AMERICAN HOSPITALITY FOR BRITISH PRISONERS OF WAR

The American Red Cross Service Club at Exeter has extended a cordial invitation to any two repatriated British prisoners of war whose homes are not in the British Isles to spend a week's leave at the club as guests of American service men.

Major General E. C. Gepp, has replied to the Club stating that its very generous offer is greatly appreciated and that as soon as he receives the names of those who have no homes he will select two guests from their number.
