Dear Henryk:

Thank you for your letter to Sam Ellison including the tribute to Dave Crawford for our publication in the next newsletter from the Department of Geology. We will be delighted to include the excerpt exactly as you wrote it up for us. Perhaps you could tell us a little more about Mr. Crawford. I assume that the David Johnson Crawford Scholarship which we received last year through the Ex-student's Association was a tribute to this man, but we have very little information about it. We would like to give it a little more publicity and show our proper appreciation.

We are now intensely aware of the shortage of geologists. All of our graduating students, both seniors and graduate students, have multiple job offers, and there are relatively few undergraduates coming on. We did observe a slight increase at the sophomore level where we have about 25 students in the beginning paleontology class.

Dr. Ellison and your other friends join me in sending our best wishes.

Sincerely,

Steve
