Education Building each day from 9 o'clock to 10 o'clock; and from 11 o'clock to 1 o'clock, while directing the school during the absence of Dr. Eby.

Dr. Eby left for a five weeks' trip in the north, and plans to return to the University near the end of July. On his first itinerary Dr. Eby plans to go to Toronto, Canada, to attend the World Baptist Alliance; following that, he will travel through Ontario and will return home by way of Michigan, Illinois, Iowa, and Kansas, where he intends to visit junior colleges then in session. Dr. Eby will meet his family in Toronto.

Bill Barbour Plays For Third Gym Dance

The third gym-german of the summer session will be held this Saturday night, according to Alton Luckett who is in charge of these summer dances. Bill Barbour will play again it was announced.

"The attendance at the last dance was encouraging," Luckett said, "and we are expecting the crowds to become larger as the season goes on." The dances are held in the woman's gym.

A Statement to the Public by L. W. Baldwin, President of the

MISSOURI PACIFIC LINES

Future of the Southwest Will Be Measured by the Agricultural Development

BASIC importance of agriculture is unquestioned. Everyone knows that sound and lasting prosperity in the United States is dependent upon the prosperity of our Agricultural Industry. This is especially true in the Great Southwest. And this fundamental, economic truth is recognized by the Missouri Pacific Lines. Furthermore, the Missouri Pacific organization is doing everything possible to assist in putting all branches of Agriculture on a happy and prosperous basis.

Demand and market for products of Agriculture are increasing in far greater proportion than our increases in population would seem to justify. Improved transportation—distribution—is largely responsible. Fresh fruits and vegetables, only recently referred to as "out of season" and as hot house luxuries, now are common articles of diet the year round on nearly every table in the country. American producers now are marketing annually nearly 2,000,000 car loads of perishable fruits and vegetables. This is virtually double the consumption in the United States less than ten years ago and the fact is mentioned merely to show the possibility for future development.

Responsibility for agricultural development rests primarily on the people who are living on the land, but other institutions such as the Missouri Pacific Lines can, and our earnest desire is, to be of great service in working out and applying the solution of the so-called problem of Agriculture. That is the reason the Missouri Pacific Lines maintain a staff of experts available to assist in the development of any community or section along sound and practical lines.

Our experts do not advocate "growing two blades of grass where only one grew before," but they do advocate more efficient and economical production. Or, in other words, Missouri Pacific men advocate more bales of cotton or bushels of wheat or corn on fewer acres. And, in addition, they advocate an intelligent diversification of production that has for its ultimate aim, a cash "pay day" on every farm every month.

There are vast areas of comparatively undeveloped territory along the Missouri Pacific Lines and not only the experts in our Agricultural Development organization but also every member of the Missouri Pacific Lines family will gladly help farmers and any others interested in any scheme or plan for constructive development of any community.

Millions of dollars of new wealth have been created and put in circulation in the Southwest, in some instances largely and in many places at least partially as a result of the assistance of the Missouri Pacific Lines. More such tangible prosperity is in prospect. Our organization solicits the opportunity to be helpful wherever possible and anyone interested should feel free to consult any Missouri Pacific man at any time.

I solicit your co-operation and assistance.

California 'Peg' Rides First Train to Attend Varsity

Grinding Wheels And Shrill Whistles Are New to 'Peg' Williams

California Girl Expects Cowboys and Rodeos Galore but Discovers Texas Not Much Different from Her Native Sunny Home

By MARY FRANCES TURMAN

The grinding start of a railroad coach, the shrill whistle of a locomotive, or the sight of glistening rails disappearing across the horizon meant little to Hazel "Peg" Williams, twenty-year-old University of Texas co-ed, until she came to Austin last fall. Until then she had never been inside a railroad coach.

"Peg" was born in "sunny" California, in Ontario, October 31, 1907. Last fall, through the influence of her brother-in-law she started to the Lone Star State to ride on a train for the first time in her twenty years.

Tongue-tied and Excited
"I was awfully excited when I got on the train; I didn't know what to do! The first day on my trip I sat in my seat almost all the time and was scared to talk to anyone."

