Dear Pras:

In response to your letter of January 30, 1951, if it is just a small piece of work I shall be able to do it this spring. I would like to write the description if it can be done without much involvement.

There are certain precautions that need to be taken. No expenses should fall on the Bureau, by that I mean transportation and illustrations. Also, when the description appears in print it should be in such a form that it is readily quoted or listed as a publication under my name. This latter point I must insist on for my own protection, simply because the administration of our university counts the titles of publications of the staff and in their eyes the best man is the one who has the most publications. This point has been emphasized so often that it is one of the obvious facts of life at our university.

Best regards to everybody at the Museum.

Sincerely yours,

H. B. STENZEL
