Dear Dr. Lewis:

In July 1967 you sent me copies of several of your publications, but I am afraid I overlooked acknowledging them. At that time I was still in Houston, Texas, and strenuously trying to sell my house and pack my too numerous belongings. A move from one town to another is always a disaster of sorts. My belongings are not yet quite straightened out.

I am glad to know there is a carcinologist here in the vicinity. You might consider driving up to Baton Rouge on a future Sunday and visit with me. It would be nice to get well acquainted.

Many thanks for your publications, with which I was not familiar at all.

With best wishes for a healthy 1968.

Sincerely yours,

H. B. Stenzel