Later in the day a lady across the aisle came over and talked to "Peg," and then "Peg," not quite so frightened, bolstered up her nerve and went to the observation car. "Gee, I didn't know what to do—first I sat down in the observation coach and looked around. I didn't want people to think I didn't know what to do; so finally I got up and went out on the car. It was the first time I'd ever been on an observation car when I looked down at the rails, gee I felt funny."

Miles and miles of rails and then the state of Arizona! The chair was getting dreadfully hard and "Peg" was restless. Then little huts sprang up, the houses were getting larger and larger. Maybe the train would stop so "Peg" could get off and walk around.

Train Begins Moving
"Yeh-uh-huh, it finally did stop and I was surely glad to see that town in Arizona! I think it was Tucson, I'm not sure. I was too excited about getting off. I went in the news stand to get some post cards and I looked around and saw the train going. And there I was, left! I had my money, but gee, everything else was in my bags. I grabbed those cards, didn't even stop to count my change, and flew, yes, flew to that train. Yeh and I would have jumped on, but the porter yelled to me and told me the train was only switching and that I had thirty minutes more before it left." "Peg" wouldn't even crack a smile, but turned on her heels and went into the waiting room and found a seat so unconcerned and sophisticated, that she would have fooled even a psychologist. After about thirty minutes of waiting "Peg" got on the train and waved a good-bye to a little child in its mother's arms.

What's the Ladder For
But that night! There was the problem of an upper and how to get into it—and all those bags. "Let's see! Did mother say to take my bags with me?" And "Peg's" big problem loomed up before her. "Listen, how do I get in this upper?" she asked the lady across the aisle. The lady called the porter for her and crawled into her lower, leaving "Peg" standing, waiting and listening. "Peg" wondered what had happened to the porter. The porter came, but what was the ladder for? He put the ladder beside "Peg's" upper and departed after she had told him she wasn't ready to go to bed. "I didn't want to climb up there with anyone watching me and goodnight, I just knew I'd fall off. But I got up there some how. Sure, I took all three of my bags to my upper and there I undressed after I'd been knocked against the wall six or seven times. I had quite a bit of money with me and I put it in the pocket of my pajamas, just where mother told me."

"Peg's" an Athlete
"Peg" is an athlete through and through. In Chaffey High School in Ontario where she graduated in '26, she received letters in athletics. She went to the Junior college in Ontario the following year, where she continued her interest in sports. And being musically inclined, she literally sang her way through the year. Here at the University of Texas she has showed her "sunny" California "stick-to-em-ness" and made the Girls Glee club, the Choral club, the Turtle swimming club and the sophomore basketball team. She made a splendid showing in the Union Drive for the University, when she worked as a lieutenant.

Looks for Room
When the train arrived in Austin, "the friendly city," there was no one to meet the little California girl and she was lost again. She didn't know where she was going to stay, in fact she would have stayed at the station all day if the kindly taxi driver hadn't come to her and asked her where she wanted to go. She told him she wanted to go to the University, and away through the capitol grounds and up the University drive he took her. "The first place I went on the campus was to the Dean's office. I was so tired and I had to have a place to stay. I got a list of boarding houses and then walked and walked—I didn't even eat all that day. Finally I found a place to stay on Rio Grande." After a few days "Peg" liked Texas better.

Visions Cowboys Galore
"Yeh-uh-huh! I like Texas now—but oh, gee, it was terrible when I first came. I thought they would have cow punchers here and I just couldn't wait to see the rodeos that I'd heard about." She had visions of cowboys and people in Texas riding on horses; but now everything was different to her. Everything was like California except the long drawl of the Texans. "Yeh-uh-huh, I like the people here, they are a lot more hospitable than the people at home. I was fascinated at the way the people talked; I went in the drug stores and would sit there hours, drinking cokes by the gallon—just listening to them

'Peg' Grows Tongue-tied Over First Choo-Choo Trip

talk—oh, I love it—they talk so cute!"

"Texas is my adored state and next to my California I like it best." "Peg's" second trip on a train was made the first of June, when she returned to her "sunny" home. "Yeh-uh-huh! and I'm going home on a train, too," she said.

