Women's Forum 2000

For the past three years the Students for Equity and Diversity has hosted a Women's Forum in the fall of each year. Women of all ages have concerns they confront daily. This forum is deigned to address those major concerns . This year in light of Women's History Month, the Women's Forum will be held on March 25, 2000 here on the UT campus. This forum will address the following issues: health; relationships; surviving in male dominated careers; the portrayal of women in the media; safety; and preparing high school students for college (potential Longhorns). A detailed list is on page four of this packet. The theme for this year is "Universal Woman: Discovering A Common Ground". The main focus of this year's forum is to strengthen, unite, and uplift women of each ethnicity sparking a new beginning for the millennium. The goal of the forum is also to encourage women to continue being leaders of our society . We are asking for you to review this packet and donate either money or supplies for this great event. This will be wonderful opportunity to get involved with the largest university in the nation. For more information, please contact Ja'Near Crabtree, Women's Forum Coordinator, at the Multicultural Information Center at (512) 232-2958 or j_see@mail.utexas.edu.
