Dear Sam:

Thanks for your letter of May 26. It is fine that you decided to continue the work in west Texas. It should provide an excellent arrangement for both institutions. The only drawback is that you get to Texas at the worst possible season. If you ever get to working on the problems of petrography, rather than stratigraphy, you will get very fine problems.

Enclosed are advertisements of food stuffs from Austin, which will give you an idea how much things cost here. I would have the impression that they are as cheap as in Minnesota. Probably the thing to do is to buy your foods here in Austin.

The Presidency is doing fine, although Tuenhofel is still "Editor" all editing from now on is to be handled by Jack Hough, the managing editor. I hope this meets with your hearty approval. It sure took a lot of figuring and working to put it across.

With best regards, I am

Sincerely yours,

H. B. STENZEL