"The world is blessed most by men who do things, and not by those who merely talk about them."—James Oliver.

EDUCATIONAL DIVERSIFICATION

Just before leaving on his tour of the East and North, Dr. Frederick Eby, director of the Summer Session of the University, issued a statement to the press charging the lack of recent development of the individual educational institution to the alarming number of colleges that have sprung up in Texas since the World War. As a result of his investigations, Dr. Eby states that 22 state supported schools—five senior colleges and 17 junior colleges—have made their appearance.

Monumental as this is to the superficial educational ranking of Texas among the other 47 states, it has worked drastic effects on the actual educational achievement of the state. In the first place this multitude of state supported schools must look for maintenance to a fund only negligibly greater than that which maintained the educational institutions of the state before the recent establishments. Money is the all-important factor in the development of a great scholastic system or a great scholastic unit. With money teachers are hired, equipment is purchased, and research is conducted. Without it, or with it in limited quantity, only minimum progress can be made.

The survey prepared by Dr. Eby shows on a whole that instead of increasing normally, the work has been hindered. The cutting down of appropriations for individual schools in order that the distribution might reach farther has resulted in a general curtailment of growth.

Texas schools, as a whole, seemed doomed to mediocrity. Only the University has attained to anything near a national reputation. It was the dream of the Fathers of the Republic that "a University of the first rank" be established. The "cherished design" mentioned in the Act of Establishment of 1858 has failed of achievement.

The marvelous educational institutions of Europe and of the East were built not upon decentralization, but by the concentration of all the faculties of the nation in a few highly developed units. Before the University of Texas—or any one Texas institution—can reach the fulness of its development that same concentration must be established.

For the proper promulgation of cultural education it will be necessary to bring together all the resources of the state in one unit, there devote them to the securing of more learned professors, to the inauguration of a more scholastic system, and to training of a greater campus population; then stand back, wait for time and progress to place Texas in the "first rank" of recognized educational institutions of more than superficial value.

ON TO HOUSTON

A law to regulate lawlessness is the evident proposal of the Republican Party in the most amusing plank in its platform—The Anti-Lynching Law promise. To the people of the North and that portion of the West that is so rapidly becoming equally civilized with the home of Heywood Brown, the South's favorite after (and before) dinner sport has always been a source of much contention, no little disapproval, and a great deal of envy.

It is to be expected with people of their type that they would allow their feelings to carry them a long way, but it was scarcely thinkable that they would cast a cloak of legality about a lawless thing in order to make it liable to the law. And that is evidently what they have done. Lynching's greatest appeal to the people of the South was its daring, lawlessness. It was "bred in ignorance, fed in intolerance, and bred in darkness." It moved in devious ways, and has been called everything from "unjust justice," to "the hideous repulsive expression of mob license."

Now all of that was bad enough. But our friends the Republicans want to let Congress legislate on the thing; Congress, of course, has no control over the lawless and cannot regulate a thing that is out of the pale of the law. So these pro-black Republican hosts issue an opinion to the effect that lynching must be legal. Why? Because they want Congress to regulate it, and since they usually get what they want, they must construe the facts to fit their interpretation.

After that, God forbid that any self respecting Southerner should adjust the noose at a Lynching Party. If the Republicans were seeking a real way to abolish lynching—they have struck at the heart of its appeal. If they were insincere—they have lost a good plank. The Democrats may find it about somewhere. They had another lynching in Houston the other day.

FOR TEXAS I WILL

The announcement that the University of Wisconsin Memorial Union is complete and will be dedicated on November 6, after only a relatively short while of building, brings to mind the remarkable need of the University for the rushing of work on the proposed Texas Union plan.

The coming athletic season will find the University without a place to house its indoor meets. The destruction of the old Men's Gym, which seemed at the time to be a blessing in disguise, may turn out to be a wholesale disaster if the first unit of the Union is not completed in time for use next year.

At the time the Gym burned, a sudden fire of enthusiasm seemed to run riot over the leaders of the campaign and promises were made that immediate construction work should begin on the new Gymnasium-Auditorium. It is lamentable that this work has not moved forward on schedule. The move seems to have reached a standstill and unless progress is again started, the opening of the long session will find the University with another unfulfilled need.

