

4622 Live Oak St.,
Dallas, Texas,
September 5, 1934.

Dr. H. B. Stenzel,
Bureau of Economic Geology,
State of Texas,
Austin,
Texas.

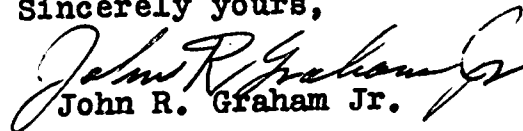

Dear Dr. Stenzel:

Well, I am the proud possessor of a MS degree now. When I took my oral exams I sure got into hot water. Had my exams under three men that I had never had any work of any kind under. My thesis was based entirely on the "Q-S-L" joint classification, and none of them had ever heard of it, so I sure had a war on my hands. However, I managed to "convert" them and won the day.

I hear that you are now with the Bureau. Do you like that better than teaching?

I have been back from Colorado just a few days. Things are much better here than they are in Colorado, but still, I havn't the slightest prospect of a job. If you hear of anything that you think that I would be capable of doing, I would certainly appreciate your letting me know.

Sincerely yours,

John R. Graham Jr.