NINTH AIR FORCE'S FLYING COP

A U.S. Ninth Air Force Marauder station Staff Sgt. Francis J. Driscoll, 133, Beach Street, Boston, Massachusetts, isn't directly concerned with post-war employment problems any more.

Returning Sunday from his 41st mission as a Ninth Air Force Marauder engineer-gunner, Driscoll was notified of his permanent appointment to the Boston Police Force. He applied in 1940, a year before he enlisted.

If Sgt. Driscoll walks his beat as effectively as he patrols enemy skies, the Boston Police Force has a good man. The 30-year old Irish airman has destroyed one enemy fighter and has warded off the attacks of many others.