From Other Pens

WHAT IS EDUCATION?

One instructor in the University, realizing that college students see little enough, in general, of life outside the classroom, is obliging those studying under him to interview personally some authority on a given subject, outside the academic sphere. Another instructor at a northern university recently advocated a year of honest-to-goodness hobo life as a preparation for college work. He maintained that at the end of a year a man would return with a broader, more rational view of life, and would be more capable of appreciating college environment.

When we realize how narrow some sheepskin holders and undergraduates are, in spite of their "higher" learning, the value of these contacts with the world is apparent.—California Daily Bruin.

LOVELY PARKING

Some of our good citizens are voicing more and more strenuous complaints about the increasing numbers of cars seen parked along the roads and highways these pleasant June evenings. It would seem that porch swings protected by high shrubbery would be satisfactory for the young lovers, inspired to new emotional strength and feeling by the delightful days and evenings. Yet, when one considers the extreme lack of privacy afforded by such ordinary equipment, the quest for more suitable surroundings is not so difficult to understand. And when it is noted that the gardens on south campus and the forestry are quite properly guarded against obscenity and immorality, then one becomes fully convinced not only of the propriety of going out of town to enjoy the loving caresses of friend sweetheart but also of the necessity for such action.

It might be objected that the youths should at least go far enough or to private enough places so as not to disturb the peace of mind of old spinsters who go out in the evening for a pleasant little drive in the country. But when we are aware of the cost of renting cars and that the cost mounts with the mileage, then the lack of ambition to go far away is at least explainable.

Of course this does not even attempt to justify the parking of cars on the public highways for the purpose of love making. We feel that that can be very much more gracefully accomplished in private parlors on private davenport.—Daily Illini.

ON BEING LIBERAL

If there is one duty more than any other which the college editor owes his reading public, it is to be liberal in his editorial policy.

Don't mistake us—we do not mean "radical," for too many self-dubbed radicals are as illiberal as the most dyed-in-the-wool Tory. Along this line the editor of The Illini is in receipt of the following comment from a collegiate press service!

"The college editor must be able to see all sides of a question, fairly, without prejudice and with good judgment. He may, and should, take sides in many of his editorials, but before determining his stand on any question, it is his solemn duty first to investigate thoroughly that aspect toward which he is least inclined.

"It has been our good fortune to have as acquaintances during the past few years two men of extremely opposite political philosophies, both of whom our heartiest respect. The one, a professor of political science, has been classed by his associates as an incurable radical. He is a regular reader of the editorial columns of the Chicago Tribune. The other, a business man, and as rock-ribbed a Republican as ever came out of the Green mountains, reads daily the editorial pages of two of the most enthusiastically Democratic papers now published. Both men, we have long known are liberals, despite their extreme ideas, simply because they are willing to see the other fellow's point of view.

"Theirs is a good example for the college editor to follow."

We have passed this comment on to our readers through these columns as supplement to the brief declaration of policy at the inaugural of our regime. The editor of The Illini will have regard for other points of view, whether or not his remains the same.—The Daily Illini.

What Do You Know About—

1. Albert Ritchie?
2. Predatory fish?
3. "Bud" Fisher?
4. Roald Amundsen?
5. Chicago's crimes?

Governor Albert Ritchie of Maryland who up to yesterday was a candidate for the Democratic nomination for president, has announced that he will not be a candidate when the Democrats assemble at Houston next Wednesday. The governor said that he will throw his votes to Al Smith of New York. The Marylander also announced that he would not be a candidate for the vice-presidency.

A mysterious bomb explosion wrecked the county building in Detroit last Monday evening and injured at least ten persons. Court sessions were broken up and judges, jurors, officials and clerks rushed to the street in a wild panic. The casualties were light compared to what they might have been had not a plucky officer discovered the bomb a few moments before its explosion and hurled it into the area-way.

