About William J. Siemer, Geology Professor at St. Mary's University,
San Antonio, Texas.

Applying for active membership.

Professor Siemer has been known to me for several years. I have met him many a time at the meetings of the South Texas Geological Society and other meetings. He is greatly interested in geology and occupies a strategic, if lonely, position in teaching. He is in a position to popularize geology among students who otherwise would have no contact with the subject. I support his application fully.
