Dear Dr. Stenzel:

I am sure Dr. Moore will be pleased to know you are about to complete the oysters volume. We are sending your letter to him at home (letter of June 20) and also a copy to Dr. Teichert for his information.

You may like to have a report from here about the status of illustrations. We are waiting on interlibrary loans for Cossmann & Pissarro, 1904-13 for HS 308B; Cossmann & Peyrot, 1913-14 for HS 348, and Coquand, 1869 for HS 337, 341A, 341B, 342, and 345. We have Oppenheim, 1906 for HS 344 and d'Orbigny, 1842 for HSV331, now being photographed. As you said, some are in the process of being checked by you prior to revision and/or O.K.

We will make a complete set of illustrations and captions for you as soon as we receive your approval on everything.

After renumbering the figures, legends to illustrations cited in the systematic descriptions must be rewritten to insert, Treatise style, in the systematic text. We hope this can be done without too much trouble or time involved. Retyping can be done here in order to help you complete the job at that time.

I have found the following pages containing Anodontostrea, O. angassi, or O. lutraria: 57, 89, 237, and 308B. and FIG. HS 310.

We have found it is better not to disturb the type as it is now set for the references in order to insert the additional copy and renumber, because the complete lines containing the numbers would have to be reset. A more practical method which avoids errors likely to occur in resetting is to add each reference where it belongs alphabetically and chronologically and affix an a or b to the number of the reference it follows. For examples, see Part R, p. R625, or Part U, pages U633, U635, and U637. There are some additions of this sort in Volume 2 of Part N.

The glossary in Volume 1 of Part N includes oyster terms which you sent in earlier. If you don't have a copy of this, we will make one for you.

Sincerely yours,

Lavon McCormick

P. S. Can you send us a copy of the "insert" for page 71? We seem to have misplaced it.