An experiment was tried recently in Del Rio, which if perfected, is expected to rid Texas rivers and lakes of predatory fish. Electric wires were stretched across the bottom of a small lake and then other wires were floated across the surface, an electric current of from 330 to 440 volts being discharged through them at the time. The electric shocks brought the fish to the top of the water, gasping for breath. While in a stunned condition, the predatory fish were thrown ashore by men in small skiffs. After ten or fifteen minutes the bass, perch, and other game fish came to life and began to swim away.

A report to the effect that Captain Roald Amundson, of north pole fame, had reached Nobile and his stranded fliers in his large aeroplane was issued yesterday. Amundson did not stop at King's Bay as was expected before he flew to Nobile, but flew straight to the spot where Nobile's position had been given in his last radio message. Despite the fact that Amundson's plane was equipped with a thoroughly efficient radio no word was received from him for over 30 hours and officials were becoming anxious over his safety. Amundson is said to have landed within a few kilometers of the fliers and in plain view of them.

"Bud" Fisher, Mutt and Jeff artist, has received the entire estate of his father, Allen A. Fisher who died in 1926 and left the estate to his son. The will and the attached papers show that Mr. Fisher received $3000 per week as a minimum for his comic strip in 1921. He also received 50 per cent of the royalties over $4700 per week.

Herbert Hoover and Senator Curtis, the Republican nominees for president and vice-president, held their first conference since their nomination, last Tuesday evening. The candidates had lunch together and then retired to a private office for a talk which lasted over an hour. Neither of the gentlemen would give out any information in regard to the plans they had adopted. On Friday of this week they will receive a delegation from the Republican National Committee and in all probability a national chairman of the committee will be selected.

Miss Mabel Boll, who hoped to be the first woman ever to fly across the Atlantic and who was robbed of this honor by the successful flight of Amelia Earhart, yesterday announced that she and her companions will hop off for Rome as soon as the weather permits. Miss Boll has changed her plans several times but said that the present plans were final and that the hop would be made this time at the earliest possible moment.

Two more murders have been recorded in Chicago's crime list as a result of an odd dual killing which occurred in that city last Tuesday. A passing car poured lead into the two passengers of another car as they both passed "death corner" in "little Italy." Having committed the crime the men threw the gun out of the car and as yet no trace of the assassins has been picked up.

A funnel shaped cloud carried an airplane with three passengers into the Platte river in Nebraska, last Tuesday evening. The men had left in the plane for a clinic in another town, one of them being a doctor the other a dentist, and were attempting to land at Gothenberg when the large cloud swept down out of the sky and blew the plane into the river and against a bank with great force. Two of the men are said to be fatally injured and the third very seriously injured.

Seventh Heaven

SEVENTH HEAVEN. For a long time these two words have been synonymous with perfection in the moving picture art. To us "Seventh Heaven" ranks first as the most wonderful film ever produced. It stars Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell in a simple little story of love in France during the great war. That is all there is to it. And yet—it portrays what we choose to call realism more accurately than any other dramatic piece we have ever seen, so beautiful that it is unbelievable, and then some. Characterization, which is the first essential to a well rounded play, we think, is in "Seventh Heaven" absolutely perfect. No episode, no bit of acting but is so very naturally and realistically done that there are no words to describe it. Poignant feeling, faithfully reproduced in mimicry, is the keynote throughout. Some have even called it the height of poetry. In harmony with these wonders of acting are the factors of settings and photography, which are also well nigh perfect. In life such things as gestures and facial expressions, you must know, spring from an inner ideal driving power which works out only in part and only feebly in the actual motions of the body; the technicians of "Seventh Heaven" have better succeeded in catching in celluloid those gestures and expressions close to the ideal than would seem possible at all, and yet there it is before you on the screen. It is a picture which you must not miss, we mean this sincerely, and which you will never forget if you see it. It is a picture, it is true, for which the mood that you are in when you see it is of some great importance; but just turn yourself loose for once, and "Seventh Heaven" will do the rest. You'll be feeling things so deeply that they hurt, and you'll enjoy the show. Well, perhaps not—but GO. At the Hancock through Saturday.

