

"Οίνος παλαιός ἡδύποτος" Sat pm 12th must be

Τό κρητικό κρασί ἀπὸ τὰ προϊστορικά ὡς τὰ νεώτερα χρόνια.

Tom,

You know the story of MV in the Athenaeum in the presence of AE? Was that '36, '32 or whatever.

Well, I do really have a similar, but not so rewarding. School year 1934-35. Hughes High School. Class Vergil (or maybe Virgil) Teacher Miss Renfrew [her sister was also Miss Renfrew, but taught in another school.] I wasn't a whole kid by any means, but she did her best to interest.

There was a photo of the Parthenon on The wall. I liked it. Some how between Parents and Miss Renfrew I received a (slightly different) photo. Still have
it. But it's not hanging up.

Anyhow at some point in the seminar,
she mentioned the existence of tablets undeciphered - must have said Crete but I don't remember. I thought that was pretty good, whether I remember that in UC 36/37 must have been that PM was recommended as library reading in Malcolm McGregor [Africanist tribute lists] suggested I read some of.

Copied some. Nothing serious, that was the same year I was sliding slides for CW Bleeker's Archaeology I'm sure he didn't mention tablets.
