ENEMY E-BOAT SUNK

Fighter Command pilots engaged on intruder operations last night sank an E-boat, and damaged five goods trains.

The E-boat sunk was one of three seen off the Normandy coast by a flight sergeant, who dived down on the rear vessel and released his bombs, one of which scored a direct hit. When the pilot turned after his attack, only two boats were to be seen.

Traffic on the Rouen-Paris railway was attacked by a New Zealand pilot officer and a sergeant pilot of the same squadron, who swept five goods trains with gunfire and brought them all to a stop.