HANCOCK: Thursday, Friday, Saturday: "Seventh Heaven," starring Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell in a film that no one ought to miss or to miss seeing a second time if they have already seen it.

morals. She's not a devil by any means; in fact, she's a very good little girl who doesn't quite catch on to what it's all about even when Clive Brook salvages her from the jealous seclusion of a Tibetan monastery to take her post haste to the minister, kissing her passionately. But that girl wins the fur lined teapot for dancing that is dancing and a lot more. Whoie. And who wants a fur lined teapot anyway?

It's a fair enough story, clear enough photography, and impressive enough settings, but we hardly believe that a young woman (who had been shut up all her life in the fastness of a devil death worshippers' hangout in the heart of Tibet and who had achieved aesthetic expression for her artistic soul only in the passionate "devil dance") would after her first four days in semi-civilization be so self conscious as to break all the crockery about having used the wrong fork; and we are still wondering how she could speak such perfectly idiomatic and, what is more, grammatical English the first day out—and that is all we see radically wrong with the picture.

But then, it's Gilda Gray's dancing you'll go to take in anyway, that you ought to go to take in. It's your money's worth from almost any standpoint. The only dance better than we know of in the movies was

At the Queen

A SCREEN version of another comic strip. This time it's Harold Teen that gets movieized with a vengeance and that gets a few other things done to him with Mary Brian as Lillums and Alice White as a blonde as Giggles. It comes to the Queen Thursday. Meanwhile, you might take notice as how The Summer Texan runs tri-weekly installments of the adventures of Harold himself.

a certain small bit in "Metropolis" a long time ago, remember it? And while we aren't enthusiastic about Gilda Gray's beauty, there are other persons who are, and so opinion seems to be divided on that. Clive Brook is—just Clive Brook, he couldn't be anything else. And Sojin, arch demon of all oriental parts, was sadly hidden under a gob of make-up, and so may it be. But the picture is certainly one not to miss.

last minute football win on the part of Freshman Harold Teen—that's what the movie review in Liberty said, did you read it? But then, the show is bound to be entertainment plus, and entertainment is what you and I are looking for. Arthur Lake plays Harold; Mary Brian will be perfect as Lillums, we think; and Alice White is quite a competent Giggles, the little flapper who was always after poor Harold to "Come, baby, kiss, kiss," you know. There are a number of other personages playing all the old familiar parts (leaving out, we have heard, the great mess of the Widow Hazzitt's love affairs, which are taking the limelight in The Texan's series of the cartoon right now) but these whet my appetite. How about yours? Look for a free pass in the classifieds.

For Vitaphone the Queen will present Hobart Bosworth, famous screen star, in a powerful drama called "A Man of Peace"; Mayer and Evans, featuring a piano, song, and comedy sketch; and a third act consisting of ten minutes of grand opera.

Wheel of Chance

RICHARD BARTHELMLESS comes to the Majestic theater Saturday in what press agents and critics as well, we suppose, are hailing as his fifth dramatic hit right straight along in a line, meaning that "Wheel of Chance" (in which he once more explains to the long suffering public just what it means to be a human plaything of Fate, the great gambler, and exactly how a gangster feels about life, liberty, love, and the pursuit of happiness) doesn't seem to over-do the thing of coincidence as far as we can tell in advance, and really ends rather in a mystery, thus effecting something certainly more natural and realistic than the average movie.

But who ever accused Mr. Barthelmess of putting out an average movie? His are all more or less works of art, and "The Noose," which, we think, ranks on the list of ten best movies. In that film Miss Lina Basquette played his lady love, just as she does in "Wheel of Chance," which is assuredly a point for the picture. Among other favorable points are Mr. Barthelmess' playing a dual role, interpreting the parts of two brothers, one a lawyer prosecuting the other for murder, and the mystery is whether they ever knew that the same blood pounded in their veins. Watch for it.

'South America' Subject of Talk By Fitz-Gerald

Philologist Cites Points Of Justice for Union

Dr. John D. Fitz-Gerald lectured at the Open Air Theater Tuesday night on "The Personal Side of Our Relations to South America." Dr. Fitz-Gerald was introduced by Dr. E. R. Sims, chairman of the department of romance languages of the University. The lecture was opened with the following story:

An American once asked an Oriental, "Which of the 'ese' are you, Chinese or Japanese?"

To which the Oriental replied with the question, "Which of the 'ese' are you, Yankee, or Monkey?"

