Dear Henryk:

We are now at a place that calls for a DEADLINE on Treatise oysters, because typesetting on the Bivalvia volume is proceeding steadily. It is at such pace that I need your chapter within weeks--say before January. Probably this means that you cannot hope to produce the complete and perfect opus you would like to have published, but surely you have accumulated enough pearls to allow them to be released for the press.

Please let me know now what to expect, for I am emphatically unwilling to contemplate a future cutoff that would produce an oysterless volume. I count on your help.

Sincerely

Raymond C. Moore