21 Countries

Speaking first of the use of the Pan-American Union, Dr. Fitz-Gerald mentioned that it is composed of the representatives from 21 independent countries. In comparison with senators, who speak freely only to a limited extent, Pan-American Union representatives can speak freely, with no limitations. He presented the following case to illustrate the usefulness of the Union:

"At a time when the United States of America and Mexico were on the verge of battle, Argentina, Brazil, and Chile offered to settle the affair. Before proposing the plan to either the United States or to Mexico, it was presented to, and approved by, the Pan-American Union. Later, both the United States and Mexico accepted the proposal."

This Argentine, Brazil, and Chile intervention is known as "the A. B. C. Mediation," and this mediation has been called, according to Dr. Fitz-Gerald, "the greatest triumph of American diplomacy."

Another question presented and explained was the following:

Why would we get justice from the Pan-American Union? Dr. Fitz-Gerald's answer was, "Because of the culture of Spanish-America."

Education Feature

Speaking of highly-educated men of South American countries, especially students of college and younger university age, Dr. Fitz-Gerald cited cases of extraordinary learning and brilliance.

Lastly, the progress of the Y. M. C. A. was discussed. The basis of this progress is physical reform, he said. Recently, the need of more camps and equipment led the Y. M. C. A. of Montevideo to collect, through personal work, $100,000 in two weeks. Rio de Janeiro raised $115,000 in ten days.

Dr. Fitz-Gerald told that many South Americans realize the need of following the ideals and aims of Christianity.

Texas Graduate Makes Addresses In Europe

To enlighten Europeans about America and especially Texas was the purpose of a recent tour of Mrs. Selma Metsenthin-Raunick, who holds a B.A. and an M.A. degree from the University. She has just returned to Austin after having spent several years abroad. Mrs. Raunick spent most of her time abroad in the European universities. The April issue of the Alcalde states of Mrs. Raunick: "While she went abroad primarily to learn, to absorb the desirable European culture, she also took occasion to enlighten Europeans about America, and more especially Texas and Texas institutions in the form of lectures and by means of articles in periodicals, some of them, like Die Literatur, Berliner Akademische Nachrichten, of a high degree of merit." The Alcalde lists as many as eight of Mrs. Raunick's articles.

During the summer of 1927, Mrs. Raunick was called to the University of Hamburg to lecture on "Tendencies in Modern American Literature" and to teach classes on the differences between British English and American English, and on American customs.

Mrs. Raunick's publications in the United States deal mainly with Texas, with particular emphasis on the cultural influence of the German colonists and their descendants. One of her sketches on a Texas writer, which was written in Germany for Die Literatur, was published in a Texas magazine, Bunker's Monthly. Mrs. Raunick attended lectures at the Universities of Berlin, Marburg, Goettinger, Heidelberg, and Hamburg. She studied at the Universite de Strasbourg, and before her return to the United States visited in France, Holland, and England. With Mrs. Raunick was her niece, Miss Margaret Schade, who is now a student at the University.

METHODISTS OPEN BRAZIL DRIVE SUNDAY, JUNE 24

The Methodist Texas-Brazil drive for the summer session will open Sunday, June 24, and will extend to July 1. Every summer a drive is held for the benefit of those students who were not here during the long session. The purpose of the campaign is to raise money for the support of two missionaries in Brazil and partial upkeep of the school at Passo Fundo, Brazil.

This work began in 1914 when J. W. Daniel went to Brazil as a missionary. It has grown until now the Methodist students and ex-students of the University pay the salaries of two Texas exes in the missionary field, besides contributing to other activities.

The first meeting for final organization of the drive will be held Friday at 7 o'clock in the Wesley Bible Chair. The chairman is Lera McFarland. Captains and lieutenants are: Mamie Kellum, Annie Laurie Winfrey, George Adams, Lorraine Decherd, Marjorie Johnston, Anita Kneese, Viola Kellum, Walton Rowland, Emily See, and Mildred Hankins.

Enrollment in English Lower This Summer

Less than one-third as many freshman students at the University are enrolled for freshman courses in English this summer as registered for the same courses last summer, according to Dr. R. H. Griffith, chairman of the English department. Since English 1 is a course which all freshmen must take, these figures indicate pretty generally the size of the group taking first year work. Dr. Griffith said.

There are only 197 students attending first year English classes this term, and quite a few of these are students who enrolled in the University in February, he said. Last summer 304 freshmen registered for English 1.

A. & M. College Awards Free Trip to Chicago

COLLEGE STATION, Texas, June 20.—A free trip for the champion forestry 4-H club boy of Texas to the National Club Congress at the International Livestock Exposition in Chicago this fall, is to be awarded by the East Texas Chamber of Commerce, C. B. Webster, farm forester of the Texas Forest Service and the Extension Service, A. & M. College of Texas, has announced. This award is to be made as the result of efforts of the forestry committee of the East Texas organization, of which L. D. Gilbert, of Texarkana, is chairman.

Boys are now organized in 4-H forestry clubs in Rusk, Cass, Walker, Houston, Marion and Gregg counties, according to Mr. Webster. These boys are engaged in demonstrating the possibilities of timber as a profitable farm crop through proper methods of production, including thinning, harvesting, protection from fire, insects and disease and through re-forestation. Cost records are being kept as has been done since 1925 when this work was begun as a part of the Texas Forest Service program.

Seven Law Graduates Score Highest Honors

Graduating with highest honors from the School of Law of the University in June were six men who constitute the highest ten per cent of the graduating class in terms of scholastic averages, according to Miss Lucy Moore, registrar. These six, together with a seventh, Ralph W. Yarbrough of Chandler, an August graduate of last year, were also inducted into the Order of the Coif, a national honorary legal fraternity.

The law school honor roll, the Coif, of which there are some 45 or 50 chapters in the United States, and Chancellors, a local honorary law society, usually have a common membership, inasmuch as each of the three is made up of students with the highest averages in the school, according to Miss Moore.

This year's honor roll is made up of the following students: Tom M. Davis of Austin, Olind Pitman of Livingston, Jack Bain of San Antonio, Edward W. Bailey of Sherman, John Jackson Cox of Dallas and Homer DeWolfe of Goldthwaite.

German Classes Make Record Enrollment

Enrollment in summer courses in German at the University has reached a high water mark not attained since the World War, according to Dr. J. L. Boysen, chairman of the department.

Four full courses in the language are being offered during the first term of summer school, with a total enrollment of 65.

One of the courses is an advanced course in scientific German; four students are enrolled for the course, each doing research reading on some particular line of study, such as physics, chemistry, botany and general science.

Classes in Typing Conducted to Music

After having introduced the system of exercising to music, the University has come to the front with yet another musical innovation. It now has classes in typing conducted to music.

Following the rhythm of specially prepared phonograph records, each with his own particular speed, summer classes in typing manipulate the typewriter keys in quite melodious fashion, according to Miss Zelda Ramsey, instructor in charge of the typewriting and shorthand classes. Speed tests, rhythm drills and accuracy tests are all conducted in time with the music, Miss Ramsey said.

Miss Ramsey is a graduate of the University and was formerly an assistant in the course she now teaches. She has been teaching for the last few years at the North Texas Agricultural College at Arlington. So far as she knows, Miss Ramsey is the first instructor ever to use a phonograph and music records as part of her equipment in teaching University typing classes.

There are now 40 students enrolled in the classes in typewriting and 25 in the shorthand course, according to Miss Ramsey.

WINS FREE TRIP

Special to The Summer Texan DENTON, Texas, June 20.—Work done by a pupil in commercial subjects under the supervision of a former student in secretarial studies at the College of Industrial Arts has resulted in that student being chosen for a trip to California to compete in the national tests.

Miss Flossie Rayzor Lowe, until recently a student at C. I. A., offered training at McAllen which resulted in a team of students winning the county and district meet and in one student being selected for national competition.

SHOWS INCREASE

Special to The Summer Texan COLLEGE STATION, Texas, June 20.—Registration of 634 for the summer session, A. & M. College of Texas, during the first week this year showed an increase over the total enrollment for the entire first term of last summer when the total was 607.
